WOMEN SERVE

She belonged in the house, subject to her husband's will. He could divorce her, by merely denouncing her as unfit. But not she him. She stood, and served, while the men dined. She did not sit with them.

Partly the attitude stemmed from the creation story of woman's derivation from man, and perhaps also from Eve's role in getting Adam to eat the forbidden fruit to try to make himself as great as God.

But in the cooling of Christ, His mother, Mary, exhibited it, offered a keenly disarming insight: "He has exalted them of low estate," in Him, there was "neither Jew nor Greek," neither "male nor female," but all equally one.

And in the culminating crisis of His life, it was those of "low estate," those historically ostracized as capricious, shallow and shrinking women, who remained steadfast, bound to Him with a love which overcame fear.

At the cross, they were there, Mary Magdalene, from whom Jesus had plucked back from a wasted existence; His mother, Mary and her sister, Salome, whose two insensitive sons, James and John, were among the apostles.

Only one of those 12 apostles, John, showed up on that agonizing afternoon, but "many women" were there, Scripture notes — those "who had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering to Him." Desperate, heartsick, yet still standing by Him, still hoping in the midst of the hopelessness which had shattered the men.

WATCH DEVOTEDLY

They were there, too, watching tearfully and devotedly, as Jesus was taken down from the cross and carried on an open litter to the Sepulchre, still loving and believing with a passion that did not end with death.

They were there as the body was anointed, wrapped and laid in the tomb. None of the male companions appeared, only the women, again including Mary the mother of Jesus and James the younger.

More than mention is made of their presence at these points, as if to minimize it. Since it gives help to the relatively faltering conduct of the men, the male gospel writer must have been strained just in noting the bare fact.

However, the men's role became comparatively even more negative and faint-hearted.

On the third day after Jesus' death, while the apostles still cowered in disillusionment, the women returned to the tomb, driven by a faith overcoming fear.

It led them, in the grey light promising a new day, to surprise and dazzling mystery. Salome, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and again, Mary Magdalene, found the tomb empty and a radiant messenger saying Jesus "is not here; He has risen . . . go quickly and tell His disciples."

Stunned, wondering, wildly elated, they ran back to the men's hideaway, saying not the news. But the men, the presumed gallant and sensible ones, scoffed. "An idle tale," they said, and did not believe them."

No excitable females would change their masculine realism, their plain defeat and misery. The movement was wrecked and Jesus was dead and they were unnerved and beaten.

MEN RETURN

Finally, however, the women persuaded Peter and John to return with them to the tomb. The men found it bafflingly empty, the face wrappings still looped over as if the body had dematerialized but suddenly within them. Yet they made nothing of it and went away, still downcast and defeated.

But Mary Magdalene remained there in the garden, puzzling, yearning, crying. "Women, why are you weeping?" Not looking up, her veil half covering her face, she thought the question came from the gardener.

But then he spoke again. "Mary."

And she knew. "Rabboni!" A woman, that lesser sex, of that purportedly capricious and fickle species, one who had been possessed of seven devils and had lived in defiantly and shockingly wanton, who remained steadfast, bound to Him with a love which overcame fear.

"I have been the Lord!"

Later, in that mystically charged, yet intimately identifiable form, Jesus appeared to the men, reassuring them, convincing them, turning that dispirited, frightened huddle at last into sturdy advocates of Christ.

Although denied many places in His church in the years afterward, the women showed their commitment of Him when it was hard to do. In suffering and degradation, they honored Him, and so they shared the first sunrise of His triumph.

In that immemorial, world-shaking struggle, from which the men drew back, the women enlisted unhesitatingly to be heroism and its eternal dominion.

Cost of H-Bomb Recovery Into Millions of Dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States lost the H-bomb a second time for nine days during the great 80-day search off Spain—and was in danger of losing it forever in a yawning undersea canyon, it was learned today.

The 1.1 megaton device, retrieved from 2,900 feet deep in the Mediterranean Thursday, had shifted two weeks earlier—and along a widening ravine to within a few hundred feet of a canyon extending to depths of 4,000 feet—beyond the capability of retrieval equipment.

This development occurred when a one-inch thick nylon line snapped as a surface vessel's hook dragged the bomb up a 70 - degree slope toward level area.

The eight-ton bomb toppled 200 feet back into the underwater ravine and sank in the muck-filled bottom. There it remained hidden until April 3 when the miniature sub Alvin sighted a piece of the weapon's parachute protruding from the mud.

REPORTS SOME FOUND

Four days later, a message from Admiral Wilfred Baird Guest in Spain to defence departments here said:

"Target on deck of Petrel and identified as weapon."

The 16-foot long, three-foot thick bomb had been hauled up by the recovery vessel Petrel.

There—and only there—was it definitely identified by serial number as the hydrogen bomb which spilled from a B-52 disintegrating after colliding with a refueling tanker six miles above Spain's coast Jan. 17.

On Friday the bomb was being shown to reporters and Spanish officials.

The exact price of the recovery operation may never be known, but the navy acknowledges the cost runs into the millions of dollars.

The sea search involved 18 vessels and 2,200 men.

WILL BE RETURNED

Navy officials said Friday the H-bomb will be returned to the United States from Spain on the ship Cascade for intensive study.

The story began Jan. 17 when the B-52 bomber out of Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N.C., on what the U.S. calls a training flight, for actually these are preparedness flights of U.S. planes armed with nuclear weapons ready for any necessary retaliation against an enemy attack.

Somewhere near the Spanish coast, about 30 miles from headquarters of the 16th U.S. Air Force near Madrid, the B-52 eased under a KC-135 tanker to refuel.

What happened next is under investigation and has not been explained. Apparently the tanker's crashed boom which feeds fuel down to the B-52 ripped up the back of the bomber like a can opener. Both went down.

TWO BLOWN APART

Two of its four hydrogen bombs were blown apart by conventional explosives used to trigger the thermonuclear blast.

A third was recovered intact.

For six weeks military personnel poked into lead mines, drilled holes, drafts, mineral depressions and sand dunes—places that weren't holes at all but merely looked suspicious—looking for the fourth bomb.

Then the search spread over a 3,25-square-mile area involving 1,000,000 square feet of sea, and still no bomb.

A fisherman's report that he saw a parachute drifting out over the ocean shifted the big operation to a two-mile-diameter area known as Alpha 1.

SEARCH SUSPENDED

QUEBEC (CP) — The air search for a Cessna 182 aircraft piloted by Robert Shaw, 33, only son of Expo 67's deputy commissioner general, missing since March 25 in eastern Quebec, was suspended indefinitely Thursday. Young Shaw and Les Hanna were on a surveying mission for Sorvair, an Ottawa aerial survey firm.

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Exports of Canadian military explosives to the United States are growing rapidly to help meet American needs in the Viet Nam war, authorities said Wednesday.

Exports this year are expected to exceed amounts produced for Canadian commercial use in 1965. Domestic commercial production last year was 283,000,000 pounds, despite the amount of four years previously.

Officials said export licences are not required for sales of Canadian military explosives to the U.S.

Biggest producer of explosives in Canada is Canadian Industries Ltd. of Montreal.

The company last year bought the Crown-owned Canadian Arsenals Ltd. plant at Valleyfield, Que., and began working almost exclusively on U.S. contracts for explosives.

CREATES JOBS

One source said the number of employees of CIL at Valleyfield has increased to more than 1,600 from a few hundred.

Officials said Dynamit of Canada Ltd. of Niagara Falls, Ont., is engaged in production of artillery propellants for the U.S.

Canada Chemical Industries Ltd. of Cookville, Ont., and the CIL plant at Brownsburg, Que., produce such items as smoke grenades, flares and other military pyrotechnics.

Amounts of military explosives exported by Canada are not listed separately by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. They are lumped in either with industrial chemical specialties or with various military ordnance.

SPORT SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

They're still talking about it at every hole from the first to the nineteenth of the Longboat Key Golf Club near Sarasota down Florida way. . .

It happened in two golfing buddies — but it did not break up a beautiful friendship.

Johnny is the pro at the Longboat Key Club and about a month ago he astounded the natives with a neat 65 setting up a new course record.

Then one day his buddy from Canada dropped in to say hello and get in an 18-hole round.

It wasn't done with malice aforethought nor with any intention of stealing the thunder from the club pro.

Gary was better that day than the sun on the boys. He "bulls-eyed" the greens. The holes were magnets for his putts.

When it was all over Gary had carded a neat eight-under-par 64 to nip buddy Kindreds mark and set a new record.

But you aint heard nothin yet. Don't go away.

He had two lapses. One came when his ball deuked itself in the water and again at the 11th green when he took three putts. It was here that he carded his only bogey of the day.

But Gary had nine birdies and that is something even for that golf-bugged part of the tropics.

Young Mr. Bowerman spent the winter as a playing pro for the Lido-Biltmore Club.

He will be spending a few days at home in the near future before taking up his summer duties as assistant pro at the Maple Downs Club of Toronto.

They're drawing rave notices from columnists and critics south of the border and are rapidly climbing to the proud position of being one of the top attractions of the show "Holiday on Ice."

The Miami Herald recently carried a two-column story with pictures of Peggy and Jane and from their smiling faces they appear to be as much at home on the pro circuit as they were here and in Toronto.

They're taking to "show biz" like they took to skates at the peddling age. Only a few months in the glare of the spotlights the youngsters are cinching their new venture in their stride (as pun intended) and already are showing the "at home-at work" relaxation of veterans.

They do not have much time for dilly-dallying or dates. It is a seven-day week trek for them and they're enjoying every minute of it. There's likely to be a show in a given city with two on Saturdays and Sundays and sometimes three on the latter.

There there are those two or three hours of rehearsal almost every day, the costume fittings, publicity photos and interviews.

There's a trawlful of books that goes everywhere with them. It is to be allowed on the professional ice-skating circuit they're required to keep up with their school work at Toronto's Oakland High School taking instruction by correspondence.

It is no easy way to see America first — but they're enjoying every darned minute of it.

Habs' Beliveau Scores Late Winner

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Beliveau drew accolades from the fans and well-wishers Thursday night for his tie-breaking game-winning goal, but it was the quiet man of Montreal's blue line corps—J. C. Tremblay—who evoked the grudging admiration of the opposition.

Beliveau's third period goal, with just under two minutes remaining, sparked Montreal Canadiens a 4-3 win in the first game of their best - of - seven Stanley Cup semi-finals series with Toronto Maple Leafs.

With most of the attention focused on Beliveau, it remained for Frank (King) Clancy, Leafs' assistant general manager, to pinpoint the difference in the two clubs in a game that Toronto coach Punch Imlach described as "anybody's ball game."

"That Tremblay, now there's a defenceman," Clancy said, after the Leafs' 45-minute Friday workout. "He uses his head, he's steady and he knows how to come up with the puck. He just hits you."

BROKE UP PLAY

The Montreal defenceman broke up a play in the first period by Pulford of Leafs at the Montreal blue line, and broke away down the left boards.

With his wingmen waiting for a pass, Tremblay cut across in front of the Toronto defence and let go a 40-foot shot that sailed past Terry Sawchuk in the Leafs' nets.

"The defencemen tried to cover my wings, so I cut across one end of the arena to the other. Huff has to be the fastest."

He said Huff also has the better shot.

"He shoots better than any player I've seen in my 36 years. He lifts you out of your seat."

HOWE DECEPTIVE

Ivan said Howe is almost the equivalent of Richard because the Detroit star makes everything look easy.

"He has great deception. He can make it appear like he isn't moving when he's really traveling like the Detroit Flash.

"And Howe has one big edge over the other two. He has a ready shot either right-handed or left-handed—a sort of Mickey Mantle of hockey."

Asked what made these three so great, he said:

"All are strong physically. Each could score carrying a checker on his back. And each is a great competitor, unusually aggressive.

"There have been many great players in hockey, but Richard, Howe and Hull have been the scorers, and that's what the public notices—the same way it notices over the home-run hitters in baseball."

SHACK BEATS WORSLEY

Shack got Leafs off to a fast start when Ferguson gave the puck away and at 2:12 Shack tipped in Pulford's shot behind Lorne (Gump) Worsley and the Leafs led 1-0.

Canadiens got that one back 10 minutes later on Tremblay's goal, with Leafs' captain George Armstrong in the penalty box.

At 16:09 of the period Beliveau was given a hooking penalty and one second before he was scheduled to return to play, Frank Mahovlich deflected Arm-strong's goalmouth pass past Worsley.

Ferguson evened the count at 2-2 after three minutes of the middle frame as he fired a high shot over Sawchuk from close quarters.

At 8:18 Rousseau sent Canadiens ahead 3-2, combining with J. C. Tremblay and Yvan Cournoyer for another power play goal. Toronto defenceman Larry Hillman was sitting out a high-sticking penalty.

Mid-way through the final period Pulford tied the game 3-3, beating Worsley with a long high shot from just inside the Montreal blue line.

Armstrong cleared the puck directly to Claude Provost's stick and the Montreal right winger drilled a hard shot that hit Hillman. The puck then bounced over to Beliveau who scored with a 20-foot wrist shot.

With only 10 seconds left to play, Toronto centre Dave Keon drifted in the Worsley after taking a Red Kelly pass, to put the puck behind the Montreal goalie.

Referee Frank Udvari ruled the play offside and disallowed the goal. He rather a dozen minor penalties throughout, seven to the visitors.

Leafs had further bad news Friday. Their No. 1 defenceman Johnny Bower is still sidelined by the flu and will not appear in tonight's second game, and Allan Stanley, the club's all-star defenceman in the first half season poll, is through for the year.

Imlach said he will start Terry Sawchuk, with Bruce Gamble as his backup netminder, but plans to call no one to replace Stanley.

Says Tommy Ivan
Howe, Hull, Richard, Greatest

By JERRY GLADMAN

CHICAGO (CP) — Dapper Tommy Ivan, general-manager of Chicago Black Hawks, considers himself one of the luckiest guys in hockey.

With the Hawks holding a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final after defeating Detroit Red Wings 3-1 Thursday, Ivan Friday said:

"I've had both Gordie Howe and Bobby Hull playing for me. I had Howe when I was with Detroit and now I've got Hull. What other guy in hockey has been so lucky?"

Hull, the explosive Chicago scoring ace who set a record of 54 goals in one season this year, scored the winning goal in Thursday's contest. While the 30-year-old Howe didn't score, his presence was always spotlighted when he stepped onto the ice.

Ivan was coach at Omaha when Howe broke into organized hockey at the age of 16. They went to Detroit together. Hull, 18 when he joined the Hawks was 27 in January.

THEY ARE GREATEST

Asked how he would rate Howe, Hull and Maurice Richard, Montreal Canadiens' great right winger, Ivan said:

"I wish I had all three on the same club. These are the three greatest, no matter what oldtimers say.

"Richard was colorful, very boisterous, and sometimes flew off the handle. The crowds came to see him the same way they do Hull and Howe." Ivan described Hull and Howe as better all-around players than Richard.

"Richard was mainly an offensive player. There wasn't a thing that Richard could do that Howe and Hull can't do. The Rocket was lighting breading in from the blueline. Hull could have topped him skating from

Friends Pay Clay's Alimony

TORONTO — Harold Ballard, executive vice-president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Friday he is trying to arrange a world heavyweight title fight here between Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell in mid-May.

Clay and Terrell were scheduled to clash in a 15-round title bout in the 17,500-seat arena last month, but Terrell backed out in a contract dispute and Clay instead scored an easy decision over Canadian Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay escaped a 30-day jail sentence by a couple of hours Thursday when his friends raised $26,220 in cash to pay alimony and lawyers' fees for his pretty ex-wife, Sonji.

Two Hawks Injured In 2-1 Victory

Hull, Jarrett Hurt

By STERLING TAYLOR

CHICAGO (CP) — As is so often the case with the rougher team, Chicago Black Hawks came off second-best against Detroit Red Wings in the injury department Thursday night.

The Hawks did come out of the first game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals with a 2-1 victory, but one of their defencemen, Doug Jarrett, was sent to hospital for back x-rays and super - star Bobby Hull has a knee injury.

STAN MIKITA

"I don't think we planned it that way," said Detroit defenceman Gary Bergman. "You go into a game and the other team starts knocking you around. All you can do is start hitting right back."

The scoring all came in rough first period, with Hull getting the winning goal. Kenny Wharram had scored the first and Dean Prentice provided the only Detroit goal.

Hull's effort brought his points total for the schedule and playoffs to 96—15 away from the all-time record set by Dickie Moore of Montreal Canadiens during the 1958-59 campaign.

NEEDS FOUR GOALS

The goal brought the combined total to 55 for the powerful left winger, who needs four to tie the record set by Montreal's Jean Beliveau in 1955-56.

Both Chicago injuries came in the second period. Jarrett hurt his back in a collision with Detroit defenceman Bert Marshall. There was no indication late Friday whether Jarrett would be available for the second game of the series here Sunday.

Marshall was cut inside the thigh by Jarrett's skate during the collision, but returned to play the remainder of the game. Bergman got a piece of Hull during the final seconds of the period and the Golden Jet limped to the dressing room. He played the third period, but left Chicago Stadium wearing a pressure bandage on the left knee.

He'll probably start in Sunday's game, but how effective he will be depends on the knee.

MIKITA PLAYED WELL

There were few individual stars Thursday unless one was to compare Stan Mikita's high-flying effort to his past playoff performances. The stocky centre, an effective goal scorer during regular National Hockey League seasons who often leaves much to be desired in the playoffs, was all over, the ice.

He was the target of heavy Detroit bodychecks, but he kept coming back. The first Chicago goal came from Mikita's pass just as he was sent flying by Leo Boivin at the blueline.

"I threw the puck to Mahl in the corner and I got in behind Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby," Hull said. "Chico threw the puck to me out of the corner and I deflected it."

ABEL DISPUTES GOAL

The play brought a minor outburst from Detroit coach Sid Abel, who claimed the referee allowed Hull to stand in the goal crease and wait for the pass.

The Detroit goal came on the power play with Chicago defenceman Pierre Pilote serving a penalty. Chicago goalie Glenn Hall stopped Ullman's shot but Prentice scooped up the rebound and fired it over Hall's shoulder.

The second and third periods slowed down considerably. The Wings poured on the pressure in the final two minutes but Hall closed the door.

Sunday's game is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. EST with the series switching to Detroit for the third and fourth games Tuesday and Thursday.

The game will be telecast in colour by NBC, beginning a half hour after game time. The CBC will also televise the game from 3 p.m. in addition, the game will be broadcast in full by the CBC national radio network.

Lead Finals 3-0

Oshawa Whips Rangers

OSHAWA (CP) — Kitchener Rangers, seventh-place finishers turned giant-killers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs, have apparently met their match in the fast-skating Oshawa Generals.

The Rangers, who have ousted Niagara Falls, defending Memorial Cup champions, and Toronto Marlboros, are within one game of eliminating themselves after an 8-2 drubbing at the hands of Oshawa here Friday night.

Oshawa leads the best-of-seven final series 3-0 with the fourth game scheduled for Kitchener tonight.

The Generals' top line of Danny O'Shea, Wayne Cashman and Bill Liddle produced six goals with Cashman getting three, O'Shea two and Liddle one. Defenceman Bobby Orr and rookie Danny Sandford added the other Oshawa goals. Jim McCreary and John Barber scored for Kitchener.

Oshawa led 2-1 at the end of the first period but then broke the game wide open to finish the night's scoring with a margin. A record crowd of 5,479 packed the Oshawa Arena, which usually seats 3,479.

OPENS SCORING

Cashman opened the scoring at the end of a picture-passing play with Orr. He scored his second goal on a passout near the Kitchener goal crease and then hammered a rebound by Gary Kurr for his third. O'Shea drove in his own rebound for his first goal and scored his second on a stapshot from a faceoff.

Cashman's three goals raised his playoff total to 13 while O'Shea's pair gave him 10.

Referee Hugh McLean of Toronto handed out 12 penalties to Oshawa, including misconducts to Nick Beverley and Chris Hayes. Hayes was serving a double minor when he got his misconduct. Kitchener picked up eight minor penalties.

Two fans were cautioned by police when they reached over the boards to grab Oshawa defenceman Barry Wilkins.

Oshawa levelled 44 shots at Gary Kurr in the Kitchener goal while Ian Young handled 27 in the Oshawa net.

First Pitch Monday

New Cities, Managers Set For Openers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington Senators and Cincinnati Reds will be out to break two-game losing streaks when the National and American League baseball seasons open Monday. And so will President Johnson if he decides to return from his Easter vacation at his Texas ranch for the traditional first pitch preceding the Senators first game of the year.

Johnson, in two previous tries, is the only president in more than half a century who hasn't rooted Washington to an opening-day victory.

Few changes in the game will be noticed while tradition reigns Monday. But as eight-game program Tuesday figures to emphasize the personnel and franchises moves that have been made since the 1965 season ended with Los Angeles Dodgers defeating Minnesota Twins in the World Series.

The Tuesday schedule shows Houston Astros at Los Angeles, Philadelphia Phillies at St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates at Atlanta Braves and Chicago Cubs at San Francisco Giants in the National League and Kansas City Athletics at Minnesota Twins, Detroit Tigers at New York Yankees, Baltimore Orioles at Boston Red Sox and California Angels at Chicago White Sox in the American.

Two of the teams are playing in different cities this year, the Braves shifting from Milwaukee to Atlanta and the Athletics from Los Angeles to Anaheim, Calif. In addition, the Cardinals will make a short move to a new stadium by May.

Six new managers will be tested, the first two getting started Monday when Don Heffner begins leading the Washington Wes Westrum moves in officially as Mets' manager after an interim period as Casey Stengel's successor.

As for players, neither Sandy Koufax nor Don Drysdale will be ready to pitch the opener for the Dodgers after reporting late due to their holdout siege, and baseman Bill White and shortstop Dick Groat to Philadelphia and brought outfielder Alex Johnson and pitcher Art Mahafey to St. Louis.

And the American League will unveil its newest star—Frank Robinson — when the longtime Cincinnati slugger takes his place in the Baltimore outfield.

MICKEY MANTLE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Mickey Mantle is back in action and ready to play nine innings.

New York Yankees' star outfielder, whose recovery from surgery means a great deal to the team's 1966 pennant chances, started his first game of the exhibition season Friday night and went seven innings in a 5-4, 10-inning victory over Atlanta Braves.

Mantle had made only one pinch-hit appearance so far this season since undergoing surgery on his right shoulder last winter at the Mayo Clinic. He had not been able to throw.

"When I came to the park tonight I had no idea of playing, but my arm felt very good," said the 34-year-old slugger as he relaxed in the Yankee dressing room with compresses on his shoulder. "I felt if I tried to play, it might as well be here."

Mantle said he told manager Johnny Keane before the game: "I'm available to start if you want me to. I won't throw anybody out, but I might as well start sometime."

HIT A SINGLE

Mantle got one hit in four trips, a sharp single in right which drove in Bobby Richardson with the Yankees' first run in the fifth inning.

He was able to throw the ball back to the infield and handled a couple of putouts routinely but had difficulty in chasing a long double by Rico Carty and Hank Aaron. Mantle has been plagued with leg injuries for years.

Mantle said he was pleasantly surprised when he picked up the ball to throw.

"My arm felt good," he said. "It's already better than it was last season. You know last season I couldn't throw at all. I had

Doug Acomb scored the winning goal. Bill Lewis scored the other two Westclair goals, one to tie the score with 1:24 left in the third period to send the game into extra time.

Gerry Dionne got both Oshawa goals.

Third game is scheduled here today.

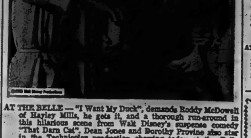
At the Belle

Walt Disney's "That Darn Cat" Proves a Triumph of Hilarity

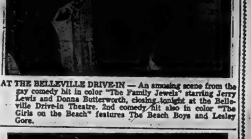
Walt Disney's "That Darn Cat" is so funny that most people will have to see it twice to pick up the gags they laughed through the first time. Starring Hayley Mills, Dean Jones, Dorothy Provine and Roddy McDowall, and now playing at the Belle Theatre for an extended engagement, it is the most hilarious comedy to come along in many a moon.

The story is about a night-for-aging fellow named D.C., short for "Darn Cat"—that picks up the only clue to a bank robbery when a kidnapped teller slips her wrist watch around his neck. The F.B.I. got into the act, and by their dauntless attack the darn cat, D.C. has other ideas, like rubbing garlic and swiping a neighbor's clock, taking in a movie at the local Drive-in, and disappearing under cover. It's a panic every time the slippery Siamese hits a paw.



Hayley Mills plays Patti Randall, a captivating young lady who belongs to the family that owns the cat. She is in on every side-splitting scene, and almost steals the show when she disguises her voice like a German immigrant to bring a disillusioned F.B.I. man back into the cat chase. The effervescent Miss Mills actress is as pretty now, as she is talented.

Also featured are the seasoned talents of Dean Jones, Dorothy Provine, Roddy McDowall and other colorful characterizes.



Robert Stevenson, who so successfully directed "The Absent Minded Professor," "Son of Flubber," "The Monkey's Uncle," and "Mary Poppins" shows he hasn't lost his touch for making people laugh in handling the reins in "Darn Cat."

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — "I Want My Dosh", demands Roddy McDowall of Hayley Mills, he gets it, and a thorough run-around in this hilarious scene from Walt Disney's suspense comedy "That Darn Cat," Dean Jones and Dorothy Provine also star in the Technicolor production showing today at the Belle Theatre, Sunday and all next week.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — An amazing scene from the gay comedy hit in color "The Family Jewels" starring Jerry Lewis and Donna Butterworth, closing tonight at the Belleville Drive-in Theatre. 2nd comedy hit also in color "The Girls on the Beach" features The Beach Boys and Lesley Gore.

AT THE PARK — Mark Richman has the title role in Universal's new spy thriller in color, "Agent For H.A.R.M." The film also stars Wendell Corey, Sarl Esmond and Barbara Bouchet, opening Sunday at the Park Theatre for a three-day engagement. On the same program in color "Wild, Wild Winter" starring Gary Clarke, Chris Noel, Jay and the Americans, Beau Brummels, Dick and Dee Dee. Complete shows Sunday and Monday, 1.30-7.00 and 8.40 p.m.

Writers Call Reds, Twins

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball writers covering the spring training camps pick Cincinnati Reds and Minnesota Twins to meet in the World Series in Cincinnati next October.

If they are correct the Reds will beat out San Francisco Giants in a wild scramble that also will involve Atlanta Braves, Los Angeles Dodgers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies.

The writers picked the Twins to repeat in the American League in a tight finish with Baltimore Orioles and Detroit Tigers.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

Accept responsibility, do your share. Then day is marked as winner for you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Maintain sense of humor. What appears a failure . . . is merely temporary delay. Don't be discouraged. Good Moon aspect highlights journeys of the mind. Think, plan!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Get up on time. Plan schedule, organize efforts early. Dig deep where financial questions enter picture. Don't be satisfied with superficial methods, answers.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Partnerships, outside influences plans for permanent tie are spotlighted. Concentrate on greater freedom of thought, action. Promote and advertise yourself!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Take special care of appearance. Brush up on basic lessons, avoid carelessness. Give compliment to family member. Associates at work may be envious. Overcome envy with kindness.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): If you insist upon worry, problems — you will have them. Be realistic. Cycle favors progress. Be confident. Branch out, expand. You may face certain restrictions. This can be depressing . . . but it can also be elevating — if you welcome creative challenge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Adhere to principles of Golden Rule. Many observe — and will follow your example. Applies especially where neighbors, relatives, are concerned. Journey strongly indicated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Be willing to start, create. Shake off past fears, grudges. Concentrate upon individuality. Money will be provided if actually required. Think!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Now you can add to acquisitions — friends, money, material possessions. Your cycle is high. Take initiative to obtain what you require. Key is confidence, vision.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Express feelings. Don't bottle up emotions. Being fearful is no way to advance. Spread your gaiety — be enthusiastic. Others will respond favorably to your optimism.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Live up to plans, promises. Be on time with commitments. Do not delay when it is not necessary. Important to be specific. Applies especially to dealings with friends.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are intuitive, would make fine teacher — you are intrigued by mysterious situations, persons.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks
BY BOB BLAIND
Lake Trout fishing is all the talk the past few weeks with the fishing fraternity.
In the past 15 years or so, many thousands of fishermen have been swinging away from bass and pickerel fishing and heading north to lay their luck with the lake trout. Once they hook and land their first laker, they, themselves are "hooked" and seldom fish again for any other species of fish.
This, in itself is a peculiar situation, as trolling for greys or lakers, whichever you choose to call them, is real hard work. It means lots of driving and many hours in the boat, trolling with metal line.
Using the line, sometimes 90 to 100 feet if it is quite a shore, and unless done skillfully, will catch nothing but the bottom, even though a lake might be full of trout.
Trolling rods are left up to the fishermen. They come in various actions from very light to the very stiff. In choosing a good one, remember, in fishing deep lakes where you will be using 80 to 90 feet of line, a heavy fairly stiff rod should be used, in order to feel the bait working, and also to be able to give the lure some action. For fishing in shallower lakes, a lighter outfit should be used for the same reasons.
Years ago the lake trout fisherman was a bit whimsical, using crude equipment. The reel most commonly used was about 5" in diameter, having large double handle, no level wind and a very poor type of a clutch, the line being about 7" more or less on the rod if any used was almost to the threshold. Consequently there was not much excitement in fishing as this was almost strictly a meat catching deal. The equipment today has made lake trout fishing especially in our section of the country, just about the most popular type of fishing we have.
The closer lakes such as Desert, Canoe, Devil and Buck are almost completely free of ice and this weekend should see many lake trout fishermen trying their luck in these lakes.
Early spring fishing for greys can also be done with spinning outfits, as the fish are not as deep now as they are later on in the season. Mirrowsy, small wobblers or spoons can be used successfully.

British Warship Diverts Tanker

Issue First Evacuation Orders in Winnipeg Flood

WINNIPEG (CP) — Flood-fighters battled to reinforce dikes in the flooding Red River Valley throughout the Easter weekend and in Greater Winnipeg the first evacuation orders were sounded for low - lying areas.

At Emerson, the almost abandoned border town 85 miles south of here, a crack sent water churning through a dike holding back eight feet of water Sunday night.

Soldiers and civilians, in mud and water to their knees, pitched in furiously for several nip - and - tuck minutes until heavy sand-bagging equipment could plug the gap. Then they labored through the night to repair and reinforce the broken section.

Diking went on at fever pitch throughout the valley, where the Red already has spilled over miles of farmland and is expected to rise another two to four feet later this week.

About 100 airmen from the RCAF base at Gimli, en route to Winnipeg for standby duty, were diverted immediately to the village of St. Jean Baptiste, 40 miles south, where exhausted workers had called for more manpower.

Emerson, St. Jean and Morris lie in a 30-mile area which has borne the brunt of flooding to date.

All are surrounded by water. St. Jean and Morris are empty of all but essential personnel, but a number of residents, safe on an area of high ground, are sticking it out at Emerson.

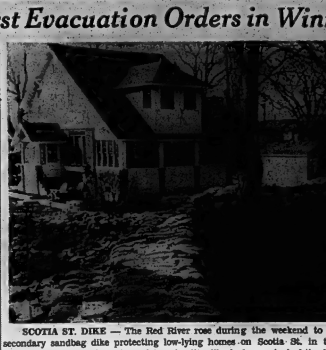
Residents of the Elm Park district of Winnipeg's suburban St. Vital, heavily hit in 1950, were warned to be ready to move out today. The "stand-by alert" was issued Sunday by a joint statement by Premier Duff Roblin and Mayor Jack Marsh as the dawning crest overflowed the earthen base of the Elm Park dike and lapped at the three feet of sandbags topping.



"This does not mean that the effect are, or will be, threatened but with the level of the Red reaching above 36 feet, it was considered advisable to take this precautionary measure," the statement said.

"The authorities continue to expect that the flood-fighting measures being taken will be adequate."

The Red hit the 34-foot level after a sudden rise of two feet Saturday night caused by piled-up water rushing down from a dynamited ice jam south of the city. The river remained steady throughout Sunday.

There are an estimated 250 families in the heavily - treed Elm Park area, one of Greater Winnipeg's most attractive residential areas but located on a low point of land inside a hair-

SCOTIA ST. DIKE — The Red River rose during the weekend to within five feet of the top of a secondary sandbag dike protecting low-lying homes on Scotia St. in the metropolitan Winnipeg city of West Kildonan. Pope Says Peace Resolutions Made at War's End Weakening

From AP-Reuters

Buddhists Accuse Ky Of Lying

SAIGON (Reuters)—The coalition of political agitation continued to boil throughout the country today as Buddhists and students made moves to topple South Viet Nam's military government.

Buddhist leaders Sunday warned of a bloody civil war ahead if the military government did not step down, claimed their campaign for an elected civilian government had been betrayed by the junta and issued a declaration of no confidence in Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government.

"Only when our aspirations are met and our demands satisfied will there be no more demonstrations," the country's most powerful monks declared in a joint statement.

The Buddhists accused the Ky regime of lying, irresponsibility and placing "too many obstacles in the way of civilian rule."

At a press conference in Saigon, the monks asked the na-

From humble chapels along the twisting alleyways of old Jerusalem to stately cathedrals adorning broad avenues, the world's Christians celebrated Easter Sunday, the climax of Holy Week.

Several Protestants knelt in a field outside Jerusalem, praying before a cleft in a rock which they believe is the spot where Christ was buried.

Across the valley on the Mount of Olives, Lutheran held services in the Church of Mary Magdalen near the Garden of Gethsemane.

Some of the pilgrims retraced the steps of Jesus along Via Dolorosa to Calvary.

In St. Peter's Square in Rome, Pope Paul pleaded for an end to war, racism, nationalism, and social conflict.

The Pope noted "with profound sadness" that resolutions of peace made after the Second World War "are weakening in places and threatening to turn into totalitarian ideologies, into racism, nebulous extortion, class warfare, or else political games of dangerous forces and conflicting interests.

"Mankind is hesitating between peace and war, between a brotherly union and a selfishness without care for the interests or needs of others."

Nearly 100,000 tourists and Italians heard the Pope's third Easter message.

Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Roman Catholic prelate of Poland, celebrated mass in Warsaw Cathedral of St. John. He told an overflow crowd of 5,000 that "no one has any right to our human conscience, to our convictions, to our link with God."

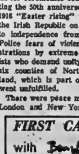
Across the world in Da Nang, a centre of Buddhist rebellion against the present South Viet Nam regime, there was unexpected peace and quiet.

In Moscow crowds thronged the streets to see processions leading to Easter services. But there was little sign of anti-religious feeling. Main churches were crowded.



In West Berlin, almost 100,000 citizens marched the holiday by crossing through the Communist-built wall, on day passes to see relatives in the eastern section of the city.

In Ireland, a crowd of 100,000 crammed O'Connell St. in Dublin for ceremonies commemorating the 50th anniversary of the 1916 "Easter rising" which set the Irish Republic on the road to independence from Britain.

Police fears of violent demonstrations by extreme nationalists who disagree with the six counties of Northern Ireland, which is part of Britain, went unfulfilled.

There were peace marches in London and New York City.

FIRST CALL with Bon Ami

"I'd want a civilian government now, too . . . if I were a civilian."

Fatigue Gripping Soldiers

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE, Man. (CP)—Soldiers battling the rising Red River are fighting fatigue as well as a flood.

For a week they have been building sandbag dikes to protect this tiny community 45 miles south of Winnipeg against the river. They started fresh but now the good-natured bantering has given way to silence and they work methodically.

"There's just no end to it," said one young soldier Sunday.

"Mister, I don't want to know how many (sand bags) I've handled in a day," replied another as he rubbed his back. "All I know is that I just thought I was in shape before I got here."

Lieut. Glen Becker, in charge of 70 men from Camp Shilo, admits the men are getting tired despite the rotation that has them on the dikes for two days and one day off.

"We get lots of complaints about sore backs and sore arms but nothing serious."

Most of his men are young — about 21—but some of the other officers have had dike casualties. One asked permission to send three men back to Winnipeg. Two suffered from fatigue, one with an injured back.

Despite the long hours and hard work—15-hour shifts and often longer—Lieut. Becker said most of the men are "quite happy" to be working in the surrounded town.

"They talk about 'our dike' and take pride in what they're doing for the community."

All told, more than 800 armed forces personnel were fighting the flood throughout the valley Sunday and another 100 were expected at St. Jean during the night.

They build dikes, drive trucks and patrol the protected area.

Provincial and municipal officials also are putting in long hours and showing signs of wear.

At Emerson, Mayor A. H. Carlson slogged out the public works chairman, Bill Wightman, who was given a leave of absence from his job as a customers officer to work full time on flood preparations.

"He was working 18 to 20 hours a day and now he's down to 16," said the mayor.

"Without him, I'm not so sure our town would be so well protected."

Spencer Found Dead

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police and medical investigations continued today into the death of George Victor Spencer, the dismissed postal clerk whose alleged connection with Russian spying shook the halls of Parliament.

Spencer, 57, died in a modest east-end Vancouver home. His body was found late Saturday night slumped over a kitchen table on which sat a half-consumed bottle of beer. He had been dead four to six days.

Coroner Glen McDonald said Sunday following an autopsy the indications were Spencer, dismissed without pension from his postal clerk's job here after the spy case came to light last year, died of thrombosis brought on by heavy consumption of alcohol. However full results will not be known until later.

The medical examination revealed a blood alcohol content of .34, said the coroner, which would indicate a man of Spencer's avoirdupois had consumed at least 12 ounces of alcohol shortly before his death. He was not known as a heavy drinker, favoring mostly beer.

Coroner McDonald said many questions remain to be answered about the man's death just four days before a judicial inquiry was to open here into his dismissal without pension.

FOUND THE BODY

Police were investigating the story of the next-door neighbor, Eugenie Baranzel, who found the body after deciding to investigate when he saw no activity around the house for days and Spencer's car parked nearby.

Police also were investigating reports that Spencer's constant companion until a short time ago was a man known only as Mike. He was seen with Spencer as late as two weeks ago and lived in the Spencer house for a time.

On Feb. 23 Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Spencer was under 24-hour RCMP surveillance because they were leary he might be assassinated. RCMP

First Ship Docks Near Beira Pipe

BEIRA, Mozambique (Reuters)—The tanker Joanna V docked within yards of the vital Rhodesian oil pipeline here today, but its captain said he had no plans to discharge his cargo of 18,000 tons of crude oil.

The master, Capt. Georgs Vardinoyannis, said:

"I came alongside today to take on water—nothing more."

Asked if he was planning to discharge his cargo here he said:

"No, I did not come here to discharge oil."

Capt. Vardinoyannis made the statement to reporters a few hours after docking to the cheers of Rhodesian vacationers here for the Easter holiday.

In Athens the tanker's agent said the captain had informed him that the Portuguese authorities in Beira were under no orders to unload his cargo of oil and leave port because the ship had not called at customs at the docks.

The agent said he had instructed the master not to unload unless the Portuguese provided him with a certificate that he did so under their orders.

The tanker's agents in Beira said the Joanna docked to refuel. Rate repairs to its propellers for which it was necessary to unload part of the cargo to raise the ship's waterline.

Armed police guarded the wharf as the Greek-registered ship slipped into a berth with the help of 20 yards from the banks of the 188-mile pipeline to Rhodesia's Umtali refinery.

The action came five months to the day after the white-ruled Rhodesian colony unilaterally declared its independence from British Nov. 11.

Meanwhile, the Manuela, steamed toward Durban after the British navy withdrew the armed boarding party that had diverted the ship and its 18,000 tons of oil from Mozambique, a Portuguese colony.

KEEPING WATCH

"Surveillance of the Manuela is being sustained by air for the time being," the British defence ministry said.

The boarding party seized the tanker about 120 miles southeast of Beira Sunday, acting under a United Nations Security Council resolution authorizing Britain to use forces if necessary to block the flow of oil through Beira to Rhodesia.

If the Manuela unloads her cargo at Beira, 120 miles southwest of Beira, Rhodesia presumably could still get the oil that it would take hours for South Africa's white - minority

Hunger Strike Planned

By GODFREY ANDERSON

DUBLIN (AP) — Irish-speaking Irishmen today prepared for a week-long hunger strike in native Dublin, charging that the government has betrayed the ideals of those who died in the 1916 Easter uprising.

Cuchulainn, a legendary figure, stands as a symbol for Ireland. The wreath carries the words "to the forgotten ideals of 1916."

Clarke will not himself take part in the fasting. That is being left to a group of 18 young men, including several Dublin University students and six ascetic followers of Gandhi from the north.

The group, which plans to fast for as long as the 1916 uprising lasted, from noon today until 7:45 p.m. Saturday, thinks that Ireland has no reason to celebrate now. They accuse the republic's present leaders of letting the Irish language die, while tolerating partition of Ireland and economic dependence upon Britain.

SEEK MINIMACH

They are supporters of a fringe organization of the Gaelic revival movement called "Minimach"—the Irish word for cour...ge.

The hunger strikers intended starting the fast at noon, to picket with protest banners, later repairing to hotel rooms when weakened by their ordeal.

The opening of nearly two days of commemoration of the events of 1916 started Sunday with a 5,000-strong military parade at Arbor Hill Arms Park in 1916. De Valera was himself summoned to death but the sentence was commuted because of his American birth.

Snow, Floods and Record Traffic Toll Mar Holiday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snowstorms, floods and a record traffic fatality toll marred traditional Easter celebrations in Canada Sunday.

Most of the Atlantic provinces had two to three inches of snow while southern Ontario and British Columbia staggered under slight- to 12-inch snowfalls. Temperatures in the rest of Canada were below normal.

Floods in the Red River Valley area of Manitoba kept workers busy building dikes.

Spokesmen for transportation companies reported a slight drop in the usually heavy Easter Sunday traffic, attributing it to the weather.

But at least 53 persons were killed in traffic accidents between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday, local times. The figure was 13 more than predicted by the Canadian Highway Safety Council and surpassed the previous record of 47 in 1957.

In Ottawa, some 300 persons turned out under generally overcast skies for the traditional sunrise Easter service on Parliament Hill.

Prime Minister Pearson spent a quiet weekend at his Harrington Lake summer residence, 13 miles northwest of Ottawa, with members of his family. He is to return to Ottawa today.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker attended morning church service in Ottawa, then watched a semi-final Stanley Cup hockey game between Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings on television during the afternoon.

In Montreal an official start was made on construction of the Christian Pavilion planned for Expo 67 with the creation of a 30-foot wooden cross designed to symbolize the Christian principles which can bring all denominations together.

The cross was erected by Roman Catholic, Anglican, United Church, Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist and Greek Orthodox clergymen.

Temperatures in the northern Prairies hovered 30 to 45 degrees below normal, and snow covered part of eastern Saskatchewan and most of northern Alberta.

One man was missing on an Alberta mountain near the east gate of Jasper National Park, 200 miles west of Edmonton.

Harvey Sloan of Hinton started to climb the mountain with his wife Saturday, but the couple was separated. Mrs. Sloan was found in poor condition Saturday and taken to hospital at Hinton.

The weather office said seven to eight inches of snow was fallen on the mountain area since Mrs. Sloan was found.

Russia Talks Optimistically Of Putting Man on Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is accompanying the celebrations today of the fifth anniversary of Yuri Gagarin's first space flight with optimistic talk about putting a man on the moon.

Soviet cosmonauts have been giving indications in the last few days that their country will attempt humanity's great leap forward in space and land on the moon.

Alexei Leonov, who became the first man to walk in space March 18, 1965, was reported in Budapest as saying that a Soviet cosmonaut will land on the moon as early as 1968.

Gagarin told the Czechoslovakian news agency that Soviet space research has advanced more rapidly than the plans have called for. He said he is convinced there will be a man being on the moon within the next five years.

Gherman Titov, the second Soviet cosmonaut, predicted Sunday that the moon will become a giant space outpost where spaceships will be built for flights "into the depths of the universe." He talked of complicated operations being undertaken in space by men and robots.

The cosmonauts, all speaking in connection with the Gagarin anniversary, made no mention of President Johnson's claim that United States will beat the Soviet Union in putting a man on the moon. Johnson made the claim in remarks to the U.S. program, a deadline set by his predecessor, the late president John F. Kennedy.

Recent developments here make U.S. victory considerably more than a mere thing while the cosmonauts' optimism gets support from major Soviet successes in 1965.

The first of these was the soft landing on the moon's surface

Three Injured In Accident Near Frankford

A one-car mishap on the Wooler Road, about half a mile north of Frankford, Sunday morning sent three persons to Belleville General Hospital. Admitted to the hospital were Mrs. Marie Croft, 71, who suffered multiple internal injuries, Mr. Victor Trupp, 68, with acute back injuries, and Mrs. Pauline Trupp, 58, who suffered a possible fractured ankle. The three, all residents of the Frankford area, were reported to be in satisfactory condition.

The accident occurred about 8:15 a.m. when the southbound model car driven by Mrs. Croft blew a tire while rounding a bend at the crest of a hill. Apparently the car to skid sideways and strike a small tree at the road's edge. Mrs. Croft was thrown from the car, which came to rest at a right angle to the road.

The Belleville detachment of the O.P.P., who investigated the accident, said that the tree was the first that the vehicle struck after sliding down a 30-foot embankment into a sand pit which had about six feet of water in it at the time.

"We Will Remember Them . . . Even As We Grow Old"

By GEO. H. CARVER

Nostalgia bridged a chasm of up to fifty years for some sixty members of the "lost generation" here Saturday night.

A battlescarp age they were strong, virile, in the full flower of early manhood.

Young, light of heart, but firm in resolve, they went in war to face an unforeseen four years of holocaust of hell.

Many of their comrades rest "in Flanders Fields, beneath the poppies row on row".

Others emerged from the crucible of war hardened by combat but firm in the resolution to take up the torch of peace flung to them by the Valrys of Monsreal, with 3½ "s scores.

The Legion's Everett B. Liddle, himself an "old Army" chaired the function. He was assisted by co-chairman Roy Madden (1st Batt).

Special head table guests were Lieut. Col. K. D. M. Willcocks, Commanding officer, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Chief of Police John Meachkin, Fire Chief Ted Post; Legion Zone Commander Jack Rashotte; His Worship Mayor Jack Ellis; Janet MacDonald president Phay Wills Branch Women's Auxiliary; Glenn Humphries, branch chaplain and members of the branch executive. George Christopher represented Branch 99 at Ottawa, Air Force Veterans. Lee Wells, R.C.A.F., was unable to be present.

The guest speaker was Dr. G. S. Cronk, MB, MD, CM, former medical officer of the first world war.

Committee Harold Vaughan proposed the toast to the guests of honor with Comrade A. C. Coley responding with a detailed version of the battle of Vimy Ridge.

Impressive tribute was paid to the memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice.

Blood-red poppies superimposed on a cross of pure white and bathed in the glow of candlelight, resembled a small shrine in the hush of the darkened hall. Behind the table with the vacant chair were the battle-honored colors of the Legion.

COLORFUL ADDRESS

In a colorful address on his experience in the first war, Dr. Cronk revealed himself to be a medical Marco Polo.

He was greeted by a chorus of "Old Soldiers Never Die".

Solemnly he said "We may never have anything like it again. If another war comes there will be no reunions, no banquets. They said when the first war broke out it would be over in six months. When it ended they said there will never be another. Yet what happened 20 years later?"

In serio-humorous vein, Dr. Cronk told of his experiences when as a private he went to England in a cattle boat. After three months in the ranks he was commissioned a lieutenant in the Royal Army Medical Corps.

He was sent to Egypt and located to a hospital surgical ward where he attended the Gallipoli wounded. He told the surgeon-in-chief "But I know nothing of surgery."

"You can learn, can't you?" came the terse response.

He went to Cairo and saw and climbed 700-foot pyramids.

Thence to Suez where he served four months then volunteered to go on a ship to Mesopotamia.

"The natives here were wild," he said. "They had nothing against anybody — just everybody."

Thence to Karachi, Bombay and Calcutta. Back to Vancouver then a 19-day ship trip to China where he spent two months helping to stamp out an epidemic of typhus among the coolies.

The coolies were herded in compounds," he said, "and were ready to be shipped to labor camps in 9 dice. The typhus fever is carried by lice from rats to humans and on to humans. We cut off their pig tails and rubbed their heads with coal oil. Twenty-three died before we stopped the epidemic then we learned they did not need the coolies after all."

Then we were sent back to Canada stopping en route two weeks in Nagasaki, Japan where we were entertained by the American consulate. There was not a dull moment there."

Introduced by Roy Madden, Dr. Cronk was thanked by Comrade Ed. Smith who presented him with a memento of the occasion. Appreciation of the sumptuous turkey dinner was voiced by the women of the auxiliary by Ed. Michael through Mrs. Dorothy Rashotte. Entertainment was furnished by Comrades F. Houchin, Jack and Bruce Sills, musical saw. Another highlight of the banquet was the presentation to the branch of a handsome colored pennington of the Royal Family by Mr. Lee Grills, M.P. As was noted Mr. Grills was unable to be present on the banquet, were done by President Kirby.

Brief addresses were given by Police Chief McLachlan; Fire Chief Post; Phay Wills Auxiliary president, Mrs. Janet MacDonald and Zone Commander Rashotte.

Mayor Ellis expressed appreciation and said simply, "I hope my generation does not have to go through what you gentlemen did."

Said Lieut. Col. Willcocks, "I am not a veteran but the Hasty Pees are ready for anybody, who wants to give us trouble."

government has permitted private companies to provide Rhodesia with enough oil by truck and train to maintain essential services during the British embargo.

The pressure is mounting in the UN for sanctions to be applied to South Africa if more oil flows over the Beira pipeline to Rhodesia.

So far the South Africans have avoided committing themselves to the embargo. Ireland's Prime Minister Ian Smith's visit to Pretoria is a case they feared retaliation. But the Afrikaans and the Rhodesians maintain that trade and rail supply line a temporary measure.

Rhodesia was counting on shipments through Beira to beat the embargo. One report says the Portuguese regime had already paid $3,000,000 for 27 shiploads of oil—a year's supply—from the Middle East which is awaiting the operation by the Manuela and the Joanna V.

GREAT BRITAIN HELP

The Security Council also saw Britain the authority to arrest and detain the Joanna V if its cargo is discharged at Beira. Under the resolution, British warships may escort the ship's crew as soon as it left Portuguese territorial waters.

Britain has exerted intense diplomatic pressure to prevent the Joanna V from delivering the oil to Beira, and the Greek government has cancelled the ship's registration.

One of her owners, Nikolas Vardinoyannis, said in Athens it would not unload the cargo at Beira.

Capt. Vardinoyannis of the Joanna V, who has insisted all along that his cargo was bound for Djibouti, French Somaliland, claimed that if the tanker could not leave Beira on the 14th date today, it would not be able to cross the harbor sandbar fully loaded until the end of September.

Capt. Vardinoyannis — who said he was no relation to the Vardinoyannis in Athens—said his only alternative was to reduce his draught by unloading some of the oil into a barge and reload it outside the harbor.

The presentation of flowers to the hospital patients is a project of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, who get as much enjoyment in giving the colorful potted plants as the patients who receive them. 150 Years Ago

Wednesday 10th — Ascertaining the position of the Buildings erected on the Reservation. Reported to Thomas Ridout Esquire, Surveyor General of having completed Survey the Town Plot at the mouth of the River Moira and on the Lake thereof.

Thursday 11th — Ascertaining the position of the buildings.

Wilmot recorded 56 buildings, including sheds, on his plan, of which 13 were outside the Village limits. There were 29 houses, over 20 of which were "framed", and log houses. There were five stables, two barns, seven stores, including a hatter's shop, two blacksmiths, two saw and grist mills, one brewery, two distilleries and a school house.

Although not specified, several houses also served as inns, taverns, church, lodge hall and general meeting place. Wilmot's plan did not extend east far enough to show J. W. Meyers' brick house built in 1794, said to have been the first brick house in Upper Canada.

Sir, I have the honor to report, of having completed the survey of the Town Plot at the place in obedience to instructions bearing date the 3rd March last and in conformity to accompanied Plan of Goldcrest, and, as soon as I shall have ascertained the Claims of the Inhabitants who have erected Buildings within the Survey of the Reservation, and have made out the Returns of Survey, I shall be ready to commence the survey of the Township of Ameliasburgh.

As I shall require a considerable quantity of stationary to make up the returns of the Surveys and am nearly out of every description of stationary, I will thank you to send what is necessary by an Indian the bearer of this, and have the honor to be, sir, Your obedient humble servant, S. G. Wilmot.

Stargazer Out After 2 Days Of Orbiting

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — "We're heartbroken," said a space agency spokesman in announcing the failure Sunday of the Stargazer satellite after two days in orbit.

For an unknown reason, the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory lost all its battery power Sunday and the two-ton satellite whirled silently and uselessly around the earth.

It never had a chance to use its 33 telescopes, which astronomers had hoped would unlock secrets of the stars and perhaps provide clues to the origin of the universe.

Scientists had worked for years to perfect the satellite, the first astronomical observatory ever sent into space. All were disappointed at the failure, but said they hoped it would teach them lessons about the second astronomical observatory, scheduled for launching early in 1967.

After a promising beginning, the observatory's main battery began overheating and losing power Saturday.

Ground technicians worked with the problem overnight, but the space agency announced Sunday that the overheated battery had "resulted in complications leading to degradation of the power supply from all three batteries aboard the spacecraft, and telemetry signals no longer are being received.

"Efforts to overcome the problem have been unsuccessful and the mission appears to have been lost."

Lawyer Advises Fulton Not to Publish Letters Between Self and P.M.

OTTAWA (CP)—Former justice minister Fulton said today the lawyer has advised him against publishing at present his correspondence with Prime Minister Pearson about the Gerda Munsinger file.

Mr. Fulton announced last week that he intended to make the letters public, following a secret session of the judicial inquiry being conducted by Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada into the Munsinger affair.

"The matter has become in part the subject of communication between counsel on my behalf and the (Spence) commission," Mr. Fulton said, in a written statement.

Mr. Fulton was justice minister in the former Diefenbaker government at the time Mrs. Munsinger left Canada to return to Germany.

Justice Minister Cardin has said that Mrs. Munsinger was "in espionage apart before coming to Canada in 1955 and that one or more Conservative ministers were involved with her.

Mr. Cardin has said Mr. Diefenbaker, prime minister at the time, established the case by failing to refer it to the justice department's law officers for an opinion.

REJECTED REVIEW

Mr. Fulton replied to Mr. Pearson earlier for permission to review all files on the West German blonde. It had come before him as justice minister. Mr. Pearson turned him down.

Mr. Fulton then told the Commons he had to draw the inference from this refusal that the file "refutes the charges made by Mr. Cardin and the government knows it."

He said his recollection of the 1961 file which came before him was that it was impossible for Mr. Cardin to substantiate his charges from it.

As he recalled it, the file contained no suggestion that there had been any security breach or that Mrs. Munsinger had sought or received security information.

The file had not alleged any offence by a member of the then - government nor had it said Mrs. Munsinger was engaged in espionage or had aided the acquaintance of anyone with that person in mind.

Mr. Fulton said today his lawyer, C. F. H. Carson of Toronto, had advised him it would be "inappropriate" to publish his correspondence with Mr. Pearson on the subject of the Munsinger file "at this time."

Two Charged With Breaking And Entering

Two local youths are in custody today charged with one count of attempted break-in and two counts of breaking and entering.

Terrence Moore, 17, 149 Pinnacle St., and Robert Hannah, 17, 75 South Church St., will appear before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in City Court Tuesday on the charges.

Police arrested the youths at 12:40 a.m. Sunday behind the Britannia Restaurant, Dundas and Church streets, and charged them with attempting to break into the restaurant.

Police say that Moore and Hannah have also been charged with breaking and entering in connection with a break-in Thursday night in the Britannia Restaurant. One hundred and fifty dollars was reported missing in that incident.

City police are still investigating.

Traffic Toll Over Holiday 13 More Than Predicted

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 67 persons died in accidents across Canada during the 78-hour Easter weekend, including a record 33 in traffic.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Thursday to midnight Sunday local times included 11 dead in two highway accidents and three killed in a plane crash.

There were also six drownings, two fire deaths, one death by exposure, one by asphyxiation and a man killed by a train.

The traffic toll was 13 more than the 49 predicted by the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

Last year, 54 persons died in Easter weekend accidents, 29 in traffic.

Record for the weekend was set in 1957 when 70 died, including 47 on the roads.

In Ontario 24 died in traffic mishaps, three in the plane crash northeast of Chatham Thursday night and one man in a Toronto restaurant fire.

CRASH CLAIMS EIGHT

Alberta reported 15 highway deaths, eight of them in a two-car collision 30 miles east of Edmonton. One person also died of exposure and another was asphyxiated.

Eleven persons were killed on Quebec roads, one was drowned and one died in a fire.

There were six highway deaths in Saskatchewan, including three in one accident 140 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

British Columbia and Manitoba each had two traffic fatalities and one drowning.

Six persons died in Nova Scotia, four traffic fatalities and two drownings.

New Brunswick reported four road deaths and a drowning.

One man was killed in Newfoundland when he was struck by a train.

Prince Edward Island was fatality-free.

The survey does not include known suicides or slayings, industrial or natural deaths.

ABOLISH CENSORSHIP

MADRID (AP)—Spain's long-awaited new press law was into effect Saturday with little comment. The new law, approved by the Cortes (Parliament) March 15, abolishes formal government censorship and, its sponsors claim, will give the press a freedom unknown under any previous Spanish government.

here declined comment on the surveillance angle.

Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court said in Toronto the Vancouver hearings in the Spencer case—as to whether the man who had lost suffered a cancerous condition was fairly treated in his dismissal without pension—would be cancelled. Instead is camera examination of documents in the case will be held in Ottawa.

The Spencer case first broke in the Commons last May when the external affairs department announced that two members of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa had been expelled from Canada for espionage activity. The announcement said two Canadians were also involved.

'DID NOT HELP'

Later Prime Minister Pearson disclosed that one of the Canadians had co-operated with police but in the other case this circumstance, unfortunately, were different."

Of Spring and Adventure

Spring by its very nature in Canada is not an uplifting season. True, there is a feeling of anticipation of better days to come, opportunities to play golf and so on, but the prevailing feeling at this time is one of exhaustion, mental and physical.

Even the skiers, who might be supposed to feel fitter than most, had a difficult time finding any winter snow in the season just concluded.

Sometimes we feel envious of those whose work keeps them out of doors. A passage in Francis Chichester's book, "The Lonely Sea and the Sky" captures this mood. As a youth he worked on a farm in New Zealand and spoke of "bursting with energy and fitness" as he went about his tasks.

Chichester's whole life, as a matter of fact, has been one of adventure and devotion to the outdoors. In New Zealand he farmed, prospected for gold, was a coal miner and eventually ran a successful real estate business in partnership with a friend.

He became interested in flying, and in 1931 was the first man to fly solo across the Tasman Sea. From flying he turned to the sea and nearly 30 years ago, in 1960, became the first man to sail alone across the Atlantic. He repeated this performance in 1962.

In the interim period between these achievements spanning three decades he waged a successful fight against cancer.

Truly a remarkable man. We think of him and many others like him who obey the call of adventure, who realize that a man has only one life and that it is later than you think.

In Canada we have had a long way from the days of Champlain and Mackenzie and the other great men who helped forge this nation. We think of the pioneers, the nameless multitude whose impact on this country was inculcable.

Canada still produces men of ability, men of skill and imagination to cope with the complicated technological age in which we live. But there are other, less desirable tendencies at work. The Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the Rev. Arthur A. Munro, D.D., alluded to these when he spoke in Belleville the other day.

"There is a danger," he said, of the 'effeminization of our youth."

The Moderator did not elaborate, but his meaning was clear. There are many indications today of a lack of the sort of spirit that fired Champlain and Mackenzie and modern adventurers like the late Sir Francis Chichester, and more recently, Cleveland newsman Robert Manly, who last summer sailed the Atlantic alone.

Russians Get "With It"

"A great truth has dawned on Pravda — clothes interest women," the Manchester Guardian Weekly noted sagely in a recent editorial.

There is pictorial evidence in other publications, too. In a recent issue of the National Geographic Magazine, for example, there was a picture of Russian women trying on smart-looking hats in a new department store in Moscow.

And Elina Bystritskaya, a screen and stage star, looked very cool in an attractive summer frock with a design of white and black vertical stripes. She was photographed in a Moscow park.

In other pictures there are some remarkably good-looking and well-dressed young Russian teenagers. One sports a bikini as she plays outdoor badminton, and in another wide-angle shot, taken at Moscow's impressive exhibition of economic achievement, photographer Dean Conger has caught an elegant young blonde in sun glasses, high heels, sweater and skirt as she ascends a flight of steps. Although there are several hundred people milling around in the open air park — a place much like the Toronto Ex — the young blonde is the centre of attraction. And yet the picture was not posed.

So in Russia today there are women who are becoming increasingly concerned with fashions. And more power to them.

Roads Program

Hastings County Road No. 1 from Foxboro to Madoc is undergoing a baptism of fire under its new designation of Kings Highway 62.

The 18 miles of what was formerly county road was rebuilt by the province at a cost of $2,100,000, excluding the right of way.

Most of the spadework in the protracted negotiations culminating in the road achieving Kings Highway Status was carried out by Clarke Rollins, MLA for Hastings East, and Elmer Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West.

The reconstruction work was carried out under the province's Development Road Act, and as Warden Clayton Hall noted at the recent ribbon cutting ceremony there will be similar upgrading of county road systems during the next five years.

MPs' Easter Vacation

Brantford Expositor

The millions of Canadians who have to be content with one day's holiday at Easter must have read with disgust how Mitch Hepburn is protest when Prime Minister Pearson suggested Boy-day as part of their planned 12-day Easter vacation.

A vacation is supposed to meet the need for relaxation after a period of work. In the case of these hewers one must ask: what work? Since they met in the new Parliament on Jan. 18 and heard a Throne Speech list of bills and other matters urgently needing their attention, they have done almost nothing remotely resembling real work.

Not a single major bill has been passed into law. Instead, Commons members have spent most of their time in or listening to personal attacks, scandal charges and counter-charges, and demands for judicial inquiries into the handing of certain matters by the present government or by its predecessor.

Among the holidays before business drops are M.P.s who from June 30 last year spent only eight months away from Parliament, from the riding or the House for the summer recess till the new House met in the New Year. In between two long holidays they worked for a couple of months — at getting re-elected. From April 1 a year ago to yesterday Commons working days total only 107.

One argument always made by MPs for the holidays they take is that they are needed to enable them to return home and find out what their constituents are thinking about their performance. They got this message last November 8, and again in the mountain of public protest over recent Commons happenings. The public's verdict on this Commons is one of disgust at its shameful waste of time. MPs do not need to go home or anywhere else at Easter to find that out. They should stay on the job, hey are handsomely paid to do, but they are not going to. They have a 12-day holiday next Wednesday night.

It's in order to minimize the pressures on peak expenditures in the economy and, to maximum wintec employment possibilities" that the Pearson government, through its spokesman Finance Minister Sharp, has announced that all previous plans for increases in the economy notwithstanding, our causeway project is to be slowed down.

Is surgery effective? Yes. It is almost always successful — provided, of course, that the patient follows the doctor's instructions and uses good common sense. However, be sure that the work is done by an orthopedic surgeon or an able podiatrist.

How long is heal? Obviously that will depend on how much a bone must be removed. The surgeon can give you a reasonable estimate after examination. Obviously you aren't going to be walking on that foot in a couple of days. You have to let the tissues heal, then work out the stiffness, and finally begin to let the foot bear your weight.

This does not mean you must lie abed all that time. A suitable splint or brace to keep weight off the toe joint will permit you to get around, just as people can get around with a broken leg or ankle before the fracture has knit fully.

The cost of a bunion operation never heals is absolutely prohibitive, but it keeps on circulating without foundation. It is another of those false scare stories that people seem to delight in telling, no matter how much harm is done.

It is true that after bunion surgery a person may not walk the same. Why would he want to? He should return to a normal gait instead of hobbling the way he did while the bunion was there.

It should go without saying that the patient should change his style or size of shoes. Footwear that didn't fit him properly was what caused the bunion in the first place. Why go back to shoes like the ones that created the trouble?

When a bunion has seriously deformed a foot, surgery is the only effective answer, and it invariably always succeeds. Let's set at rest the scare stories which keep people away from their only chance of regaining foot comfort.

Ordinarily the medication can be taken after the third month of pregnancy, but let your doctor make the decision on the basis of any other factors that are present.

Surgery Generally Successful With Bunions

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is surgery effective in removing a bunion permanently? How long does it take to heal? I heard that it never heals properly and also that you never walk the same. Is this true? — M. C.

The biggest problem in curing a bunion is to offset the amount of misinformation that is still being spread. People hear the rumors you have heard, and as a result they avoid, or at least postpone, the one thing that will really help.

What is a bunion? It is buckle of the joint of the big toe. Shoes that are too tight or heels that are too high subject the joint to continued pressure. The bursa (a little fluid-filled sac in the joint) becomes inflamed and gets terribly sore. The metatarsal bone becomes misshapen. At that point, getting the bone back to normal size and shape is the only thing that will really correct the situation.

Bunion pads and other makeshifts may remove some of the pressure and afford a little comfort, but they won't correct the deformity of the bone, and hence

Social Casework "Qualifications"

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

May I draw attention to an advertisement originating in your city which affects indirectly many people in the Province. The April 2nd issue of a certain newspaper carries an advertisement by the Personnel Officer of Belleville for a Deputy Director of Welfare. According to the job description, the applicant is required to "perform social casework involving problems affecting family unity." The qualification required is Grade 13 with a minimum of five years' experience in the welfare field.

It seems a self-evident fact that the present secondary school curriculum contains no preparation for the practice of social casework, nor can this skill be simply accumulated by five years work in the welfare field. The suggestion that casework service is offered by a person with such qualifications deludes the applicant, the clients served, and the people who pay the bill.

Unfortunately, use of the term "social casework" is not legally restricted. However, the accepted preparation for practice is a two-year post graduate course leading to the Master of Social Work degree. The course of study includes an internship lasting each of these years under the supervision of a competent professional person.

One cannot offer the product simply by putting the label "social casework" on the package.

The treaty of Utrecht, signed 253 years ago today — in 1713 — formed up a host of disputes between Britain and France and marked victory for England in the fight to prevent Spain and France from amalgamating. France ceded Hudson Bay, Acadia and Newfoundland to Britain, retaining only St. Pierre Miquelon and Cape Breton. Spain ceded Gibraltar to Britain and granted a 30-year contract for the slave trade. Louis XIV of France also gave up support of the Stuart claim to the English throne.

Fiery Feud Smolders Between Diefenbaker and Cardin

By RICHARD JACOBSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — What is this so deeply-personal political blood feud between Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker and Justice Minister Lucien Cardin that is bringing them to the ultimate showdown of what amounts to a Royal Commission investigation?

What enmity could be so bitter-voiced as to mean an almost certain dark-shadowed end of Parliamentary life?

For one or the other — the Justice Minister still in his middle years (46) or the aging (70) Conservative Leader — will have to take his final leave from public service when the full story of play-girl Gerda Munsinger's intriguing life and times in Ottawa has been detailed to Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court.

Even before it starts, Mr. Cardin has put his very Parliamentary life — continued occupancy or resignation of his Commons seat — on the Royal Commission line.

With the stakes of honor and the obligations of high office being what they are, the Conservative Leader can scarcely do less.

The antagonists are both veterans of the Commons, the Justice Minister with 14 years behind him, the Conservative Leader with 26.

For 10 years after the Justice Minister first came to the Commons in 1952 when the Conservative Leader was still only a private MP, he was a prominent Parliamentary figure, they sat there, as far as anybody than keen observers could see, with reporters, he reminded them that he wasn't forgetting. For, as he and Parliament is no bush league. What you say today is remembered tomorrow.

Then he walked. Four years. Until Lucien Cardin was Justice Minister. And a Spencer security case was the issue.

The time to strike back had come with a vengeance. Years of scorn and ridicule he dismissed Lucien Cardin as just another of a string of pompous and pitiable "dwarf in giant's clothing." That and more and worse.

But for once the old courtroom lawyer and former Prime Minister had misjudged his man.

Lucien Cardin was no bush leaguer. Where he actually belonged, nobody — including a great many Liberals who were frank to admit they didn't know — cared to specify. But it wasn't the bush league.

His old and fearsome enemy John Diefenbaker was "vicious, a self-centered untouchable, an irresponsible again self-proclaimed Great Executioner" but actually really only "myth — a myth with a glass chin."

The "glass chin?"

Well, obviously, Lucien Cardin thinks it's Gerda Munsinger.

Exercise for the Mind

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Not long ago, I was delighted to hear a story out of the New York Times sports pages, to show my 10-year-old boy. It was a report from the National Professional Ski League competition in Vermont, and it began:

"Some of the greatest professional ski racers in the world have been nursing a well-guarded secret: the value of skiing on a topflight snowplow. A snowplow is to skiing technique what the alphabet is to reading or ball or treading water is to swimming. It's kindergarten stuff.

"Still," the story went on, "the skiing experts seemed shaky today in this department. 'It really shouldn't be a secret,' a league official said. 'The snowplow - plow is so fundamental that most of these men haven't done it since they were in knee pants.'"

I used this story as effective propaganda in reading to my boy why I wasn't able to give him much help with fractions and decimals. I was glad to show him to believe that I had done them so many years ago that I was a result of perfection as the Fifty years ago today—in 1916 — British and Canadian troops resumed attacks on the Germans at St. Eloi; German units attacked Ypres; allied forces landed at Salonika, an island in the Ionian Sea.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—the German invaders of Greece linked up with the Italian force in Albania; the German raiding aircraft were shot down over Bristol; British troops in Libya retreated.

ski champions were on snow plows. When I finally convinced him of this, he asked:

"Then why should I bother to learn how to do it? They'll do me no good, as a grown-up, and I'll forget them just as you have?"

Many schoolchildren ask this question of their parents, because so much of what they are taught in school seems "useless" to them in the larger scheme of things. But here, again, I was able to put back on the old saw a story to make a point about education.

"If the ski experts hadn't learned how to do a snowplow when they were young," I said, "they wouldn't be able to do the slalom runs or the split jumps or the christies today. The snowplow gets them the basics, just as running the scales on a piano gives you the basics of music. It's not something you learn for its own sake, but for the sake of something more worthwhile.

"A grown man," I pointed out "may forget how to handle decimals, but he's learned the general processes of arithmetic then he can go on to higher and more interesting forms, if he cares to. What he is doing in the early stages is learning how to learn, and that's the most important part of schooling, because it goes on forever, even after school is finished.

"You mean that something is useful even if we forget it?" he asked.

"Certainly," I said. "We train the mind just as we train the muscles — and the others forgot how to snowplow, but their muscular systems went on to better things because of that early training. Knowing what to forget, and when to forget it, is also an important part of education."

Burned Ship Being Towed To Jamaica

MIAMI (AP)—The blackened hulk of the cruise ship Viking Princess, apparently involved in a salvage fight, was somewhere south of Cuba today, being towed toward Jamaica.

The $10,000,000 pleasure craft which carried tourists on winter Caribbean cruises, burned Friday in the Windward Passage, between Cuba and Haiti, while sailing to Miami with 496 passengers and crew members.

Two passengers died of heart attacks when the ship was ordered abandoned shortly after a fire and explosion occurred in the engine room.

After the flames died, a Liberian freighter, the Navigator, put a line on the abandoned vessel and started towing it toward Jamaica, the U.S. Navy announced.

The Navigator was joined Sunday by the salvage tug Cable out of Key West, hired by the owners of the Viking Princess.

U.S. Navy and coast guard vessels which aided in the evacuation of the passengers and crew, left the scene Sunday, saying there was nothing more they could do.

Captain Otto Thoresen said in Miami Sunday that salvage rights or the ship would be left up to the insurance companies. Thoresen, a veteran of many years at sea, was the last man to leave the stricken vessel.

The ship is owned by the Norwegian firm of Berge Sigval Bergesen and operated by Flagship Lines Avenco Incorporated of New York.

No estimate was placed on the value of the burned-out shell that operated out of Miami during the winter season.

Ice Carnival Forerunner of 1967 Project

MARMORA — The ice carnival sponsored by Marmora Centennial Committee at the arena Friday night was a forerunner of a 1967 carnival event and was held to assist with funds for the Centennial Year projects. Master of ceremonies was Percy Gray, chairman of local projects for the Centennial committee, and a most entertaining evening was provided.

An exciting broom ball game with Legion members challenging Bethlehem boys was refereed by Sam Casselman. Goals were scored with pets turned backwards, with an anonymous clown (Bert Greenbalgh of Hamilton), intercepting the ball many times.

There was a tug of war on ice between Legion members and the men's curling club with the latter team coming out on top after the best 2 out of 3. A novice hockey contest by local teams was coached by Sid Potter and Bernard Doyle.

"Mr. and Mrs. Centennial" the most outstanding costumes on the ice, were won by Rick Nobes, and Rick Dewing who received 1966 silver dollars.

Other prizes for costumes were won by: 6 years and under: fanciest dressed girl — Brenda Sanderson and Laurie Stetson; fanciest boy — tie, Greg Killian and Vaughn Stetson; best couple — Mark Hanley and Justin Hanley.

10 years and under: fanciest girl — Evelyn Kolodzi and tie, Janice and Janet McGarvey; fanciest boy — Greg Hanley and Ted Parrels; best couple — Brent Sanderson.

14 years and under: fanciest dressed girl — Debbie Grey, Mrs. Judy Neal and Rhonda Deering; fanciest dressed boy — Terry McGarvey and Mark Langdon; best comic — Doug Walker and Deenis Gray, Philip Stetson and Eric Nichols.

Oldest lady skater on the ice was Mrs. Harry Mawer and prize for the oldest gentleman went to Jack Golden.

Winners of the races were as follows:

Boys 8 years and under: Jimmy Fox, Craig Killian.

Girls 8 and under: Trudy Killan and Brenda Sanderson.

Boys 10 and under: Jimmy Doyle and Pat Parrels.

Girls 10 and under: Debbie Deering and Mary Anne Murphy.

Boys 14 and under: Phil Stetson and Sandy Herman.

Girls 14 and under: Irene Booth and Helen Gawley.

tion to rally behind the "Viet Nam Buddhist Force and chairman of the militant Buddhist youth movement, replied:

"If that is what the people want, then that is what they will get. We want to fulfil the aspirations of the people."

NOT ANTI-AMERICAN

The Buddhist leaders denied they were anti-American or responsible for the attacks on individual Americans by rioting Buddhist-led youths in Saigon last week. "The monks involved were just letting off steam," they said. "We abide by non-violence."

They accused the Ky government of destroying "the democratic spirit of Viet Nam" by promising elections no earlier than next year. They said elections could be held right away.

The Buddhists said the pacification and reconstruction programs endorsed by President Johnson at his Honolulu meeting with Ky in February could move ahead only "with strong provincial and central governments."

The overwhelming majority of South Viet Nam's more than 14,000,000 people are at least nominally Buddhists, although Roman Catholics comprise about 10 per cent of the population. There are also important minority religious sects.

In the northern city of Hue, defiant student leaders today rejected a government invitation to talks and went ahead with plans to bring 20,000 anti-government demonstrators onto the streets Tuesday.

In Saigon, Buddhist stepped up their propaganda campaign for a return to civilian rule, but there have been no violent street protests in the capital since Friday.

TENSION EASED

Tension eased in the northern garrison city of Da Nang today as local troops pulled down roadblocks they raised last Monday when the Saigon regime sent in 1,500 soldiers ready to crush local opposition and then backed out.

Education To Cost Less Than Expected

TRENTON — Trenton public schools and the Trenton High School are going to cost the town taxpayers less money this year than was originally expected.

Mr. Douglas Whitley, finance chairman of the Trenton Board of Education announced today that the board would require $90,000 less from the town than was expected according to earlier board estimates. The reason for the decreased local tab is increased elementary and high school grants to be received from the provincial government.

Last month the school board estimated it would require $647,000 from the town this year for school purposes — up $101,000 from last year.

However, with the increased grants, the local levy requirement will now be $557,000 or $11,000 more than last year.

Girl Can Set Limits On Dance Floor

DEAR DORIS: I am 15, and my mother picks on me. One day she sat me down doing the latest dances and this said I looked awful, and not very lady-like. Then she saw me dancing with a very nice boy and said not to dance so close or he would get the impression I was fast.

I didn't do a single thing to make him think I was fast and I'm not. — DESPERATE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DESPERATE: When Mom was a girl the dances were different; although I can recall a pretty wiggly Charleston!

If he is a very nice boy, he won't hold you so close; but you do have some say in this. Sometimes a boy with not-too-good intentions tries a girl out on the dance floor.

Keep your distance, dearie!

DEAR DORIS: I am a successful farmer aged 37, married with a wife and two young daughters.

I have one problem which has been with me since I was a boy of 14. I cannot go to sleep for about three to four hours every night, and some nights I hardly fall asleep at all. My health seems to have been quite all right otherwise, but now I am developing some form of arthritis which is making the situation worse, because when I go to sleep I feel much muscle tension and spasms of one kind or another.

We have a normal life, but this trouble interferes with my work, because most of the time I feel exhausted. Most of the doctors I've gone to gave me pills which, in most cases, have helped for three or four days, but this is about all. — NO RIP

DEAR NO RIP: If you spent your days at an office desk, I'd guess you needed some physical exercise. But a farmer! Second guessing would look for tensions, tendencies to worry, — or poor digestion.

Arthritis has complicated things. The counsellor at your nearest branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society can bring the best medical and physical therapy to your aid.

Confidential to TEEN-AGER: There's nothing new about a boy your age questioning his religion and wondering about joining some other church. This is a time in your life for questions; a time when you close accepting all you are told, in favor of doing some thinking on your own.

Just don't make any radical changes for a while. Choosing a religion to suit your needs is like choosing a wife; it takes maturity and judgment.

THE GREATEST STORY

"The sandalwood tree imparts its fragrance even to the axe which hews it." — Chinese proverb and motto of Fulton Oursler.

"It was so simply told," a Belleville friend among several is saying as we "coffee-chat" over Easter's new hats, new spring flowers and now, about a new New York movie she saw, called 'The Gospel According to St. Matthew,' skillfully filmed by an Italian, Pier Pasolini. "It is honest, real and unlike George Steven's filmed version of 'The Greatest Story Ever Told,' that best-seller written by Fulton Oursler. Remember?"

"I do," answers another. "Did you know that his daughter, April Oursler Armstrong has written an autobiography telling of life with her famous father. He began the book in 1935, as work apart, while senior Editor of The Literary Digest. He wished to expose Christianity, and was alarmed that so many people knew nothing of the Scriptures. He determined to launch a one man crusade and bring both the Old and New Testaments into modern idiom. It took nearly 15 years before he submitted his cherished manuscript which became "The Greatest Story Ever Told," to the publisher who said:

"I don't know. It's so simple! Would people read something this simple?

"He asked his wife to read it, who did so and answered: 'You can't make a mistake with this fact because it is so simple. Beautifully simple.'

"So he took a chance. The critics ignored it. The public was silent. Its rise as a best seller, which eventually sold millions of copies is now history which experts have tried to analyze. Its real secret is people liked "The Greatest Story Ever Told" which appeared first in February, 1948.

"But it was in 1943 he had an idea: Why not base a weekly radio show on the Gospels?

"Needless to say, all kinds of crisp, prudent men declared: the idea is impossible, no one would sponsor the show; it would not be possible to think up acceptable scripts for a public composed of all faiths. But April's father replied:

"'I have my creed. Others have theirs. Let us ignore the area where we disagree and concentrate on the broad area of truth which we share.'

"By January 1947, The Greatest Story Ever Told did become a weekly radio show. The American Broadcasting Company featured it. The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company sponsored it. No commercial was used other than the legal necessity of naming the sponsor.

"Some of the dramas were especially written, others were taken directly from the then still unpublished book. April says her father said: 'I want to write an elevator boy's life of Christ. To tell the story with truth and excitement . . . to get out of the school room . . . into the marketplace and the heart.'

"His radio show was a great success as you may well know. I enjoyed it and his stories. One I remember was the bible as a story of Joseph. He pointed out that all men at some time during their life are thrown into a pit and sold into slavery, as it were. He said, if like Joseph, one can meet despair without bitterness or resentment, the quality of the person will come out. Just as it did in Joseph's life, enabling him to rise as chief administrator of the land.

"The book, if you are interested, is entitled 'House With a Hundred Gates'; a memoir by April Oursler Armstrong, and published by McGraw-Hill Book Company. The title is taken from G. K. Chesterton: "The Church is a house with a hundred gates; and no two men enter at exactly the same angle.

"It is somehow arousing, yet heartwarming to learn that Fulton Oursler 'entered his gate' late in life. It have so much to make up for, I wasted nearly 50 years of my life,' cried this man who made a creative art out of forgiveness and lack of resentment; who spent himself by this talent for God; and died on the eve of planning to film 'The Greatest Story Ever Told.'

"And in lighter vein: Lent being a time of patience, April asked her little son what he had done for the Lord today, and was told: 'When that guy down the street made me mad I didn't give him a sock in the nose. I just spitted.'"

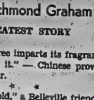
A Happy Easter, Everyone!

BANANA CREAM PIE

Here is another recipe for what our southern neighbors call a "filled" pie. I have adjusted my former recipe for Banana Cream Pie (April 28/65) because I have received one complaint saying it was "runny". Mine was not runny but to make absolutely sure this cannot happen I have adjusted the recipe to use only flour and egg yolks as the thickener.

Incidentally I expect that the cooks in our friendly circle realize that "soft" pies such as chocolate and lemon and banana cream are less expensive than fruit pies at this time of year.

Again, incidentally, I fully intended to use 3 eggs and 2 bananas in the pie but it does not need them. You can use 3 eggs and 3 bananas instead of the 2 of each listed in the recipe if you wish.



BANANA CREAM PIE WITH MERINGUE:

Pastry: 1 cup unsifted all purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1/3 cup lard quality shortening, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons cold water.

Filling: 1/3 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup flour, 2 cups hot milk, 2 eggs, yolk and whites separated, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 ripe bananas, ½ cup sugar (for meringue).

To make Pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of peas. Sprinkle in cold water, tossing with fork until dough can be pressed into a ball. Roll out on lightly floured board to fit 9" pie plate. Trim and flute edge, prick with fork and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. 12 minutes or until pale gold.

MONDAY
Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Lamb and Yellow Bean Casserole (use lamb leftover from Easter Sunday roast); Pan Roasted Potatoes (Francoise); Spinach; Iceberg Lettuce and Zoodle Salad with Cheese French Dressing; Fresh Stewed Rhubarb; Hot Gingerbread; Tea.

To make Filling in a heavy saucepan mix together dry the sugar, salt and flour. Stir in the milk and cook stirring until thick then over low heat 1 or 2 minutes longer. Remove from heat. In a small bowl beat egg yolks mixture and return to pots, stir in a little of the hot saucepan and cook stirring until just boiling. Remove from heat and add butter and vanilla.

Beat the 2 egg whites with the ½ cup sugar until very stiff.

Slice 2 bananas into baked pastry shell lining the slanting sides and covering bottom. Pour hot filling over. Cover with meringue, sealing it to edges. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes or until gold.

NOTE:

Cool at room temperature and chill in refrigerator. Chilling this pie with meringue made, as directed does no harm to the meringue.

Easter Parade In N.Y. Had Winter Look

NEW YORK (AP)—Fashion wearers, fashion watchers and at least one genuine rabbit named Peter were counted Sunday among thousands of traditionalists who never let an Easter go by without spending some time at New York's Easter parade.

As in years past, the annual parade was a misnomer. At its 50th, Rockefeller Center in midtown Manhattan, there was hardly room to turn around, let alone walk. But no one seemed discouraged.

Pretzel and ice cream vendors did a monumental business with a multitude of immaculately-clad children who strolled with their parents as the crowds permitted.

The "Easter look" seemed to be white with a touch of pink except on those who preferred to stick to winter clothes in temperatures that hovered in the high 40s.

Among the paraders was Peter—not the Easter Bunny, but a bunny none the less—who seemed more intent on the leaves of the newly-planted Rockefeller Center flowers than the festivities around him.

The canine world attracted nearly as much attention as the human. A pair of poodles, Petit Amor and Cha-Cha turned up in blue top hats and blue velvet formals with 22-carat gold trim.

One New York woman and her poodle, Amy, came dressed alike right down to wrist watches, handbags and nails with red polish.

May we now present our version of a salt box string or twine holder?

Her name is Sarah. She stores a large ball of string in her head and is equipped with a loop for hanging up in any of those areas around the house or out a g e (basement or garage) w h e r e string is always needed but where there never seems to be any!

Sarah is assembled simply, by making a bonnet from remnants for her salt box head. Allow a little of her braided wool hair to show, apply your own face, make an attractive mouth from which to feed the twine. Use shoe box cord for hanging up and from which to dangle a small pair of scissors.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a female, aged 20, a sophomore at a large midwestern university. I'm writing about something that is bugging students on every campus in the country. We are demanding emancipation from the unrealistic and hypocritical rules designed to inhibit our sexual activity.

A group of crusaders for sexual freedom took a blind poll of our dorm last week. The question was: "Are you a make-out or a hold-out?" Each girl was asked to check A or B. (We wanted to insure honest responses so we didn't ask for signatures.) Well, 85 per cent of the girls said they were make-outs, while 15 per cent said they were hold-outs. This poll suggests that the vast majority of college girls have already made that decision so what do the school authorities think they are saving us from, anyway?

We believe each girl must decide for herself where to draw the line or if she wishes to draw a line at all. We also believe that nurses, both men's and women's, should be open to members of the opposite sex, day and night.

Why drive students to expensive motels, rented rooms, the beaches, or worst of all — into uncomfortable cars! If our minds are made up we will find a place — and you can bet on it.

We need backing from people like you. Please help us to persuade college administrators to treat us like mature adults. It is not only absurd, but degrading, to be patient as if we were 13 years old. — MY NAME IS LEGION.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR LEGION: You don't need to tell me that when your minds are made up you will find a place. I get dozens of letters every day from girls who have found the place. They ask me to help them to find another place. A home for unwed mothers.

I don't believe dorm rules ever saved even one girl's virtue. You are right, school can't save something that the girl herself doesn't think is worth saving. But your suggestion that the administration endorse an Open Door policy because it would be more comfortable than cars — and cheaper than motels is ridiculous.

While it is true that an individual's conscience is still the best policeman in the world, rules and regulations are essential in a well-ordered society. Some sterling characters would behave precisely as they now do if there were no rules, but most of us need guidelines. We need to have limits set to save us from ourselves.

When you kids were living at home did your parents allow you to entertain members of the opposite sex in your bedroom at all hours of the day and night? And what would you have thought of them if they had allowed it? Most college students are being put through school by parents who are sacrificing to do it. The restrictions are part of the total package and college kids should not resent it.

A college that provides a cozy setup for intramural sex must accept full responsibility when its students get into trouble. And many of them would. You can bet on it.

Law Review Has Woman As Editor

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—A willowy brunette with sparkling brown eyes is the first woman elected editor-in-chief in the 66-year history of the Michigan Law Review. It is a scholarly journal frequently cited in litigants' briefs and court decisions, and ranks among the top such publications in the United States.

Grinning her freckled nose, the new editor, 23-year-old Sally Katzen, of Pittsburgh, said in an interview:

"I've been told the job will take about 40 hours a week—but I hope I won't have to give up my social life."

Since Sally is a second-year law student at the University of Michigan, she also will be carrying a 12-hour academic load.

"They say you're supposed to do about three hours of homework for every hour in class, so maybe I'll just give up sleeping," she said.

In her job as editor-in-chief, she will direct an eight-man staff and supervise the work of 85 associates and assistant editors—all men.

The editor-in-chief is chosen by fellow editors, subject to final faculty approval. The job is non-salaried.

Also working for her will be 40 junior-class candidates for selection to the staff of the review.

Sally hopes to become either a corporation or a government lawyer.

Vimy Veterans Honored by Picton Legion

PICTON (Staff) — The annual Vimy Banquet was held Thursday night at Branch 76, the Royal Canadian Legion in Picton. A large number of veterans were in attendance to honor the memory of those who fought and died in the Vimy battle. Of all the veterans, once members of this legion branch, only six left to participate in the ceremonies at this banquet.

Among the guests at the head table for the banquet were His Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton who acted members to observe a minute's silence for the sudden passing of Lt. Col. W. Mulherin, former C.O. the 1st Battalion the Canadian Guards; and Dr. Gerald Allison, who was guest speaker for the evening. Dr. Allison, a member of the legion and a veteran of the first great war, with a long and distinguished military career, was also at Vimy shortly after the great battle took place.

Dr. Allison related some of his early experiences in the army and spoke of the various theatres of war in which he served. He said the Canadians did indeed distinguish themselves at Vimy and the inauguration of the Canadian Corps was tops in the estimation of the people. Dr. Allison was introduced by Comrade Howard Reid and thanked by Comrade Homer Goodrich.

Following the guest speaker Mayor H. J. McFarland presented the local branch with a personal cheque for $50 and offered its good wishes area adjacent to the building.

PHOTO PRESENTED

Robert Greenwell, one of the six remaining Vimy veterans and a resident of Northport, presented the branch with a framed composite photo of the Vimy Memorial in France showing the two sides of the structure and the trenches surrounding the monument. He also presented two remarkable replicas of the two cannon, which are located on the front lawn of the Picton Legion. The guns, made of brass, mounted on wooden bases with brass wheels showed skillful craftsmanship and were both made by hand by Mr. Greenwell.

A one-minute silence was also observed by members of the Legion for the late Frank Starr, who recently passed away. Mr. Starr was a keen member of the legion, was one of the most loyal members and in the words of Mayor McFarland he did a lot not only for the town but for the whole county of Prince Edward.

New Controls In Operation On April 15

PICTON (STAFF) — Lake Ontario Cement Company undertakes dust control and it is expected that control measures will be in operation by April 15. An agreement was filed with the Ontario Supreme Court in session in Picton on Feb. 21st, 1966, in which the Lake Ontario Cement Company undertakes with the plaintiffs that no emission from it's stacks, justifying complaints the plaintiffs, will occur after April 15. The plaintiffs relying upon the said undertaking, consent to the withdrawal of the claim for injunction and agree to file such documents with the court as effectively discontinue such claims forthwith.

At the same time the action for damages was carried over. It is understood that the company has expended three - quarters of a million dollars in it's efforts to prevent the dust emission from the stacks on all three kilns. Extra effort and extra expense is continuing in an effort to introduce dust control methods. Though all kilns have precipitators, a number of difficulties have been experienced and according to the company spokesman every effort is being made to ensure the equipment functions properly.

Plan to Force Owners to Repair Property

PICTON — Town Council has taken the first tops toward passing a bylaw that will force property owners to either repair their dilapidated buildings or have them removed. The motion was introduced by Councillor Donald King, who said the Chamber of Commerce is behind the move 100 percent. He said the Chamber was in the process of writing each county municipality asking it to enforce the Municipal Act section which says property owners should keep certain areas near the highway free of rubbish. Reeve Bernard Hepburn said owners of unrepaired buildings should be reminded that they would save on tax if they demolished the old buildings and paid just a property tax. Mayor McFarland concurred saying that "with 1967 coming on, we should all make an effort to clean up the building around town."

BIDE THEIR TIME

While maintaining official silence, the Kremlin undoubtedly would like nothing better than to race the United States to the moon, but the young men and who make the Soviet space decisions have demonstrated a capacity to bide their time, avoiding variations on types of space flights that have already been successful.

The Soviet press has accused the United States of going in for "stunts" of doing piling up records that have little to do with real space progress.

Since the last Soviet manned flight, March 18, 1965, the United States has sent up 12 astronauts in six shots and set most of the space records.

But when it comes to preparations for getting a manned spaceship to the moon, the Soviet Union has maintained its edge.

The U.S. Surveyor is not expected to attempt its first soft lunar landing until May, and that is being treated in advance as a possible failure. The U.S. Lunar Orbiter is not to be launched until mid-year, with the limited purpose of flying in orbit around the moon and sending back photos.

The current optimism among Soviet cosmonauts would seem to indicate the Soviet Union has the intention of standing still while the United States flies to the moon.

WATER SUPPLY RISE

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's water supply continued its rise Sunday with the addition of 700,000,000 gallons since Saturday. This brought the total storage in the northern New York state watersheds to 348,700,000,000 gallons or 72.8 per cent of capacity. Normal for an April 10 is 420,800,000,000 gallons or 88.2 per cent. The city watered a severe water shortage last summer.

Rat Killing Is Protested By Society

OTTAWA (CP) — Youths killing rats for sport in the back yard of an Ottawa householder prompted a Humane Society protest.

Laurent Lamon, who invited the rat hunters, said he believes the rats are coming into his Wellington Street yard from a next-door neighbor's garbage dump.

"Rats are still animals," Society Manager Kenneth Switzer said. "They have feelings the same as other animals and they must be killed with as little pain as possible."

The youths used sticks and slingshots to kill 10 rats Good Friday.

Jaycees Hold Successful Easter Parade

NAPANEE — Napanee's first Easter parade Saturday morning was not as elaborate as the Santa Claus parade, but it was well worth the effort. Grant Clark of the committee chairman declared. It was a beginning, and next year's parade will be still better, he added. The Jaycees sponsored both events.

There were fewer floats than at Christmas time, but those entered were imaginative and brought out the joy of spring and of Easter. The RCAF pipe band from Trenton led the parade through the town to the Market Square where the entries were judged, and then back to the Prince Charles school, where it dispersed.

Judges for the decorated cars, floats and other entries in this class were A. Douglas Atkenbrack, M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox; Mayor A. Smart, and Police Chief Harry Benn. Two sisters, Marie Macpherson and Mary Murdoch, tied for first prize with both beautifully decorated cars, second prize went to the 3rd Napanee Cubs, whose leaders are Mrs. Eleanor Tack and Mrs. Wilkie. Third prize, Rod and Gun Club float placed third, with a group of hunters in an outdoor setting. Fourth prize went to Hillcrest Lodge, with uniformed nurses in a gaily decorated car.

Only one prize was given for an antique car — with body and gentleman in period costume. It was won by Ivan and Ola MacFarland and Bob Yarrow and Harry Walsh won as Hoods riders.

Best gentleman rider was Art Corfield of Amelisburgh. In the pony class the prize as the best girl pony rider under ten, and Tickty Topping as the best boy pony rider. Darrel Lake was the driver of the best horse - drawn vehicle, entered by Dorcas's Riding Stables of Camden East. Frederick Lloyd was the winner for the best saddle horse in a pony. As the youngest pony-rider, Toby Day won a special prize, and Nancy Another special for the most entries of horses and ponies.

Mrs. Ralph Kelly, Allenbrack and Mrs. Ronald Macpherson judged the ladies and gentlemen for the Country Costume. Winners were Sonya Verabioff, Barbara French, Geraldine Germain, Marlene Wood, May Markotich and Carol Caird. Geoff Webster and Buck Macpherson were judged the best dressed gentlemen.

Grant Clark, Wayne McLean and Chris Gauss made up the committee in charge of all arrangements.

COUPLES CLUB-U.C.W. JOINT MEETING

NAPANEE — In his letter that as many as possible should hear Mr. and Mrs. James Green, Grace Church U.C.W. and the Couples' Club combined their meeting last week. Mr. and Mrs. Green were missionaries from Tanzania, home on furlough until July, and are much in demand to tell of life in the African country, and show the many pictures they have taken.

The Couples' Club meet monthly starts with a pot luck supper. This time it was dessert at Christmas time, but those colored were imaginative and brought out the joy of spring and of Easter. The RCAF pipe band from Trenton led the parade through the town to the Market Square where the entries were judged, and then back to the Prince Charles school, where it dispersed.

Patients, some in iron lungs, were moved in cartage vans and-trault buses with power supplies provided through equipment carried by the trucks travelling with the vans.

Meanwhile, the city of Calgary has shipped 30 pumps to Manitoba to help fight the flooding Red River, Calgary City Engineer Charles D. Howarth said Friday.

Mr. Howarth said he believes this is the first time Calgary has been asked for help to control the Red River.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Tipping the scales at 115; the beam at five feet even, this attractive 25-year-old housewife is the feminine David among the Goliaths of ten-pin bowling not only here but in Ontario and Canada as well.

She is Mrs. Barbara Ward, 71 Prince of Wales Drive, a member of two attractive children Wendy 9, and Kevin 8, and the right bower of husband Ken.

Between her sports activities Mrs. Ward is a valued member of the accounting department of American Optical here. Bowling buffs of the company have dubbed her the "A-O Pin-Up."

In an interview recently Barbara gave me the impression of being a modest, soft-spoken lady, who naturally is proud of her athletic achievements in bowling-wise, but doesn't flout them from the housetops.

In her veins runs the blood of champions. For seventeen years she was a top five-pins bowler. Five years ago she "switched" to ten-pins — and it was love at first sight.

She took to the new game like the traditional duck to the water and in less than a year won a Canadian championship. That was back in 1961-62 when she won the women's title at Hamilton.

That was a double honor for Belleville. Bob Runion, former baseball pitching star, won the men's title, also at Hamilton then with Mrs. Kerry took part in the all-American tournament at New York.

Barbara finished seventh in a field of 47 contestants, an exceptional showing for a five bowler.

This year she added new laurels. She won the Ontario Provincial Women's Championship at Windsor where she rolled 1286 for eight games as against 1375 for the runner-up.

She goes gunning for her second national title on the week of May 18-22nd in the all-Canadian finals scheduled for Fort William.

She will meet the cream of Canada's women keglers and hopes to come home with the championship honors. "It won't be easy" she says, "for the calibre of women bowling has increased a lot since I last won a title."

Barbara did not make any predictions. "I hope to win" she says. "I'll do my best and if that is good enough — I'll take it all. But it is going to be tough."

Since taking up five pins, Barbara has won more than fifty awards for high singles, high average, team championships and whatnot. That's home. I'm told, looks like four ordinary trophy rooms rolled into one.

Consistency on the lanes is one of her biggest assets. Inside the 115-pound frame she carries determination and ability. And she believes practice makes perfect.

At the present time Barbara is playing on two teams. She is captain of the A-O Tornadoes, now holding down second place in their league. She also plays in the Women's Classic averaging 177 — all without a handicap.

Sports-wise, next to a ten-pin bowl, she loves the feel of a fishing rod. She can cast with the best of her male angling counterparts. Her favorite fishing haunt is West Lake near Wellington (she has the blood of "Spaniards" in her veins) where they tell me the pike and pickerel scuttle for cover when the word gets around she is headed lakeing for them.

Her sports time? She is a genius with a pair of knitting needles and can produce colorful art with her brushes and oils.

She is also a hockey fan and seldom misses an NHL game on television when time permits. Her favorite team and player? She was recently given a picture of Bobby Hull which has been placed ahead of the field in her array of championship trophies.

American Optical and the city's ten-pin bowldom can well be proud of this attractive lady who has demonstrated that while "races go to the big and strong" some champions are wrapped up in small packages.

Forts Nip Estevan

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Fort William Canadiens spotted Estevan Bruins the opening goal then bounced back for a 3-1 victory Sunday to take a 2-1 lead in a best-of-seven Western Canada junior hockey semifinal.

The fourth game is scheduled here tonight.

Brian Depiero led Canadiens with two goals, including the winning counter at 14:45 of the third period.

Fort William wrapped up the win with 38 seconds left when Ray Addison hit the empty net after Estevan goalie Don Caley was pulled for an extra forward.

Stan Fuller scored the Estevan goal.

Red Wing Avalanche Swamps Hawks

CHICAGO (CP) — Floyd Smith, known around Detroit as the man who makes Norm Ullman go, took the initiative along with his mob for the Red Wings Sunday and changed the entire outlook of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final against Chicago Black Hawks.

The 30 - year - old native of Perth, Ont. scored two goals as the Wings romped to a 7-0 victory and knotted the series at 2-2 going into the third game at Detroit Tuesday.

His first at 4:10 of the first period opened the scoring and his second, with 33 seconds remaining in the period, gave the Wings a 3-0 edge from which the favored Hawks never recovered.

It was Ullman, tied with Alex Delvecchio as Detroit's top scorer with 23 goals this season, who set up both Smith's markers while the Hawks were a man short. Smith had 21 during the season.

Actually, the Wings pumped in four power-play goals. The other two were scored by veteran Andy Bathgate.

Dean Prentice, Gordie Howe and rookie defenceman Bert Marshall were the other scorers. Marshall's goal was the first of his National Hockey League career for the 23-year-old native of Kamloops, B.C., who assisted on 19 regular-season goals.

Coach Sid Abel marked the victory up to a line switch that shackled the high-powered Chicago trio of Stan Mikita, Kenny Wharrem and Doug Mohns.

Abel sent a new line of Ullman, Bruce MacGregor and Paul Henderson against Mikita and his wing mates.

"It's something I haven't done for a long time, but then we haven't done much against Chicago in a long time," he said.

The Wings had only one victory and two ties in 24 regular-season starts against the Hawks this year and Sunday's beating them in Chicago since March 2, 1965.

"It was no contest, no contest," Chicago coach Billy Reay admitted after the game.

"They established us and outworked us. They were moving real good."

Reay didn't mention the fact Detroit also had put an effective ball and chain around star Bobby Hull's ankle whenever the Golden Jet made one of his brief appearances.

But the muscular left winger, who scored a record 54 regular-season goals and counted the winner in Thursday's 3-1 victory in the first game of the series, is hampered by a knee injury he suffered during the opening game.

HULL HIT AGAIN

"I got hit again in the second period," Hull said afterwards.

"It was the same knee (the left). I didn't get a chance to test it much after that, so I don't know how it is."

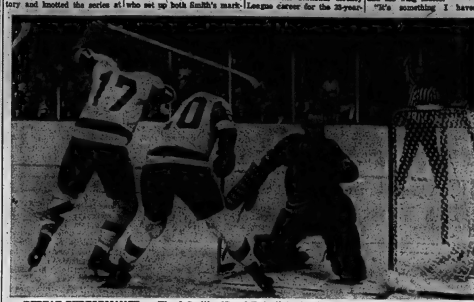
Reay, who took Hull out of the game during the third period after playing him only sparingly — mostly on power plays and penalty killing—said, "I wasn't taking a chance at getting him hurt."

Reay also yanked veteran goalie Glenn Hall after Detroit's seventh goal in the third period. Dave Dryden took over.

"I just wanted to get Dave into the game and I thought that was as good a time as any."

After scoring three goals in the opening period, the Wings—outshot 10-9 in the second—added another in the second and three more in the final 20 minutes.

OPENED FAST, HIT HARD



The Wings opened the contest on a fast note, using heavy body checking to contain the Hawks.

"We really went out to rough them up from the start," said Abel.

Sophomore goalie Roger Crozier, who went on to record his first playoff shutout in 11 Stanley Cup games, shut the door on the Hawks when they did break past the almost flawless Detroit defence.

After Smith opened the scoring, Howe picked up his 62nd assist of the season on Prentice's power-play goal. Prentice counted while both clubs were playing one man short.

The fourth game of the series is scheduled for Detroit Thursday, and the series switches back to Chicago for the fifth game next Sunday. If a sixth game is necessary, it will be played in Detroit the following Tuesday.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE — Floyd Smith, 17, of Detroit Red Wings, who had scored earlier in first period against Chicago Black Hawks, does it again as Chicago goalie Glenn Hall watches puck go into net. No. 20 is Dean Prentice of Red Wings. Detroit won, 7 to 0, to square semi-finals Stanley Cup series at one game apiece. (AP Wirephoto)

Nicklaus Blows Chance

Three-Way Playoff For Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Tommy Jacobs and Gay Brewer, a couple of outsiders, were ever - shadowed by the dominant figure of Jack Nicklaus going into today's three-way, 18-hole playoff for the green coat that goes to the Masters champion.

"I've blown three chances," the defending champion growled after finishing the regulation 72 holes in a tie with Jacobs and Brewer at 286, "even par for the demanding Augusta National course.

"I don't intend to blow another."

Jacobs and Brewer had already finished Sunday when Nicklaus missed by about two inches on a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th that would have won it.

When it missed, Jacobs and Brewer were elevated, at least for the time being, to the ranks of the exclusive club more normally composed of Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player which has shared the title in this classic seven of the last eight years.

Palmer made his bid and failed, finishing two strokes back. Player never was in it.

The playoff was scheduled for 1:45 p.m. EST. In the event of a further tie, sudden death will be in effect, starting at the first hole.

FIFTH PLAYOFF

It's the fifth playoff in Masters history and the second involving three players.

The winner will get a cheque for $25,000. The runner-up will receive $12,500 and third place is worth $8,200.

Nicklaus, gunning for a third Masters title and a record second straight, has had rounds of 68-70-72-72; Brewer has turned in scores of 74-72-72-70 and Jacobs has scored 75-71-70-72.

Brewer appeared on his way to a surprise victory but threatened the final hole after leading from the ninth hole. He was playing with Palmer, who finished in a tie for fourth with Doug Sanders at 290, two strokes from the top. Each won $5,700.

Nicklaus, disgusted after blowing his chance to win, had missed a four-foot birdie try on the 17th that would have given him the lead. A year ago he set the tournament record of 271, including a record-equaling 64.

Port Perry Defeats Flyers 9-3

TRENTON (STAFF) — Port Perry Bellhowers, with Jim Burnett and team captain Chic Carnegie supplying the spark, overwhelmed Trenton BOAF Flyers here yesterday, 9-4. The win gave the Bellhowers a 2-1 lead in games in the best - of - seven OHA Intermediate C semi-final series. Game six is scheduled for Port Perry, Wednesday night.

Burnett led the winners with three goals, Carnegie was good for a pair while Andy Matthews, Ron Bryant, Gary Gear and Lynn Middleton each counted once.

Bulldowns were never behind in this one. They led 3-1 after one period; made it 5-4 in the second and outscored Flyers 4-1 in the third.

Should Flyers force a seventh game with a win here today night, the deciding contest will be played at the Community Gardens here Sunday, April 17.

Commercial Hockey League

Belvedere Hotel moved to within one victory of capturing the Commercial "B" Hockey League championship last night.

The Hotelmen dumped American Optical 6-3 to grab a 3-1 games lead in their best-of-five junior set.

Fourth game of the set will be played this Wednesday night, at 8.00, with the final next Sunday, if necessary.

St. Denis sparked Belvedere last night with a pair of goals while one each went to McGrimmon, Brooks, Taylor and B. Hughes. Moreau drew three assists, Taylor two and St. Denis one.

C. Boomhower, Garvin and Reid scored for Optical with Reid, Jones and Asselkine having assists.

SEEK 'N' TOURNEY

FREDERICTON (CP) — The New Brunswick Minor Hockey Association will make a bid to host the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to stage the Canadian centennial midget hockey tournament here.

Leicester Edges United

LONDON (Reuters) — Manchester United, favored to win the English Football Association Cup and a semi-finalist in the European Cup went down to its first home defeat of the season when beaten 2-1 by Leicester City in a league game Saturday.

Leicester's deserved victory was sweet revenge for its 5-1 home loss to United last November. Mike Stringfellow snatched two goals in two minutes midway through the first half to give Leicester a 2-0 halftime lead.

Liverpool, runaway leader in Division 1 and loser of only one league game since Christmas, surprisingly was held to a goalless tie by relegation - haunted Northampton Town.

An opportunist goal by Willie Irvine 25 seconds before halftime gave Burnley a 1-0 home victory over Sunderland. It put the Lancashire club back in second spot, ahead of Leeds United whose away match against Arsenal was one of eight postponed because of waterlogged playing fields after torrential morning rain.

Chelsea overwhelmed West Ham United 6-2 in an all-London clash. But West Ham, facing a vital semi-final European Cup winners' cup game against Borussia Dortmund in West Germany Wednesday, used only four members of the team which trounced Tottenham Friday.

The bottom three clubs were: Northampton Town 20 points from 27 matches; Fulham 25 from 26; Blackburn Rovers 18 from 24.

Halifax Ousts Cornwall

HALIFAX (CP)—A goal by Brian O'Byrne with 45 seconds left in the third period gave Halifax Junior Canadians a 5-4 win over Cornwall Royals in the seventh and deciding game of their Eastern Canada Junior A quarter-finals Sunday.

Canadiens now advance to the eastern semi-finals in a best-of-five series against the Quebec champion, Shawinigan Falls Bruins, beginning here Tuesday.

Clancy's "Hit-Em" Tactics Backfire

Leafs Dunked 2-0

By AL McNEIL

GOAL — Montreal forward Bobby Rousseau shoots a hard wrist shot towards Toronto goalie Terry Sawchuck in the second game of a Stanley Cup semi-final series in Montreal Saturday night. The puck went by Sawchuck and the Canadiens won 2-0. Claude Provost scored the other goal. (CP Wirephoto)

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs may have won individual battles, but they were so intent in the skirmishing that they eventually lost the war.

"I told them to go out there and take their shots and knock a few guys down," Punch Imlach, (King) Clancy said, after his Leafs had dropped a 2-0 decision to Montreal Canadiens here Saturday night.

Unfortunately for Clancy, who was subbing behind the bench for an ailing Punch Imlach, his Leafs only intimidated Canadiens for 49 minutes and 25 seconds of the penalty - filled game.

At that point right winger Claude Provost beat Toronto netminder Terry Sawchuk with what proved to be the winning goal, Bobby Rousseau added another with less than four minutes remaining and as a result Montreal now holds a 2-0 edge in the best-of-seven semi-final series with the Leafs.

The Leafs are host to Canadiens for the third and fourth games of the Stanley Cup series Tuesday and Thursday nights in Toronto.

GETS THIRD SHUTOUT

For Terry Sawchuk (Gump) Worsley, in the Montreal nets, it was his third shutout in National Hockey League playoff competition.

The Leafs were so intent in following Clancy's instructions that they fired only three shots at Worsley in the first 30 minutes, the first at the 12:35 mark from defenceman Kent Douglas.

Clancy said after the game he felt his club had played well despite its second loss to Canadiens in 48 hours. Montreal won the opener Thursday night 3-2.

"We'll be back here Saturday for the fifth game," the Leafs' assistant general manager said, implying the Leafs will pick up their victories on home ice.

Toronto played without the services of veteran netminder Johnny Bower, who was hit by the fist Thursday and all-star defenceman Allan Stanley, who is out for the season with cartilage troubles in his left knee.

SAWCHUK WAS BUSY

Sawchuk, who played a bang-up game for the Leafs, turned back 38 of 40 shots Canadiens fired at him. Worsley stopped 25.

Provost's goal came as Canadiens held a man advantage and while the man he had guarded throughout 74 periods of play was sitting out a holding penalty.

Big Frank Mahovlich was banished for tripping Earl Ingarfield and 33 seconds after he left the ice Provost beat Sawchuk with a shot from the side of the net which the Toronto netminder gloved and dropped. It rolled across the goal line.

Montreal's first goal came close on the heels of a third-period brawl, which saw Montreal's John Ferguson and Bob Pulford of Toronto clash behind the Montreal net. They were all joined by Bob Baun of Toronto and Terry Harper, who wrestled each other around the ice.

Then Canadiens' Claude Larose and Toronto's Eddie Shack started swinging and when the general melee was finally broken up, Larose and Shack were the only players to receive individual penalties.

Montreal's second goal came at 18:07 when Dick Duff fed the puck to Ralph Backstrom, who fired across the goalmouth. Claude Provost banged and appeared to get a piece of the puck and as he sprawled Rousseau was on hand to flip it over the fallen goaltender.

The first period was a rough affair, starting at the 34-second mark when Tim Horton was sent off for holding Gilles Tremblay. Three minutes later Larose was given a minor for slashing at Shack with his stick.

Baun caught the eye of referee Bill Friday near the eighteen minute mark as he interfered with Backstrom and was handed two minutes. Pulford followed suit Friday gave Baun's cause and was promptly hit with a 10-minute misconduct.

Just after the 12 - minute mark, hostilities broke out between Henri Richard and Baun, Harry Howell and J. C. Tremblay and Larry Hillman. When the rubble and debris was cleared, Friday gave Horton and Hillman two minutes each and assessed the same time to Tremblay and Henri of Montreal. However, tempers refused to cool and Harper of Montreal boarded Dave Keon and when he did not draw a penalty, Douglas decided to take a hand. No penalties arose from either encounter.

However, five seconds later Friday nicked Harper for holding Mahovlich and when the Montreal defenceman complained, handed him a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

In all, Friday handed out 26 penalties, which included two majors, two misconducts and 22 minors. Toronto picked up 14.

The teams fell five short of the record 31 penalties called in a previous playoff contest played March 26, 1964, between the two clubs. Canadiens won that one, also by a 2-0 score.

Kitchener Rangers Defeat Oshawa Generals 5-2

The Rangers, skating dumped the Generals 5-2. Kitchener now trails the best - of - seven series 3-1 with the fifth game scheduled for Oshawa Tuesday night.

Vest, replacing benched regular Gary Kurt after a seven-week layoff, needed and received help from his defence, handling only 25 shots compared with 37 fired at Ian Young in the Oshawa goal.

The score was tied 1-1 in the first period. Kitchener opened a slim 3-2 lead by the end of the second and scored two in the third.

SCORE TWICE

Jim Krulicki and Bob Jones each scored twice for the Rangers with Tom Smoels, up from the Kitchener Greenadiers Junior B club, adding the other. Wayne Cashman and Danny O'Shea, Oshawa's big guns in the series so far, shared the Oshawa goals.

Minor Hockey Ends Here This Week

Leafs captured the B.M.H.A. peewee "B" championship and Bruins gained a berth for the "A" finals on the weekend.

This marks the final week of minor hockey here for the season and all players are advised to watch the "Sports Calendar" for their teams. This annual "Awards Night" is scheduled for Friday.

The peewee Leafs edged the Barons 2-1 to capture their crown. Dale Gay and Steve Empey scored unassisted goals for the champions. J. Morgan got the Barons' goal, aided by M. Hayes.

Bruins trounced the Rangers 5-1 to win the "A" title semi-final and will now meet the Generals for the championship.

C. Evans and Pat Bradley scored two Bruin goals each with B. Leitch, D. England, C. Bourgeau and B. Hitchcock getting the others. K. Cochrane, Leitch, England, Cochrane again, B. McDowell, Bradley and M. Sullivan had assists. Wayne Andrews scored the losers' loner.

In an exhibition Maroons topped the Generals 3-1. R. Burnette and J. Homewood got Maroons' goals, assisted by Doug Rainaut, Rick Watt and Terry Rappell. Doug Caul scored for the Generals.

In a novice exhibition, the Maroons, reinforced by players from other teams, topped the Barons 7-4. Jeff Scala scored three for Maroons, Steve Cowan two, Wayne Warner and Terry Bridge on each. Warner also had an assist, Mike Upton got two, Joe Muldoon and Paul Prudhomme one each for Barons.

Rounding Into Form

Dodger Aces May Start This Week

By MIKE KATHEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale aren't acting any more.

That became apparent during the weekend, when baseball's first $100,000-plus pitching pair, holdouts until 32 days ago, put in strong bids for opening-week starting assignments with the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

Koufax pitched six innings of no-hit ball, striking out nine, as the Dodgers defeated Cleveland Indians 3-0 Saturday. Then Sunday, Drysdale pitched six innings of shutout ball, allowing just six singles, in a 6-0 victory over the Indians.

The performances in the closing exhibition games left the aces of the Dodger staff, who combined for 49 victories last year, anxious to make their first starts sometime this week.

Claude Osteen drawn the opening day assignment for the world champions. He is scheduled to go against veteran Robbi Roberts of Houston Astros as the regular season gets into full swing with an eight-game program following Monday's traditional openers at Washington and Cincinnati.

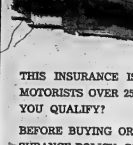
With President Johnson remaining in Texas for an Easter holiday, Vice-President Hubert Humphrey will be his relievers, throwing out the first pitch of the season as the Senators meet Cleveland.

Then Pete Richert will take the mound for Washington while Sam McDowell, the American League's answer to Koufax, starts for the Indians. At Cincinnati, the 82nd National League opener will match New York Mets and Jack Fisher against the Reds and Milt Pappas.

Tuesday's schedule shows five day games and three nighters. The American League has most of the day action with Kansas City Athletics at Minnesota Twins, Detroit Tigers at New York Yankees, Baltimore Orioles at Boston Red Sox and California Angels at Chicago White Sox.

Chicago Cubs will visit San Francisco Giants for a day game with the remainder of the National League schedule at night. Pittsburgh Pirates will play the first major league game at Atlanta against the Braves, Philadelphia Phillies will be at St. Louis Cardinals and Houston Astros at Los Angeles.

WON'T PAY TAX



NEW YORK (AP)—Some 300 United States scientists, writers, professors, clergymen and entertainers said in a statement Saturday they would refuse to pay part or all of their income tax as a form of protest to U.S. actions in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic. Among those listed as signers of the statement were folksinger Joan Baez and Staughton Lynd, Yale teacher who recently made an unauthorized trip to Hanoi.

COSSA Badminton

Moira Girls Did Well

By JACKIE THOMPSON

The Moira girls badminton teams displaying fine sportsmanship and skill, placed third in the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. tournament held at the Armouries recently Judy Pultz and Lynne Neill took top honors in the senior girls' division, while Jackie Thompson and Linda Dohoo were junior finalists.

In the semi-finals of the senior girls' competition, Moira met Quinte and beat them in two straight games 15-9, 15-7. In the finals, Moira again took two straight from Picton 15-2, 15-8. In 4 other matches, the championship team did not lose one game.

The junior team also did well in their division. In the semi-finals they defeated Nepanee 17-14, 15-7, but in the finals were beaten by Picton 15-7, 17-14. It was not an easy victory for Picton for the game had to be set and Moira did not give up the three points without a fine effort.

The achievements of the Moira girls' badminton teams were a repeat performance of last year, when they took both junior and senior championships and finished in first place.

In The Dressing Rooms

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens check into Toronto confident they can beat the Maple Leafs and win their best-of-seven semi-final series while the Leafs have promised to be back in Montreal Saturday night, meaning they intend to win at least one of the two scheduled games in Toronto this week.

The Canadiens lead the series 2-0 and visit Toronto for the third and fourth games Tuesday and Thursday.

"Just two more. Two more, that's all," believed defenseman Jean-Guy Talbot in the Montreal dressing room Saturday night after the Canadiens had blanked the Leafs 2-0 in a hard - hitting, hot - tempered game.

Lorne Worsley, who made 25 saves to register the third-play-off shutout of his career, said he was "just happy we won."

The game was a rough, tough affair with officials breaking up sparring matches at almost every whistle as 26 penalties were handed out in the game.

"We weren't expecting it to be that rough," said Toe Blake, coach of the Canadiens.

IMLACH SIDELINED

"I told the guys to hit, just take dead aim and hit," King Clancy said after the game. Clancy, Toronto assistant general-manager, stood in for general - manager - coach Punch Imlach, hit by the flu bug that has sidelined veteran netminder Johnny Bower.

Blake said the Leafs "must be afraid" of his club.

"They stick an extra man on the ice whenever there is a stoppage in play. That's a yellow way of playing. They're supposed to have the best fighters, but . . ." Blake said.

He was referring to the fact that during a first-period outbreak, the Leafs sent an extra man on the ice—seven players to Montreal's six.

However, Blake and Clancy both agreed that Saturday's game was much better than Thursday's opener in which both teams played tight hockey.

"I thought it was a helluva game," Blake said. "They were skating all night and if it weren't for the goaltending there would have been a lot more goals."

"It was a helluva game," Clancy said. "The guys played their guts out, but the Canadiens got the breaks and we didn't. The whole team played well, and I thought Sawchuk (netminder Terry Sawchuk) was exceptional. After all, the guy made 28 saves."

NOT DISCOURAGED

Imlach, who made it to the Forum for the third period, agreed with Clancy that a lot of work has to be done on the Leafs but both said they will be back in Montreal before the series ends.

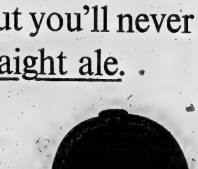
"We will take at least one game in Toronto, if not both, but we'll be back. I promise you," Clancy said.

Henri Richard suffered a strained knee injury in the third period and general-manager Sam Pollock of the Canadiens said after the game that he didn't expect the injury to keep Richard out of the lineup Tuesday night.

However, it has since been reported that Richard is a doubtful starter for the game

City Midgets Lose To Bowmanville

TRENTON (Staff) — Bowmanville topped Belleville, 8-6, as the fifth annual Lions Midget All-Star Tournament opened at the Community Gardens here this morning. It was the first of 42 games scheduled for the five-day event as 28 teams participate, with each guaranteed at least two games.



Bowmanville will continue in A Group play and will make its next start at 8:30 today, meeting the winner of this morning's Bradford-Whitby contest. Belleville moves to B Group action and is scheduled to play the Bradford-Whitby loser at 3:45 this afternoon.

Both teams broke out with a rash of goals in the third period of the Bowmanville-Belleville match this morning. Bowmanville led 4-1 after two periods of play but Belleville came on to hold a 5-4 edge in scoring in the final 20 minutes and make it close.

Ron Webb was the top marksman for the winners with three goals. John Taylor checked in with a pair while Greg Gorden, Larry Devitt and Bob Howes each scored once.

Belleville was led by Wayne Storms and Calvin Wilson who fired a pair of goals each. Mike Healey and Grant Hopkins had the others.

Group finals and the grand championship game are scheduled for Friday.

Star of French Films Stunt Man in Westerns

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens when the New Wave meets the Old West?

Alain Delon, star of French films, may not have conquered the Continent, but he won the admiration of his co-workers on Texas across the River. He put on some of the most impressive athletic feats in films since Douglas Fairbanks sang up his beanie.

During the Universal western, the handsome Frenchman:

Leaped on to a rock and then to his horse; jumped out of a covered wagon on to a horse; rode a long-horn bull out of a river and on to the bank; performed a clashing sword fight, with a black panther as bait from his face; faced a charging team of Texas longhorns; managed a number of rousing coonis, falls and leaps.

All this left the film company gossip-eyed, and Delon amazed.

"Some of the set workers wanted to know if we had horses in France," the actor reported.

Delon, who did his basic riding training in Paris's Bois de Boulogne as well as New York's Central Park, admitted that he never expected his horsemanship to pay off in a Hollywood western.

"I had been a fan of westerns since I was a small boy in France," he said. "Gary Cooper was my favorite.

"In those days I had no thought of being an actor. Even after I became an actor, I never dreamed I would be cast in a western because I am French."

A link-thing like that didn't stop Hollywood, which is always eyeing the international market. Delon is the latest international star of Delon's calibre would assist the chances of Texas across the line in the European market. Also in the cast: Dean Martin, Rosemary Forsythe, Joey Bishop, Tina Marquand.

Delon would like to consolidate his position in American films. His first one was Once a Thief with Ann-Margret. Then came Yellow Rolls Royce.

He still meets resistance from Hollywood film makers because of his accent. That puzzles him.

"I can't understand it," he mused. "Charles Boyer has as much more pronounced accent than I have. Yet producers don't hesitate to cast him as an American. Why should I be discriminated against?"

Adults Not Children Need Relaxation on Holidays

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—American television programmers, for some reason, feel they must provide special entertainment for children on holiday nights.

Most children are exhausted on holiday nights and it is the adults who need a bit of relaxing entertainment.

Ed Sullivan devoted a great chunk of his program to some circus acts—elephants, clowns and trained dogs. Then came that annual CBS demonstration from the Pacific Coast Marineland of its trained dolphins, walruses and seals.

The Maricleand musical actors are fun to watch. It is the time-honored added by human guest stars that tires adult viewers.

Even Beverly Hillbillies characters can be fairly amusing in their own show, where the scripts are generally shrewdly constructed. But they seem grotesque and self- conscious compelled with dolphins for laughs. They weren't funny at all.

A current TV mystery is why Brandet, a good, classic western with Chuck Connors, is being dropped by NBC at the end of this season.

In the most recent Nielsen ratings, the Sunday night show was among the top 30 programs and has been in the top 10. It has caught on so well since it started in the middle of the season two years ago that it is often pointed to as an example of a replacement that became a hit.

Sunday night's episode was not up to par. But that was the fault of the author who took some ridiculous liberties with history.

In the story Horace Greeley, the New York publisher and candidate for the U.S. presidency, arrived in a dusty cow town and narrowly escaped assassination. It was good old Chuck with his gun and fists who broke up a horrible plot.

END OF A TROUPER

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For April 13 —

ARIES (Mar. 20 — May 20): Be aware of trends, cycles, special hints. Career aspects in spotlight. You tend to feel optimistic . . . but heed caution signs.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): If you rush ahead without proper safeguards . . . be ready for trouble. Take time to be correct. Check legal angles . . . be sure of associates. Be safe, not sorry.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Key is willingness to make adjustments. Applies to both financial and personal situations. Loved one or partner requires special consideration. Don't be satisfied with halfway measures.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Steer clear of all-out controversy. Cycle not as high as in past. Caution is better part of valor now. Best to judge, size up, evaluate . . . then let logic rule — not impulse.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Many tend to impose upon you. Insist upon right to privacy. Finish basic chores. Keep resolutions concerning health, work. Get sufficient rest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Fine for applying yourself to creative endeavors. Don't be satisfied with routine methods. Be inventive, even daring. Accept responsibility. Spiritual renewal is indicated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Now you can finish complete circle of progress to enclose real interests. This is day when truth is faced. Expect certain amount of criticism. Not adhere to principles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Ideas may appear plentiful . . . but you must be discriminating. If you take time to choose the best, your primary goal is advanced. Trust hunch. Follow through — prove your point.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Act on knowledge to learn facts. Concerning special project, romance. If you permit key moment to pass . . . it may not return. Twist events in your favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Cycle remains high, but you must be aware of commitments. Means family, basic tasks need special attention. Check details . . . read between the lines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Carelessness could interfere with routine task. Be sure you are ready to combat fatigue. Refuse to take part in needless journey to "nowhere." Be efficient.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You go in circles now unless plans are fully outlined. Check double - check. Applies especially where party, social affair is concerned. Keep promises!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are capable of leading, but require added confidence. You have special aptitude for research.

GENERAL TENDENCIES — Cycle high for Capricorn, Aquarius, Pisces. Special word to Leo: Strive to improve relations with neighbors, relatives, co-workers. Emphasis upon desire for harmony.

Order Divers To Give Up Treasure Trove

HALIFAX (CP)—A second injunction was granted in the Nova Scotia Supreme Court Saturday to Robert D. MacDonald in connection with a December, 1813 century French coins found in a wreck off Cape Breton last September.

The injunction orders anyone who has possession of treasure from the wreck to give it up for inspection by the sheriff of Cape Breton County.

The injunction, granted by Mr. Justice L. D. Currie, also orders the sheriff to make an accurate record of any objects and make arrangements for their safekeeping. The record or any information obtained is to be reported to the court.

An injunction filed Thursday by Mr. MacDonald, 42, of Glace Bay, on behalf of himself and four other Cape Breton residents, prohibits sale or disposition of the treasure until a court hearing is held in Halifax, April 22.

Alex Storm, 28-year-old surveyor and scuba diver, revealed last week that he and two companions had found the treasure carried by the French pay ship Le Chameau, which sank 15 miles off Louisbourg in 1725.

Mr. MacDonald's group claims prior rights to the gold and silver coins and other artifacts.

Romania Stoutly Maintains It Is Not Satellite Nation

Romania maintains stoutly it is an independent country and not a satellite of the Soviet Union. This the sharp-Canadian Press reporter John Best, who toured several Eastern European countries, outlines various ways in which Romania asserts its independence.

By JOHN BEST

BUCHAREST (CP)—A Romanian government official said, with great deliberation:

"We are independent . . . Know that in the West we are still called a satellite. But I repeat—we are completely independent."

That is the type of categorical response, tinged with agitation, that you get here now to any question implying doubt about Romania's sovereignty.

Once closely controlled by Moscow, this Balkan country has been, itself, asserting a bolder apron strings and building bridges to the West for a number of years.

Having successfully withstood pressure to integrate its economy with that of other member-countries of the Moscow - dominated Council for Mutual Economic Assistance (Comecon), Romania is embarked on a "socialism in one country" course with a "nationalist" maturity.

While still a member of Comecon, it seeks ever wider contacts of all kinds with the West. Most of the machinery Romania imports to push its industrial expansion comes from Western Europe. Most of the technicians supervising it are the same purpose come from the West.

The new spirit of independence — flavored with a hint of chauvinism — permeates every area of life. Romanians overflows into every segment of Romanian life.

PARTY TAKES CREDIT

It often shows itself in small ways.

For instance it seems to be semi-official policy to play down any part paid by the Soviet army in the liberation of Romania from Fascist rule in the final stages of the Second World War.

Instead, virtually the entire credit is given to the Romanian Communist party for swinging this country from the German camp to the Allied side, even though it then numbered only about 1,000 members.

The fact that Russian troops were poised on the border at the time, and later swept all through part of Romania on the heels of retreating Germans, is rarely mentioned in half-hearted recognition.

Another way in which the phenomenon reveals itself is the delight with which Romanians welcome foreign visits by Western journalists.

Last year, the foreign ministry press department says, about 1,000 visits were paid by foreign correspondents, 85 per cent of them from Western countries.

In some cases Western correspondents are invited to those who hadn't time to obtain visas before setting out, are granted visas on the spot in Bucharest airport.

Romanian leaders still have bitter memories of the kind of interference in Romanian affairs practised by the Russians under Stalin.

An unusually forceful statement issued by the Romanian Workers (Communist) party in April, 1964, drew attention to the "hard trials" suffered by the party in late Stalinist times, and warned of the danger of a revival of methods and practices like them.

Since last September, when it achieved perhaps its greatest victory in a protracted struggle for recognized autonomy—explicit and unequivocal Russian acceptance of the full sovereign equality of socialist states—Romania's relations with the Soviet Union have settled down.

"Russia was perturbed with us for a while, but now it seems to have become reconciled," a leading editor told me.

"Some people in the West say we are not members in good standing of Comecon," said another editor. "This is not true. We are members, but we also want to be independent. This is what some people fail to understand.

"We are the ones to say how our economy is to be developed."

The effective result of Romania's policy is that instead of integration, its economic relations with other socialist countries are based on less binding concepts such as "collaboration" and "co - operation."

The ultimate result of Romania's intransigence, after the dust has settled, is not yet possible to gauge. But observers believe that at the very least it has thwarted Moscow's plan to set up an East European answer to the European Common Market complete with supra-national planning authority.

Diplomatic observers credit the Romanians with showing a considerable amount of dexterity in wresting their autonomy under cover of the Soviet-Chinese dispute, in which the Romanian government always has taken an ostentatiously neutral position.

That the Romanians don't particularly want the dispute to end, for all their well-rehearsed and frequent calls for Communist unity, has long been taken as axiomatic. It would leave Moscow a freer hand in dealing with its erstwhile east European satellites — particularly independent-minded ones like Romania.

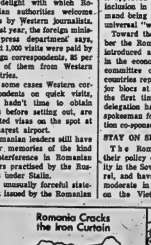
As matters stand, Moscow is forced to adopt a reasonable attitude towards the East Europeans for fear of alienating them and driving them into the Chinese fold.

Last November Romania broke with the Communist bloc at the United Nations by supporting a resolution calling for suspension of all nuclear weapons tests. It took a further independent stand when it sponsored West Germany's inclusion in a UN high command being set up to wage a conventional war on space.

Toward the end of November the Romanian delegation introduced a draft resolution in the economic and finance committee on behalf of 18 countries representing all sectors of the UN. It was the first time a Communist delegation had ever acted as spokesman for a draft resolution co-sponsored by the West.

STAY ON SIDELINES

The Romanians continue their policy of strict neutrality in the Soviet-Chinese quarrel, and have recently moderate in pronouncements on the Viet Nam conflict, while making clear that they disagree with American policy.



In the commercial sphere, the Romanians are studying whether to apply for membership in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—a step that would create strong institutional ties with the Western market structure.

One factor the Romanians have always to keep in mind in developing their independence policy is that their country has an 800-mile border with the Soviet Union on the north and east.

Remembering what happened in 1956 in Hungary—which also has a border with the U.S.S.R.—they have cleverly avoided provoking the power with the 200 div.

ROMANIA LOOKS WEST — Busy Romanians hurry to work in Bucharest which is successfully resisting Soviet pressure to integrate the country's economy with the rest of Eastern Europe. Instead Romania is working on its own industrial expansion and encouraging relations with the west. (CP Photo)

ROMANIA RESISTS SATELLITE STATUS — An 800-mile border with the Soviet Union is a large factor in Romania's foreign policy. But the country maintains it is not a satellite and has resisted economic integration with the Soviet Union and its Balkan neighbors. Already rich agriculturally Romania has embarked on a drive for industrial expansion.

Mystery Builds On Mystery In Spencer's Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mystery built on mystery today in the death of George Victor Spencer, central figure in a spy controversy that has rocked Parliament.

The frail, sixtyish disunissed mail clerk was found dead sitting at a kitchen table in his home last Saturday night about 11 p.m., just four days before a government-ordered judicial inquiry into his case was to open here. A half-finished beer was on the table.

Medical and police investigators said he had been dead at least four days, possibly six. An autopsy showed he had consumed a considerable amount of alcohol. Coroner Glen McDonald said alcohol may have contributed to his death but was not directly responsible.

Now three employees of an East Hastings Street beer parlor say they saw Spencer alive and sober about 9:30 p.m. the previous Wednesday night.

Bar Manager Jim Mortimer, who has known Spencer about three years, claims he and the little man a beer. Spencer told him he was feeling fine and was looking forward to clearing his name at the inquiry ordered by Prime Minister Pearson into his dismissal without explanation on suspected spy ring connections.

TOOK TWO BOTTLES

Mortimer said Spencer finished his beer, ordered two more bottles and a package of cigarettes to take out and left.

Two waiters, Frank Westawe and Pil DePalma confirmed Mortimer's story as to the date and time. They said Spencer had been a customer there for years.

Spencer's friends never described him as a heavy drinker. Yet an autopsy showed an alcohol content of 24 parts per 1,000 in his blood.

Vancouver Coroner Glen McDonald said consumption of 12 ounces of liquor, 24 bottles of beer or 33.8 ounces of wine would give this blood alcohol reading in a person of Spencer's slight stature. He said it would not in itself be fatal. A blood alcohol content of 15 parts per 1,000 is the level for impairment charges in most provinces.

There were also reports of a missing briefcase, of a violin-playing friend and apparent bodyguard, identified as Bill

Bombers Plaster N Viet Nam

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force B-52s struck North Viet Nam for the first time today, dropping hundreds of tons of explosives on a strategic mountain pass. A spokesman said it was one of the largest B-52 raids of the war.

While the United States escalated the air war against the north, a Viet Cong battalion mauled an American rifle company in the jungles of mainland east of Saigon. An army spokesman reported heavy casualties, indicating perhaps one-third or more of the Americans were killed or wounded. A rifle company at full strength has 178 men.

The 1st Infantry Division men were attacked from all sides while on Operation Abilene in thick jungle where the Viet Cong have held out since the days of French rule.

The battle Monday night lasted five hours.

The eight-engined Stratofortress went south after more than 200 raids on Viet Cong targets below the 17th parallel. They hammered at Mu Gia Pass, a tunnel for men and arms to the south.

A U.S. spokesman did not give an assessment of damage or the number of planes involved.

Other air force and navy planes flew a total of 36 missions against the north Monday, hitting storage areas, railway facilities, bridges and shipping.

FEEDS INTO TRAIL

Mu Gia Pass feeds directly into the network of jungle roads in western Laos known as the Ho Chi Minh trail, the infiltration channel into South Viet Nam.

EARTH DIKE — An earth dike has been bulldozed into place on Assiniboine Ave., just a few blocks from Winnipeg's downtown area, as a barrier against flood waters. The area is about two blocks away from the junction of the Red and Assiniboine Rivers. (CP Wirephoto)

Weather Saps River's Power Easing Winnipeg Flood Fears

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ideal weather has sapped the power of the Red River but a flood fighter said Monday night "round-the-clock flood fighting will continue for many days yet before the battle is won."

"We enjoyed a bit of guarded optimism Monday," said coordinator Bob Wallace in Morris, referring to a downward revision in flood-peak forecasts.

But sorely-tried dikes protecting southern Manitoba communities still face a test of endurance.

The Red may have reached its flood crest in the border town of Emerson Monday night.

"It appears to be the peak," said co-ordinator Jim Muirhead. "It sure is acting like a crest."

The river was six feet above bank level at 10 p.m.—unchanged for six hours — and about two feet below the top of the earth and sandbag dike protecting the town.

"We'll know if it drops off in the morning," Muirhead said, reporting that the dike was holding up "very well."

There was restrained confidence elsewhere in the waterlogged Red River Valley after the downward revision, which followed encouraging reports from the U.S. weather bureau that wet weather headed for the valley had veered away and no other precipitation was in sight.

In the village of St. Jean Baptiste, 20 miles downstream from Emerson, crews are working to reinforce a dike which separates the community from a large lake built up along the Plum River.

Co-ordinator George Bonneboy said the dikes are holding up "pretty well" despite the large body of water behind them. The biggest problem is roads to the dike. Seepage has caused deep potholes and only small trucks can get through. "I am quite confident we can hold it if we get help," Mr. Bonneboy said. About 200 civilian volunteers, mostly teen-agers, moved into St. Jean Monday to aid 225 armed forces personnel.

After Emerson, the crest is expected to hit the town of Morris Wednesday—it also fell above bank level and reach Winnipeg next Saturday.

Morris is the halfway point between Emerson and Winnipeg on the Red's northward course to Lake Winnipeg.

The new Winnipeg forecast is for a high-water mark of 28.5-27.5 feet above winter average ice level compared with the 30.3 feet reached in 1950 when one-sixth of the city suffered various stages of flooding.

Heavy Casualties Suffered By U.S. Force Near Saigon

BING GIA, South Viet Nam (AP)—"It was horrible," said Pfc. Ronald Haley, as he stood in the tiny clearing blasted from the jungle so that the dead and wounded could be evacuated.

"I've never heard such screaming in my life," said Haley. "Many of the wounded were yelling for their mothers. Some of the kids were calling for God. For some reason, I remember one guy yelling for Gloria."

Haley, of Shiloh, Calif., had a week's stubble on his chin and was dirty. His unit had been in the jungles 30 miles east of Saigon for two weeks searching for the Viet Cong. The infantry found them Monday afternoon and in the bitter fight the American took heavy casualties, perhaps one-third or more of a company of 178 men killed or wounded.

Sprawled around Haley were the dead and wounded. Many of the dead wore gas masks, donned after a Viet Cong bullet ripped into a gas grenade on a U.S. soldier's belt. The pungent gas exploded across the American lines.

Letters stuck out of the pockets of some of the dead. Personal effects and equipment were strewn about. Because of the density of the jungle, helicopters were unable to take out the casualties until openings were blasted in forest.

DESCRIBES BATTLE

The company commander, Capt. William Nolen of Florence, S.C., described how the battle involving his troops developed. He was wounded twice.

The company was moving through the deep jungles northeast of Saigon Monday afternoon when it ran into a Viet Cong ambush.

"After a while," Nolen said, "heavy fire started coming in. We moved into a perimeter. In the first part of the fight that lasted about 45 minutes to an hour, we took quite a few casualties.

"The Viet Cong withdrew and we called in artillery fire. An air force reach helicopter came over and lowered a ladder. They started about a dozen of our wounded.

"But suddenly we started receiving fire from all round. There were mortars coming in.

Another Tanker Merely Alters Unloading Port

(From AP-Reuters)

BEIRA, Mozambique (CP) — Workers on Beira's oil wharf were busy behind a tight screen of security today amid indications efforts were being made to link the tanker Ionna V to the pipeline to Rhodesia.

Reliable sources said port officials were making preparations to install a reduction valve between the six-inch unloading pipe of the tanker and the 10-inch pipeline.

The Ioanna V, docked here Monday with 58,000 tons of crude oil after riding at anchor in the harbor for a week, has played a key role in the latest crisis over Britain's white-ruled breakaway colony of Rhodesia against which the United Nations has declared an oil embargo.

Another tanker, the Manuela, thwarted by the Royal Navy in an apparent effort to break the UN embargo, arrived in Dar-

Buddhists Boycott Parley

SAIGON (CP) — Anti-government and anti-American demonstrators marched in two major northern cities again today as South Viet Nam's military government pledged to hold elections as soon as a constitution is drafted and the election machinery set up.

But the Buddhist opposition cold-shouldered the preparatory congress at which the offer was made.

In the Viet Nam war itself, heavy U.S. bombers today carried out their first air raids on targets in North Viet Nam after making more than 200 raids in South Viet Nam.

Reconvening an assemblage of representatives the junta had convened from throughout the country, Chief of State Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, said the ruling generals want to turn over power to civilians in the shortest time possible."

Informed South Vietnamese sources said this could be within a month or two, depending on how well it takes to write a constitution and create the election machinery.

DON'T WANT POWER

"The military does not want to cling to power," Thieu said, suggesting as a possible formula for a national assembly that half the members could be elected, the others appointed from the provinces.

The Buddhist leadership underscored its boycott of the congress by demanding that the U.S. government at once end its support for the "militarist clique" led by Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

A communique issued by the unified Buddhist church in the name of Buddha said the army's northernmost 1st Corps area charged that the junta intends to wage "a civil war with

British Expect South Africa To Trim Aid

LONDON (AP)— British authorities expect South Africa to begin discreetly trimming oil and other aids for neighboring Rhodesia to avoid swift United Nations reprisals.

The government view was made known today as the Greek-owned tanker Manuela arrived in Durban, South Africa, with a cargo of 15,000 tons of oil.

The British are sure the Manuela's oil was originally destined for Prime Minister Ian Smith's breakaway Rhodesian regime. The tanker was barred by British warships and aircraft of Portuguese Mozambique. Now it will need the sanction of Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd's South African government to transport Manuela's oil by road or rail to Rhodesia.

British foreign office sources say privately Verwoerd will take care not to flout the authority of the United Nations Security Council, which reinforced its oil embargo on Rhodesia by giving the British authority to use force to blockade Beira.

Truckers Reject Proposal

TORONTO (CP) — Members of Teamster locals in London, Ont., and Windsor, Ont., will vote today on a proposed contract to end a three-month Ontario truckers strike despite reports that three other locals involved have already turned down the settlement.

Ray Taggart, president of Hamilton Local 879 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.), said Monday night that early returns from votes in Toronto, Hamilton and Kingston indicate the proposal will "undoubtedly be rejected."

Mr. Taggart, also chairman of the union's joint bargaining committee, said in a telephone interview the final outcome of balloting in the five locals, representing about 8,300 truckers, will be made known this afternoon. About 4,000 members have already voted, he added.

The joint union officials would decide after the final count is tabulated whether to resume negotiations immediately with the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing 53 Ontario trucking firms.

The three-year contract, recommended in the membership before the voting began by the negotiating committee, offered a progressive reduction of the work week to 40 hours from 48 and a five-stage 70-cent hourly wage increase over the present $2 to city drivers. Highway drivers would receive mileage rates increased to 8.1 cents per mile from seven cents.

The offer, drawn up last week after eight days of negotiations

Story of Phantom Tankers Tells Of Fat Bank Books, Businessmen

LONDON (CP)—To the fascinated, this story may recall phantom ships seen by superstitious sailors, or the mysterious adventure Marie Celeste, which sails forever in ocean mists.

But it is a story of fat bank books, big, smelly oil tankers, Greek and South African businessmen, a shadowy figure in a horribly regime, and of how the United Nations and Prime Minister Wilson's oil ban are getting to Britain's upstart colony.

Ever since Ian Smith seized independence for Rhodesia Nov. 11, there have been tales of phantom tankers in the Mozambique Channel.

These yarns arose from puzzlement over how Rhodesia, an inland country without oil resources of its own, hoped to meet its fuel needs while defying oil sanctions by British and the United Nations.

The two tankers now so much in the news—the Ioanna V and Manuela — are obviously far from phantoms. Both London newspapers have indicated a couple of mystery about the ships, which one had a stated destination of Rotterdam, only one of the most substantial and non-controversial of ports.

Yet when Ioanna V—with new owners and new flag—arrived at Beira a week ago, a different story emerged.

The Ioanna V skipper, astonished that anyone should mention Beira's oil-pipeline connection with Rhodesia, said he had merely stopped for repairs and water and was en route to Djibouti, in French Somaliland.

The ship had passed Djibouti without stopping after picking up 58,000 tons of crude oil from the Persian Gulf late in February.

It sailed on through the Suez Canal and circumnavigated Africa. In the meantime, say London reports, it had been sold for £400,000 ($1,200,000), and its registry was changed from Greek to Panamanian. It also changed skippers at Dakar, Senegal, on Africa's west coast.

The Ioanna V seems to have gone through more navigational convolutions than her sister ship, the Manuela, which was eventually boarded by the Royal Navy Saturday when it was obviously headed for Beira.

This is the story of how three private companies and an unrecognized rebel regime held the United Nations, the Royal Navy and the British prime minister up to ridicule, is the way The Observer, a weekly paper, begins its article on the subject.

The Sunday Times says that when Ioanna sailed into Beira last Tuesday, she was carrying the first of 27 tanker cargoes of crude oil destined for the pipeline to Umtali, just across the Rhodesian border from Mozambique.

If Ioanna and her sister ship had been able to continue their scheduled voyages unhindered, Rhodesia would have had enough oil to supply its entire economy for a year, says the newspaper.

Carl Roluf Has on Display Currency of 150 Nations

Coin collecting is a popular hobby for a great many people.

And one of them is Carl Roluf, Bellecourt Front Street businessman, who has the coin collecting bug — but with a difference.

He doesn't specialize in rare old coins, but has a yen for current currency, both coins and bills, from the many different countries he has visited.

This week Mr. Roluf is sharing the pleasure of his money collecting hobby and is having his window dressed with paper currency and coins from close to 150 different countries around the world.

Included are yen from Japan, pesos from Cuba and Mexico, rubles from Russia, crusadoes from Brazil, guilders from Holland, pound and shilling notes from England, francs from France, as well as currency from many other European and African countries.

Mr. Roluf estimates that he has picked up about 70 per cent of his foreign currency from countries which he has visited.

Currency oddities of more local interest include the Canadian silk dollar (or any paper money out of print since 1923), a former large size Canadian five dollar bill and an American two dollar bill.

Possibly the most prized of Mr. Roluf's collection of paper currency is the new Russian ruble note worth about $1.11 in American money.

The reason the note is prized is that it is illegal to take paper money out of Russia.

Mr. Roluf brought his ruble note out in his briefcase.

U.S. backing" to hang onto power.

The government, however, completed the withdrawal of 1,300 South Vietnamese marines it had sent to Da Nang last week in U.S. transports to take over the northern city from dissident troops.

Despite the departure of the marines, 5,000 persons, including 200 soldiers and more than 100 armed students, marched in a new anti-government demonstration in Da Nang.

CARRIED U.S. ARMS

The students carried U.S. carbines, grenades and pistols issued to them by South Vietnamese officers. Other demonstrators included women, children and wounded soldiers in blue hospital pyjamas.

In the university city of Hue, about 5,000 persons marched to back demands for the formation of a national assembly within two months. They also criticized the U.S. for arming and providing aircraft for government marines sent to "liberate" Da Nang eight days ago.

All store clerks and public transportation workers were on strike in Hue today.

About 1,000 persons marched in the coastal city of Quang Ngai, a provincial capital south of Da Nang, in a demonstration sponsored by the Vietnamese Nationalist Party, an old conservative group. They carried banners and boards and were praising the U.S. war effort but calling on the government to "implement the revolution."

Efforts to oust the military regime have been spearheaded by the Buddhists, whose leaders warned Sunday of a bloody civil war was in the offing unless the generals bowed out.

Pleads Guilty In Damage Case

Bobby Ernest Clapp, 21, Bellevile, was remanded one week for sentencing on charges of wilfull damage and causing a disturbance, just three weeks after being released from jail. He pleaded guilty.

Police testified that on April 6 at 7.19 p.m. they were called to Mark's Fish House, on Front St. Police said the glass on the front door of the restaurant was broken when they arrived and when Clapp was asked a question, he bolted towards the door and tweaked at one of the officers. He was stopped by the police and then he put his head down and charged another bolt for the door and shouted, "I didn't do it."

Police said he then lunged toward the showcase and broke it. Damage to the door and the showcase was $50.

Clapp, who had just been released from jail March 17, has a lengthy record. Sentence will be passed next week following a pre-sentence report.

Russia May Launch 15-Ton Space Cabin

BUDAPEST (AP) — Russia may plan to launch a 15-ton space cabin with a crew of five earth with four to six cosmonauts on board, the Moscow correspondent of the Budapest newspaper Esti Hirlip was told by "unofficial circles" in the Russian capital.

The report was carried by the Budapest paper today.

The circles told him that "an interesting space experiment" is being prepared, but that it would be late for the Venus 3 launching would be carried out.

The paper added the experiment may be the 15-ton space cabin.

The circles also told the Hungarian correspondent that the main stages of the Soviet Union's space program for the next few years would include a space flight around the moon and back to earth, and the landing of a bear, sheep with animals on board—on the moon, "perhaps in 1968."

Repatriation Of Chinese Is Demanded

TOKYO (AP) — China demanded today that Indonesia arrange for the evacuation of thousands of Chinese "persecuted and made homeless by rightwing reactionary forces."

The foreign ministry in Peking handed Indonesian Ambassador Djuwita a note which said Indonesia was bound by treaty to supply ships to remove the Chinese.

The note also called on Indonesia to:

1. "Allow them to bring back their own effects and funds.

2. "Ensure their safety on the way to the ports; provide them with food and accommodation while they are at the ports; facilitate their departure from Indonesia for China.

3. "Protect the Chinese officials to be appointed by the Chinese embassy and consulates in Indonesia for assisting in the return of the Chinese nationals who desire to come back to China of their own will; provide the said Chinese officials with the necessary facilities."

The note, made public by the New China news agency, said that since last October "Indonesian rightwing reactionary forces have launched massive persecutions against the Chinese nationals in an organized and planned way. In all parts of Indonesia they have organized large numbers of hooligans for the unbridled persecution of inboost Chinese nationals."

It said houses and shops of thousands had been ransacked and burned, associations and schools smashed or seized and many persons beaten.

Many have been murdered in cold blood, or even beheaded, disemboweled, dismembered and burnt alive," the note charged.

Anti-Chinese feeling has been strong in Indonesia since the attempted coup last October. Peking was accused of secretly sending arms to the rebels.

Fined $100 For Assault On Officer

Bruce Ekhos Symons, 23, 24 Harriett St., was found guilty in city court today on charges of assaulting a police officer. He was fined $100 and costs by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Constable George Cole testified he and another constable spotted Symons' car February 16 at 1.45 p.m. parked on a 45-degree angle to the curb on Pinnacle St., directly across from the Salvation Army Citadel.

He said the car was running, the back wheels were spinning and the windshield wipers were running. Const. Cole said the windshield was heavily frosted. He said he approached the car along with the other constable and told Symons, the driver and only occupant, he was under arrest for careless driving. Const. Cole said Symons grew belligerent, and refused to get out of the car when asked to do so.

Police testified that Symons threw many blows but only the scuffle before he was handcuffed and placed in the cruiser.

In finding the accused guilty, Magistrate Wills said, "I'm not prepared to find any special allowance from the accused caused by his intoxication, but there is no doubt several blows were thrown.

"I think these things are serious and an example must be made."

Labor Council Will Soon Have A New Home

The Belleville and District Labor Council will soon have a new home.

Delegates at last night's regular monthly meeting of the Council voted unanimously to accept an offer for office space and a meeting area from the Belleville Social Services Planning Council.

The office space is situated in the Social Services Building, 224 John St. After the June meeting of the Council, that address will become known as Belleville's labor movement.

"A permanent home is the big requirement we need," president George Danaird said. "We've long needed a place to call our own. A place to keep our files.

"This will give us a chance to become situated permanently in the city. People won't be running all over trying to find out how to contact us. Up till now, people have had no idea where to get in touch with us."

A spokesman for a Labor Council committee formed to investigate the possibilities of the shift said, "it's an old house. If we get it, we don't expect too much. However, we would have a private office and a mailing address.

"One problem is, that building is a welfare agency building and I don't think the Labor Council as a welfare agency. "But I do believe it would be a foot in the door for the Council."

In other business at the meeting, Council voted to send donations of $25 each to the Canadian Hearing Aid Association and the Peterborough Injunction Fund — a fund in support of the right to be charged with breaking an injunction against mass picketing in Peterborough.

"As the fighting became more intense, we had to draw in closer and closer to each other."

An estimated battalion of the enemy from a main force regiment was involved. At times the Americans fought the enemy hand to hand.

Maj.-Gen. William E. De Puy, commander of the 1st Division, said: "I heard of several cases where Americans were actually wrestling with the Viet Cong.

"And apparently Viet Cong women were following up behind the enemy troops, killing American wounded and dragging off their own dead and wounded."

The survivors seemed almost oblivious to the political turmoil in Saigon and elsewhere.

"Demonstration: What demonstration?" asked Spec. 4 Lisowsal of Cleveland, Ohio. "Hell, I'm fighting a war."

Fruit Growers Deliver Promised Apples to Hull

At Toronto one night before a Black Hawk-Maple Leaf game last fall a little boy handed Bobby Hull a big red apple for luck. The Hawk's left wing star gave the apple to his mother who had gone up to Maple Leaf Gardens to see her son play.

That night Bobby scored three goals. His mother, in the crowd watching, kissed the apple after each goal. And she repeated this ritual until Bobby had his record 50th goal and broke the NHL individual scoring record.

When Bobby bettered the record 50 set by Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Boom Boom Geoffrion and himself, the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association presented him with a box of top grade McIntosh apples. And the fruit growers assured him he would receive a box for each goal he added to his record.

Hull went on to tally goals 52, 53 and 54 before the regular season ended.

Bobby's outstanding effort in exceeding the scoring record was recognized at a ceremony at his mother's home in Point Anne last weekend. Mrs. Robt. Hull, Sr., received the three bushels of McIntosh apples coming to her son from the Ontario Fruit Growers Marketing Board. The fruit was grown in Prince Edward County, one of the better apple growing districts in the province. The presentation was made by County Warden Harold Bonisteel, a man of the apple section of the Association's district representative Ted Rutter of Hallowell township, Prince Edward County.

Masuela said today the tanker would discharge its 15,000-ton oil cargo in storage tanks in Durban.

The British diverted the Masuela after a UN Security Council resolution authorized British warships through force if necessary carrying oil for the white-minority regime of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Smith told a reporter in Salisbury the council action "seems a bit of a joke. It seems very surprising to me that a so-called peace making body can make such a decision."

The South African government, which sympathizes with Smiths' aims and racial policies, has been allowing private companies to ship sufficient oil overland to supply Rhodesia's essential needs.

The agent for the Masuela, Nicholai Vardinoyannis, said his brother George, skipper of the Ioanna V, had been ordered to Durban to take charge of the Masuela.

The agent said the unloading of the Masuela's oil at Durban was not against the Security Council resolution last Saturday which dealt only with oil shipments through Beira.

SECURITY STUFF

At the Portuguese-held port of Beira, only officials and workers from the wharf were allowed to pass Portuguese police guarding the dock where the Ioanna V was tied up and 30 feet from the intakes of the 189-mile pipeline leading from Beira to Rhodesia's refinery at Umtali.

Nicholas Vardinoyannis, main shareholder of the Vardinoyannis Varnima companies which own the Ioanna V and Masuela, claimed the Ioanna V had been instructed not to discharge its cargo at Beira.

But two Greek members of the tanker's crew said the oil was intended for Rhodesia despite the insistence of the captain that it was to go to French Somaliland.

As for the Masuela, diplomats at the United Nations in New York were said to fear the Masuela's oil might yet reach Rhodesia overland.

South African Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller in an interview today stressed his government's opposition to boycotts and embargoes and Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd has said repeatedly South Africa will take no part in such actions, particularly those employed by Britain in an effort to topple Smith's regime.

Changed Structure in School Grants Gives Town $90,000 More Than Estimated This Year

TRENTON — Because the members of the Trenton Board of Education were not sure that year about a changed structure in Ontario government grants to schools, board secretary Miss Eva Baiow, was sent by the Board to Toronto last week to enquire into the grants . . . and came back with the good news that although next June would result in a grant of approximately $90,000.

Douglas Whitney, finance chairman of the Board, said at the regular meeting last night that the Board would have received the grant in the long run, but meanwhile the town would have had to come up with the extra money, which had been contained in earlier budget estimates. The grant would have had a large surplus at the end of the year and Council, which operates on a cash basis, would have had to delay other work in order to supply the requirements of the Board.

Last night Board members said they were "delighted" with the results of Miss Baiow's trip to Toronto, and would send her back another year.

Miss Baker explained that the change in grants had to do with much more than a new method of compiling "equalized assessment," per capita school allocations and the expansion requirements of the community in the educational field.

Last night the Board passed on new salary schedules for the coming year through various categories, with annual increments averaged for and department heads ranging $1,000 over the schedule.

In the six elementary school categories, salaries range from $3,900 to $9,500 with music, art and primary supervisors getting a bit of a jump. It seems very surprising to me that a so-called peace making body can make such a decision."

The Board also approved the appointment of Mrs. W.A.L. McDonald, John Downs and R. H. Smithson, were appointed by the board to negotiate with the Ontario government for a grant available to the town under the Community Centres' Act. The size of the grant available is said to be $5,000, but the board did not stipulate the sum in the appointment motion, hoping the committees might be able to get a higher grant.

The newly-appointed maintenance superintendent, George Ross, was appointed to the board meeting by the chairman, E. M. Parker, Jr. Mr. Ross will direct the maintenance and repair work needed in the Trenton schools and said he would make recommendations to the board's maintenance chairman, Louis Aird.

Mrs. Harry Hutchison was asked to head up a committee which will organize teas and beams of the board marking Canada's Centennial Year. (A Centennial Planning committee has asked for suggestions.) Mrs. Hutchison will confer with the school principals, John Garrett and elementary school inspector E. T. Morris.

Mr. Parker also felt the schools might make a real contribution to the celebrations and recalled that he had been a Roman soldier in an outstanding school parade in Coronation Year, 1937.

Ralph Weaver, who also sits on the planning committee, said the Centennial caravan would be coming to Trenton for one week in 1967, but was unable to give the date. The caravan will be set up in the community garden's area.

The Ontario School Trustees' Council has asked various boards across the province to send in ideas for celebrating Centennial Year, and when Trenton's board committee comes up with some ideas, this will be done.

THREE CATEGORIES

The Ontario council seems to make available ideas from boards which have them to boards which don't. Suggestions were made that projects could fall into three categories — a long-term project such as special scholarships and bursaries — a project which would be completed in 1967, such as the building of a special school — and projects of a temporal nature, such as school pageants, parades and concerts.

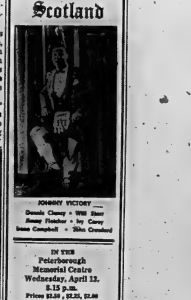
A letter from the "Ship's School Association" pointing out that students' summer cruises would be very available at $580, will be given to high school principal, John Garrett. But the Board thought very few Trenton students would take advantage of the offer, as plans are being altered for a certain number of students at reduced prices were dropped recently when not enough students signed up.

George Greer reported that high school teacher, John Rowe, was bowing out as commanding officer for the Air Cadet squadron and a small a new C.O. would be needed in the fall.

Mr. Greer will be advised by Mr. Garrett as to a replacement, and will make recommendations to the board. Mr. Greer also said the squadron would take a "flip" to Ottawa this week and visit the Air Museum.

AGREE ON POOL

On the subject of the swimming pool, Mr. Greer said the Recreation Committee, on which he represents the board, had agreed to the proposed programmation of the recreational pool, and would participate in the suggested program, "within its budget."



Resignations from the high school read out at last night's meeting were: Donald J. Kelly, Michael L. Cazabon, David Aylesworth, Kenneth Walker, Angela Langlaish and Mr. G. A. Frost.

Elementary school resignations were: Mrs. Margaret Gay, Elaine Landry, Margaret Montgomery, Joyce Smith, Diane Miller and Jacqueline Taylor.

The board members have been asked to attend the annual Careers' Information Night for girls on the evening of Monday, April 19, in the high school auditorium. This evening is sponsored by the Trenton Women and Professional Women's Club and the hours are 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. A careers' night for boys will be held there on April 27.

MATCHES SAVE LIFE

KIRUNA (AP) — Rescuers credited two matches with saving the life of a 30-year-old Swedish army ranger lost in the Lapland mountains for four days in bitter weather. Tommy Lundin was separated from his unit during a training exercise and in an icy brook before finding a fisherman's hut. He started a fire with the matches and kept it going until a helicopter found him.

Rants, who has changed from sight.

Though police — both Vancouver officers assigned the case and the RCMP who had been ordered to keep watch on Spencer — were tight-lipped, it was learned a note was found on Spencer's kitchen table which read:

"Vic: Sorry I missed you. I picked up my violin."

The note was signed "Bill."

MOVED FREQUENTLY

One RCMP spokesman said a report a briefcase belonging to Spencer was missing when his body was found, was being investigated. So was a report by neighbors that he shunned his home for weeks on end, apparently moving from address to address.

Yet when his body was found, the door to the house was unlocked.

Harry Rankin, Spencer's lawyer, said he had telephoned Mr. Justice Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court, appointed to conduct the Spencer inquiry. He was told that a hearing slated for Ottawa Wednesday would proceed primarily with a statement made by Spencer to the RCMP some time ago. Mr. Rankin said he would decide after getting a transcript whether he would need to do any cross-examining at the Ottawa inquiry.

"I am still involved in the case," Mr. Rankin said. "I will be acting on behalf of the estate."

Carbage cans full of empty liquor, beer and wine bottles were found outside Spencer's home. Robert Taylor, operator of a rest home where Spencer stayed for three months, said the six-tall clerk was not a heavy drinker.

"They say it was alcohol that killed him but judging by the three months I knew him I don't believe it," Taylor said.

ROUNDING KILLED HIM

"He was a poor, lost, downtrodden soul. The government and everybody else rounded him until he was beat. That's what killed him."

Coroner Archibald said it is not definite yet just what caused the death of Spencer, who had long suffered a cancerous lung condition which apparently had healed. Autopsy results are not yet complete.

The corner said there are a number of questions yet to be answered and indicated the inquest will be most thorough. He said he would ask for RCMP witnesses who might be able to throw some light on Spencer's personal activities before his death.

Spencer was fired from his job as a civil servant possibly some time after two Russian embassy staff members in Ottawa were deported and it was disclosed two Canadians were involved in the spying activities with which they were charged.

Spencer was later identified as one of the Canadians.

Friday 12th — Raining all day—Recd. a letter open from Thos. Ridout Esquire, Surveyor General dated York 8th April 1816 and handed to me by Mr. John W. Meyers with a copy of a Petition from sundry Inhabitants Free-holders in the last Con. of the Township of Thurlow and directed to report thereon.

Note: The letter from the Surveyor General read, in part, "I am also to inform you that Mr. Meyers and Mr. Thorburn is now here, and has put into my hands a Petition, (copy of whereof is here with enclosed) from Sundry Inhabitants of that Township, respecting the injury that many would sustain, were any alteration to be made in the Middle forty feet, for the road allowance given at that time may have been left. I would therefore request you to report to make any alteration in the breadth of the Lots No. 1, 2, 3 and 4 where they are inclined them to have been settled and improved, and particularly that I advance the Eastern Boundary line of No. 2 upon the Town Plot but to let it remain, as it appears on the Plan and scale thereof made by Mr. James McNabb, and by no means to extend the Front, so that it breaks in upon Lot No. 3 or any Improvements made thereon."

"Your report to me upon these lots together with the Petition above mentioned I shall lay before His Excellency the Lt. Governor, absolute the entry of the parties require that expediency."

Early in March, they had proposed a 43-hour week and an hourly wage increase of 43 cents.

In the latest proposal the industry offered to withdraw damage actions against the union arising from wildcat strikes last fall, drop an estimated $2,000,000 claim against the Hamilton local in return for a labor settlement of $7,500, and rehire eight men dismissed by Inter-City Truck Lines. The men were to be taken back 60 days after the strike ended.

Mr. Taggart, who had said last week he was confident the membership would accept the new contract, attributed the failure to ratify the proposal in three major complaints voiced by members at the meetings held Sunday and Monday.

Members argued that the contract was too long, the monetary settlement too low and the 40-hour work week was too far away, he said.

The strike, which has tied up shipping in some sections of Ontario, started on 12 after members of the Toronto local walked off their jobs.

FISH MAY BE FARMED

MONTREAL (CP)—A demonstration of how to "herd" fish will be given at the 1967 Montreal World's Fair in the section Man and His Oceans. This is part of a hypothetical theory of fish-farming.

The Last Straw

Just when it looked as if South Viet Nam could look forward to a period of stable government, even in the midst of an unstable military situation, pressure is being renewed by the powerful Buddhist element in the country.

For holy men, as the Buddhists supposedly are, they are an surprisingly militant. The monks have accused Air Vice-Marshal Ky, boss of South Viet Nam's military government, of having betrayed them in their campaign to speed the creation of a civilian government, and they have promised an extensive program of street demonstrations throughout the country.

The Buddhist leadership committee, as it is called, also warned of the possibility of civil war. And all this at a time when dissatisfaction with the war in Viet Nam is becoming more widespread in the western world. It could prove to be the last straw, so far as American efforts to encourage self-government and a negotiated settlement of the war are concerned.

United States officials in Saigon are reported to be understandably gloomy about the latest developments. Fighting the communists is one thing, but attempting to grapple with the morass of internal division that has plagued the south for years makes the Americans rue the day it became involved with Viet Nam.

What is going to happen now is anyone's guess. Obviously the communists may be expected to take advantage of continuing civil disorder. To compound American embarrassment come further rumblings from Peking. China has told its people to prepare for war sooner or later with the United States — perhaps within a year or two.

The communist party newspaper The People's Daily says the United States is preparing to impose war on China. This is another way of saying that China may ultimately send troops into Viet Nam, just as they did in Korea.

The paradox is that China is calling the tune. It has got the Americans boxed into an increasingly complicated political and military situation in Viet Nam, from which it is more easy than a war of attrition which neither side can win, while biding its own time until it feels it can throw its massive land armies into action.

And that could be the beginning of the war that mankind fears most.

Emotionally Disturbed

By and large the youngsters one sees going to school these days are a happy looking bunch. They laugh and chat and skip along with a light and carefree step. And they are quick to smile if you let them know you notice them.

By contrast, how few are the smiles one sees on the faces of adults, walking the streets of our cities. Will the smiles of the young people fade in the same way when they reach a certain age?

Indeed it seems unnatural to us as a shock to learn that there are more emotionally disturbed children in the public schools today than ever before. This is the startling revelation of an Ottawa educational psychologist, Dr. Carter B. Storr. He told a meeting in Belleville of the Home and School Association that there is a "remarkably large number of 10, 11 and 12-year-old students who have admitted to having the desire, in some form or other, to commit suicide."

Dr. Storr attributed this to the fact that the children for the most part come from "emotionally disturbed homes."

This is a sorry commentary on our society. There is no doubt that in Canada today there are parents who themselves are disturbed, or at least unhappy, and who fail to give their children the love and sense of security that are indispensable to orderly and mature growth.

The problem seems to be worse than we had imagined, but the remedy lies primarily with the parents. If home conditions are right, if there is at least love and a sense of family solidarity, children tend to thrive. All the psychiatrists in the world cannot make up for the sense of warmth and friendship that stems from a satisfactory family life.

Cheese Quota

The decision of the United States to increase its global import quota on cheddar cheese by more than 600,000 pounds for the duration of the year ending June 30 is good news for this area.

Under the new quotas Canadian producers will be able to send an extra 200,000 pounds of Canadian cheese until June 30, and a further 3,000,000 pounds in the 1966-67 season.

Hitherto Canadian cheese exports to the United States have been limited to 600,000 pounds, a quota which has been in force since 1951. Representations to Ottawa by members of parliament from this area, over a period of years, finally bore fruit with Trade Minister Howard Winters' recent announcement of the increased quotas.

Hastings South member Lee Grills brought the matter to a head with a question in the House, followed by personal meetings with the minister.

A spokesman for Black Diamond Cheese in Belleville has pointed out that a large amount of the cheese exported to the United States will be in packaged form, which will mean a boost for that industry as well.

Strictly Personal

The Image and the Reality

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In one of his books, Arthur Koestler tells about a friend of his who was given a Picasso drawing which she thought was a reproduction. She hung it, framed and glassed, in the living room. As she passed it each day, she looked at the picture in a rather inconspicuous place on her staircase.

A few months later, however, she learned that the drawing was an original — whereupon she quickly removed it to a place of honor over the fireplace mantel in the living room. As a valuable "original," it delighted and thrilled visitors who had not given it a second glance before.

Koestler then asked the question: Had the picture changed? Yes and no — it had not changed artistically or physically, but it had symbolically, its intrinsic merit was no different, but its importance as a status symbol had multiplied a hundredfold.

This is equivalent, of course, to the stories that turn up every decade or so, in which a tramp gets coon into the street and plays the fiddle incognito for a few coins, and is recognized as a great concert violinist. In the dynamics of cultural snobbery (as in social snobbery), it is the appearance and not the reality that really matters.

For most of us live by names, and not by things. Americans, for instance, still believe [illegible] unto Englishman is an aristocrat, although the British know that there is as much difference between one "Lord" and another as there is between a Duke and a dustman.

And most of us laud the ability to tell the real thing in any field outside our own. Many [illegible] ago, on the coast of France, there was held a "Charlie Chaplin" contest during a fiesta, in which the entrants made up like Chaplin and imitated his screen mannerisms. Unknown to the others, Chaplin himself entered the contest — and came off with only third prize!

Speaking of the screen, it is sadly true that many of the most virginal "types" created by Mimdom have been actresses who did not feel sexy at all, but were frigid, depressed and suicidal in their emotional lives. The reality of the personalities had nothing at all to do with the image projected by vast publicity campaigns which they soon grew to hate and despise as distortions of their true selves.

Ninety percent of our judgments are based on appearance; this is why the "image industry" has become so important in manipulating public opinion. Today, for instance, we identify beards with "beatniks"; in our grandfathers' time, the beard was a symbol of virility and respectability, of all the bourgeois grounds at times.

Children are particularly susceptible but others can pick up the slogan. Induction can resemble many things, with signs of anemia, lymph gland involvement or others. Acute infection often simulates a virus attack. Chronic infection, when it affects the lungs, can look so much like tuberculosis as to defy positive identification by X-ray.

The best test — tuberculin for TB and a histoplasmin for the fungus — pin down the correct diagnosis.

Please don't let my references to histoplasmosis, then or now, put too much emphasis on that disease. To be sure, it doubtless is more common than once was thought, but there are a great many other conditions which can resemble "flu" or a virus infection.

When the respiratory ailments keep happening continually, it is time to take a closer look at the patient.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the symptoms of potassium deficiency? I am told that if I take diuretic pills, I will lose potassium from my system. — Mrs. L. M.

Yes, loss of potassium (and sodium) can result from such medication, but physicians are not well aware of the [illegible] symptoms develop (weakness, muscle cramps, constipation, loss of appetite) it is simple to give a potassium supplement to take care of the matter. This can be in tablet form, or, right recently, in the form of a quite tasty drink made by dissolving a potassium-containing water in water.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son is 24 and takes thyroid pills — an extra grain a day because he is overweight. Could the larger dose cause insomnia and nervousness? How often should he be checked? He has an enormous appetite and eats continually. — Mrs. H.

When a person's thyroid is underactive, taking thyroid is not the [illegible] abnormal balance so he can make sound progress in weight — but the thyroid won't do it all. He still has to learn to regulate his appetite.

For the size dose he is taking, he should be checked four or five times a year. Too much thyroid could be a factor in nervousness and insomnia, and his doctor should be told about these symptoms as well as about the extra grain. Taking more thyroid than he needs is not going to melt his fat.

If Flu Is Frequent, Probably It's Not Flu

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: You mentioned a lung condition called histoplasmosis that is often mistaken for flu. Is it only a children's disease? Please give the full symptoms

My sister-in-law has had the flu, one case after another. After a time is bad, she gets up and then comes down with the flu again in spite of vaccinations and pills. She had a blood test but it shows nothing wrong. — Mrs. L. G.

When attack after attack of "flu" occurs, it's time to suspect that it isn't influenza.

Histoplasmosis? Let's not try to guess at something that it might be. That's too much like fishing in the dark. The way to find out what is troubling us is to note all the symptoms, plus to see what possible causes exist. Picking a disease and then hunting for symptoms is too likely to lead us astray.

Blood tests are often indications at times; other times not. In such repeated "flu" attacks recommend a thorough examination, and certainly chest X-rays would be part of it.

So far as histoplasmosis is concerned, "mid symptoms" is a bigger order than you probably think. It is a fungus infection, the fungus being histoplasma capsulatum, which flourishes in such places as dusty plaster

Wants Boost For Belleville Cheese

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Several weeks ago I noticed a letter in your paper from one of your subscribers complaining about the fact that Black Diamond cheese was not receiving enough publicity outside of Ontario. The episode precipitating her complaint was that the above-mentioned delicacy was not available on the island of St. Pierre off the coast of Newfoundland. Your gentle reader does not have to go as far afield as colonial France to find Black Diamond cheese missing from the menu. It can tell you of a situation much closer to home that should be of more concern.

Not long ago my husband and I were having lunch in the Parliamentary Restaurant in Ottawa. When it came time to order dessert, we ordered, as is our custom, the cheese board. Imagine our chagrin when we discovered our favorite was missing!

At first it seemed a little funny and we joked about it with our friends, but the more we thought about it, the more annoyed we became. I did not think it was possible to be uncertainable about cheese but we felt that Hastings County had been slighted by this omission. In all our travels, including St. Pierre in 1961, we have always been able to find, at the cheese itself, at least wafers who were familiar with it and referred to it as Canada's best.

Perhaps our local parliamentarians have been overwhelmed by vested interests in the dairy industry is known far and wide by the pencils he distributes, will attempt to remedy this situation. I am sure that all his constituents will have sentience that Black Diamond cheese will soon take its place of deserved honor on the parliamentary cheese board.

Liberals Kept Munsinger Case as a Trump Card

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Honorable Members, home now enjoying the Easter Week Parliamentary recess, will be getting an earful about matters political.

In fact, they didn't have to wait to get home to hear about it, for constituents by the score, perhaps even the hundreds, were phoning and writing and telling, in effect, the same question that New Brunswick Conservative Gordon Fairweather of Royal, in dismay and disgust, burst out with during the uproar over Lucien Cardin's charge: "La Gesta volem, what are we Mugs?"

Fairweather, recalling from the blast of outrage from the voters, dropped Madame Munsinger — but only for an indefinite time — and got on with the business of the Budget and other things more in the real public interest.

But the reaction from the Munsinger affair will be fairly temporary.

It took three years for the boil of scandal to come to a head, and the wound it is leaving will be long in the healing.

Those who are interested, or even doubtful, are invited to turn back the pages of this newspaper to the issue dated February 13 of last year, in which the first word was dropped of a scandal bomb the name eventually burst in the pilots under the Conservatives.

It wasn't then clear what form the expose would take — the name "Munsinger" was still in the secret files — but it was scarcely confidential that it would involve what were described as "executive" "impropriety".

THE LONG WAIT:

And it seems incredible that the Liberals not only sat on the Munsinger file — for two years after they first must have found it in the secret files when they won power in 1963, but were prepared as long ago as February as 1964 to let the scandal eat out of the bag.

But that's the only possible conclusion to reach in the light of the incredible facts as they entered uncertainly through Ottawa's well-holed "Secrecy Curtain" last week.

The Cabinet column of February 13, '65, recounted Prime Minister Pearson's efforts to make good, with some quiet house-cleaning, his public promise during the 1963 scandal that he wouldn't tolerate what he called a "dirty out" administration.

There has been a Cabinet shuffle, resignations of a few Executive assistants, transfers to certain Ministers, and a new prospect of further fumigation to rid the "Parliament" of the infection of impropriety.

"But some of the Young Turks, who are expected to coming impatient, aren't prepared to wait while, case after case, the list of scandal seems to spread.

"In reprisal, they are hinting darkly of spilling the beans on the Conservatives.

"They say they've cases of improprieties and indiscretions among the Conservatives which should match, and maybe more than match their own.

"And documented, too, they insist.

"The story is that they are sitting on the lid, specifically forbidden by the Prime Minister to pry into this can of worms.

"And the Prime Minister's thinking here, they tell you in explanation, is that if now the Liberals plaster the Conservatives as they themselves have been plastered, the Canadian voting public, already disturbed by all the talk and some evidence of political immorality, will be revolted beyond endurance.

HELD HOSTAGE

"And it is here pointed out that the Conservatives in their days of power were tarred with the same scandal brush as the Liberals now in theirs, the taxpayers, outraged to the point of disowning both parties, will really have no place to go politically, with no choice or alternative but to stay home.

"So the lid, if the Prime Minister has anything to do with it — and up to now he has, reportedly 'if,' he has had plenty, confide his confidants — will remain tightly on the Liberals' own garbage can of Conservative scandal there may be."

Well, that remained the situation through the balance of last year, including the election campaign, when there might have been the danger of the lid being pried off, and into this spring.

Then something unexpected happened ... a new scandal, particularly Justice Minister Cardin got into trouble with the Conservative opposition on the Spencer security case ... and the Quebec wing of the Cabinet threatened to resign, and wreck the Government in the process when the Prime Minister demanded order to the Tory Leader.

In surrendering to John Diefenbaker on the Spencer case, the Prime Minister pulled the Cabinet rug out from under Mr. Justice Cardin, and the affair at once became a matter of ...

Quebec's honor, with Mr. Cardin and his French Canadian colleagues through the resignation ultimatum making, in effect, the Prime Minister a hostage of power.

They, in fact, holding the club of threatened mass resignations over the Prime Minister's head, took control.

And so longer was able to keep the lid clamped on the "garbage can" of Conservative scandals.

The initiative had passed to the Opposition, which long baited by John Diefenbaker and detesting the very name of the Conservative Leader — Lucien Cardin took off the lid, reached in for the Gerda Munsinger scandal bomb and exploded it deliberately, he told the House, to destroy what he accurately forbidden by the Prime Minister to pry into this can of worms.

Gyls Excel in Debate

Ottawa Journal

The only male on the platform during the finals of the Canada-wide public debating tournament which attracted 36 Ottawa and district schools was Peter Lamont, 17-year-old from Arnprior District High School and two more from Perth Lanark High School of Ottawa left all the boys buried in the pack in emerging as the winning team on both sides of the question.

No one listening to that final debate could say that the girls made it merely because of their charm.

As Mr. Marcel Lambert, the former Commons Speaker and one of the judges remarked, the girls spoke as university level. The debaters showed a real command of contemporary economic and political problems, a willingness to concession to their youth and showed that Canada should adopt a national policy of protecting more water to the United States). They also showed, moreover, they could handle themselves in the challenge of rebuttal and in the testing of all demands on the resources of debaters.

But where were the boys? Isn't the male supposed to do the logical thinking for the human species? Isn't the male high school age match the girls in being able to gather materials, organize evidence and speak persuasively? All the judges can't be accused of favoring the girls.

Mr. John Turner, Minister Without Portfolio, was right in telling the students that Parliament would benefit by more emphasis on the clash of ideas rather than that of personality. Perhaps what Mr. Turner ought also to have said is that Parliament would benefit by more women. But that's asking too much of any man.

TSE Salesman Suspended for Thirty Days

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Securities Commission said Monday it suspended the registration of salesman James Le Verne Simpson Jan. 31 for 30 days because he participated in a scheme to run up the price of Racan Photo-Copy Corp. shares.

Mr. Simpson is a salesman for Flood, Wittstock and Co., a member of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

H. S. Bray, OSC director, said in a commission bulletin the suspension resulted from the current commission investigation into trading of Racan shares. The company went bankrupt last summer in the wake of the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp., Ltd.

Racan shares were traded on the unlisted market.

Mr. Simpson told the OSC inquiry that E. V. Rabbiah, principal shareholder, officer, director and promoter of Racan, had plans for a market operation, major financing for Racan. He was hoping to run the stock up to $30 a share and then to do an underwriting.

Racan shares were quoted at about $4.25 in April, 1965, when Mutual Bank and Trust Co. Ltd. of Nassau opened an account with Flood, Wittstock. Mr. Rabbiah was account executive in the Nassau firm.

The price went up to $8.75 just before Monday, June 14, when it collapsed. On the same day 41 New York brokers received about $4,000,000 in fraudulent orders to buy shares in Racan, Commercial Industrial Machines (Canada) Ltd. and The Jockey Club Ltd. on the letter-head of a non-existent Nassau trust company.

The fraud was discovered and stopped before many of the orders had been executed.

How come 3,850,000 Canadians are insured by Metropolitan Life - more than any other company?

Mostly, it's because our customers like the way we treat them—and their money. .

With 2,160 full-time representatives across the country, Metropolitan always has someone nearby to give personal attention to every claim or question.

And, whether you need a thousand dollars of insurance or $5 million, Metropolitan has a complete range of life and health plans from which to tailor a program just for you.

Metropolitan pays policyholders and beneficiaries an average of more than $1 and a quarter million dollars a week. Nearly two-thirds of that money goes to living policyholders.

And one out of every two Metropolitan Life policies bought, is bought by one of our present policyholders. These are a few of the reasons why 3,850,000 Canadians have chosen Metropolitan.

Remember, the company you get your insurance from can make a difference—a very big difference in the security that you provide for your family.

Call your local Metropolitan adviser. He will be pleased to give you a Family Security Check-Up, which may turn up assets you never knew you had. There's no obligation . . . except to those you love.

Millions choose Metropolitan Life
—more in Canada than any other company

No Side Effects From Control Pills

WELLINGTON (Reuters)—A New Zealand medical committee which has carried out an inquiry into the possibility of adverse drug reaction to oral contraceptives says it has found no side effects of any consequence.

About 2,000 doctors throughout New Zealand co - operated in the inquiry, which was sponsored by the government's department of health and the Royal College of Physicians.

Oral contraceptives are available on prescription only to married women.

It has been estimated that one in every four women of childbearing age in New Zealand uses the contraceptive. More than 150,000 a month are being prescribed.

The New Zealand Medical Committee said it had found nothing to incriminate the pill, and that there was not sufficient side effects to cause any concern."

Successful Living
Adopted Girl Cites Her Real Happiness

DEAR DORIS: I have just finished reading the letter from a girl who has an adopted sister 13 years old. She said that since the sister found this out she has been a regular little brat.

I am 14. Since I was very young I have known that I was adopted. I have learned about my natural mother and I am very happy to be where I am today. I wouldn't trade my parents for the world. All my relatives know this and love me like flesh and blood.

I think "Disgusted's" mother made the approach all wrong. All the "brat" needs is a little understanding. Someone she can talk to. Search to find out she was adopted after thinking she was their child.

Please print my letter. I think it might help. Good Luck, Mom! — ADOPTED AND LOVING IT." DORIS CLARK

DEAR ADOPTED: When a person belongs in a family, it is well-nigh impossible to imagine how the ground can fall out from under the child who discovers she doesn't. That is a good enough sentence of love can dry the tears.

DEAR DORIS: My husband has a one-track mind for a car. He is wild that I took $50 we had saved and used it to fix the children's teeth. The dentists have been saying for a year that they must be fixed right away; but their father refused to do anything.

He hasn't spoken to me or the kids since. I feel I've right and can't back down. Another year and they won't have teeth to fix. — GOING NUTS.

DEAR DOING: Contrary to Father's opinion, his children are more important than a car. But there's evidence in your long letter that you are carrying the load alone. High time you stood up for your rights.

I'd suggest you get sound and practical help by going to see a caseworker at the Family Counselling Service of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 West Moira Street, Belleville, which, counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

DEAR DORIS: Is coil polish crazy for married women? — PATSY.

DEAR PATSY: Heavens, no, not in Canada! Nor do we insist that married women veil their faces or otherwise efface themselves as individuals when they are out in public.

DEAR DORIS: Do you think a girl of 14 should be able to go out to her girl friend's house for an hour and a half? The only time I get out of the house is on Saturday. — L.T.

DEAR L.T.: At 14 this depends on the jobs the girl has to do around her home, how fast she does them, the amount of homework she has, whether she gets it done, and whether she comes back from the girl friend's house when she says she will. Show your mother she can come and go and my guess is she'll let up on the schoolboy limits a little.

DEAR DORIS: Two married couples went to a dance recently and met, by arrangement, another unmarried couple there. When the dancing was over one of the men asked his wife to go with the other man to show him the way to the home of the other couple where we were to meet to have lunch. At the same time he said the other lady would go in his car with him and the other couple.

Do you think this was a proper suggestions? — DOUBTFUL.

DEAR DOUBTFUL: Why not? Where there is trust between a man and his wife, each can socialize securely. Have you any reason to wonder about the man's motive in separating "the other lady" from her escort? This is the one thing which might be open to question.

Stringbean Look Said All the Rage

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Ainslie Les Singletary, a fashion editor, says "The only thing high about high fashion today is the price and the hemline."

POTATOES AU GRATIN
(Serves 6)

This recipe may be doubled to serve 12 to 14 people on a party buffet table. For alternative appearance bake the prepared au gratin potatoes in a large shallow dish. Portions may be taken directly to the buffet table.

4 medium large potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
4 teaspoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup hot milk
1 cup bottled water
1 cup cut up process cheese (or grated Cheddar)

Grated cheese (for topping).

Scrub the potatoes thoroughly and boil them in salted water to cover until nearly tender. They must not be soft. Drain and peel. Cut into ¼" dice. Melt the butter, stir in the flour and salt and when blended stir in the hot milk and bottled water until thick. Remove from heat and add cheese, stirring it in until melted.

Arrange half the diced potatoes in bottom of shallow baking dish. Pour half of the cheese sauce over. Repeat these two layers. Sprinkle grated Cheddar or Parmesan cheese over top — using about ½ cup (if desired grated cheese may be mixed in equal amounts of bread crumbs). Bake at 350 or 375 deg. Fahr. 25 to 30 minutes until bubbly and golden on top.

Note: If Potatoes au Gratin are to be prepared in advance, after you have sprinkled them with the topping cheese, let stand until at room temperature then refrigerate it. Bot remember if it goes into the oven chilled it will require a longer baking period. These were prepared with roast loin of pork. At another meal they were served with barbecued spareribs.

Janet Peach Aids Father As Plumber

LONDON (AP) — Janet Peach—whose vital statistics are 37-26-37—appears to be shaping up handsomely as a real wrench - swinging plumber.

After finishing high school, Janet, 18, recently joined her father in his flourishing plumbing business in the British town of Peterborough.

A sign on the side of their truck reads:

"Charles Peach and Daughter, Plumbers."

As dad and daughter installed a central heating system in a private home, Janet said in an interview:

"I could have been a secretary, or a hairdresser, or gone on to college, I suppose, but I chose plumbing. It interests me."

The mass circulation Daily Mirror commented editorially:

"Here's wishing lots of luck to the girl who wants to do what is usually and stupidly regarded as exclusively a man's job."

URGES INVASION

Urging more girls to invade more of the so-called male preserves, The Mirror said:

"One thing is certain. When venturesome Janet has learned her trade, you can bet she'll never have any difficulty in finding a plumber's mate."

Father Peach, passing judgment on his daughter's work, said:

"She is first class. I'm sure she's going to make the grade as a master plumber, but first of all, she must serve a five-year apprenticeship."

Peach, who is 37, explained that he has no son and one day hopes to leave the business to Janet.

Janet is blonde, blue-eyed and shapely.

Sloppy Secretaries Plague Janitress

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Any woman who works as a janitress knows more about personal habits of secretaries than the most accomplished psychologist in the world. I hope you print my letter and maybe it will wise some of them up.

I work in a beautiful, modern office building where the company has spent a fortune on the very best furniture, and equipment. Some secretaries are smart enough to make $600 a month but they don't know that a wastebasket was built to hold paper. It was never meant to be a garbage pail. You'd be shocked at the big sign on the side of their truck reads: amount of food that is tossed into it. Of course they look through and make a terrible mess. For good measure they dump in shavings from the pencil sharpener.

I find sugar spilled on the tops of desks and it just stays there right along with the blobs of coffee cream, cookie and bunks of chewing gum stuck any old place.

I just found three pairs of old shoes under a desk, and a good cashmere sweater rolled up in a ball like it was a rag.

Every evening I turn off electric typewriters and photo copy machines which were left on, I unplug electric coffee makers and defrost small refrigerators. It isn't my job to do those things but it's against my nature to let things burn out and get ruined.

Women are always yelling about how messy men are, but so help me I'd rather clean up after 20 men than two women. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. I feel better already. — MINNIE MOP

DEAR MINNIE: I'll bet you a soggy tea bag that this column is going up on hundreds of office bulletin boards all over the country. And do you know who will post it? The men.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 16-year-old girl who needs advice. My mother's older sister never married. Aunt Bonnie is nice looking, wears expensive clothes and holds down a good job. Aunt Bonnie comes over about twice a week for dinner. Lately she has been getting me alone and running down my father. She says she could have married several men who were a lot better looking and richer than dad. She also says my mother could have done better if she hadn't grabbed the first thing that came down the pipe. I don't know why my aunt insists on running dad down. He is a wonderful person and he and mom seem very happy.

I don't like to hear these things but I don't know how to shut my aunt up. Please help me. — WISH I HAD EARPLUGS.

DEAR WISH: Aunt Bonnie is ashamed of her single status so she is trying to belittle your mother's marriage. Tell her you don't think it's very nice of a guest to come into a home and talk about people who offer her hospitality. That ought to settle her hash.

Toronto French School Out to Raise $1,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—When the Toronto French School decided on a campaign to raise $1,000,000 as a centennial project, it was fortunate to have Jo Davis named to the board of several of its students.

Mrs. Davis, wife of television panel moderator Fred Davis, describes herself as a "project woman" and experiences shows she's an ideal sort of person to translate a fund-raising idea into hard cash.

A former schoolteacher, comedy and TV documentary writer, she recalls: born in Davis first got into promotion in 1950 when World Refugee Year was urging people to adopt a family from a European Refugee camp.

She spearheaded a successful campaign to cut federal government red tape and make it possible for the people of Port Credit, the Toronto suburb where she then lived, to bring over a Yugoslav family.

Four years ago she was assistant manager for a national fund-raising that raised $750,000 for the Canadian Peace Research Institute.

"I've always been in nickels and dimes," she says.

Last year a committee she headed raised $23,000 in a one-day circus for the Harold King Farm for ex-convicts.

Her present interest is the Toronto French School, founded in 1952 by Hanny Gilles with six pupils. Its aim is to promote bilingualism in what was long an English-speaking stronghold.

"The French School is the project closest to my heart because now that students are concerned," says Mrs. Davis. "Our family has been with it for the big birthday. I think it is vital in terms of the future of the country."

Mrs. Davis is chairman of a committee sponsoring a fund-raising project June 13-18 at the big Exhibition Coliseum. The French and Quebec governments will participate in French Week.

Aimed at giving a picture of two French cultures, it will include French movies, fashions, art, drama and cooking. Mrs. Davis expects it will show a profit of $30,000.

The school, which teaches in French and English and has added classes in Russian, "needs help to develop into a cultural centre as well as more space for teaching," says Jo Davis.

"There are plans for a French library which will be open to the public.

"This summer teachers from France are invited to join in studies with French School teachers and French teachers in Toronto."

Housewives Taking To Physical Fitness

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — "May I speak in your modern phrase?" a young voice replies.

"No, I'm sorry, she's outside running."

Almost every day, six attractive housewives run around their Birmingham neighborhood.

Motorists stare. Curtains of some houses are seen to part.

Twice a week, a 36-year-old woman dons sports togs and runs two or three miles around an indoor track at the YMCA, often joined by others.

Men runners, huffing on the same track, pay them little heed —their way of saying the gals are accepted.

What's going on?

The name of the game is physical fitness and it seems to be contagious.

It's a way of battling the pressures of housework, the telephone, noisy kids, business pressures, cooking and, always, the waistline.

CAUSE CONCERN

"The basic problem of women is emotional; the average housewife is our source of concern," said Marion Phillips, one of those responsible for these co-ings-on.

Would life be more enjoyable, tension-free for the average Alabama housewife if she ran a mile daily, or exercised a minimum of 15 minutes a day?

Mrs. Phillips, a physical fitness instructor and mother of three, says yes.

Mrs. Phillips conducts twice-weekly physical fitness classes at the YMCA. Her goal is to put the participants through a six-week course and inspire them to continue exercises on their own like the neighborhood runners.

"The main thing to get across is that this should not be a six weeks course, that physical fitness is a way of life," she said.

Mrs. Phillips believes that if an average housewife exercises vigorously on a regular basis, she'll feel a lessening of tension and be able to cope with the little daily crises.

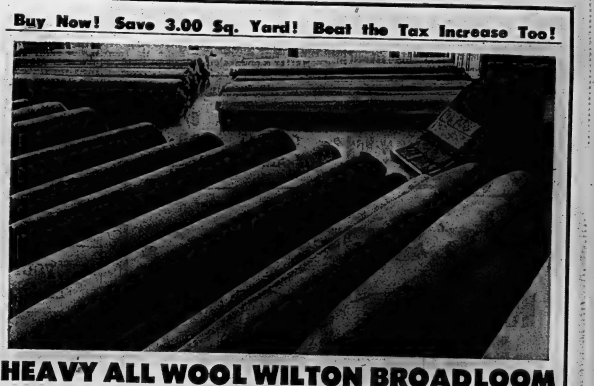
Milk's a Must
Top any snack off with a cool refreshing glass of milk and it tastes much better. Milk just naturally brings out the best in food. Also introduces the family to good nutrition without their ever suspecting it!

Great With Cake
Any cake fans in the house? Try this broiled topping for them next time you whip up a mix. Cut 15 large marshmallows in half and arrange over the top of an 8-inch square cake, hot from the oven. Spread with a mixture of ¼ cup brown sugar and ¼ cup soft butter. Sprinkle with ¼ cup chopped peanuts and broil a few minutes, until the marshmallows are melted.

Tops With Cheese
Prefer something not so sweet. Team up your glass of milk with some good Canadian cheddar cheese at snack time. Serve cheddar just "as is" with bread or crisp crackers and fruit, or bake it into a hot bubbly treat.

Team With Biscuits
For puffy cheese biscuits hot from the oven, start with an 8-ounce package of refrigerator biscuits. Arrange in a bigtared 8-inch round cake pan. For the topping, combine 1 beaten egg, 1 tablespoon milk and ½ cup shredded Canadian cheddar cheese. Pour over biscuits, sprinkle with nutmeg and bake in a 450°F oven until golden, about 15 minutes. Perfect with milk and a bite orange marmalade!

Charm the Children
Brighten a rainy day for the children with mugs of milk and gay plaid doughnuts. Start with plain cake doughnuts and crisscross with two colors of icing to give a plaid effect . . . quick and easy!



At Informal Parties
Set out tall glasses of cold milk for the teenagers along with a Giant Hot Dog Loaf . . . they'll be the rest! Cut a French loaf into ¾-inch thick slices and make into sandwiches, filling with a mixture of 2 cups shredded Canadian cheddar cheese, ¾ cup mayonnaise, 4 dash of Worcestershire sauce and a little dry mustard. Put sandwiches together to form a loaf again on a long piece of foil; gather foil up around the bass to hold the "loaf" together. Cut wieners in half lengthwise and set each in each sandwich. Bake on a cookie sheet in a 375°F oven 20 to 25 minutes.

Africa Offers Paradox Of Continental Accord Amid National Chaos

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—The saga of ancient Rome who murmured "out of Africa, always something new" should be around for the 1970s.

Coups, attempted coups, revolutions, rebellions and mutinies have occurred in 23 territories since 1960—10 in the last year. Some have had more than one upheaval.

Eleven governments were felled in the continent of some 30 countries and colonies. Four men who led their countries to independence were slain. Soldiers have overthrown eight governments since last June 19.

The causes and forms of the African ferment are probably almost as broad as the vast continent itself. In most cases it was the military men who brought down or rearranged their civilian masters.

For purposes of perspective, however, Africa was not the only scene of military coups during the period: Latin America had nine and there were four such in the Far East and the Middle East.

Not all African political developments are bad. Ghana and Tanzania's autumn election exhibited democratic principles despite its status as a one-party state. Morocco's King Hassan II named himself premier and Libya's King Idris also intervened in politics.

Gambia, tiny sliver in West Africa, became the ninth independent African Commonwealth member. Bantuland, British high commission territory entirely surrounded by South Africa, plans steps toward independence this spring. Bechuanaland becomes independent Sept. 30 and Swaziland is also on the independence road.

DANGER AHEAD

Political and economic progress was made by some countries and as a impressive measure of continental unity attained by 1966. But the outlook is for further spectacular and dangerous events in Africa, which has grown into independent states—many of them much smaller in population than Toronto and Montreal—and cost them within 15 years.

What is it all about?

Last year's events show the lawlessness of independence, there ever was one, is well and truly over and Africa has entered a new era of challenge to the men who shaped and ruled various nationalist movements.

Africans were disillusioned by corruption, favoritism, extravagance, high-handed rule, despotism and coal war dabblings displayed by the politicians. The ill achievements of Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah in such basics as education and agriculture became rallied by his ruthless oppression.

Educated Africans whether in the civil service or elsewhere often thought it prudent to remain silent about their frustrations and disillusionment. But the military men, also possessing an education, had the tools and opportunity to do the job.

Their intervention was made less hazardous since the new nations have no tradition against military rule and indeed no national traditions at all, only symbols such as flags and anthems—and nationalist heros.

INHERITED TROUBLE

Anger flowed up toward the men on top even if they were doing their best with difficult new problems besides trying to cope with a daunting heritage of muddle left by their former imperial masters.

Nigeria's prime minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa was slain in the name of unity although that was the dearest aim of this highly-respected Moslem. Perhaps his greatest misfortune was to be surrounded with two regional premiers, also slain, whose positions were more equivocal.

The fantastic hodge-podge of national boundaries, imposed on the European powers without regard to tribal division or eventual economic viability, is one of the things Africans will apparently have to live with indefinitely.

While English and French frequently are the official languages, the countries mingle scores of tongues among peoples of different customs, laws, dress and religion—Christianity in various divisions, Islam, paganism, Jo-Ju.

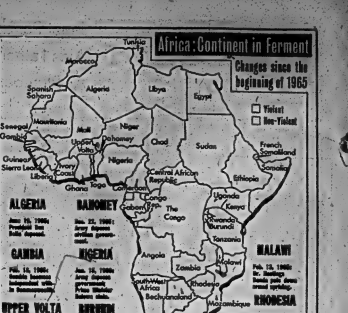
Place on top of all this poverty, unemployment, drastically reduced prices for such crops as cocoa and—in some cases—political chaos and you have a ripe situation for a man with a gun.

The old year went out and the new one came in to the crackle of rifle fire as five west African governments came crashing down in a little more than two months, Nigeria and Ghana following French-language Dahomey, Central African Republic and Upper Volta.

ACTED IN DESPERATION

And on Feb. 24 Prime Minister Milton Obote seized dictatorial powers in Uganda, for years the haven of 150,000 refugees from turbulent neighbors, to prevent an overthrow of his East African government.

Premier Pierre Ngendandumwe was assassinated Jan. 15, 1965, and Premier Moise Tshombe was dismissed by Congo President Kasavubu Oct. 1 and Congo Premier Evariste Kimba executed. Col. Houari Boumediene deposed president Ahmed Ben Bella in Algeria but far down in Malawi the canny Dr. Hastings Banda, a masterful African nationalist and elder of the Church of Scotland, put down a rebellion in February.



Last November Gen. Joseph Mobutu ousted civilian squabbling politicians for the second time and assumed full powers for five years in the Congo, where Patrice Lumumba was slain following earlier chaos in which he lost the national leadership.

The theory of chain reaction has limited validity, in the opinion of most observers, although some feel Mobutu's bloodless success was an inspiration in other smaller French-language countries.

The formation of Rhodesia (apart from Algeria) and of Belgium—The Congo and Burundi—had special problems. Independence came suddenly and they had little political, administrative or economic preparation. When Dahomey's Gen. Christophe Soglo took over last Dec. 22, he was doing so for the third time.

STRONG MEN DEPOSED

Ben Bella, Nkrumah and Balewa, in contrast, were regarded as among the most powerful men in Africa—Nkrumah as the apostle of pan-Africanism and one-party socialism.

ARMY UPHEAVALS SPREAD ACROSS CONTINENT—Since the beginning of 1965 some dozen African countries have gone through an overthrow of government. A few have been quiet but most have been accompanied by violence. In most countries the army, disillusioned by corruption, extravagance and ineptitude has been the motive power. (CP Photo)

Balewa premier of the continent's most populous nation, dedicated to multi-party democracy. But Nigeria was plagued by regionalism and tribalism.

West African experts have not yet established any connection between the Ghanaian coup, Feb. 24, and the Nigerian one, Jan. 15, but there has always been an affinity between the officer groups of the two countries. The affinity was even more pronounced in the officer groups of the two territories, where the officers in different countries knew each other well and served in the same units in colonial days.

Diplomats see in many one-party states the seeds of new upheavals because they do not generally provide a smooth system for changing the government—hence, armies step in when unrest becomes dangerous.

However, they cite exceptions, notably Tanzania where last September voters were given a choice of candidates—none receiving the blessing of the ruling party—and did, in fact, defeat some government ministers. Ghana's autumn election was, in contrast, a bad joke.

Nyerere's innovation was applauded the more because it came only 1½ years after he formed a union between Tanganyika and Zanzibar, the land where revolution flamed in January, 1964, followed by abortive army mutinies in Tanganyika, Kenya and Uganda. The bloody Zanzibar revolt deposed an Arab sultan who ruled the Negro majority.

RELUCTANT RULERS

One feature of the African scene is that the armies, where they have taken control, have not yet shown signs of seeking indefinite rule as in Latin America and elsewhere.

Although the military men may seize power easily, they find it difficult to govern and instead try to carry out satisfactory relations with civilian groups.

In Sudan, they handed over voluntarily in 1964 after six years. Mobutu announced a five-year deadline in Congo-Leopoldville. When President Fulbert Youlou was deposed in neighboring Congo - Brazzaville, former French colony, in 1963, the colonels called in President Alphonse Massemba-Debat.

Many Britons today say independence came too soon to Africa. They defend the policies of South Africa, of Rhodesia's chief regime and of Portugal, which has fought a rebellion in Mozambique for more than a year and earlier battled a bloodier one in Angola, besides maintaining a garrison in Portuguese Guinea.

But the position is disputed by others. Take the latter line, as expressed by Colin Legum, Commonwealth correspondent of the London Observer: "No matter how long independence was delayed, the essential problems to be faced when independence finally came would have remained the same."

The fragility of African unity may have been made apparent by the Rhodesian question and the split caused by Nkrumah's efforts to regain rule in Ghana.

Tom Mboya, Kenya's economic planning minister, urged that the matter not be judged hastily and stressed that Communist and Western countries now division by attaching conditions to their aid programs.

Africa, after all, has at least managed in a few years to establish a continental forum in the Organization of African Unity — nonexistent when included Europe for centuries.

QUESTION: Could you please tell us if there is some place we could go, that is not as far as Florida, but has a balmy spring climate at this time of year and is on the Atlantic Coast? I have an inlaid Myrtle beach which I bear is quite popular with Canadians in early April. — Mrs. R. H., Belleville

ANSWER: Fifty miles of white sand beach is "in season" from mid-April until late in September. But for Canadians, early spring is fine, with daytime temperatures in the 70s and the water as warm as many Ontario lakes in mid-August. By May, daily temperatures hit the 80 degree mark. Another reason is that only 900 miles from Belleville, it's an easy two-day drive and a full day closer than the better known vacation areas in south Florida.

Myrtle Beach, the best known and most active of the Strands, is a resort communities, features Canadian-American days from April 19 to 17 in honor of these important northern customers.

Bridge tournaments, golf and garden tours are featured, along with the surf and the sun.

For garden sports, South Carolina is one of America's best. The Magnolia Gardens, along with seven or eight others, are beautiful. They remain open all year but it's from March to May that they are at their best with blazes of azaleas under great live oaks and wisteria cascading in purple profusion.

For the fisherman, there are some 15 piers jutting out into the Atlantic. Most of the piers make a charge of $1 or $2 and all of them rent tackle and sell bait. Surfing Canadian weed, two passes are given out to northern visitors.

Deep sea fishing boats head 20 to 30 miles out to hit the Gulf stream for those who want to go after the big game fish. Four to six fishermen share the cost which usually is in the $150 range.

There are more than a dozen good golf courses within easy reach of the Strand, and three within the Myrtle Beach area itself. They are now played all year round.

Charleston is worth a side-trip. The city, where the first shot of the American Civil War was fired, is a typical 18th Century European city which has been largely preserved. There are narrow streets and walled gardens with wrought-iron gateways. Some of the most beautiful old homes in the south are found here.

During the early spring a motel room runs about $6 and this price goes up to $10 or $13 in the summer. Cottages have a wide range of prices but in the spring can be had for $30 a day.

Along the southern portion of the coast, Boone Hall, a southern plantation home, is worth a look. The original slave quarters and gin house are intact and the plantation is still in working order, producing some 300 acres of truck crops and pecans. Admission is $1.25 and it is open each day.

Romania Stands for Equality For All Socialist Countries

Romania stands for equal rights for all socialist countries. Here she stood up for her economic rights in 1964, rather than be dominated by the Soviet Union, as described in this story by Canadian Press reporter John Best, who toured Soviet-bloc Eastern Europe.

By JOHN BEST

BUCHAREST (CP) — Romania's unilateral declaration of independence came two years ago, in April, 1964.

It wasn't called that at the time and still isn't. But it is impossible to study a statement put out then by the Romanian Communist party's central committee without feeling that you are reading a proclamation of national sovereignty.

The statement came after this Communist country of 19,000,000 already had won partial success in its struggle against Soviet - sponsored plans for the full integration of East European economies.

Such integration would have meant surrendering control to a supra-national planning authority dominated by the Soviet Union or responsive to its wishes, with consequent erosion of individual countries' jurisdiction over their own economies.

The integration plan had been put forward by Soviet Premier Khrushchev late in 1962.

Other East European Communist countries were willing to go along with it — some even eager. To the Romanians, it smacked of a plan to keep their agriculturally rich land in the position of a supplier of foodstuffs and stifle their already-blossoming programs to advance the economy through industrialization.

COMPROMISE CLING TO SOVEREIGNTY

Romania's partial success occurred in July of 1963 when, following a meeting in Moscow, a communique was issued stressing the need for bilateral consultation among East European states but not mentioning the supra-national authority dear to the heart of Khrushchev.

With the Soviet Union absorbed in its increasingly bitter battle of words with China the Romanians continued to develop their autonomy. This period culminated in the remarkably forthright declaration of April, 1964.

"Forms and measures have been suggested . . . not in keeping with the principles that underlie relations between the socialist countries," it stated.

A nation's sovereignty required that it hold on to all the levers for managing economic and social life. "Transmitting such levers to the competence of super-state or extra-state bodies would turn sovereignty into a notion without content."

Not long before the meeting that approved the statement, Romania had sent a party delegation to Peking and Moscow to investigate ways of soothing the Soviet - Chinese dispute.

In its statement, the central committee endorsed the Soviet Union's policy of peaceful coexistence of states with different social systems —opposed by China—but it carefully refrained from taking sides in the Moscow-Peking quarrel.

RIGHTS AFFIRMED

It did, however, take advantage of the opportunity to place on record the principles that Romania believed should govern relations between socialist countries, in words obviously composed for the benefit of the Soviet Union:

"National independence and sovereignty, equal rights, mutual advantage, comradely assistance, non-interference in internal affairs, observance of territorial integrity, are the yardsticks of socialist internationalism."

"There are not and there can be no unique patterns and recipes, nobody can decide what is and what is not correct for other countries or parties," said the statement.

". . . it is a sovereign right of each socialist state to elaborate, choose or change the forms and methods of socialist construction."

There cannot exist a "parent" party and a "son" party, parties that are superior and parties that are subordinate, said the statement, seeming to question the Soviet Union's self - proclaimed position as leader of the world Communist movement.

"There exists the great family of Communist and worker's parties, which have equal rights. No party has or can have a privileged place, or can impose its line and opinions on other parties."

The statement criticized the Chinese for advocating a formal "split" in the movement, but on the other hand it by implication opposed Moscow's plan for a special meeting of Communist parties to deal with the Chinese problem, saying such a conference should be held only if all parties were willing to attend. The Chinese had already made abundantly clear that they would not attend.

The stated position is still Romanian policy.

Within a few months after the declaration was issued, Khrushchev was abruptly removed from office and the Romanians had to reckon with a new leadership in the Kremlin.

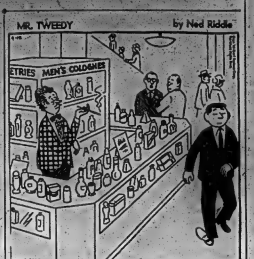
If anything, however, they were able to consolidate their gains.

Last September, following a Moscow visit by a Romanian party - government delegation, a joint communique was issued which read as though it were written by the Romanians themselves; many foreign diplomats assume that parts of it were.

WON SOVIET BACKING

In effect the Soviet Union endorsed the principles laid down unilaterally 17 months earlier by the Romanians. Throughout the communique ran their pet patter: "Independence, equality and non-interference in the affairs of other parties;" economic collaboration and "co - ordination" of development plans, rather than integration and supra - nationalism.

It is probably a token of the Soviet Union's compelling desire not to antagonize other parties at this critical juncture of its dispute with China that the Romanians were able to win agreement with the U.S.S.R. to such a document.



In a spirit of reciprocity the Romanians went down the line with the Soviet Union on most questions of foreign policy, from Viet Nam to European security.

For all their determination to run their own show, Romanian authorities try hard not to let it be forgotten that the country is still Communist.

They talk about class struggle, the doctrine of historical inevitability and the inevitable triumph of socialism. Just as Communist leaders do everywhere.

At the same time they are turning more and more to the capitalist West for goods and ideas they need to make their country run properly.

Tomorrow: Romanians work hard to build country industrially.

May Be Able To Treat Cancer By Vaccination

DETROIT (AP)—Wayne State University medical researchers say they may have discovered a way to treat cancer by vaccination.

Results they claim for a four-year program so far include:

—Two cancer patients, earlier given up as hopeless cases, completely freed of their tumors.

—Eight others once considered beyond help still alive, their cancers either halted or growing more slowly.

—Two patients with advanced tumors, their lives believed prolonged by the treatments.

Failure in 20 other cases, Dr. Paul I. Wolf said, probably came because the disease was too far advanced and the patient's body no longer capable of producing cancer - fighting antibodies.

The Wayne group's vaccine, he explained, aids the victim's body in producing these antibodies.

Dr. Wolf said that "if this program could be applied on a large scale, I would anticipate a fair degree of success."

Dr. Wolf, director of the Detroit Institute of Cancer Research, said his group hoped to run a larger series of tests on cancer patients at Detroit Receiving Hospital, but added its timetable is "quite indefinite."

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Is it wise to spend large sums in improvements when the house no longer meets the needs of the family? This is one of the most common questions asked by readers. The reply to "apartment worker" should be informative to readers faced with this type of problem.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We live in a large development outside Washington, D.C. Our house no longer meets our needs. We are discussing installing a game room in the basement, adding a study, a patio with barbecue, and other improvements.

The rest of the neighborhood has not improved much, since it is occupied mostly by government workers who move around often. Would we get our investment back when we sell? My husband will be retiring in about five years. — Government Worker

Answer: As a general rule, improvements beyond the basic structure are not fully recoverable at time of sale. The fact that few improvements have been made to other houses in the neighborhood, in this case, guarantees that only a small part of the investment will be recovered.

The exception to the general rule stated above is for relatively inexpensive improvements in neighborhoods of custom built houses or for neighborhoods containing older houses in the process of being substantially upgraded. At all other times it is more prudent to buy another home that meets the needs rather than make large expenditures, and overimprove the existing house.

In circumstances where the family can foresee occupying a house for a long time, say at least 30 years, then overimproving may be justified. Saving the inconvenience of moving is a partial justification. The main one, however, is that any future loss will be more than offset by long time housing amenities.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Each of my children received a home as a wedding gift. My last child will be married soon and I would like to present her a similar gift but I have a problem.

I don't care for my future son-in-law! He is a wild, aimless kid, and I am sure the marriage won't last long. I have been told that if the marriage breaks up he will have a half interest in the house. This would "stink" me. I don't want to prejudge the marriage or to treat my youngest child differently from the others. How do I solve my dilemma? — Think I Am Right

Answer: This solution will almost let you have your cake and eat it, too. Instead of making an outright gift, make it subject to a mortgage for the full price with payments deferred for a year or two.

By that time you should know if the marriage is working out. If it is, you can satisfy the mortgage and the house will be free and clear. If the marriage has failed, you will have the house back, and by forgiving your son-in-law's interest.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a large family so my house does not match. I need a minimum of four bedrooms. I'm going to build a new house — some of the work I will do myself, but most of it will be contracted. From my letter, you can see that my best talents are in fields other than real estate, therefore could you please tell me what type of house will give me the largest amount of living space for the money? — Should Not Be Staying Home Nights

Answer: Of all possible combinations, the type which will give the largest area of living space for dollar is the Cape Cod (storey and one half) with finished second floor.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have spent more than $300 trying to correct a bad weather condition in my basement. I have waterproofed, dug drains, and sprayed with tar compound. Nothing has helped! The ground is just too wet. Before I give up, I would appreciate a suggestion from your vast experience. — Almost Drowned

Answer: Having tried everything, you are ready for the ultimate solution — a sump pump. Dig a small hole in the lowest part of your basement. Line the hole with cement, and install an electric sump pump. In this way you will not be fighting the water, you will be getting rid of it. The normal cost of the job, if you don't want to do it yourself, is from $60 to $85.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

700 Return To Work on Two Projects

TIMMINS (CP) — About 700 men returned to work Monday at two Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. projects near here, but 400 others remained on strike.

About 1,100 men walked off their jobs last week in a strike that has been described as illegal by both the companies and Local 493 of the International Hod Carriers' Building and Common Laborers' Union of America (CLC).

Most of the men were employed by Ralph M. Parsons Co. at a concentrator construction site 12 miles east of here. The others work for Manaiz Co. of Calgary, contractors for removing overburden at the mine site 15 miles north of here.

The workers held two meetings Sunday but did not meet Texas Gulf, Parsons and Manaiz officials to discuss grievances. There has been no union announcement, but the men who went on strike are believed to be asking for double time for overtime instead of time and a half, and a pay increase of 20 cents an hour.

DISCUSS CENTENNIAL PLANS

NAPANEE — A meeting of town and county officials will be held shortly to discuss plans for the Centennial celebration, Mayor Loren Stuart announced. It will be open to the public and all are urged to attend.

No plans of any kind have yet been made except for the carnival which will be in Napanee for three days in June. It will be displayed in the former Oddfellows' hall park, now the property of the Napanee District Collegiate Institute Board. Napanee will concentrate its celebration for that week, the mayor says. Other celebrations will be held at intervals. The county may wish to celebrate at the same time as Napanee, or the town may choose other dates. Nothing is known except that plans of some sort should get under way.

MARCH OF DIMES

Tag day for the March of Dimes in Napanee netted well over $300. Three small girls, Dougal Mary Boone, Patsy Young and Linda Hawkins each collected over $30 and were given awards. Mrs. Jean Pratt of Bobbi was in charge of the project.

ACCIDENT FREE

Up to 4.00 p.m. Monday the Napanee detachment of the O.P.P. could report a accident-free weekend, despite rain and fog at times. Traffic has been heavy but evidently drivers have been careful.

Sessions Will Be Held on Bus Safety

NAPANEE — A school bus safety seminar will be held in the Napanee town hall next week with a morning session April 18, and an evening session April 21, Constable James Elliott of the local detachment of the O.P.P. reports. It will be attended by all school bus owners and operators of Lennox County, which takes in everything from the Bay of Quinte area to the waterfront.

Constable Elliott has been a busy man being rushed here by appointed safety officer for the detachment. He has been taking the Elmer safety program to the public schools, repeating it room by room. So far he has covered the Prince Charles School, the H. H. Langford school, and the Slash Road School.

The traffic safety film, "Mechanical Boy," was shown to the pupils of the Ernestown High School and was well received there. No arrangements have yet been made to show it in the N.D.S.S.

"We will take these safety lectures to anyone and everyone we can reach," Constable Elliott said, "just it has to be on request." He mentioned such organizations as the service clubs and the P.T.A.

Deer Chased by Dogs Reported To Dept. of Lands and Forests

NAPANEE — For the second time within a month, a deer has met death in the vicinity of Napanee because of having been chased by dogs, Stanley Godfrey of Daisy Ave. discovered a dead deer in the pasture field close to the chain link fence which separates the field from the garden. He reported it to Chief Harry Senn who in turn reported it to the Department of Lands and Forests. James Iven, a field man for the department, investigated.

The animal had been dead for possibly a month, Mr. Iven believed, but was not decomposed because of the cold weather. Its neck was broken, and he thinks it ran into the fence when trying to escape from dogs.

About a month ago Newburgh children saw a doe in the Napanee River below the falls in that village. It was trying to clamber back on the ice, but the current was too strong and it was swept under the ice.

Mr. E. W. Ferguson who is in charge of the Napanee division of the Department, explained that such occurrences are common, and they do not always happen in March. In summer when chased by dogs deer take to the water and escape. They will never take to the ice of their own free will, as they cannot run on ice because of their body structure. And so in spring, when their strength is not as great because of winter feeding problems and when the does are heavy with young, they turn to man for protection, making for settlements.

FOUR DIVISIONS

There are four divisions in the Tweed area, and the Napanee division which Mr. Ferguson heads, takes in its southfront townships, from Leeds through to Hastings including Prince Edward. It includes all territory bordering on the Bay of Quinte, the eastern end of Lake Ontario, and the St. Lawrence River as far as the Leeds boundary.

"At present all men are patrolling the area watching for poachers, who are after pike and pickerel," Mr. Ferguson says. He already has an agency in his office taken from poachers. The pickerel season inland does not open until May 26, and in the Bay of Quinte, May 7. "A constant watch, day and night, will be kept until that time," he states.

WELCOMES DECISION

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India issued Monday an official release welcoming Canada's decision to cancel repayment of $10,000,000 still owed by the New Delhi government under a wheat transaction eight years ago. The release, which described Canada as a pace-setter in foreign aid, said India had received Canada's economic aid worth $418,000,000 since the first India five-year development plan was launched in 1951.

BIRD ON THE BRAIN — They say a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. But what about a bird on the head? Obviously six-month-old Andy Baird doesn't think its worth anything as a neighbor's budgie lands on his head. Andy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Baird of Kingston.

Vice-Principals Think More Students Should Be Allowed to Drop Out

TORONTO (CP)—Two vice-principals agreed Monday that more students should be allowed to drop out of Ontario secondary schools.

C. R. Tuttle of Sudbury told the vice-principals' section of the Ontario Educational Association convention that many principals work too hard to keep in school students who are not suited for education.

W. H. Hill of suburban York Township suggested that a year of job-hunting might convince drop outs that their best chance was to return and work hard in school.

The meeting was one of several held on the opening day of the week-long convention, which has attracted about 12,000 delegates.

Charles H. Rushton, co-ordinator for the Kitchener-Waterloo high school board of the Canadian vocational training program, said boys 18 and 17-year-olds regard the training program as a place to keep warm, get a free meal and draw $5-a-day subsistence allowance.

BLAME TEACHERS

Many blame teachers, especially vice-principals, for their failure in school.

In some instances such youths were "shove-outs," not drop-outs. They were invited to leave because they become a disruptive influence in the school program.

Prof. Donald H. Richardson of the University of Windsor's psychology department said many students find school boring and failing as punishment, or at least a result of what the school administration considered their shortcomings. Mrs. Ivon Bailey of Pembroke suggested disturbed students should be given psychiatric help outside the school.

"Yes, but some disturbances caused by influences outside the school can be dealt with in the school by a sympathetic counsellor," Prof. Richardson said.

NEED TV

A panel discussion on educational television was told by Mel LaFontaine, director of the Toronto Board of Education library's documentation centre, that high schools should have at least four TV sets on at all times.

"We must create environment. We can't teach literature if we drive the student away from it. Shakespeare was the horse-opera writer of his day but we have some good ones today like Rod Serling."

Donald Rutledge, director of the Toronto board's language study centre, disagreed. He said the impact of educational TV after eight years is negligible and has not justified the expense.

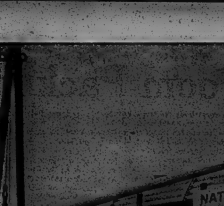
"It seems in sirens for children not to enjoy the programs —they're not like the ones at home. School programs are dreary, earnest and it's significant educational television has not done well."

Prof. Donald Theall, director of English and communications at Sir George Williams University, said educational television is like a baby and teachers should wait for it to grow up.

NEW MACHINES COMING

Elwy Yost, supervisor of secondary education TV for Metropolitan Educational Television Association, said an inexpensive videotape machine costing $1,800 to $3,500—would soon be available.

Mr. Yost said the machine is the answer to inflexible timetables for teaching purposes. It would enable them to show programs at any time and statistics on viewing would be compiled.



In another discussion, a University of Western Ontario observer suggested that ways other than intercourse can be found to satisfy sexual urges.

Dr. R. A. M. Klnch, speaking on sex education to the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Association, said a teen-ager must be urged to develop emotional stability and maturity.

"He must be taught to know that sexual urges in males have to be satisfied through intercourse. The urge can be diverted but to some great cause . . . such as science.

"We can point out that some of the world's great discoveries have been made, and novels and poetry have probably been written as a sublimation of the sex urge."

Dr. Kinch said teaching of sex must be integrated with the education, taking in the moral, emotional, physiological and psychological aspects."

New Natural Gas Pipeline Will Service Cement Plant

Preparations for the installation of five miles of 4½ - inch pipe that will carry natural gas to Canada Cement Company Limited's Plant No. 3 at Point Anne, are now under way, Lakeland Natural Gas, Limited said this week officially announced the start of the $200,000 project which runs east of Belleville, in Thurlow Township.

Cormac Pipelines of Kingston and Moreland Construction Limited the contract for the pipe laying operation. The line will supply the Cement Company with natural gas from the Trans-Canada Pipeline located north of Highway 401.

The pipe will pass underneath Highway 401, through a farm and a rail line on its way to the cement company. While work on the pipeline is carried out, conversion of existing equipment inside the plant will take place. The fuel for the gas line was transported by rail from Saskatchewan. The last two cars of the 'train' - one - shipment arrived at Point Anne, on the weekend.

Andrew A. Irwin, Lakeland president and general manager; Lakeland Natural Gas, Limited, said the project will be completed "sometime during the first 10 days of June."

The pipe will be supplied with four million cubic feet of gas per day when the installation is completed and one month from now, that figure will be doubled as a eight million cubic feet of gas passes through the line each day," Mr. Irwin stated.

He said: "This new line to serve Canada Cement is another example of our policy of acquiring additional source industrial customer has been because it will provide an economical service to any potential industry studying Thurlow Township. At a future date, we will be able to provide a second service to the City of Belleville, if the present facilities approach capacity."

Yesterday, Mr. Irwin, R. Snyder, Lakeland's operations chief; H. Gibson, Quinte Division manager; J. M. Legate, cement superintendent and Clayton Hall, Reeve of Thurlow Township and Warden of Hastings County visited the site of the pipelin.

Just Doesn't Pay to Be Beauty Queen

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some days it just doesn't pay to be a beauty queen.

Miss Carol Cisco, Bonnie Bobbs, 20, visited Vancouver Monday as part of a promotional tour. She was dressed in western attire — including a six-gun—and was immediately surrounded by photographers.

"Draw," said the photographers.

She did, and her gun belt fell down.

Then she approached a horse.

"Hide," the photographers said.

So she tried, and was promptly thrown off. The horse fell down, too.

Miss Cariboo escaped injury and continued her tour.

Coal Miners in Nine States Ordered to Return to Pits

PITTSBURGH (AP) — About 53,000 striking soft-coal miners in nine states were under union orders today to return to the pits.

But, it remained a question how soon they would end the walkout that ballooned into the biggest strike in the soft-coal fields in 15 years.

In the past, some striking miners took their time obeying union back-to-work orders.

The strike started early Monday when the fathers of the union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association to reach an agreement on new contract.

Telegrams signed by Union President W. A. (Tony) Boyle and other union officials were sent to all union district ordering the strikers back to work.

MEETS OPERATORS TODAY

Later, Boyle met with coal association President Edward G. Fox.

There was speculation that Fox told Boyle the operators would not resume negotiations until the men are back at work.

The association's executive board meets in Pittsburgh today as a prelude to the resumption of talks in Washington, possibly Wednesday.

Hardest hit by the strike were West Virginia with 20,000 miners on strike and Pennsylvania with 9,000 out.

Friday, the union and three bituminous coal firms in Ohio reached agreement on a new contract granting a $1.30-a-day pay raise retroactive to April 1, bringing top-rated miners to $20 a day, and a $1.00-a-day increase starting April 1, 1967. It also included eight paid holidays and better fringe benefits.

The agreement was approved by that new pact get a base pay of $28.25 a day.

Use Voiceprint For First Time As Evidence

NEW YORK (AP)—A revolutionary device called the voiceprint that may some day rival the fingerprint as a method of criminal identification has been accepted as evidence in a perjury case, its inventor says.

The inventor, Lawrence G. Kersta, 38, a physicist, appears today in court to demonstrate how the voiceprint works.

Judge Robert Dempsey ruled Monday that the voiceprint is identification could be used by the state in the case of a suspended policeman charged with perjury.

It would be the first time that the device would be introduced as evidence in court although some police departments are known to be experimenting with it.

Kersta says he has superBell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., has developed an electronic method of converting the voice into word-looking pictures displays know-as spectrographs. There is a type for every characteristic of a voice, each of which is unique, Kersta says.

"You might call it a fingerprint of a voice," the physicist said in an interview.

Kersta says he has supervised the production of 50,000 voiceprints with 97 per cent accuracy.

Judge Dempsey overruled the defence attorney Monday in the trial of George M. Strashle, who is accused of lying to a grand jury when he said he had warned a gambler of an impending police raid. The prosecution charged that Kersta's technique was unproven.

However, the judge asked Kersta to show six voiceprints made of Strashle, based on an alleged telephone call he made to the gambler. Kersta said he could match Strashle's voice to the call, which was made by the subsequent voiceprints made of the suspended policeman.

Takes Secret Of Real Name To the Grave

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fred H. Elliott, 93, Klondike sourdough and friend of gold rush poet Robert Service, has taken his secret—his real name—to the grave.

Dawson City pioneer, chicken rancher, gold miner, theatre operator and member of an unknown prominent English family, he adopted the name Elliott when he was "banished" to Canada by his parents. He was 21 at the time.

Elliott died Saturday in Vancouver General Hospital's senior citizens' ward, after an extended several months ago.

Elliott helped set up the first hospital at Grand Forks, 245 miles from Dawson City, where he was a doctor's assistant.

Ottawa Hospital May Be Forced To Close Doors

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa General Hospital must get help to solve its severe financial difficulties or be closed, its chief of staff said Monday.

Dr. Conway Don said the general's standard of care has been slipping for six years. The hospital has not been given the health scheme and the "totally incompetent" Ontario Health Services Commission.

Administrator of the 630-bed hospital revealed at an Easter Sunday press conference a preliminary confidential list of serious inadequacies in equipment and facilities.

QUALITY NEEDED

They outlined three urgent needs for assistance:

1. Help in paying a $6,000,000 capital debt. The hospital's needs have turned over more than $800,000 of their salaries in the last seven years in the OHSC in return for a grant covering interest payments.

2. A guarantee from the City of Ottawa or some other body to co-operate with the provincial and federal governments in paying for a program of equipment expansion. A pledge to contribute about 15 per cent of the program's cost would probably be enough to ensure federal - provincial contribution of the other 85 per cent, Dr. Don said.

3. $250,000, immediately, for equipment.

SHOWN INDIFFERENCE

Dr. Don said the OHSC is taking every care of hospitals' expense at present. The commission had shown indifference for three years, sometimes refusing to answer or acknowledge letters.

Examples of the hospital's plight revealed Sunday:

1. An inadequate emergency power system, good for only an hour or so after a general blackout.

2. Operating rooms too small for complicated operations and enough room for deliveries in the obstetric department.

3. No space for emergency cars for heavy stretch victims.

4. Lack of equipment for heart monitoring, administering anesthetics, dealing with sudden heart irregularities, investigating heart disease, making routine pathologists' investigations and for localizing brain tumors.

Arms Dealer Refuses Order

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Mirror says a British arms dealer was seconded out about supplying £3,500,000 ($9,000,000) worth of military equipment for the Rhodesian forces.

The mass circulation tabloid quotes the dealer, Mal. William Tury, 47, as saying he refused to handle the undercover order. He said the arms, sought through Portuguese businessmen, would equip 5,000 men.

Former President Given Good Chance in Second Dominican Republic Vote

By BORIS BESKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Dominican Republic will hold "its second election in 22 years" Sunday — and former president Juan Bosch is given a good chance of being returned to power.

Bosch was ousted in a military coup seven months after taking office in February, 1963, when he became the Caribbean country's first freely - elected president in 38 years. Just he remained a dominant figure in the country's political scene despite his exile in Puerto Rico.

Supporters of Bosch, a 56-year-old left-of-centre liberal, rallied after his ouster in April, 1965, touched off a revolution that resulted in the downfall of the military junta which had replaced Bosch.

Bosch returned to the country from exile that April after a month - civil war which ended with the signing of the Act of Reconciliation and the Institutional Act, and the replacement of the military junta with a three-man civilian junta headed by Hector Garcia Godoy, agriculture minister in the Bosch government.

NOW NOMINATION

There had been some speculation Bosch would not seek the presidency in the June 1 election, but that speculation was ended Sunday in Santo Domingo when he won nomination by acclamation from the Dominican Revolutionary party's candidate.

Bosch's vice-presidential candidate is Silvestre Antonio Guzman, a wealthy 55 - year - old farmer who signed the Act of Reconciliation on behalf of the rebel movement.

Bosch returned to the Dominican Republic to win the 1963 election after more than 20 years in exile because of his opposition to Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo. The assassination of Trujillo in 1961 paved the way for his election.

He hopes to restore democracy in the Dominican Republic but much will depend on whether peace can be kept in the country at least until voting day. Any renewed trouble could set back or even cancel the election.

The country's economic conditions are belied in some circles that there was

Harold Ballard, vice president of the Maple Leaf Mint, as a pre-fight wit dubbed the Gardens' has aspirations to become a fight impresario according to the metropolitan public prigs.

Encouraged by his success at luring the curious to the Gardens to witness the rhinoceros-gazelle d'jay-doodle, between Chuvalo and Candido Cboy, Ballard is planning to stage further heavyweight fights in the "mint".

Mushmouth, spoofing from his private clam cannery on Ewick's Island, leans heavily towards the Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup fandangos, because, as he says, his great great grandpappy was saved from being ravished by a band of Indian maidens by a French coureur-de-bois somewhere around the third terrace of Cape Trinity.

"Ballard" opined the Mush, toying with a pair of his favorite oats, "needn't look too far for contestants after that Blake-Leafs muscle-tearing melee Saturday night."

"Clancy" he said, "musta read about the expected trouble in Ireland where the hilly-boys of the south might cross shillalaghs with the non-believers of the north in celebrate the Irish uprising a half century ago."

"From the reports" gargled Mushmouth, "he musta given his Leaflan bloodhounds a sniff of a pessoured sweater, yelled 'Sic 'Em' and turned 'em loose."

"The Bitie Irisher" said the Mush, "backed up by a fix-stricken Punch didn't make any bones about his intentions. He briefed his beauts before take-off, telling 'em to take head shots at the teams, hit 'em and hit 'em hard and t'hell with the stick-checks."

"But the Clancy mastiffs failed to intimidate the Blake-Bellevere beagles. They flapped their ears and their fists and while Clancy and his seconds were towelling their warriors poked home a couple of goals figuring that winning the war was better than losing the battles."

"But General Toe Blake of the Montreal Fusiliers does not take too kindly to the Leaflan open methods of warfare. He says, boss, that if the Clancy generalissimo Punch Imlach, Ronnesan and Henri Richard, he'll take it to the courts and mebbe the United Nations."

"In the meantime, boss, as you happen to know where the Black Hawks were hiding out the other night. Don't tell me that was the Rexy Rangers who scampered all over the ice looking for furholes whenever an armed Red Wing gave him sight."

"Any indication that the Hawks had had the Indian sign on the Red Wings during the schedule was purely a figment of the imagination. Tossing statistics and records to the four winds the Wings came out of their nests in hostile territory, moulting the Hawks with an opening charge like "F" Troop coming over the hill."

"They didn't spare the horses nor the body checks. They flailed into the home falconers while the faithful stared aghast from the balconies. I'm told the scient and the deceased fish, Chicago symbols of dissatisfaction with officialdom, lay bare in their confishers."

"The Wings not only soared to new heights, they went into orbit, interring the Chicago corpse in the third period with three pellets in six minutes."

"But, boss, one swallow does not constitute a blago. I do not believe the Wings will seem as high again, nor the Hawks hit the bottom of the play barrel with such a Dud."

"Both Rexy of the Hawks and Blake of the Canadiens have been warned what to expect. And don't think they won't meet fire with fire and steel with steel."

"Don't look for any pesty-pesty parade tonight when the Habs d'jay-doodle into Maple Leaf Gardens. Toe Blake will likely have his haberdiers decrying skirmess to counteract the Clancy shillalagh. In Detroit the talon-sharp Wings, their morale still soaring, will be ready for a desperate gaggle-of Hawks with the lead removed from the southern side of their laps."

"And if you look close enough, boss, you might discern a little hockey, now and then."

Blake Juggles ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Imlach 7-6 To Win

Leafs' Brawlroom Packed For Go-Go

By JIM CREAR

TORONTO (CP) — Now it's Toe Blake's turn to juggle the lineup.

Blake brought his Montreal Canadiens into town for tonight's third game of the Stanley Cup semi-finals with centre Henri Richard on the limp.

Making matters worse for the Habs, Toronto Maple Leafs reported all hands on deck except defencemen Allan Stanley, through for the season with twisted knee cartilage.

Goalie Johnny Bower, who with Imlach and assistant coach Frank (King) Clancy spent the weekend battling infl uenza, is healthy and is an odds-on choice to replace Terry Sawchuk in the Leaf nets.

"Toe" BLAKE.

Montreal leads the series 2-0 after 4-3 and 3-0 victories on home ice and can take a stranglehold on the best-of-seven affair by winning tonight's contest which begins at 8 p.m. EST.

Blake, however, expects to have to do it without Richard, who suffered a sprained left knee when board-checked by defenceman Larry Hillman Saturday night.

SCOFFS AT CHARGES

Imlach ran the Leafs through a brisk workout and then scoffed at Blake's charges that his players are deliberately trying to injure certain Canadiens.

Clancy, accused of lowering the boom on the Habs Saturday when he replaced Imlach behind the Toronto bench, said Blake was just trying to soften up the officials.

"He's a crier from away back," added Imlach. "I'm not supposed to hit the Canadiens? As far as I'm concerned, every time they step on the ice they should be knocked down."

Blake said he expected hard hitting in the playoffs, but what got his goat were published statements in Toronto attributed to Imlach that the Leafs were out to "get" certain Montreal players last Saturday. "I doubt that any coach would say to a player to get certain guys," he said. "And we can retaliate, too."

Imlach, who said he's well enough to handle the coaching tonight, is sure the Leafs can bounce back. Toronto boaster declined to agree, installing the Leafs as 7-to-5 favorites to win the game.

Stanfield Standby

Wounded Hawks Bring Up Help

Billy REAY

Mohns, the workhorse of the Scooter Line with Stan Mikita and Ken Wharram, pulled a shoulder injury but expects to join super-star Bobby Hull and defencemen Doug Jarrett exchanged up when the Hawks won the opener 2-1 last Thursday—when the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final resumes here tonight.

"I don't even remember how it happened but it's not too bad," Mohns said after treatment Monday.

Hull, who suffered a knee injury, saw limited action Sunday. Jarrett, who has a bad back, was dressed but did not play.

CALL UP STANFIELD

With two left wingers ailing, the Hawks called up Jack Stanfield from Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League as a standby in case Hull or Mohns is unable to start tonight. Stanfield, whose younger brother Fred is a Chicago utility forward, completed his season with Buffalo Sunday.

Bob Issans arrived in Detroit Sunday night after the two Chicago games but coach Sid Abel immediately whisked the Red Wings off to their hideaway in nearby Toledo, Ohio, where they will remain until shortly before game time and return at the conclusion of the game. The series Thursday. The series then moves back to Chicago for the fifth game Sunday.

Mohns, a converted defenceman who came to Chicago in a trade for Ab McDonald and Reg Fleming at the start of last season, scored three goals and assisted on four in 34 playoff games last spring and scored 25 goals during the regular schedule this year.

The Red Wings have only one doubtful starter after the two bruising games in Chicago and he wasn't a victim of Black Hawk muscle. Defenceman Pete Goegan was felled by the flu.

EXPECTED TO PLAY

Detroit forward Paul Henderson received treatment for a groin injury suffered when he was carried into the open door of the Chicago bench during Sunday's game and is expected to play.

Four Overtime Periods

SACO Wins Marathon

A goal by Jack Lucas in the first minute of the fourth overtime period climaxed a tremendous battle at Memorial Arena last night and gave SACO a 3-1 playoff triumph over the Ter - Haze Dusters.

The victory also gave SACO a 2-1 lead in games, with two wins, in the best-of-seven Quinte Hockey League finals.

Sixth game of the set is scheduled for Thursday night, at eight o'clock, and SACO can wrap up the title with a victory.

Great goal - keeping by Frenchy of SACO and Genereaux of Ter - Haze enhanced last night's battle.

French gave the Dauber's lone goal at 2.25 of the first period, scored by Hubert Pointer unassisted. Then followed the losers over the remainder.

SACO tied it at 13.40 of the second period. Doug Wallace was the marksman, assisted by Gary Genereaux.

Three ten-minute overtime periods went by without either goalie giving way but at one - minute even of the fourth and sudden - death heat, Lucas rapped home the winner on a play with Ray Allen.

Only seven minor penalties were assessed over the route, four to SACO, and only one of these came in overtime.

The victory was SACO's second in a row after the first two games of the series ended in overtime ties and Ter - Haze won the third 4-3.

With ice slated to go out of the arena next Monday, the league plans to wrap up the series this week.

The league banquet is scheduled for Friday, April 22.

Jack Nicklaus Sets Masters Record

Third In Four Years

AUGUSTA, Ga. (CP)—Jack Nicklaus, who needed a repetero to stay in the running Sunday, didn't miss his second chance at the Masters Golf Tournament title 24 hours later.

His victory in the 18-hole playoff with Tommy Jacobs and Gay Brewer added another to the Nicklaus list of historic August achievements. Already he became the first man to win the Masters two years in a row. He has won it three times in four years, finishing in a second-place tie the year he didn't win.

Last year he set the tournament record of 271—17 under par—and included a second-equalling 64 en route. When he won his first Masters three years ago at 23 he became the youngest winner of the classic.

The $20,000 he earned by shooting a playoff 70 against 72 for Jacobs and 73 for Brewer brought his official money earnings since he turned professional to over $449,009.

At 26 he stands as the recognized No. 1 man in golf.

By winning the Masters he has taken the first step toward accomplishing the Grand Slam of professional golf.

The British Open, the United States Open and the PGA Championship round out the prestige-laden quartet he'd like to sweep.

The only person ever to accomplish the feat was Bobby Jones, who turned the trick in 1930.

TO LIMIT PLAY

Nicklaus plans to limit his official PGA tournaments to between 17 and 20 this year but with overseas competition and non-official events added, he'll play considerably more golf.

He had been disgusted with his self-termed "blowing" of the tournament after starting with a pace - setting 68. He dropped to a second-place tie after a second round 70, then back to a 54-hole tie for the lead after a par 72 and, finally, a 72-hole tie at 283 after another 72.

On Monday, however, he regained his sub-par touch. His shot the 6,980-yard Augusta National course in 65-35 and took the lead for good on the 10th hole, on which Jacobs went over par.

Jacobs, 31-year - old professional from Bermuda Dunes, Calif., had blotted the first hole with a 25-foot putt, but Nicklaus matched that birdie with one on the second hole and he and Jacobs waged a head-to-head duel through the rest of the front nine.

Nicklaus blistered long, accurate drives on hole after hole and improved putting rounded out his unbeatable game.

Brewer, 34 - year - old Dallas, Tex., professional, had an early indication of a day of troubles when he three-putted the second hole.

He trailed Nicklaus and Jacobs on the 18th shots at the turn, then fell six back after losing two strokes to par on 12. It wasn't until the 15th and 16th holes that he made his only birdies.

Watches won $12,500 and Brewer received $8,300.

A DOWN TO THE WIRE FINISH — Jack Nicklaus uses putter to chip nearly 30 feet on to 18th green as his third shot in final play-off round for the Masters golf championship here at Augusta, Ga. He wound up with two under par, defeating Tommy Jacobs and Gay Brewer. They stand at upper left. Jacobs wound up with even par while Brewer was five over. (AP Wirephoto)

Nip Collingwood 7-6

Regals Grab 2-0 Lead

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—A six-run outburst goal by Joe Hogan gave Guelph Regals a 7-6 victory over Collingwood Shipbuilders and a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals.

Hogan, an Ontario Hockey Association senior scoring champion added to the Guelph lineup Thursday, fired the winner scored with 27 seconds remaining in the extra 10-minute period.

The series resumes Wednesday in Guelph and the fourth game in Collingwood Friday.

Hogan's winner was his second of the night with other Guelph goals by George Monteque, Keith Wolvaii, Bill Burego, playing-coach Butch Martin and Walt Bradley.

Dave McComb was the big attacker for Shipbuilders with three goals and one assist. Ric Brainard, Ron Taylor and Corby Adams completed the scoring.

Referee Bob Nadin called a total of 48 minutes in penalties, including three majors.

Collingwood goalkeeper Chuck Jewell had a busy night as the Regals unleashed 46 shots. Guelph's Boat Hurley faced 38 shots.

Canadiens Nip Leafs For Midget Title

Canadiens captured the B.M. H.A. Midget championship last night by nipping the Leafs in a 3-4 contest.

Meanwhile, the novice and peewee "A" finals both got under way.

Bruins tripped the Generals 4-1 in the first game of the peewee finals, with the second game set for tonight at 7.10.

Hawks whitewashed the Bellevue Braves 3-0 in the novice series, with their second game slated for 8.10 tonight.

Midget Canadiens won the championship series in two consecutive games over the Leafs. A. Ray triggered two goals for the winners with D. MacCormack, K. Marek and D. Thompson notching the others. For Whelan, Marek and Thompson had each a assist.

N. Goyer paced the Leafs with a goal and two assists while D. Fraser had one of each. J. Anderson and R. Mallory also scored.

Tonight peewee Bruins got single goals from Mike Sullivan, C. Bourgeau, T. Cowie and Chris Evans. D. Ingland gained two assists, Cowie, Sullivan and A. MacDonald one each. Dale Card potted the lone goal for the Generals, unassisted.

In the novice, goalie Larry Rivers chalked up the shutout. Steven Tracey and Robert McKay scored top goals each with Steven Hedge and Kevin McKeown getting the others. Tracey also assisted on the other four goals while McKeown got a pair and Hedge one.

BD Softball Meeting Tomorrow

The Belleville and District Softball League hopes to finalize plans for the fast - approaching season when the third meeting of the year is held tomorrow (Wednesday) night.

Two earlier meetings provided plenty of verbal fireworks and the possibility of from four to nine entries this year.

However, with the schedule opening just over a month away much is yet to be settled. All entries are requested to have a representative at Wednesday's meeting and entry fees will likely be accepted. Bloomfield, Trudeau Motors, the Bobcats and Tilo Juniors have said they are definite starters.

And the definite formation of the 1966 executive body is also on the agenda. Umpires, ball parks, rule changes, etc. make the meeting a "must" for all interested parties.

The meeting will be held at Bob Temple's home, 19 Bridge Street, East, and is slated to start at 7.30 sharp.

Cleveland Wins Opener

Major Leagues Get Green Light Today

By MIKE EATHERT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The baseball season rolls into high gear today with six new managers, one new ball park and one new attitude on display —if Boston Red Sox get to the ball park on time.

The new timetable for the Red Sox became necessary Monday when outfielder Carl Yastrzemski was elected the baseball playing captain in club history and admitted "there have been times during the past five years that I've been ashamed to wear a Red Sox uniform."

Yastrzemski took immediate steps to institute a new attitude, announcing a ban on card-playing in the clubhouse before games and ordering all players to report on time—one of the things they occasionally failed to do last year.

"We have too much talent to waste," said Yastrzemski, "I'm sick of being a laughing stock like New York Mets."

The Mets were rained out at Cincinnati Monday. That left only the presidential opener at Washington on the schedule, and the Senators lost 5-2 to Cleveland Indians.

The Mets and Reds try to get the National League started again today, while Chicago Cubs visit San Francisco Giants in anbther day game. In night action, Houston Astros are at Los Angeles, Philadelphia Phillies at St. Louis and Pittsburgh Pirates at Atlanta for the Braves' first baseball debut in the Deep South.

The American League has four day games scheduled — Kansas City at Minnesota, California at Chicago, Detroit at New York and Baltimore at Boston.

Don Heffner of the Reds and Wes Westrum of the Mets will make their postponed managerial debuts at Cincinnati with four other new or used field bosses ready to step into the firing line—Leo Durocher of the Cubs, Eddie Stanky of the White Sox, Grady Hatton of the Astros and Al Dark of the Athletics.

Vice - President Hubert Humphrey, subbing for President Johnson, threw out the Cammy the spear. When I got back to the bench I'm sure Toe wouldn't say: 'Now, you shouldn't have done that.'"

Footnote and another former Montreal hardrock, Murph Chamberlain, agreed that putting players out of the lineup is part of the game.

"Phil Watson stressed it when I was at New York," said Fontinato.

"When we were up against a top team he'd come into the dressing room and say:

"Well, waddya think, should we start this team off with a damn good fight?'

"We took it from there."

Chamberlain, now in the automobile business in Alex, Ont., said he always belted top opponents.

"I never hit anybody but the stars. There's no sense in hitting a guy who isn't going to hurt your team."

Blake was angered by published statements in Toronto attributed to Imlach that the Leafs were out to "get" certain key players in Saturday's game.

The Montreal coach has threatened legal action if Jean Beliveau or Bobby Rousseau is injured with an illegal check.

Gamble Scoring Champ

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Gamble, the 37-year-old left winger who helped Rochester Americans win the Eastern Division title in the American Hockey League, captured the circuit's individual scoring title with 98 points, the final 1965-66 statistics showed today.

Gamble collected 47 goals and 51 assists. He will receive $300 from the league for finishing first.

Cleland Morison of Quebec Aces was second with 95 points. His was followed by Gerry Ehman, Rochester, 86 points and Jim Pappin, another Americans' forward, 81.

Gamble and Alain Caron of Buffalo Bisons shared goal-scoring honors with 47 each while Mortson's 52 assists led in that department.

Cleveland players set the pace in two other categories. Larry Zeidel, the Barons' veteran defenceman, collected the most penalty minutes, 162, and Les Binkley paced the goalies with an average of 2.93 goals a game.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance. (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

City Midgets Bow Out At Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — A determined comeback bid by Belleville Western Tire fell short of the mark here yesterday afternoon as the team bowed out of the Lions Midget All-Star Tournament after a 5-3 loss to Whitby in a B Group game.

Trailing 5-0 after two periods of play, Belleville turned it on in the final 20 minutes to score three unanswered goals and close the gap. But that late drive wasn't enough to do the trick.

Bill McBride and Bob Moore each counted twice for Whitby while John Norwood scored once. Ray Summers led Belleville with a pair of goals. Wayne Storms had the other marker for the losers.

Grantgrove, Bradford and Preston joined Belleville on the sidelines yesterday. The Grantgrove team was overpowered by Orbawa 13-1 in a B section game and in the A series, Bowmanville topped Bradford 7-3 and Kingston blanked Preston 8-0.

The tournament continues at the Community Gardens here today, Wednesday and Thursday with group finals and the grand championship game scheduled for Friday.

"Go And Get 'Em" - What Else Is New?

TORONTO (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach, trained scent support in his stand against Toe Blake's charges that Toronto Maple Leafs are trying to put Montreal Canadiens' players out of action.

Blake charged the Leafs with excessively rough tactics following Saturday's game in Montreal in which the Canadiens scored a 3-0 victory for a 2-0 lead in the National Hockey League best - of - seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

The teams resume the series here tonight with the fourth game Thursday night.

Leo Fontinato, former tough guy with New York Rangers and Montreal, said Monday that Blake never instructed him to deliberately injure an opponent.

"But, for instance, I know he didn't like it if Little Charlie Henry scored a goal," said Fontinato, knocked out of hockey by a crippling injury and now owner of a farm near Guelph. Henry, one of the smallest players in the NHL, played for New York and Chicago Black Hawks.

"He hated like hell having Cammy put the puck in the net," Fontinato continued. "To stop him I might have to give Goderich, ont. (CP)—Belmont Peewees advanced to the D series semi-finals in the Young Canada Week hockey tournament Monday, defeating Zurich 7-1 and Hensall 3-2.

Belmont got the only goal of the first period against Hensall with John Cucinelli scoring. Murray Glanville tied it in the second, but before the end of the period Barry Smith scored twice to put Belmont back in the lead. Glanville scored again in the third.

Hensall earlier defeated Bluevale 4-3 and the latter took an early 2-0 lead. Brian Campbell scored twice for the winners and Tommy Wetherall, Al Dell, Garry Sarara' and Glanville added one each.

In its win over Zurich, Belmont grabbed a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Norman Shackleton and Smith and increased it to 3-0 on a goal by David Hamilton in the second. In the third, Bruce McPherson scored twice and Barry Stratton and Smith once each. Ronald Hader scored Zurich's goal also in the final period.

Players in Masters Did Not Co-operate With Time

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Network television lives by the clock—right down to the second. For almost an hour Monday afternoon the living wasn't easy for CBS and its golf commentators.

The Masters tournament at the Augusta National Golf Club ended Sunday in a three-way tie, so CBS resumed its live coverage of the playoff at 5 p.m. EST Monday.

Somebody miscalculated the speed of the play. All available cameras were stationed on the last three holes—but when the coverage started the three finalists, Jack Nicklaus, Tommy Jacobs and Gay Brewer, had only reached the 12th hole. It was 50 minutes before we saw the players.

In the awkward interim there were verbal battles of the unseen action. They ran—twice—a tape made the day before and film shot from a plane of the first dozen holes of the course but without a single player on them. They described the badness of the course. They recalled exciting events from other Masters tournaments. When the players finally came into camera range we were treated to a long look at the crowd—and the rear.

When Nicklaus sank his winning putt 70 minutes after that, CBS cut away from the tournament so fast that we never did get to see Jacobs' final putt or putts.

CBS could, of course, have put the playoff on tape, edited it down to the high points and shown it in a more convenient time. But TV sports, even more than other types of shows, are much more interesting as we watch when they are live—even when the game is as slow as golf.

Two-hour Movie Feature For TV Getting Big Play

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The two-hour feature for television has replaced pay-TV as Hollywood's pie-in-the-sky.

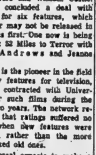
For 15 years, the cry has been: "Wait until pay-television; then this town will really boom!" The theory had been that then first-run movies could be paid for and seen in the home, the Hollywood product would be in greater demand than ever before.

But pay-TV remains only a glimmering hope after years of experimentation. Now the studios are eagerly another, more immediate subject of future prosperity: The movie feature made expressly for television. For 1965-67, the three major networks have scheduled prime-time movies on five nights—Tuesday and Saturday for NBC, Thursday and Friday for CBS, and Sunday for ABC. All three are scrambling for product.

"Within two or three years, the supply of feature movies should become critical," Grant Tinker, new head of NBC programming, remarked recently. "It behooves us to start making plans to replenish that supply."

MAKE DEALS

All three networks have entered into deals to provide new features for television.



CBS recently announced a contract with Warner Brothers for six two-hour films which would be released in theatres first, then on the network. CBS was also reported in negotiations for features by producers Ivan Tors and William Castle.

ABC concluded a deal with MGM for six features, which may or may not be released in theatres first. One new is being filmed: 52 Miles to Terror with Dana Andrews and Jeanne Crain.

NBC is the pioneer in the field of new features for television, having contracted with Universal for such films during the last two years. The network reported that ratings usually drop when new features were played, rather than the more publicized old ones.

Universal expects to make a dozen two-hour shows for television this year, most of them for NBC. Recently the studio had three of them shooting at once: Dragnet—1966 with Jack Webb and Harry Morgan; How I Met my Summer Vacation with Robert Wagner, Peter Lawford, Walter Pidgeon, Jill St. John, Lola Albright and Michael Anzara; The Doomsday

15 Million Great Lakes Residents Being Plunged Into 'Effluent Society'

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Among parts of the Great Lakes, the phrase is that the affluent society is giving way to the effluent society.

It's another way of saying that effluent—sewage of various kinds — is beginning to kick back seriously at some of the community of more than 15,000,000 Americans and Canadians clustered around the seven lakes. Nature is taking care of a low-water problem of several years' standing, only to have it replaced by an emerging crisis of man-made pollution.

It comes about because for a century and more man has used the vast bowl of the Great Lakes as a handy flush tank. Now the inexhaustible freshness—as it was thought to be—of the world's greatest reservoir of fresh water is running down.

Lake Erie is described—depending on who's talking—as "sick" or "dying" or merely in a crisis. Pollution is striking at patches of Lake Ontario. Parts of Lake Michigan, according to some authorities, are deteriorating to a "point of no return."

GOVERNMENTS ALARMED

Governments are becoming alarmed. The International Joint Commission, the Canada - United States agency dealing with boundary waters, has investigated a long-range study to issue an urgent interim report calling for prompt, drastic and expensive action. The U.S. is talking of spending $100,000,000 eventually to clean up its fouled waters generally, with the Great Lakes a major part of its concern. The Canadian and Ontario governments are getting tougher on plants.

While the problem has surfaced only fairly recently, it has been coming for decades as a multiplying population dumped more and more refuse into the lakes. It has come to the point where, in some sections, a sett - freeing chain reaction of waste matter and water organisms has drained off much of the life - sustaining oxygen.

"Lake Erie is sick, not necessarily dying, but sick," says G. W. Worthington, who heads the U.S. government's rehabilitation project for that lake. He reported last year that 2,400 square miles of its bottom were almost sucked clean of dissolved oxygen.

Fish catches — both commercial and sport—have nosedived. Many commercial fishermen have gone out of business—the number is down by about half. Others are operating on a part-time basis.

VIEWS DIFFER

While there is not unanimity that foul water is wholly responsible — some blame overfishing — most authorities agree that pollution is at least a major culprit. At any rate, such desirable catches as cisco, walleye, whitefish and pike have virtually disappeared coincident with a growth of more primitive forms of aquatic life and less valuable but hardier fish such as perch and smelt.

"I don't know that we can ever bring them back," says Dr. George Kerr, deputy director of the University of Toronto's Great Lakes Institute. The institute does research on lake waters and Dr. Langford has been a lone — and solo — voice calling for action against pollution for a half dozen years.

"These changes may not be reversible," he says. "I hope we can stop the spread of pollution, but it's getting worse at an alarming rate."

What mankind has done to, against, particularly in Lake Erie, is a partially self - perpetuating cycle. Each chemical name for it is eutrophication—a word that's going to be heard a lot around the lakes from now on — and it is the process that starts when a body of water gets overloaded with nutrients such as pour out of municipal and industrial discharge systems.

Primeval - type water growths such as algae multiply enormously on the rich diet of phosphates and nitrates, using up oxygen to do it. When they die, they sink to the bottom of the lake. Microscopic organisms feed on them, using more oxygen. And this process releases from the bottom more food that becomes available for the same cycle of growth and decay.

BECOMES SELF - STARTING

Somewhere along the line — and no one is sure just when — there comes a point of no return where the process does not need any more man-made food and perhaps cannot be stopped from expanding.

Prof. R. E. Langford of the University of Toronto's zoology department has said that the western basin of Lake Erie—where the deterioration has gone furthest—probably has already reached this point.

W. G. Kehr, project director for an intensive study of pollution in Lake Michigan for the U.S. Public Health Service, has stated that unless a sanitation method can be found for dealing with soluble salts in its water supply, then there could be parts of that whole American lake irretrievably lost to any water quality is concerned.

Ironically, a saving feature for Lake Michigan has been the celebrated "Chicago diversion" by which Chicago draws 3,000 cubic feet of water a second out of the lake and uses it to flush its sewage into the Mississippi River system. Canadian and American navigation, power and lakeshore interests have objected to the diversion for years.

In the other two lakes—Superior and Huron—no pollution problems have appeared to date. Both are very deep and their shores relatively unpopulated.

BLOOMED SUDDENLY

When eutrophication struck on Lake Erie, it followed its usual courses of building up without noticeable signals and then bursting into full bloom. In September of 1964 about 300 square miles of the lake were found covered with a thick mat of green, slimy algae. One observer described the consistency as that of full-bodied pea soup.

In Lake Ontario, some 43 miles of shoreline between Toronto and Pickering to the north shore was littered and smelled up with algae, and last year it was found in the southeast section of the lake.

Apart from hitting at fishing and recreation, the growths have clintered up filters of industrial and municipal water plants, lowered waterfront property values, interfered with manufacturers of some industrial products and generally offered a threat to a valuable water resource.

"If it goes on," Dr. George Langford says, "there will be large areas where the water will be valueless for most purposes without going through an expensive purification like that needed to make sea water usable. I don't know how long it will take to get to that point."

No one has yet put a dollars-and-cents figure on the size of the problem. But it's big and growing bigger, particularly on Lake Erie.

The critical position on this lake comes about because it is the smallest in volume and shallowest and has been absorbing waste from a heavy concentration of American population and industry in such cities as Detroit, Cleveland and Toledo as well as a half dozen others — and polluted—rivers. Canada's contribution to the situation is only about five per cent.

FOURS IN TONS

Daily the American side of the Detroit River pours into Lake Erie 7,000,000 pounds of solids that settle to the bottom plus 300,000 pounds of dissolved phosphates and nitrogen—the algae fertilizers.

U.S. government report paints a similar picture for other American rivers draining into the lake. "The Buffalo River under normal conditions," it says, "is virtually a dead river. Odors and scums abound. Oils and greases from coal tars and sticks. In the Bay of Quinte special filters are needed to keep algae out of water supplies."

Low lake levels of the last few years have worsened the situation by leaving less water available to flush away contaminants. But this is not a major factor. The lakes' contents settle into definite strata so that the moving water just washes over the top. Thus the current rise in lake levels—while helpful for navigation and recreation — is not expected to rinse out much pollution.

Working in the opposite direction is a proliferation of chemicals—edible or harmful—from many sources. Examples are highway salt, agriculture's fertilizers, weedkillers and insecticides; detergents from millions of household washes, and the massive quantities of acids, cyanides and other chemicals discarded by industry.

While some of these provide food for aquatic plants or have only nuisance value, some are poisonous. Their combined effect is not wholly known. Last year hundreds of gulls died mysteriously on Lake Ontario. They were found to have a high concentration of an offshoot of the insecticide DDT in their bodies. The suspicion is that they ate fish whose body processes concentrates DDT from traces in the water.

Mink ranchers in southern Ontario have stopped using perch from Lake Erie on the suspicion that they pick up some substance from the lake that makes the mink sterile.

Reports like these have caused the Ontario Medical Association to set up a committee to investigate side-effects of materials going into the basin.

GAINING GROUND

Dr. Vance of the OWRC says that body—which has stringent powers over municipalities and industry and is seeking even tougher ones to meet the problems—is gaining ground on sanitary and industrial waste.

"We're not going as fast as I'd like to see on Lake Ontario, where we produce two-thirds of the pollution and yet but I think we're overtaking it," he says.

At one problem gets solved, others develop. A growing one is such mushrooming communities as Toronto is an enormous increase in run - off water from storms due to more roofs and paved street areas to catch it and divert it into storm sewers. Apart from washing away more street material such as oil and grease, treatment plants with the result that raw sewage is carried directly to the lakes.

One of the recommendations of the International Joint Commission is that combined sewers be banned for the future and that existing ones have storm and sanitary systems separated.

The OWRC has been prohibiting new combined systems for 10 years. Separating the existing ones could take another 10 years — or more, at untold cost. An unofficial estimate is that it would be $300,000,000 for Toronto alone.

At any rate, says Dr. George Langford, something had better be done before long. "Five years ends," he will be submerged in our own filth."

Tomorrow: What is being done.

The Golden Years

'Working Stiff' Can Count His Retirement Blessings

By THOMAS COLLINS

"My husband hasn't been treading the carpets in the executive suite," the lady said. "His working years have been on the cement floor. His salary has been too modest to give him tax shelters. His retirement income, far removed from such things as stock options and bonus savings, has been built on the simple structure of a pension plan.

"He is what they call a working stiff . . ."

And this husband, according to his wife, will be bountifully blessed when he retires. It is explains that he will win his freedom from: 1. the alarm clock; 2 the lunch box; 3. 30-minute lunch periods; 4. dirty work clothes; 5. freezing in winter and roasting in summer; 6. fighting rush-hour traffic; 7. rushing to work and rushing to home; 8. arguing with the boss about vacations; 9 those cement floors; 10 years from overwork; 11. frustrations from a bull-headed foreman.

Along with these freedoms her husband will win time for: 1. evening adult education courses; 2. week-day social activities; 3. reading; 4. napping; 5. helping out in emergencies involving children, grandchildren, neighbors and parents; 6. travelling; 7. Christmas with out-of-town children; 8. watching the 10 p.m. TV specials; 9. yard work on weekdays; 10. being my "full-time bagpiper and archaeologist; 11. answering the phone and door bell when I stay in bed with a cold.

This wife is convinced that retirement is going to be a ball in her house. It's a small house—only three rooms. When their five children left the nest they sold their big house, bought the little one, and banked the difference.

At an increasing rate now, retirement is bringing a bundle of blessings to the blue - collared man or woman who retires. The seats of a job — transportation, lunches, clothes — are steadily going up. So are the dues to this and that. The gap between the take-home-wage pay on a job and the semi-lifetime net pay in retirement grows narrower.

MORE PRONOUNCED

The working man always has had built-in advantages over the executive when retirement comes, and these advantages become steadily more pronounced. The working man has no particular status to defend when the job ends, no fancy friends he must continue to impress. He is what he is. The executive often isn't, and is running into his greatest retirement problem on the status matter.

The working man will buy 30 acres in the country and tend 30 head of cattle. Because he wants to do something, to make some money, or because he likes cows. An executive will do the same thing, but because he wants to be a country gentleman and entertain friends. The working man winds up a member of the County Agriculture Committee and a friend of the County Farm Agent. The executive, in the main, winds up looking for another sucker so he can unload his place and flee back to town.

The working man, once he retires, is usually willing enough to do say sort of silly job for civic or church projects. The executive is not. Which is pretty hard for him when about the only job waiting for a retired man these days is a silly job.

Labor statistics show that corporation blue-collar workers by the thousands are scrambling for early retirement. While the white-collars are pouring glue into their soft chairs in an effort to hang on.

Everybody talks about the 'brain drain'

Bell does something about it

Quietly — perhaps too quietly — we've been assembling one of Canada's finest teams of scientists and engineers in our Northern Electric Laboratories in Ottawa. (Northern Electric, as you know, is Bell's manufacturing subsidiary.)

They have already produced new communications equipment that leads the world: advanced telephone/intercom sets for business; the world's smallest fully automatic dial exchange; improved microwave systems; and other items for which there was a specific Canadian need. Now you can see how we not only keep our talent in Canada, but actually attract bright minds from all over the world:

We ask them to solve unique and challenging problems.

Research and Development — one of the reasons why Bell Communications serve you so well.

Three Dead As Storm Batters Italian Liner

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Italian liner Michelangelo, battered by a violent Atlantic storm and a killer wave that reached 120 feet, steamed toward New York with three persons aboard dead and 10 persons injured.

Five men were lost from a British freighter 600 miles off Newfoundland in the same storm. But the U.S. Coast Guard today renewed the search for the missing seamen, washed overboard from the 8,382-ton freighter Clunsel 600 miles southeast of Argentia, Nfld.

A coast guard spokesman said that about 15 ships in the area were on the alert. Spokesman said the men may be clinging to some wooden debris also washed overboard by the high seas.

The Clunsgull is en route from Kingston, Jamaica, to Avonmouth, England, after a stop at Baltimore, Md.

A spokesman for the Italian line said that a baby injured crew member aboard the Michelangelo died this morning.

Two passenger were killed, 21 were injured and the ship suffered considerable damage to deck areas and cabins when the gigantic wave crashed over the liner Tuesday.

The spokesman said the wave was a mountain of water 40 metres (130 feet) high.

In Genoa, Italy, Umberto Nordio, director of the Italian line, said the report of the death of the wave arrived in a radio message from the ship this morning.

Truckers Continue To Fight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Teamsters' Union will intensify its strike against 35 Ontario trucking companies "in as many ways as we can," Ray Taggart, president of Hamilton Local 879, said Tuesday night.

Mr. Taggart, who is also chairman of the joint bargaining committee of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Inc.), made the comment in a telephone interview after union members had voted down a contract offer to settle a province-wide trucking strike now in its 9th week.

No date has been set for further negotiation meetings.

"We had begun to develop some co-operation between ourselves and other unions involved in the transport industry and one of the first things we'll do is to call on other unions to co-operate in any way they can to make this strike more effective," he said.

The proposed settlement, which had been recommended to union members by the bargaining committee, was rejected 2,987 to 1,497 in voting over the Easter weekend.

WON'T CHANGE RESULT

Results from voting in Sarnia will not be available until later today, but Mr. Taggart said the votes would have no effect on the over-all result.

Teamsters in Kingston and Chatham voted for the proposed settlement, while union members in Toronto, Hamilton, London and Windsor voted against.

The settlement offer rejected by the union included a gradual reduction in, the work week to 40 from 48 hours by Oct. 1, 1968, an increase in wage rates for city drivers to $2.70 an hour

FIRST CALL with Bendix

"Mark my words! Make safer tyres and the dealers will suffer."

EXPECTED FRIDAY

He said Captain Giuseppe Sotelli reported the Michelangelo was about 1,200 miles from New York, was sailing safely and expected to arrive at New York or another port Friday, 24 hours late.

Nordio quoted the captain as saying the sea was still rough but shipboard routine was back to normal.

The captain had been quoted earlier in a radio-telephone interview as saying the wave was 32 feet high. But Nordio said Sotelli estimated to him that it was four times higher than that.

Nordio said the ship suffered "considerable" damage to the forward areas. He said metal structure work inside and outside the vessel was twisted and that windows and furnishings were damaged in a number of cabins.

The command bridge and cabins on the lido or sun deck were hardest hit, he said.

Sotelli said earlier in a radio-telephone interview "a fierce wind of about 80 knots was blowing" when the killer wave hit the 44,000-ton queen of Italy's passenger fleet.

He said he was on the bridge when the wave struck about 10:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EST)

New, Gigantic Ice Jam Forms Upriver of Beleaguered Town

SMITHERS, B.C. (CP)—This northern community of 3,300, still trying to repair damage caused by an ice jam, a fire and a quicksand collapse, faces the threat of another ice jam.

A 1-mile Good Friday ice smay a 145-foot section of the bridge spanning the main highway. The same day a $40,000 fire destroyed a pumphouse, leaving the town short on drinking water. Then a quicksand collapse Monday smashed the main power line, flooding basements.

Now an ice jam seven miles long has formed at Quick, a small community 21 miles up the Bulkley River. It could roar downstream, causing more damage here.

Friday's ice jam here was blasted with dynamite. Now the Bulkley can flow through a 150-foot wide channel.

Two engineers are supplying some drinking water to village lagers.

A 40-odd mile detour around the broken Northern Trans-Provincial Highway bridge is still in operation — with special power wagons with winches on duty to pull drivers out of the mud. A detour of 94½ miles is being arranged."

People who live on one side of the river at Smithers and work on the other are being ferried across by helicopter—at $3.50 a round trip.

The main problem, say the engineers, is the "broken sewer, which could contaminate the meagre water supply.

It is planned to bypass the underground break with a 450-foot section of eight-inch pipe, then fix the break.

A chlorinator for the water is on its way from Vancouver, and engineers are preparing a temporary shelter for it. Chlorine freezes at 45 degrees, and in this part of B.C. it must be sheltered from the elements and kept warm with electric heaters.

GUERRILLA MORTAR ATTACK FIRES SAIGON AIR BASE — A GI manning a piece of fire fighting apparatus sticks his head out a window as flames consume an oil tank at Tan Son Nhut air base in Saigon after a Viet Cong guerrilla mortar attack. Seven Americans were killed and 155 other persons wounded. It was the first mortar attack on the base where 10,000 U.S. servicemen are stationed and Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky lives.

Oil Tanker Unloading in Beira Now Ship Without a Country

Red River Threat Remains

WINNIPEG (CP)—Still dangerous though weakened by "miracle" weather, the swollen Red River forced more southern Manitoba residents from their homes Tuesday.

With 4,100 persons evacuated already, the river was rising in its northward sweep toward Lake Winnipeg and thrust flood waters toward the communities of Rosenort, St. Agathe and St. Adolphe.

The plight of Belmont—190 residents of the area sought refuge in high-and-dry Steinbach—indicates the amount of force the Red collected from a watershed extending deep into Minnesota and North Dakota. The village is 25 miles west of the normal river channel a few miles from the Red's border.

But Premier Duff Roblin Tuesday said the situation would have been much more serious except for what he described as miracle weather—

BEIRA, Mozambique (Reuter)—The tanker Joanna V, disowned in turn by Greece and Panama, today continued to keep alive the mystery of what it will do with its cargo of oil.

Shipping sources here said Tuesday night the tanker, moored at a quay here while British keeps up diplomatic pressure to prevent the 18,000 tons of oil reaching Salisbury Rhodesia, would be back to discharging half its cargo today.

But there was no immediate sign of the operation starting. Flying pipe used in the tanker are with the Rhodesia pipeline intakes remained piled on the dockside. A fleet of Portuguese police guarded the oil wharf.

The Joanna V became a ship without a country Tuesday night when Panama followed Greece in revoking the tanker's registration only a few hours after the ship exchanged the Greek for the Panamanian flag.

The Joanna docked here Monday after riding at anchor in the harbor for a week. The Greek government cancelled his registration because the tanker came to this Portuguese African port despite international reactions aimed at keeping Rhodesia from getting oil.

The sanctions were ordered after the white - ruled British colony seized independence Nov. 11.

A few hours after the tanker pulled down the Greek colors Tuesday and ran up the flag of Panama, the Panama foreign ministry announced it was revoking the vessel's registration.

Shipping sources said today the Joanna intended to pump part of its oil into storage tanks and not directly into the 186-mile pipeline leading from Beira to Rhodesia's Umtali refinery.

In Panama, a foreign ministry spokesman said Panama always will abide by the decisions of the United Nations, which has specifically authorized Britain to bar oil from entering Rhodesia, and that Panama will co-operate in any way possible to ensure that no vessel under the Panamanian flag transports oil to Rhodesia.

Three-way Legal Fight Is Looming

SYDNEY (CP)—A three-way legal fight for ownership of treasure found in the wreckage of an 18th century French ship loomed today as a third group disclosed plans to claim it.

Portuguese-born salvage skipper Marcel Sequeira of Louisbourg said he and his crew spotted the sunken wreck of Le Chameau in July, 1961, and later recovered five cannons. He said he planned legal action to back his claim to the treasure, estimated to be worth from $10,000 to $800,000.

Also involved in the wrangle, which will be heard in Supreme Court in Halifax beginning April 22, are groups headed by Louisbourg diver Alex Storm,

CNR and Traimmen Reach Impasse in Negotiations

OTTAWA (CP)—A breakdown in contract talks between the CNR and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC) was reported today by union officers.

Labor Minister Nicholson has been asked to set up a federal conciliation board to study the dispute, involving 9,000 conductors, brakemen, yardmasters, yardmen and helpers.

The BRT's discussions with the CPR, where it represents another 8,500 men, are continuing. A union spokesman said the outlook there is not very good.

The brotherhood is asking for a 30-cent hourly increase for yard service employees and a 15-per-cent wage boost for road service crews. It also wants a six-hour day for road service employees with no reduction in take-home pay. The union says many road crews now work more than 40 hours a week.

Last year, according to CNR figures, conductors received an average of $164 a week and brakemen $160 on road service. The union says average earnings for yard firemen are $2.86 an hour and for yard helpers $2.46.

W. P. Kelly, BRT vice-president, said little progress was made on the monetary issues during three months of negotiations with the CNR. He said the railway proposed a new pay method that was entirely unacceptable because it would have meant more trips and less income for many crews.

A key issue in the demands is for a contract guarantee that no change in working procedure will be introduced without acquisition. This is in line with proposals made late last year by the federal inquiry into CNR crew run-throughs.

Mr. Kelly said CNR negotiators opposed the suggestion.

Kill Eight, Wound 155 In Attack

(From AP-Reuters)

SAIGON (CP) — The Viet Cong gave another demonstration early today of their power to strike at will in the Saigon area with a mortar attack on the South Vietnamese capital's huge military and civilian airport, one of the world's busiest.

In a 20-minute mortar barrage, they killed seven American servicemen and one South Vietnamese engineer, wounded 155 servicemen, most of them slightly, destroyed four planes, damaged 33 aircraft and set fire to an oil storage tank.

Target of the early morning raid was Saigon's Tan Son Nhut base, which houses about 20,000 American and Vietnamese servicemen. It is the nerve centre of Allied air operations.

Some of the mortar shells lobbed at the air base landed only a few hundred yards from the residence of the premier, Air Vice-Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, who as head of the South Vietnamese air force lives on the base.

Similar raids in the past have blighted several game on South Viet Nam's two other main air bases, at Da Nang and Bien Hoa.

HITS RELAY STATION

Among the damaged air craft was a four-engined Constellation used as a relay station for the new South Vietnamese television system.

Armed U.S. helicopters took off within minutes after an estimated 25 to 30 Viet Cong began laying down their barrage with two to four mortars at 12:30 a.m.

Premier Ky went aloft in his own helicopter to join the aerial hunt for the raiders.

The airport is only four miles from the centre of the capital.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, said after an inspection of the damage that it was almost impossible to put an airtight defence around an installation of such size. The base's defences are primarily the responsibility of the South Vietnamese.

The airport has been hit by terrorist bombs three times in the last two years, but the attack today was the first with mortars.

The last major Viet Cong attack in the Saigon area occurred 13 days ago when a terrorist squad killed three American and three South Vietnamese and wounded 143, including 113 Americans, at the Victoria Hotel, officers' billet in the city.

From North Viet Nam, meanwhile, came a protest to the In-

Secrecy Still Surrounds Probe Into Death of Spy Suspect

VANCOUVER (CP) — Secrecy still surrounds investigations into the death of George Victor Spencer and into the past life of the man whose alleged spy connections created political turmoil in Parliament.

Medical examiners today were still examining the body of the 51-year-old dismissed mail clerk found dead in his home here late Saturday night.

City detectives paid another visit to the home of the man fired without pension from his post office job after two Russian embassy officials were deported for spying activity.

Spencer was then left with long cancer. He apparently recovered following surgery.

His death came just four days before a judicial inquiry was to open here into his dismissal.

Prime Minister Pearson ordered the inquiry, reversing the stand taken by Justice Minister Cardin. The action caused cabinet crisis within the minority government but the justice minister stayed on.

Spencer was last seen alive a week ago in a bar here. Two bottles of beer that he took home with him were found on a table in front of the body, partly consumed.

Coroner Glen McDonald has said an alcohol reading of 400 parts per 1,000 in the blood would have contributed to Spencer's death. But he has said no concrete evidence of the actual cause.

An inquest Thursday is expected to be adjourned after medical evidence, not as yet complete.

Vancouver Police Chief John Fisk said considerable pains were being taken to determine the cause of death because of Spencer's notoriety. But there was no indication there was anything amiss.

Meanwhile, Harry Rankin, Spencer's lawyer, said on television he thought Spencer was a spy. "He may have given something to the Russians—a picture of something—but I think this doesn't make him a spy."

Mr. Rankin said nothing about a black notebook which The Sun-Vancouver's evening newspaper, said police took from Spencer's home and which contained "a series of numbers and letters arranged in code form." A tape recorder and tape recording had also been taken by police, the newspaper said.

Postal Workers Critical

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—In a 30-point brief bristling over with criticism of the post office department, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers Tuesday demanded remedies to avoid another crisis in the service.

The 11,000 - member union made its points in a brief to the royal commission headed by Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit of the Quebec Superior Court which is investigating working conditions in the post office department.

The one-man commission, established by the government Sept. 1, 1965, after the two-week postal strike last summer crippled mail delivery in three provinces, has visited some 40 centres across Canada from St. John's, Nfld., to Vancouver.

The commission is investigating grievances by postal workers during the strike. It is expected to report this summer.

Tuesday's brief took a swipe at just about every area of working conditions in the department and created a job at certain other civil service staff precipitation one-third of normal since March 4.

With the river denied additional fuel in its threat to surpass the 1950 Red River flood disaster, flood forecasters Monday revised crest predictions downward.

SHOWS SLIGHT DROP

Tuesday night there was a fractional drop in the river level and a decrease in its rate of flow at the border town of Emerson, cleared of all but essential personnel last week.

"This may indicate that the crest has passed," said flood coordinator Frank Murhead, although flood waters which had swelled to within two feet of the top of the town's western earth and sandbag dike resulted in seepage. Soldiers stemmed the flow with sandbags.

On the east side of the town 80 miles south of Winnipeg, dikes reinforced with sandbags held firm, but Muirhead said:

"We cannot permit any evacuated people to return for at least one week or two. The dikes are going to require constant maintenance and vexing until the water drops by two or three feet."

Forty miles to the north, 72 families in a two-mile radius around St. Agathe left their homes.

Thirty - seven persons registered Tuesday at the emergency reception centre in St. Pierre, bringing the total to 240. Most came from St. Adolphe, home from St. Jean Baptiste and others from St. Agathe.

Flood co-ordinator Bob Wallace at Morris, another evacuation town 40 miles south of Winnipeg, said the situation there was fairly good.

He said that at St. Jean Baptiste, six miles south of Morris, the dike required continual maintenance but "it's in better shape than it has been in a long time."

City Will Buy Antique Lights For Museum

The county of Hastings has declined to assist the city in the purchase, but the Hastings County Historical Society in all probability will get a very complete collection of antique lighting equipment.

City Council several weeks ago in effect agreed that the antique lighting equipment owned by a retired Napanee doctor should be purchased whether or not the $6,000 cost was shared by the county.

The county at its spring meeting two weeks ago took no action regarding the request.

Yesterday city council took no further official action but the $6,000 figure for the antique lighting will be placed in the year's budget to come up for approval by council within the next two weeks.

PENSIONS RISE

The formula will increase employee benefits and contributions by about 23 per cent on average up to $5,000 a year. Membership will be compulsory for all employees coming under collective agreements.

Hotel Owner Says Door Was Broken

TRENTON — What part of a person's body . . . and how much of a person's body . . . must enter the opening of a doorway to constitute a "break and enter"?

This question was pondered over in Trenton police court here by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, Acting Crown Attorney Ralph Graham, and Belleville lawyer Robert Temple, appearing for Harold Wood, who is facing this charge in connection with an incident at the Gilbert Hotel on the evening of March 31.

Crown witness, Ray Richardson, told the court he saw a man kick open a 90 per cent steel front door on the Murphy Street side of the hotel that evening. Richardson said he had only seen the man's toe prabbl, but identified Wood as the man. Mr. Temple suggested that Wood could not have been able to do so had he not seen Wood apprehended by police later.

David Lamb, hotel owner, testified he had found the outside door broken open and that Wood was found in the cellar of the hotel a few moments later, after he (Lamb) had locked down cellar from an inside door.

Nothing was taken from the cooler, but a waiter, William Wellman, said three cases of beer had been moved from the beer storage room to a spot close to the outside entrance.

Wood has asked that his case be tried by a judge and jury and Magistrate Wills sent him to Belleville on Saturday for trial. The Crown has presented sufficient evidence to warrant such a hearing.

PLEADS GUILTY

Bradley Whyte, 20, of Frankford pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance, escaping lawful custody and consuming liquor while under the age of 21 in magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday and was remanded for sentence next Tuesday by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The charges grew out of a quarrel between Whyte and a companion at Brown's Bowling Alley in Frankford last month. Whyte locked himself in a washroom, and after being persuaded to accompany two police officers in a cruiser to the home of the man he had been arguing with, "made off for the woods" when the officers left him alone in the back seat of the cruiser.

Whyte told the magistrate "none of this would have happened if I hadn't been drinking."

Probation Officer Dennis Atkins will bring a pre-sentence report (used in an earlier conviction) up to date before Whyte is sentenced next week.

Junior Mixed Curling Spiel Real Success

TRENTON—The first junior mixed bonspiel held in this district was a decided success. The spiel was sponsored by the three clubs, Quinte, Trenton and RCAF Trenton and the games were played in Trenton and the RCAF rinks due to the closing of the Quinte Club. Fred Maund of Quinte, Ed Walker of RCAF and Neal Ramsay of Trenton were the guiding spirits in the spiel but were given plenty of help from members of every club. Some excellent curling was witnessed and future greats of the three clubs were seen in action. Junior curling has advanced materially in this district and it is anticipated a rink from this district will soon win Provincial honors.

A rink from Cobourg of Sally Moore, Paul Davey, Anne McAllister with Paul Guy as skip won the Fred Maund trophy, the primary event of the spiel, while the Dancon trophy for the runners-up was won by a rink of Linda Salater, Jim Sibley, Marg Romanow with Bill Hope from the RCAF.

In the second event the Bill Dickson trophy went to an RCAF rink of Doris Sharpe, John Sloan, Carol Milder with Don McKitrick as skip while the Ben Corke trophy presented by Dr. Finley McCorquodale went to a Quinte rink of Debbie Ward, Gary May, Mary Lewis with Dennis Lane as skip as runners-up.

The Ireland trophy for the third event was presented by Neal Ramsay and went to a rink of Paula Smith, Kim Adams, Jane Wagar with Bob Steele as skip from the Trenton Club. Frank Miron presented the Micro-Wiggers trophy to an RCAF rink of Susan Drake, Bruce Lord, Judy Rutherford with Steve Powell as skip as the runners-up in this event.

A banquet with dance was held for the juniors on Tuesday evening at the Air Station and this was a gala affair.

associations which it termed "company unions."

Heading the union's grievances was the exclusion of its members from the full collective bargaining procedures of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act (which contains strike provisions). On this point it says:

"It is the union's firm conviction that unless acceptable legislation is enacted granting full bargaining rights, then the next crisis in the postal service will again be upon us."

Personnel and equipment policies were branded "archaic, obsolescent practices"; sections of the Post Office Act gave the postmaster general "carte blanche to practise the worst kind of personnel policy imaginable"; and other examples explained why the department "spawns so many inept and confused supervisors."

The union says "managerial patronage has insinuated itself in place of the merit principle in promotions and calls for abolition of the present efficiency rating system.

DENOUNCE SPYING

Departmental "spying upon employees" gets a real going over.

"Spying devices in post offices must be eliminated. The observation galleries, peep holes, toilet-dash-stop signs and all other degrading gadgets . . . are in daily use . . . spying upon employees using sick and casual sick leave must be discontinued immediately!"

(The peep-holes and toilet devices have been used by the department in stop pilfering from the mails—a difficult type of theft to detect and prove. The toilet gadget prevents possible evidence being flushed away.)

The union seeks curtailment of employment of part-time and casual employees; elimination of all-but-necessary weekend work; greater night differentials and overtime pay; introduction of a comprehensive training program in regions the "completely inadequate" one; longevity pay and liberalization of special leaves; and two daily 15-minute coffee breaks.

Smelly Oil Slick Causing Concern for Harbor Master

A disagreeable and smelly oil slick of "serious" proportions, the source of which has still not been established, is causing a worry for city harbor master Don Barrett.

Mr. Barrett said the oil slick was noticed in the inner harbor following the disappearance of winter ice and since then has been the subject of a number of complaints from residents and boat owners.

Officials of oil companies having bulk storage tanks in the area have been asked to check their tanks for shrinkage, so far with all results and Mr. Barrett said the assistance of the Ontario Water Resources Commission may be asked to help trace the oil seepage.

Last year there was a similar film of oil noticed in the harbor, but the seepage this year appears to be much worse.

Local boat owners are unhappy about the oil slick and the harbor master says every effort will be made to determine the source of the seepage.

In the meantime he does not feel the oil presents any fire hazard.

Truck Overturns At Plainfield

A truck loaded with metal parts and aluminum doors and windows overturned early this morning at Plainfield.

The truck, owned by 7856n Rent-A-Car Ltd., Toronto, was driven by Bernard Johnson Brice, 60, Alex. Ile. was uninjured.

Police say the truck was proceeding through Plainfield about 2 a.m. and toppled over on its side when turning south at the easterly limits of the hamlet.

O.P.P. are investigating.

Plan to Buy Containers For Rubbish

New refuse containers are apparently due for Belleville's downtown district.

A price of $34.00 each for aluminum containers in lots of 30 or more has been quoted by a Trenton firm and the feeling of council members is the containers should be purchased.

Some councillors thought that a local service club, the Chamber of Commerce or downtown merchants might consider the containers a worthy project.

Others of aldermen felt there should be no such request made.

The aluminum containers would require no painting or other upkeep and would hang on light poles clear of the sidewalk.

20, and Glare Bay machine shop manager Hubert MacLeod said, 22.

Storm announced last week that he, David MacEachern and Harvey MacLeod had recovered $1,285,000 from a treasure last fall and had deposited it in a Cape Breton bank.

Macdonald was granted an injunction last Thursday which prohibited anyone disposing of the treasure. He said in an affidavit filed in Supreme Court that Storm was a partner in a group known as the Orbit Association and that his request to terminate the partnership in 1963 was turned down by the other members of the group.

'FOUND IN 1961'

Macdonald, who represents Ronald Blendon, Willard Dillon, Joseph Nearing and Hyman Goldberg, said the Orbit Association found the wreck of the Chameau in 1961 and Storm was made a partner after informing the others he knew the exact location of the treasure.

Meanwhile, Sheriff James MacKillop and Queens Bench County planned to start counting the treasure tonight. Sheriff MacKillop, ordered by the court to round up the treasure and tally it, said he found 146 boxes of coins in a Sydney bank Monday.

Capt. Sequeira, who said Storm once worked for him as a diver, did not disclose what type of legal action he planned. He said, however, that he and the crew of his vessel had prior rights to the treasure.

Storm says the metal value of the coins is no more than $18,000. Sydney coin collector Jack Stephens, who says he is an agent for Storm's group, estimates the value of 250,000. Macdonald says, the find is worth $500,000 to $600,000.

Le Chameau, a three-masted frigate, went down off Louisbourg in 1725 while attempting to make port with a year's pay for the soldiers of the French garrison there. All 310 persons aboard were lost.

Welfare Dept. Operator Praised by City Manager But Recommends Changes

Belleville's welfare department is being operated in a very capable manner but some changes and improvements should be made in its operations.

This is the essence of a report from City Manager J. R. Reynolds who several weeks ago was directed to make an investigation of complaints regarding the operation of the local department.

Maintenance of good public relations with other public social service organizations, with the medical profession and particularly with those persons seeking welfare assistance was among the policies laid down by the manager.

Also directed was the use of homemakers' and nurses' services when the need arose.

Mr. Reynolds proposed that charge - back accounts from other municipalities should be paid promptly where the city has accepted responsibility.

SHOULD PROBE

The financial position of welfare applicants only should be investigated. And payment of assistance given, other than in exceptional circumstances, should not be demanded.

Only persons not qualifying for welfare assistance are to be referred to other public agencies.

Subject to welfare regulations the assistance granted is to be based on need and present - day costs.

And finally the welfare department is to be receptive to staff recommendations.

The request for an investigation into the operation of the city welfare department was made by Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott who said he had received many complaints of people not receiving enough assistance to pay, for necessities.

City Hall Employees Negotiate New Contract

Salary adjustments for city hall workers and department heads are the topic of discussion these days in preparation of the city's 1966 budget goes ahead.

City hall employees, through the Canadian Union of Public Employees, local 140, have negotiated a new contract providing for a $275 increase this year and $300 next year.

A resolution on the city manager was before council yesterday recommending approval of the agreement but the motion was withdrawn pending attachment of the post of deputy-chief schedule.

When the new contract is approved there will be a slight change in the hours of city hall. The new hours will be 9.00 to 8.00 instead of the present 9.00 to 5.00. Under the new schedule, however, time off for noon lunch will be reduced.

ACTION TAKEN

While the new agreement covering city hall employees was temporarily withdrawn, council did approve of a new ungraded salary schedule for department officials.

No action was taken on a letter from the city engineer claiming the ungraded salary schedule would be unfair to incorporating the within grade increases in the recommended salary increase.

An example cited was that one man in his department appeared to be getting a $700 increase over two years while in fact he was only receiving $400 as he would receive $300 in increment in the same period without any change in the present schedule.

Similarly other staff members were actually gaining $100 and $200 respectively over the two year period under the proposal.

Through another resolution the city solicitor was granted a $500 increase in his retainer to $8,000 per year.

Saturday 12th. Showing with high Wind. Reporting to the Surveyor General.

Note: Wilmot's report run to five pages, with descriptions of soil and depths from settlers Alexander Chisholm and John Robert Read, Thomas Coleman, Fishman. Most of the letter was a record of the survey, exactly as in the entries of this date already printed, together with references to a map showing part of Concession 1 of Thurlow.

Wilmot was very suspicious of an old fence used by the settlers which veered to the west of the true line, and he commented that this fence "almost convinced me, there were some person of vile principles interfering at the first setting here . . ." Wilmot mentions establishing a point " . . . where we was told where there had been an original post planted at the 1st survey by Mr. Cosie (McGee) Dr. Dawson and others threwn into the River by the Indians . . ."

Chas. Stapley, Halloway, Dies In Accident

One man was killed and two persons injured in a two-car accident at 5:30 last night on Highway 34 a mile and one-half north of Highway 401.

Dead is Charles Stapley, R. R. 2 Halloway. He was returning home from the Sales and Auction Barn on North Front Street at the time of the accident.

Mr. Thompson was treated at the Belleville General Hospital for lacerations and released. Miss Tulman, a student nurse, is in hospital with possible neck and back injuries.

Police say the Stapley car was northbound on Highway 34 when it apparently went out of control and slid broadside into the southbound Thompson car. Both cars were wrecked.

Mr. Stapley was dead on arrival at the hospital. He was taken to hospital by City Ambulance as was Mr. Thompson and Miss Tulman.

Mr. Stapley, a farmer, is survived by his wife and three children.

Zwick's Island Centennial Project Will Cost More Than Originally Estimated

Belleville's Zwick's Island Centennial project is going to cost more than was originally anticipated.

After earlier estimates which put the cost of development at $100,400, city council last evening heard that the overall cost of the project would now be $154,000.

Following explanation from Mr. Proctor of Proctor and Redfern, consulting engineers planning the re-development of the area, as to the reason for the increased costs, council voted to let contracts and proceed with the work.

Helping to boost the cost of the project was the inclusion of a drinking fountain and lighting of the inland roadways. Also boosting the figure was the fact that engineering and other fees were not included in the original estimate.

Main structural items in the Zwick's Island Centennial Project are the construction of a docking pavilion, washroom and tennis courts and provision of driveways and parking areas.

Prime also called for removation of the existing pavilion building, top soil and seeding of approximately 12 acres, the planting of trees and shrubs and provision of an irrigation system.

Most of the tender prices for the individual items came higher than was estimated and were later negotiated with the two low bidders with some revision in specifications.

Lightfoot Construction were the low bidders for Contract "A" which includes the pavilion, grading pool, renovations to the concession building and installation of drinking fountain. The adjusted tender price is $93,465.

Contract "B" including the

grading supply fill, roads, topsoil and seeding, lighting of roadways and the irrigation system will go to the Tatham Company Ltd. at $30,068.

Engineering and other fees will add about $15,000 to the total.

Cost of tennis courts will be approximately $6,000 above the estimate, renovation to the present concession building will cost more than $8,000 instead of the $6,000 estimate, while grading and fill and also the irrigation system prices were also higher than expected.

To reduce the cost the number of acres for top soil and seeding was reduced and other minor deletions and changes were made.

A Permissive Society

The Victorian standard of morality and the virtual repression of the young people of that day (when children were "seen and not heard") may seem barbaric in these days of Freudian license and growing permissiveness in the upbringing of modern youth.

Like any other standard that has ever been set it was broken often enough, both in respect of the moral law and the tolerance of youthful eccentricities. But the fact remains it was a standard to aim at.

Today the same standard applies, but it is being almost totally disregarded. A recent letter to the Ann Landers column in this newspaper is eloquent of just how far today's generation of young people is removed from belief in the concepts of old.

The letter, signed "My Name is Legion" states: "I'm a female, aged 20, a sophomore at a large Midwestern university. I'm writing about something that is plaguing students on every campus in the country. We are demanding emancipation from the unrealistic and hypocritical rules designed to inhibit our sexual activities."

The writer goes on to say a poll conducted among the girls in one dormitory revealed 85 per cent of the girls were "make-outs," while only 15 per cent were "hold-outs."

Presumably, the same wholesale breakdown of principles being held in high regard in our society is occurring in other institutions of learning across the continent.

We spoke of Victorian standards, but as everyone knows these go back much further in time. But the situation (if "My Name is Legion", and those who share her outlook, can be recalled) is covered unequivocally in The Ten Commandments.

Even before the time of Christ, primitive societies (and there are still some remaining in the world today) had their standards of morality. Then as now, they were designed not only for the protection of the individual but also for the preservation of the integrity of society. Any excursions outside the code of behavior were not tolerated. Then, as now, such transgressions could bring in their train unwelcome consequences. These include the old problem of unwanted children, not to mention social ostracism and quite often serious illness — all stemming from promiscuous behavior. Even more tragic are the mental scars which accrue — the loss of self-respect and of a sense of personal responsibility.

To "My Name is Legion," Ann Landers gives a sympathetic, but not too sympathetic reply. "While it is true that an individual's conscience is still the best policeman in the world," she says, "rules and regulations are essential in a well-ordered society. Human nature being what it is, people behave precisely as they now do if there were no rules, but most of us need guidelines. We have to have limits set to save us from ourselves."

One of the reasons for the great obsession with sex today is the synthetic nature of modern society. We live in a country which has more open space than practically any other in the world. Yet most of us lead conformist lives, boxed into tight urban communities which have squeezed out much of the natural curiosity and interest in sporting and other extra-curricular interests that once stirred in us as youngsters.

She Got Her Man

A distressing feature of life in big American cities these days is a general deterioration of standards of decency and public conduct generally. Murders, muggings, assaults on women, peddling of narcotics are common occurrences in U.S. society.

In Philadelphia recently a gunman entered the office of a finance company, helped himself to the till, then shot three out of five employees he had lined up against a wall. Two of them were women.

An indication of the dangers that exist for law-abiding citizens south of the border is the fact that some carry weapons for protection as they go about their daily business. And one who recently made the headlines is Thief in Atlanta, Georgia, was a 20-year-old girl.

Kathy Hartupee saw a man going through a purse in her car. She trailed him for several blocks before confronting him with a pistol. The man handed over the $15 he had lifted from the purse, and he was picked up by police after the young woman had trailed him further.

All credit to the indomitable Miss Hartupee. We do not believe she came to be armed herself, and there is at least one other medium in the United States who is doubtless pondering the same question.

All too often law-abiding citizens are the losers in such encounters, whether they involve ruthless bandits or just petty thieves. The police cannot be everywhere, and catching a fellow red-handed is the exception rather than the rule. It is in such circumstances that the wronged citizen is on his own. Occasionally, effective counter action is possible ,and that was the case when Kathy Hartupee of Atlanta got her man.

British troops faced a defiant mob of Indians 47 years ago today in 1919—in Amritsar, Punjab state. A series of riots throughout northwest India had occurred and public meetings were prohibited by the British authorities. When the crowd refused to disperse Brigadier General Dwyer ordered the troops to fire. A total of 379 persons and women were killed and 1,208 injured. The carnage caused a wave of horror throughout India and Britain. Gen. Dwyer was forced to retire, but was later justified by the House of Lords on the grounds that the Amritsar massacre saved British rule.

Lack of Exercise Can Weaken Muscles

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there just what emphysema is, by all means send for a copy of my any medication for muscular weakness in an elderly person? Is it better to keep going and exercise, or to rest as much as possible? — Mrs. H. A.

Muscle weakness can result from the aging process, or it can develop for want of exercise. If you have ever been bedfast for any length of time — a week or two, or longer — you know how rapidly even a young person will lose muscle strength. Exercise is important!

In the elderly person, exercise may be limited because of joint stiffness, faulty balance, poor vision, heart or lung trouble, and so on. Within such limitations, remain as active as you reasonably can. Exercise doesn't have to be strenuous to be helpful. Just moving about, doing ordinary chores, will help stall off abnormal muscular weakness. No, do not rest "as much as possible." Although it is only good sense to rest periodically throughout the day when you feel tired.

Walking, simple calisthenics, isometric exercises if you wish, are good for keeping the muscles in tone. Remember that the heart also benefits from such activity.

Regularity of exercise is important. A little exercise every day is much more useful to you than a lot of it once a week.

There is no medication which will strengthen muscles in such cases. In certain instances hormones may help, provided some of the weakness is due to a lack of them. The so-called sex hormones, estrogen and androgen can help if the patient's endocrine glandular production of them has declined too much. In such cases, the anabolic hormones help. These are hormones of a type which preserve skin tone and help build tissues. Any of these hormones, of course, must be prescribed by your physician.

Dear Dr. Molner: X-rays show that I have minimal emphysema. Can it be cured or is it like cancer of a vital organ? Should I "put my affairs in order"? If there is any cure how long does it take in case death — or X?

Let's not be so pessimistic! True, emphysema (loss of elasticity of the lungs) cannot be cured, but it isn't at all like cancer. Minimal emphysema by all means you have discovered it in a very early stage, and your problem is how to keep it from getting worse.

A great deal can be done for you, and there are other things you can do for yourself. If you smoke, stop. Proper breathing, to make the most use of your lung capacity, is very important. Proper breathing passages are clogged, medication can help clear them.

While emphysema does, indeed, claim many lives, many of them could have been saved if proper care had been given in the cases were, like yours, minimal.

Since you are puzzled over by the eight-year-old space age,

Marital and Family Ties

Letter to The Globe and Mail

Probably I am not the only octogenarian with surveys her great-grandchildren with an ageless eye. Marriage and the family seem in the very odd way a vicious cobbide of moral cowardice. Time alone will tell, and time is a commodity upon which we oldsters may not count.

Even '63 may have been prophetic. But did Miss Cameron forget that Eros is the son of Chaos? Eve, indeed, is the mature, responsible woman who, at this juncture, would risk increasing the ghastly preposseession with sex now already flirting our young people.

Often my mind reverts to the thousands of fine Canadian girls who were widowed, society or potentially, by the 60,000 Canadian casualties of the First World War. (The damage of today would probably march on the capital and demand that bigamy be legalized). These girls of 1918 turned their energies, with good effect, into channels still open to them, and if they walled their deprivations, they did so by private rote. But I do not believe they did, judging from the well-rounded, purposeful lives they led. Sexual activity is not indispensable in the development of character. Far from it!

Brantford Expositor

Between keeping up with the Joneses and keeping up with the times life is getting more strenuous every day. The pace is faster and faster. How fast one can see from a scale of the ages of man prepared by Dr. Eugene Orton of Ohio.

The stone age lasted half a million years. The bronze age which came next was only one-tenth as old as that when it was succeeded by the iron age which lasted 5,000 years. The industrial age was no more than 200 years old when along came the nuclear age, a stripling of 22 years already being overlapped by the eight-year-old space age.

Letter to the Editor

Road Safety Is Driver's Problem

To the Intelligencer,

Both the American and Canadian public are aware of the current controversy going on in both of our higher parliamentary houses, regarding the safety of the automobile. A Senator will clear his throat and in a loud voice declare the automobile unsafe to be driven on our high speed arteries of traffic movement today, in so doing, he is in essence accusing the most eminent of automotive engineers of gross negligence, and lack of knowledge pertaining to an engineer's field of endeavour. Will this Senator you are rocking the boat."

Obviously, this same Senator has never heard the old adage, "Not seeing the forest from looking at the trees," or better still, the old American Air Corps adage pertaining to pilots, "There are old ones, but no old bold ones."

Bluntly and to the point, the major automobile manufacturers spend countless millions on research and development to incorporate safety features into the modern motor vehicle. But, and this is so vitally important, they are not responsible to any degree for the erratic driving habits of the man or woman in whose hands this motor vehicle may be entrusted. I use the word entrusted, as the operation of a motor vehicle falls into the category of trust. Who in their right mind would trust a five year old child with a fully-loaded rifle.

This is likening an automobile to a weapon of destruction, when placed in the wrong hands.

Why not spend some time and money on driver education?

Let us observe our local drivers for instance. Our police department would do well to appoint a committee to study vigilance for a period of time. Assign two men to do nothing but observe traffic flow infringements. Their findings would astound the department and to learn just how little Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Public actually know about the proper and safe methods of operating a motor vehicle. I am sure that their findings even on a local level, would create a whole new concept on just why the motor vehicle of today is declared unsafe. I am also sure that these said same local findings would be worthy of national attention if publicized.

If the drivers of motor vehicles were fully conscious of their responsibility as such, automobiles even though made of tissue paper could be operated with the same safety as if they were armor clad.

Safety First.

Trial by Public Opinion

Stratford Beacon-Herald

A Milverton clergyman discussing what he calls "the atmosphere of mob rule" at the Truscott murder trial, is quoted as saying "there must not be a retrial by press and public opinion".

In a letter to a Toronto newspaper, quoted in the Owen Sound-Herald, a woman writes: "It seems incredible to me that the Truscott trial ever took place. It did not put up a fight at this time."

The first statement implies that there was in fact a "trial by press," and the other states that there was not, but ought to have been.

As to the "atmosphere", and news media coverage of the Bourdais' book, the Goderich-Signal Star comments that this matter has created an unreal atmosphere and that sweeping accusations against residents of the area "decried" considerably from the serious judicial questions raised.

It may be profitable to recall that proceedings of the Truscott trial were not reported by any news media except word of mouth. On Sept. 16, 1959, there was discussion by judge and counsel as to the precise meaning of the word "publicity" in the Criminal Code. It concluded with his lordship saying: "My interpretation of the section is that there will be no publicity in this newspapers or radio or television broadcast to the public. I am not going to exclude the public from the courtroom unless certain phases of the case require it. At the end of the trial it may be a different proposition."

At the end of the trial, the result was published, but no appeal was taken, and there could be no published comment, no expression of opinion, until the higher courts had disposed of the case.

Thus hundreds of persons in the courtroom from day to day heard the proceedings through the trial; and ears, unstopped by cotton wool

Catholic Women's League Moribund Says Editor

EDMONTON (CP)—The Catholic Women's League of Canada is moribund, says Douglas J. Roche, editor of the Western Catholic Reporter.

Mr. Roche said in an article in the independent weekly newspaper, produced in Edmonton by Roman Catholic laymen, that the Catholic Church has discriminated against women for centuries.

"By talking down to the women of the CWL, the church has allowed them to undersell their own power for good.

"And by filtering their time (compounded by the delusion that effectiveness is measured by the amount of money raised) the CWL has dwindled into a paralyzing bureaucracy that fails to attract the dynamic young women of today whose world extends beyond church, parish and kitchen. . . .

"The CWL can't move without the okay of the priest-directors, and the priests wait for the approval of the bishops. Small wonder that the image of the CWL has been tied to bazaars and socials and fashion shows.

"You can always count on the CWL to take a stand at dirty books or the CBC, but what have they ever done constructively to mes helping to feed the hunalleviate the problems of pros- dren's the sorry victims of drink."

He said political corruption is not a major problem in Alberta and the province's education system is excellent.

Msgr. Macmillan said the CWL has been engaged in community activities for years, working at both national and local levels on projects such as the Community Fund, the heart campaign, the Red Cross, the Vanier family project and aid for Indians and Metis.

The article in The Reporter, which has a paid circulation of 15,000, said: "A woman can rise to the leadership of 400,000,000 people in India, but let her try to tell her pastor that his sermons are weak and she is over the purity of the Christian message."

Mr. Roche said at the Vatican council, "a vast assemblage of bishops and experts rebuilding the Catholic Church in a way that has not been done since the time of Christ," not one woman was allowed to speak.

Women would never win their full rights as creatures of God in the church unless they fought for them.

Msgr. Macmillan said the CWL's work in fighting social maladies such as prostitution has been largely on a "preventive" nature.

He cited establishment of hostels for girls and women, as well as work in the girl guide movement.

Msgr. Macmillan said drug addiction and alcoholism are problems needing professional treatment, but noted that CWL volunteers can be seen every day at an "Edmonton hostel for

Banana Tree About to Give Up Life

OTTAWA (CP)—The Chinese dwarf banana tree at Government House is about to become a woodnd. And in the best tradition of wildlife drama, the mother tree is going to give up its life for its banana baby.

"I think it's very romantic," says Mme. Vanier, an expert gardener.

She told the story of her exotic plant to reporters in the greenhouse of Rideau Hall Tuesday.

"When the bananas are ready to pick, the tree dies: It's like the salmon. Then new shoots grow up from the root, and the cycle begins again."

She picked several of the green fruits at the suggestion of head gardener Ben Tracey.

"He thinks they may mature better off the tree."

There are two banana trees in the humid greenhouse, which also houses a fish pond, tropical flowers like orchids and countless orange and lemon trees.

The public works department acquired the trees about two years ago through a Canadian nursery.

"They were about two feet tall then," says Mr. Tracey. Now they stand about 12 feet with broad four-foot long leaves. The gardeners say the tree trunks are shrinking as they nourish the fruit.

If you want your own tree, you'll have to acquire a 12-bushel of sdrih, give the tree lots of heat and light and keep temperatures at a damp 65 degrees, says Mr. Tracey.

And in about two years, you'll have a lovely bunch of four-to-six inch bananas.

Dislike of Fish May Be Case of Bad Preparation

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—If you hate fish, it may be more a case of bad preparation than bad taste.

"Some people have never had it cooked the way it can be," says Ruth MacIntosh, assistant director of the fisheries department's consumer branch. "And then they're afraid to try it again."

In her nine years with the department, Miss MacIntosh has cooked fish in almost every way imaginable. She has entertained cabinet ministers at buffet luncheons featuring fish served on her test kitchen's Rosenthal china.

And she has lured hundreds of co-workers into the kitchen to test-taste dishes ranging from golden salmon potato salad to Cantonese shrimp and beans.

The main crime against fish is over-boiling, over-frying or over-baking.

"When you cook it too long, you lose all the flavor. We've had the best results cooking it for a short time at high temperatures."

Frozen fish should be kept frozen. If it must be thawed, for frying or stuffing, it should be cooked immediately.

"Some people put it in the sink and run cold water over it for hours. If you do that, all the juices run away and the flavor with them."

Miss MacIntosh is a slim, dark-haired Maritimer with hazel eyes and lots of freckles. She got her home economics degree from Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., in 1939, and served with the Canadian Women's Army Medical Corps, the British ministry of food in London, and the Ontario department of agriculture before combining teaching and completing her MA at the University of Toronto.

She says her Ottawa test kitchen is the "back room" for departmental operations across the country. It's the headquarters for seven regional representatives, and the source of hundreds of pamphlets and articles on fish cooking sent out by the information branch every month.

The sunny kitchen is about 40 feet long, with aqua walls, dark blue floor and in the centre a long mahogany table and chairs. A subtle seaside atmosphere is created by black metal fish plaques on the wall, sea shells on the buffet, a hurricane lamp and fish-net table centrepiece, and two mobiles of fish.

Classes from teachers' colleges and home economics courses, and interested groups such as institutional or restaurant cooks, come to demonstrations in the kitchen.

At one end, by honey, with an electric range, gas ovens and double sink. At the other end is a small restaurant-size kitchen, featuring an oven to cook for 150, a four-foot-high electric mixer, a dishwasher and a steamer that looks like a little cement mixer.

Taste panels of up to 100 persons rate each test recipe on flavor, texture and general appeal. If they don't go for a dish, it's either changed to their specifications or tossed out of the files. Extra portions of test dishes are sent to charitable homes in Ottawa.

"After we've sent them something, they usually want the recipe," says Miss MacIntosh.

A library of more than 80 cookbooks gives the fisheries home economists their basic inspiration. They subscribe to popular women's magazines to keep up with current fashions in food.

"This year a lot of people got fondue dishes for Christmas, so I'm thinking of working out a fish fondue based on an idea a friend from Malaya wrote to me about. A few years ago when the barbecue fad started, we did a lot of recipes for barbecued fish."

Miss MacIntosh says her favorite food is oysters. She likes cod, too.

"You can make good dishes out of ordinary things."

An example from the files is orange butter fillets, ingredients for which are: 3 pounds fish fillets, 1 teaspoon salt, a few grains pepper, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 tablespoons grated orange rind, 3 tablespoons butter, melted, and a few grains nutmeg.

Cut fillets into serving-size portions. Place in greased baking pan. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over fish. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees). For fresh fish, allow 10 minutes cooking time for each inch of thickness. If fish is frozen, double the cooking time.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Baby Beef Liver; Onion Gravy; Shredded Beans; Potatoes au Gratin (see Tuesday); Cole Slaw; Peach Upside Down Cake; Tea.

SLOPPY JOES GLAMORIZED
(Serves 4)

1¼ lbs ground beef
2 tablespoons minced onion or bottled onion flakes
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
¾ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup catsup
½ cup water

(Note: Alternate method is to use 1 ¼ lbs. ground beef, 1 package Sloppy Joes seasoning mix, one 8-oz. can tomato paste, 1 cup water.)

In large frying pan brown the beef without any added fat, stirring it constantly. Add all remaining ingredients and let simmer for 20 minutes.

Arrange 3 hamburg buns halves on large shallow baking pan. Pile all Sloppy Joe mixture on top, neatly. If desired sprinkle generously with grated cheese or put thin small slices of cheddar or processed cheese on top. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 25 minutes until heated through and bubbly. Transfer to serving platter.

Note: If you want to serve Sloppy Joes for a late evening snack the amount of meat may be reduced. To serve 16 Sloppy Joes, using 8 hamburg buns, use this list of ingredients where everything but meat is doubled: 2 lbs. ground beef, ¼ cup minced onion or bottled flakes, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, ¼ cup prepared mustard, 3½ teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup catsup, 1 cup water.

(Alternate method: 2 lbs. ground beef, 2 packages Sloppy Joes seasoning mix, two 6-oz. cans tomato paste, 2 cups water.)

Method for doubled amount is the same as above for Sloppy Joes Glamorized.

Because the Sloppy Joes meat mixture is precooked you could pile it on the bun halves on large shallow pans in advance, keep them in the refrigerator until serving time and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN MURRAY, MOTHER OF 5

Certainly babies should have some variety in eating their own patterns in the matter of feeding and sleeping for first few months. But as baby grows toward a more settled routine, he should be gently steered toward a reasonably fixed schedule. The baby who is guided toward good habits early, is less likely to rebel at more exacting regulations later.

High on the happy list of favourites for the Bibs' fellow on a full fed schedule are combination cereal-fruit dishes. Mere ingredients, more flavour), Gerber Meat Dinners are bound to win any mealtime popularity contest. That's because these flavoursome casserole dishes are savoury with extra meat. (3 times as much as our regular vegetables and meat combinations). Garden-good vegetables and subtle seasoning are added to the meat for truly sprightly flavour. Nutritionally, they're a good source of protein, offer significant amounts of vitamins and minerals. 8 strained or junior varieties.

Yes' hickory. (1) If baby gets taken apart, put-together toys before he's old enough to use them, let him play with the individual parts, provided they're not small enough to swallow.

Vinyl, Chameleon-like Plastic, Now Giving New Shine to Fashion

NEW YORK (AP) — Suddenly women are glowing in the dark, shining in the rain and dancing the frug in dresses that look like everything from sandwich wrap to elephant hide.

The beaches this summer will be dotted with lasses in waterproof bikinis, topped by see-through jackets.

The material they wear is vinyl, a chameleon - like plastic that has given a new shine to fashion.

Production in the United States of all types of vinyl shot up from 46,000,000 yards in 1963 to 75,000,000 yards last year. Output for 1966 is projected at 90,000,000 yards.

For years, the chemical companies have been turning out vinyl for automobile seat covers, wallpaper, radio casings and sickness shelving paper.

But it cracked, felt stiff, held heat. And no one was about to cut up the upholstery for a shirt.

About three years ago "expanded" vinyl came from the research laboratories.

In the expanded vinyl, the glossy face was laminated to an infinitesimal layer of vinyl foam and given a soft knitted backing. It was rolled, much like dough, into any thickness or weight.

Early efforts to market the new materials in the United States failed. The characteristics of the old vinyl had discouraged profitminded raincoat makers from trying the new materials.

But Paris fashion houses recognized its potential.

Soon vinyl raincoats were splashed across Europe's leading fashion magazines. Coverages hiked its drapability and came up with a white vinyl bathing suit. Over turned out a stretch vinyl ski suit.

Word began filtering back across the Atlantic that the new vinyls were pitiable.

The vinyl boom spread through North America.

BOOM AND VARIETY

And with the boom came variation. Black and white fabrics were overshadowed by new fashion colors — bright yellow, hot pink, grape, lemon and navy. There are vinyl plaids were produced. Then see-through, luminescent, phosphorescent, embossed brocade, gold and silver kid-skin vinyls. Even bolts of vinyls for women who make their own dresses.

In one season, vinyl has gone from outerwear to everyday wear. There are vinyl suits, hip-hugger skirts, sailing togs, drop-dead dresses, tote bags, earrings, shoes, spats, boots and even dog blankets.

A two - year - old playing in a mud puddle in a white vinyl sailor suit could be wiped clean in seconds.

In the medical field, vinyl could adapt to the starched apparel of doctors and nurses and to surgical sheets.

If vinyl has gone from outerwear to everyday wear, it could go all the way to underwear.

Susanna's Family Fare

Dear Susanna: Of course, this is just a small problem, but I would like to know why little beads always form on the surface of my pie meringue after I remove it from the oven. Do other women have this trouble? — Mrs. Wm. Rogers

If we don't, we will, the home economist tells me, if we don't completely dissolve the sugar in the whites before baking.

Really whip up a storm in the beating department for perfect fine, light meringue.

How about soothe and custard?

For an extra puffy soufflé, after putting the mixture in a casserole, make a circle around the edge of it, about one inch from the rim and shoot one half open with the bowl of the spoon held vertically.

The soufflé will then rise higher in the centre and look more appealing.

For a really smooth custard sauce, never cook it anywhere but in a double boiler, and then only until the mixture coats a metal spoon.

What else is new? How about this? It isn't a wise move to juggle the number of eggs called for in a cake recipe. Adding extra eggs is inclined to toughen the cake, while using too few makes it crumbly. — SUSANNA

Dear Sue: A magnet for holding knives, attached to an old broom handle, is marvelous for picking up nails on a driveway and split pins in a sewing room. — Ras Stuart

If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.

Successful Living

Girl Testifies To Miracle of Birth

DEAR DORIS: I wrote you about a year ago saying how afraid I was to have a baby. You said in your reply that it was the unknown that scares us.

Well I would just like to say how true I found this to be and also thank you for the wise advice. I gave birth to a baby boy last fall and I thought it was the most wonderful experience I ever went through.

I thoroughly enjoyed my stay in the hospital. I took prenatal classes and I strongly recommend those to anyone who is having a baby, particularly those who have fears of it as I did. — GRATEFUL.

DEAR GRATEFUL: Good news. DORIS CLARE

Ladies in waiting, take note!

DEAR DORIS: Back in the summer I went with a fellow, until my mother decided she didn't trust him because of the way he talked and acted at times. I got over him and about a month ago I started dating this other boy who I am now very fond of and would not hurt him for the world.

Everything was okay until I saw "Mr. X." (that other boy) up town. I was so surprised that I made a spectacle of myself by giggling and acting goofy.

When I got home I cried my eyes out. Why, I don't know. But I do know that I like my present boy friend, Ron, a lot more than he. I have seen Mr. X. a few times since then and each time it's the same "flirting bit" usual.

(1) Why does he continue to lead me on?
(2) Why does his presence bother me so much?
(3) What can I do to erase him from my mind?
(4) Why does it bother me to see him when I am crazy over Ron? — RON'S GIRL (and Only Ron's Girl.)

DEAR RON'S GIRL:
(1) He is still stinging over your rejection so he enjoys getting you all upset.
(2) Seeing people we were once close to may jar anyone a bit. This will gradually wear off.
(3) Fill your mind up with other interesting things and people.
(4) See answer to number two.

Women Fail to Shop Around for Credit Rates

According to Experts

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Thirty-three young married women failed in more than two of every five test purchases in 20 specified products.

Four-fifths of the families in another study did not shop around for credit rates in buying auto on time and paid an average interest rate of 22.9 per cent, against the 12 per cent for the one-fifth who did do some checking.

These findings, compiled respectively by the universities of Eastern Michigan and Coldersia, help explain another effort by President Johnson to get tighter federal regulations for consumer buying — cash and credit. That includes tighter measures on cosmetics, medicines and some other items.

The outlook for congressional action is not regarded as bright.

SECOND TRY

President Kennedy tried in 1961, and the latest proposals in Congress — urging legislation for "truth in packaging" and "truth in lending"—are somewhat on second effort.

Various privately - proposed bills that might do the trick have been kicking around Congress for several years but the Republican party opposition to the latest moves are voiced by Senate leader Everett Dirksen and Gerald Ford, party leader in the House of Representatives.

"They're trying to standardize for the country," commented Dirksen.

President Johnson's message to Congress said that in the average American supermarket today "the housewife finds 8,000 items — more than five times the 1,000 items she found just 20 years ago." But despite progress, there are "instances of deception in packaging and labelling."

He urged legislation for "simple, direct, accurate and 'visible' information on the nature and quantity of ingredients, prevention of strangely shaped containers, and provision of reasonable and appropriate weight standards.

Democratic Senator Philip Hart of Michigan has been pushing since 1961 for the same thing. Business is opposed.

CONFUSING TERMS

Involved are assorted "cents-off" specials that may merely represent the standard price, plus confusion created by various packages labelled economy, king-size, jumbo or giant. One survey of a supermarket last year disclosed laundry detergents on sale in 20 different weights, ranging from 13 ounces to 32 pounds.

In the credit - interest picture, Democratic Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois has had the cold shoulder applied in a measure that would require merchants to state the interest rate over a full year, plus the true dollar value of loans.

Opposing it are the American Bankers Association, American Bar Association, retailers and finance companies.

The money involved is indicated by Johnson's statement that merchants, lending companies and financial institutions extended about $75,000,000,000 to consumers last year in installment credit.

"The right of the consumer to know the actual cost of his credit has been ignored for too long," the president said, estimating that the interest and other charges to the consumer for time purchases last year totalled $24,000,000,000.

Ann Landers

Harmonica Harry Ties Up Phone

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a widow in my middle 60's. A gentleman who lost his wife three years ago has been taking me out for six months. He is a fine person but something about him bothers me.

This gentleman telephones almost every evening and plays tunes on his harmonica. Sometimes I stand by the phone for 15 minutes listening to several choruses of "My Wild Irish Rose." I'm on a three-party line and the other ladies get mad when he ties up the phone with his melodies. He doesn't hear them holler, "Get the hum off," but I hear them and it's embarrassing.

ANN LANDERS

I hate to hurt the gentleman's feelings because I know he thinks he is pleasing me. Kindly advise. — IN A QUANDRY.

DEAR Q.: Invite the gentleman to serenade you in person. I'll bet he'd prefer a live audience and I'm sure the folks on the party line would appreciate it he'd free up the phone.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You might think it strange that a mother of 19 children is writing to you for advice, but I need it.

My six older children are happily married — two are physicians, one is a nurse and three are social workers. My old-fashioned methods worked fine with them, but my four teenagers at home tell me that times have changed and I must change with them.

I refuse to let my teen-agers go steady. My 15-year-old son tells me that the parents of his special girl friend want him to be her steady fellow and they feel I'm too strict.

My own sister has a son who has been going steady for eight months. He is only 15. When I asked her why she permitted it she said, "What can a mother do when a teen-ager puts his foot down? What is the answer? — OLD TIME MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Put your foot down on top of the kid's foot and sing out, "This is the way it's going to be."

Times doesn't change a child's need for discipline, nor does it change his need for authority in the home. When that authority gets to be the kids themselves — look out.

You sound like a terrific mother to me and I hope you'll use on the four kids at home the same rules that worked so well with your six grown-up kids.

DEAR ANN: Last night my wife and I attended a big banquet. First on the program was a soprano who sang the national anthem. The woman had a beautiful voice and she sang all four verses. When she finished I applauded with a few others.

I remarked to Olive that there was mighty little applause considering all the effort that the singer had put into it. Olive said, "Look, stupid, nobody is supposed to applaud the national anthem."

I say when people sing the national anthem they shouldn't applaud themselves, but when a singer sings it, she should get applause because she is a performer. Who is right? — THE SPOUSE.

DEAR SPOUSE: If you want to let the singer know you appreciated her efforts, tell her after the banquet, but don't applaud the national anthem — ever.

Romanian Workers So Enthused They Hardly Take Time to Eat

Living standards are improving slowly in Romania and have a long way to go before they approach the current levels of most Western countries, Canadian Press reporter John Best, who visited Romania on a tour through Eastern Europe, in this story says the hard work done by its people is contributing to its economic growth.

By JOHN BEST

BUCHAREST (CP) — In a report to the ninth congress of the Romanian Communist party last summer, general secretary Nicolae Ceausescu paid tribute to "the heroic and selfless work" of the Romanian people.

It was a stereotyped statement, of a sort that might have been made by any Communist leader anywhere in the world.

But in Rumania it may have a certain genuine applicability.

At many enterprises in this rapidly developing country, workers don't even leave their jobs for lunch. They simply turn aside and grab a bite while their machines continue to hum away.

A visitor observing this phenomenon for the first time finds it somehow symbolic, suggesting the idea of men working their hearts out for a cause — the industrial growth of their homeland — which Ceausescu has called "the only road to progress, assuring national independence and sovereignty."

It's hard to tell, of course, whether Romanian laborers work zealously in order to build up their country or simply because they must in order to make a living. Perhaps if they had their way, there would be not only a lunch break each shift but a couple of shorter breaks in addition.

Nevertheless some observers believe the leadership has struck a willing, patriotic response with its repeated calls for dedicated effort on the part of the population.

HOURS LONG, PAY LOW

Nationalist sentiments are played upon by such slogans as "Long live and flourish our dear country, the socialist republic of Romania," bannered in factories throughout the land.

Romanian workers put in a basic six-day, 48-hour week and authorities say there's little prospect that it will be reduced in the foreseeable future.

While 1,400 lei a month — $85 — is the basic industrial wage, some workers get only 1,000 lei and menial jobs pay as little as 700. Highly skilled workers and specialists on the other hand can make up to 2,000 lei a month, with bonuses, for which all production workers are eligible.

In some ways, the country might be said to be in a stage of primitive capital accumulation, where everybody works hard producing wealth but draws off relatively little in the way of goods and services to satisfy his own personal requirements.

Romanian authorities don't like the term, in part no doubt because it conjures up the harsh conditions of Lenin's and Stalin's Russia.

While industrial growth has far outstripped wage increases, they say, personal income is slowly rising. They also note that the government is planning to build 270,000 to 300,000 new apartments during the next five years as an illustration of other ways in which living standards are improving.

Living accommodation is cheap in Romania, though there still is not enough to go around. A man and wife with one child occupying a two-room apartment pay the equivalent of $8 to $9 a month including electricity and gas.

On the other hand consumer goods and foodstuffs are fairly expensive by North American standards.

This year the government introduced a measure to encourage private construction of individual dwellings to help overcome the housing shortage. Land will be provided free by the state, which also will make low-interest loans to the builder.

It's difficult to see how any but the highest paid citizen will be able to take advantage of the new statute, however, since applications must make a down payment of 20 per cent of the building's cost before being entitled to state assistance.

Buying a car, too, is out of the question for the majority of Romanians. A TV set or washing machine is barely within range, though it could be attained by a working family at considerable sacrifice, particularly if more than one member is employed.

All in all, socialist construction means considerable austerity for most Romanians.

"The condition of improving living standards is economic advance," says a Romanian government official decisively. "To reach the living standards enjoyed by advanced countries we have first to industrialize."

As a result of what Ceausescu called the "heroic" efforts of the populace Romania has been able to finance its ambitious development program mostly from its own capital reserves. Where it obtained credits from foreign countries it got them at the going rates in the lending market. Generally speaking, only short-term credits have been sought and accepted.

On the level of everyday living the Romanian people are still subject to the kind of controls that exist in every Communist society. Perhaps lighter than, say, in Yugoslavia but probably not as light as in Russia.

The situation is decidedly not as tight as it once was. One of the more significant steps in the direction of improvement, was the release a few years ago of all or nearly all political prisoners.

And the influence of the police is not as pervasive as it once was.

At present conditions, when it is charting new paths of independent development, free of the dictates of the Soviet Union and the Soviet bloc but doubtless under their cold scrutiny, the government is compelled delicately to balance two imperative considerations.

One is to keep the people's loyalty and devotion. This would indicate a further, gradual loosening of controls. The other is to guard against giving potential dissidents scope to manoeuvre against the government for the purpose of turning the country away from its independent course and back to close affiliation with the Soviet bloc.

Whatever the outlook in the civil liberties field, there is little feeling of tension in the Bucharest air, and the atmosphere seems quite relaxed.

The streets these spring days are thronged with chattering people, and coffee houses, oozing with Latin flavor, are jammed at all hours.

There's a feeling of excitement around the town, attributable no doubt largely to the balmy season but just possibly due also, in some degree, to a new heady sense of national purpose.

Romanians seem to relish the experience of being on their own.

Tomorrow: Romania pegs its future to rapid industrialization.

WORKERS MOVE TO NATIONALIST SPUR — At this truck factory in Brasov, Romania, workers leave their jobs for lunch. They grab a bite while the line keeps moving. Observers believe Romanian workers are making a willing response to calls for dedicated effort to build up the country industrially. (CP Photo)

Early Meeting On Annexation Plan Sought

PICTON (Staff) — Town Council has requested a meeting with Hallowell Township, this later than Friday to discuss the proposed annexation of 770 acres of township land on the northern outskirts of the town of Picton. Reeve Bernard Heyworth recently advised council that of council should apply jointly to the Ontario Municipal Board, beyond May 1, the town may have to wait a considerable time before it gets a hearing. It was decided to request the May meeting after the committee, Robert Walmsley, chairman of the planning and development committee, and the township has not yet met with its planners to discuss the report of Picton's consultants who recommended the area to be annexed.

H. S. Board Reduces Budget By $15,000

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward Collegiate Institute agreed Monday night to reduce its budget by $15,000.

The Prince Edward Collegiate Board was told Monday night that its budget can be reduced by approximately $15,000.

James Fleuter, chairman of the finance committee, said that any more than this would be a deficit on the year's operation.

The board had requisitioned for $191,702 from the town, but was asked to reduce that amount if possible. Deputy-Reeve Don Thompson appealed to the board to help Town Council keep the tax rate below 100 mills when he appeared before the board March 24.

Council meets again Wednesday when it may accept the board's final requisition and set the 1961 mill rate.

Yesterday (Tuesday), Mr. Fleuter stressed that the board has not finished exploring all possible ways of keeping expenses down.

However, he said the board is unable to reduce the total county requisition of $302,000 by any more than $15,000 in the short time available before Town Council sets the 1961 mill rate.

"Without drastic changes in education policy, this is the best that can be done at present," he said.

Although it appeared that most board members would approve the finance committee recommendation, it still had not been finally approved by a vote of the board at press time.

Fire-Fighting Agreement Is Discussed

PICTON (Staff) — Members of Hallowell Township Council attended the regular meeting of Wellington County April 4 to discuss a new fire-fighting agreement with the Village.

The township, which pays for fire protection provided by the Wellington department, decided to discuss the matter further at its own meeting April 14. Village council passed a/motion to begin daylight saving time at 12.01 a.m. April 24 and continue until the same time Oct. 31.

Plans for buying another piece of playground equipment for Wellington Continuation School were also discussed.

Clerk-treasurer D. Chesnican said it may be necessary to hold a special meeting in May to set the tax rate for 1906

The next meeting is scheduled for May 2 at 7:30 p.m.

A battery of nine beer kegs aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth holds 3,250 gallons of beer.

Insecticides Use Covered By New Rules

PICTON — The Ontario Department of Agriculture office here warns that all farmers should take note of the new regulations on the use of aldrin and dieldrin insecticides.

Fertilizer-aldrin mixtures are not permitted legally and must not be used. (Mixtures of aldrin, dieldrin, or chlordane with fertilizer have never been permitted).

Aldrin and dieldrin should not be used on any soils that will grow feed (hay grains, root crops etc) for livestock in the near future. The application of these two chemicals should be kept to a absolute minimum.

Farmers should not feed crop residues (beet tops, potatoes, carrot, potatoes etc) to livestock if the soil has been treated for the foliage application of aldrin, dieldrin, D.D.T., or other persistent chemicals.

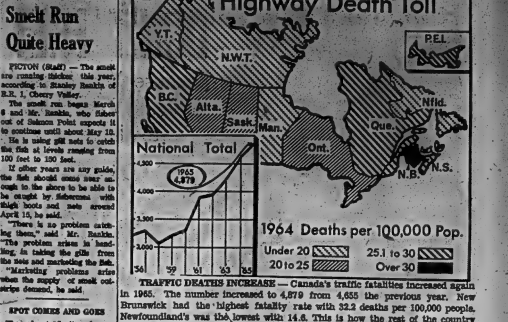
Those having further questions on the use of these materials should contact the nearest District Department of Agriculture office.

Salmon Point Smelt Run Quite Heavy

PICTON (Staff) — The smelt are now running thicker this year, according to Stanley Rankin of R.R. 1, Cherry Valley.

The smelt run began March 6 and Mr. Rankin, who fishes out of Salmon Point expects it to continue until about May 15.

He is using gill nets to catch the big 1-inch fish ranging from 100 feet to 100 feet.



If other years are any guide, the fish should cause near around the shore to be able to be caught by fishermen with dip nets and nets around April 15, he said.

"There is no problem catching them," said Mr. Rankin. "The problem arises in handling, in taking the gills from the nets and marketing the fish.

"Marketing problems arise when the supply of smelt outstrips demand, he said.

New Brunswick had the highest fatality rate with 32.2 deaths per 100,000 people. Newfoundland's rate was the lowest with 14.6. This is how the rest of the country ranked. Around Town

NAPANEE — Grant Clark, chairman of the Red Cross drive, reports that the campaign for funds was successful. It was decided the amount was down from last year. The annual meeting of the Society will be held next week. The course for training swimming instructors, usually held in the Easter vacation has been postponed until June, as a pool could not be secured. However, a refresher course of three will be carried on as usual this summer, as there are sufficient instructors already trained.

Mayor Lorne C. Smart and Grant Clark have been appointed by the Recreation Committee to attend the provincial conference in Toronto, April 21 and 22. Mr. Smart is chairman of the committee.

Information Four Tourist Is Urged

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor H. J. Masterson says tourists of all kinds would appreciate timetables and other information showing them the quickest way to travel in and out of Prince Edward County.

The fact they do appreciate this information was shown by the hundreds of letters Mayor Masterson D. Reber for supplying details about the best way to travel here. Part of the idea, he said, is to ensure that bus companies, railways and air lines do not overlook any detail and that information needed to direct travelers to this county.

Mayor Masterson Hooper suggested recently that schedules should be obtained, from at least one bus line, and that timetables should be published and distributed to hotels, bus terminals and other agencies. He said it should be the business of the company to bend these around to various places.

Loyalist Days Being Planned By Merchants

PICTON (Staff) — Loyalist Days will be observed in Picton the second week of August — 5th - 12th — and the celebration will be advertised far and wide in an effort to attract thousands of visitors.

An attempt to bolder features highlights of previous Loyalist Days is being printed and the Picton Merchants and the Tourist Association and in other ways.

At a meeting last week, the Retail Merchants' Association was disbanded and the Picton Business Men's Committee and Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce formed under the direction of Jack Cohen.

Named to head the Loyalist Days celebration were Ron Scott and Dewitt Taylor.

The Santa Claus Parade will be revived by the recreation director Wayne Rice and members of the Town Set committee responsible for organization. Members of the Volunteer Fire Fighters' Association have offered to help build and prepare floats.

These are two attractions that will further help put Picton "on the map."

ternational Control Commission against Tuesday's raid by B-52s on the Mu Gia Pass, on the Laotian border 32[illegible] miles south of Hanoi, it was the first B-52 raid on North Viet Nam.

Military sources in Washington said the fleet of eight-engined jets from Guam dropped nearly 1,000,000 pounds to create boulders to block infiltration routes leading with the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

On the political front, South Viet Nam's militant Buddhist leaders scheduled for Thursday afternoon a demonstration to coincide with the closing ceremony of the national political congress, which the Buddhists are boycotting. They have demanded that the military rulers step aside in favor of an elected civilian government.

Premier Ky has quietly moved more than a regiment of troops and extra combat police into the Saigon area in the last two days to strengthen his hand.

In the northern garrison city of Da Nang, the starting point of the current political unrest, the newly - appointed northern military commander, Lt.-Gen. Tran That Dinh, said he said he was returning to normal life.

But only Tuesday some 17,000 persons poured into the streets in Da Nang and the nearby university of Hue in demonstrations against the government.

Truckers

from 9c to five stages of a contract due to expire March 31, 1968 and an increase in mileage rates for highway drivers to 8.6 cents from seven cents a mile.

The companies had also offered to drop an estimated $2,000,000 in damage suits arising from wildcat strikes by some Teamster locals last fall, in return for a token $7,500 settlement with the Hamilton local.

The voting to reject the settlement and for the settlement were: Riverdale 1,870 and 560; Hamilton 777 and 367; Kingston 82 and 346; London 344 and 46; Chatham 30 and 39; Windsor 324 and 5.

Mr. Taggart said there will be a meeting of the bargaining committee in Toronto this afternoon when the vote will be discussed and the over-all situation assessed.

He said future demands to be presented to the trucking companies, members of the Ontario Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, will be in line with demands put forward by union membership at meetings during the weekend.

Mr. Taggart said union demands will include a reaffirmation of the 40-hour week sooner than proposed by the trucking industry, shorter term agreements, and maximum protection against broker operations and more money.

The companies refused to grant union jurisdiction over brokers, but offered some protection against inroads from broker operations.

Three Dead

Tuesday. The ship had run into the storm during the night and had been gradually changing course in an attempt to evade its full fury, he reported.

The Italian Line, the government company which owns the vessel, said the dead were J. Steinbach, a 38-year-old Chicago insurance executive, and Werner Berndt of Elmhurst, Queens. The company said both men died of head injuries.

Berndt's wife was among the injured.

Steinbach suffered a skull fracture when he fell in his first-class cabin. Berndt also was reported in his cabin when he was fatally injured.

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Planesville also joined the search for the missing British seamen off Newfoundland after leaving the Liberian tanker Rokos which developed a leak in one of her holds 400 miles off Argentia. The 21,000-ton tanker later reported it had patched the hole and was continuing to New Brunswick.

The Michelangelo left Genoa, Italy, April 8 with 776 passengers and stopped at Naples and Gibraltar. She had been due in New York Thursday, but Italian Line officials said she would arrive 24 hours late.

The liner radioed Tuesday night that she was proceeding normally although waves were still high and winds still strong.

The Michelangelo's sister ship, the Raffaello, also suffered misfortune in the Atlantic last October on her way to New York. A fire in the engine room knocked out a turbine and the skipper returned to Genoa. Fifty-six passengers were injured when the liner reversed course in heavy seas.

Congress Members Watching Turmoil in South Viet Nam

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the U.S. Congress are watching the political turmoil in South Viet Nam for developments that could have a massive impact on this fall's congressional elections.

All 435 seats in the House of Representatives will be contested next November while 33 of the 100 Senate seats are at stake. House members serve two years, senators six. Both houses of Congress now are heavily Democratic.

The possible replacement of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government by a Buddhist-dominated civilian regime that might deal with the Viet Cong could compromise the U.S. position in Asia.

The development of a situation in which a new government might ask the withdrawal of U.S. troops would dump into Presidents Johnson's lap a crisis for which there could be no happy solution.

The division of opinion on whether to get out in such circumstances would be likely to produce a political uproar in the United States far greater than any thus far.

WERE INVITED

The Johnson Hue has been that the United States is in Viet Nam at the invitation of its government to prevent the Communists from overrunning free peoples.

This policy will have to be swallowed whole in any forced pull-out.

To stay against the wishes of a Saigon government would be to invite thunderous world disapproval, led by propaganda that the United States is as imperialist as the Communists have been saying.

If a civilian government arranged a ceasefire with the Viet Cong, it probably would have to be observed by the United States. If Buddhist - arranged elections are held in South Viet Nam, the United States is honor-bound to accept the results.

If there are peace talks, the United States would be hard-pressed to prevent the presence of the Viet Cong at the conference table as a full participant.

Ameliasburg Is Expecting New Assessment Will Add Up to $2 Million to Total

RESIDENTIAL — Ameliasburg's assessment has spiraled upwards since the estate home development started a few years ago. Residential assessment is the backbone of the township's economic structure. One of the recent additions to the Rednersville Road residential district is shown here.

AMELIASBURG — With the physical aspect of Prince Edward County's big assessment undertaking about to commence, no reason to expect that four of the five categories due to be examined will provide as high as $2,000,000 in new assessment for Ameliasburg township. An increase of this proportion would boost Ameliasburg's total assessment close to the $7,000,000 plateau for an all time high.

Providing this probability becomes a reality, township property owners have cause to feel elated, in particular those taxpayers concerned about the prospects of heavier tax demands resulting from the estimated $400,000 expenditure for the Keeler public school to be constructed near the village this year. It is this subject that has given impetus for a switch in the main household topic since criticism of the proposed official plan and its associate zoning by-law waned.

Last year education called for more than half of the tax dollars collected in the township, which means extra assessment will have to be found if the debt created by the building of the new school is to be met without unduly irritating the taxpayer. As it stands now it would be near impossible for municipal fathers to hold the tax rate while the assessment total remained at $4,785,800.

Assessment in Ameliasburg is derived from five sources — farm, commercial and industrial. And because there is little commercial and industrial assessment in the township the bulk of any new assessment will have to come from the three first-named categories. However, this situation does not necessarily mean that residential, non-resident and farmers have to fear radical alterations in their tax bills.

On the contrary, higher assessment normally reduces the mill rate in other words a higher assessment can produce the required capital from a lower mill rate.

Over the years, Court of Revision applicants have sought equality in assessment. This is the key to the new manual being employed for the reassessment by regional assessor Sydney Manley and his staff.

FARM HOMES RESIDENTIAL

As an example farm homes, a bone of contention for many years, have been reclassified residential and are subject to the same rulings. In the new manual, however, compensations are provided for owners of homes that fall in this bracket. Physical obsolescence and functional characteristics are 2 of the factors considered. Adjustments are made in favor of the owners for high ceilings, pantries, solid wooden doors, fancy mouldings and other outmoded features regarded as normal construction 50 to 75 years ago but impractical properties by present building standards.

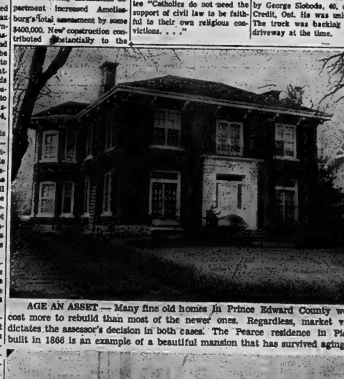
In any event assessment will be determined on the actual market value of the property, which is a combination of the replacement cost less net depreciation plus the value of the land.

Under the new regulations assessors have to make special allowances for fine old mansions, numerous in the county. A case in point is a beautiful two-storey brick residence on Picton's main street. Though the replacement cost of this well maintained 100-year-old dwelling equals that of most of the finest estate homes on the Rednersville Road, the assessment will be in keeping with the market value.

TWO-YEAR PROJECT

Reassessment of Prince Edward County has been planned as a two-year project. Ameliasburg township was selected as the starting point because accelerated new development in recent years had created problems and dissatisfaction that called for priority.

The reassessment has established review of all property values in the county. Lake Ontario Cement Co. position will be examined, along with the others.



In the last three months of 1965 the county assessment department increased Ameliasburg's total assessment by some $400,000. New construction contributed substantially to the addition, with the balance being made up from "neglected" cases and property that had heretofore escaped the assessor's trained eye, the latter is regarded as an untapped source.

The assessment to be gained here will lighten the load for the remainder of the township's 2,000 taxpayers, according to Mr. Manley, who joins office last September.

While non-resident property owners (cottagers in most cases) provide assessment with the highest dollar return, they are not considered a drain on township services 10 months of the year. Court of Revision records show a high percentage of them appeal assessment; not-less complaining they are compelled to pay for school facilities their children do not use. As a rule the court turns deaf ears to their protests.

ISN'T OPPOSED

BOSTON (AP)—Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston, offered no formal opposition Tuesday to an amendment to the Massachusetts birth control law which would permit doctors to prescribe contraceptive devices and drugs. The prelate, spiritual leader of 1,800,000 Roman Catholics, told a legislative committee "Catholics do not need the support of civil law to be faithful to their own religious convictions. . . ."

AGE AN ASSET — Many fine old homes in Prince Edward County would cost more to rebuild than most of the newer ones. Regardless, market value dictates the assessor's decision in both cases. The Parnes residence in Picton built in 1866 is an example of a beautiful mansion that has survived aging.

RECLASSIFIED — Prince Edward County farm homes, like the one shown here, will be assessed under the same regulations as residential dwellings from now on. Owners, however, can expect consideration for outdated building standards and other obsolete factors.

Three Given Added Term For Robbery

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Three men were given prison sentences ranging from eight to 12 years Tuesday for the robbery last September of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in Mount Brydges, 12 miles southwest of here.

John Clarence Hance, 27, of no fixed address was sentenced to 12 years in prison. The sentence will be added to a 15-year sentence for a Peterborough bank robbery, abduction of a police officer and armed robbery.

Edward Mocon, 37, of Oshawa received an eight-year sentence, consecutive to the seven and a half year term he got for the Peterborough robbery several weeks ago. James Lawrence Hutchinson, 27, of Oshawa was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

The three escaped with $34,732 from the Mount Brydges branch Sept. 13.

Hutchinson still faces a charge of possession of an unregistered firearm.

In another court session Tuesday, Hutchinson and James William Burgess, 24, pleaded not guilty to charges of possession of an unregistered firearm and attempted theft of telephone equipment.

They were remanded to April 20 for trial.

3 Leamington Area Youths Die in Crash

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP)—Three Leamington area youths were killed Tuesday night when their cars crashed into a truck on Highway 3 about 1½ miles east of here.

Dead are Wayne Roach, 18, and Dennis Taggart, 18, occupants of one car, and Lonny Toffolemire, 20, sole occupant of the other car.

Provincial police said both cars were travelling west on the highway when they slammed into the side of a truck driven by George Sloboda, 40, of Port Credit, Ont. He was uninjured. The truck was backing into a driveway at the time.

School Mathematics Curriculum Will Undergo Sweeping Changes

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario school mathematics curriculum will undergo sweeping changes from the kindergarten level to the fourth year of high school during the next two or three years.

G. A. Kaye, assistant superintendent of the Ontario education department's curriculum division, said Tuesday the mathematics program from kindergarten to Grade 4 will be brought up to date with stronger emphasis on the beginnings of geometry.

Mr. Kaye also told the Ontario Association of Teachers of Mathematics that a common core will be provided for all four-year students in Grades 10, 11 and 12, including optional topics related to the individual's particular branch of study.

He said the Grade 10 course will shift away from the traditional geometry lessons this fall and further revisions will be made to the Grade 11 and 12 courses later in the school year.

Mr. Kaye also said there are smaller developments during the next few years, including the introduction of an experimental program in computer science, educational television programming and a multi-text-book approach to teaching.

NEW COMMITTEE

He said a committee will be appointed next month to confer with teachers across the province as to what revisions should be made in the Grade 11 and 12 curriculum.

Three committees—one each for business and commerce, science, technology and arts and sciences—now are working on the four-year core program at the high school level.

"This will provide for a common minimum for four-year students who decide to continue their formal education at a College of Applied Arts and Technology."

In other talks to the mathematics teachers' association, A. R. Haswell, an Ottawa public school inspector, and H. A. Elliott, head of the mathematics department at Royal Military College, Kingston, agreed that geometry has a worthwhile role to play at the elementary school education level.

Prof. W. W. Sawyer of the University of Toronto mathematics department, told the meeting all long as people do not know how to begin to think about a mathematical question they are not going to make any progress.

If an attitude of confident enquiry can be produced in both teachers and children, the population will be able to think effectively about mathematics, Mr. Sawyer said.

MUST EQUIP STUDENTS

R. M. Robinson, a vice-president of Canadian General Electric Co., told a meeting of the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council that teachers must equip students to compete successfully in the complex societies they will enter.

Calling for expansion of courses already offered in the schools, Mr. Robinson said that "just as there is technological obsolescence, so there can be education obsolescence if we tie our teaching programs too closely to the techniques of the day."

Earlier, E. J. Lynch, principal of Lansdale High School, called on newspapers and radio to co-operate with teachers in discouraging the less attractive aspects of the "teen-age cult."

The council passed resolutions urging Education Minister William Davis' intention to abolish Grade 13 exams as they now exist by 1968 and recommending retention of Grade 13 pending its examination of the elementary and secondary grade structure.

Prof. Ralph Deal, a communications lecturer at Michigan State University, told the Home Economics branch of the Ontario Educational Association that communication and education are diseased from the top down.

Mr. Deal said the disease is caused by negative reinforcement—criticizing people when they make a mistake but saying nothing when they do well. He said the latter was true most of the time.

In other business at the Ontario Educational Association's annual meeting, English teachers at both the elementary and secondary school levels banded together to form the Ontario Council of Teachers of English. The new group must be formally approved by the OEA.

Ontario Doctors Prefer To Bill Patient Under New Plan Coming Into Effect

TORONTO (CP) — How will doctors bill patients when the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan comes into effect July 1?

Many Ontario doctors say they prefer to bill the patient and receive payment from him rather than going through the government.

In an effort to clarify methods of payment, the Ontario Medical Association sent a letter Tuesday to member doctors, defining methods of dealing directly with patients for payment for medical services.

The methods recommended by the OMA are:

—The physician sends an itemized account to the patient and the patient is responsible for obtaining benefits from OMSIP coverage and paying the doctor.

—The physician sends an itemized account together with an OMSIP claim card to the patient. The doctor can complete all or part of the claim card with the patient completing any necessary parts. The patient then sends the claim to OMSIP, receives payment and pays the physician.

—The doctor completes the OMSIP claim card and sends it to the government. He then sends an itemized account to the patient, stating he has sent the claim card to OMSIP and the patient will receive payment from the plan, which will then be passed on to the doctor.

The letter says that in each of these cases the claim card will be stamped "pay patient."

Ron Brewerton, information officer for the OMA, said doctors can also bill OMSIP and receive payment from the government, but this is a matter for each doctor to decide.

Mr. Brewerton said most of the medical societies in the province have held meetings and decided they would prefer to deal with the patient rather than receiving payment directly from the government.

An Ontario health department spokesman said Tuesday this is in line with government policy.

More Luxurious Autos Coming Says Paper

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says passenger cars produced by the Canadian automobile industry will become longer, wider and flashier.

The newspaper said today that, although the industry is notoriously reluctant to discuss model changes because such talk can dull customers' appetites for present products, the signs are clear Canadian makers will follow Detroit's pattern towards more luxurious vehicles.

The newspaper quotes industry observers as saying the manufacturers will unveil several sporty new models this fall, as well as carrying out a slight face-lifting on many existing cars.

The observers also say the industry is planning major design alterations for the 1968 cars that will start rolling off the production line in September, 1967.

Great Lakes Institute Chief Has Low Opinion of Politicians

By JOHN LESLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Dr. George R. Langford, a veteran educationist and scientist with a six-foot-four physique, academic credentials as imposing and a high degree of composure for most politicians, concludes that not many people in Ottawa like him.

A few observations from a recent interview will indicate why:

"While successive U.S. presidents from Franklin Roosevelt on have made far-reaching statements on Great Lakes pollution, up here they debate the flag and how much we should throw away on Expo."

Proliferating Canadian and American — federal, provincial, state and international — agencies dealing with the lakes outdo Parkinson's Law." (That's the theory that any given number of government employees will create enough work to keep themselves on the payroll.

"The International Joint Commission (the Canadian-American federal agency on boundary waters) acts under qualms and cumbersome old methods. They'll have to get the lead out and get down to business."

OFFICIALS TOO SLOW?

In short, Dr. Langford, director of the University of Toronto's Great Lakes Institute and for years a strident voice calling for steps to halt developing foulness of the lower lakes, thinks there has been too much foot-dragging in official quarters.

His relations with most government bodies being somewhat strained, he's not surprised that his research organization's body of knowledge has not been called upon as an emerging water crisis becomes clear. On the other hand, he's not impressed by the current flurry of official action north and south of the international border.

"Now that they're finally waking up to the problem," he says, "they want to dash off on their own in all directions like Don Quixote's horse."

Action, it is true, is sprouting on many fronts. Up until recently, there were some 77 miscellaneous bodies dealing with one aspect or another of the lakes. A few more are in process of being created as the various governments put on hurry-up campaigns to reverse, or at least restrain, the developing foulness of the lower lakes.

The action has been stimulated by a spreading awareness — now rising to the point of an outcry — that the multiplying ravages of human and industrial waste pouring into the lower — and smaller — lakes are taxing the age-old capacity of the waters to keep themselves refreshed. Lake Erie, smallest of the lakes in volume but with more than 11,000,000 people living around it, is hardest hit.

Eutrophication — overloading with nutrients from above discharges — has caused an unnatural mushrooming of low forms of life such as algae over more than one-fourth of Erie's area. Water quality has deteriorated, more desirable forms of fish have faded away and large sections of shore have been fouled. Lake Ontario and all-United States Lake Michigan have developed similar characteristics in spots.

"Just what Canada will be doing about all this eventually is not yet clear; new moves up to now appear confined to doing more studies. But in the United States — where most of the responsibility for lake pollution lies, anyway — officialdom from President Johnson down is in high gear.

Legislation is going through the mill, and money is starting to shower down. The president's latest proposals call for spending $30,000,000 in the next fiscal year on pollution — federal research (not all on the Great Lakes), and the spending of between $7,000,000,000 and $10,000,000,000 in the next decade and up to $20,000,000 before the whole water-cleanup job in the U.S. is finished.

Under that legislation, a Water Resources Council of federal agencies has been formed. This council has just recommended that a Great Lakes River Basins Commission be set up, including representatives of the federal government and eight bordering states to plan for the American part of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River.

Under another section of the 1965 legislation, quality standards are set for all interstate waters including the lakes, and funds are provided for treating the city wastes that contribute heavily to the downgrading of lake waters.

WANTS MORE ACTION

The federal percentage would be 3 per cent, according to current proposals, to Congress from President Johnson. He also wants federal powers to enforce the rules when pollution occurs on navigable waters — the same as here there is federal jurisdiction — and to bring court suits to stop pollution elsewhere.

Aside from this, the federal government on its own has been doing some arm-twisting at the state and local levels, with the result that cleanup programs have been initiated in such localities as Detroit, which has been the most flagrant offender in contributing to the low state of Lake Erie.

"There's little doubt that this stacks up as the most eventful year in the country's water history, one that we'll probably look back on as epochal," says James M. Quigley, who was top water man in the U.S. health department at Washington until he was shifted recently to the interior department where he will consolidate the entire water campaign by all American agencies.

Canada's programs, if less spectacular, show signs of a stepped-up gait.

This country joined with the U.S. in calling the International Joint Commission in 1964 to study pollution on Lakes Erie and Ontario and the international section of the St. Lawrence River, where the problem is less troublesome. The IJC's "short-term" study won't be completed until 1969, but it made an interim report in December proposing urgent action on a few points.

SEEK JOINT ACTION

The major recommendations were that the federal government act as soon as possible, in association with state and provincial governments, to (1) make sure that municipal and industrial wastes have all possible algae - feeding phosphates removed (2) get storm sewers and sanitary sewers separated.

This gets things into billions in many and years in time right off the bat. So far there has been no indication of what the federal government plans on the two points, though its ministers on the Canada-U.S. joint committee on trade and economic affairs at Washington in March noted the figures "with concern" and agreed there should be urgent and co-ordinated effort.

Federal Mines Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, who carries the central government's share of water responsibility, indicates that Ottawa's activities this year will consist of some sampling of Lake Ontario and St. Lawrence River water. The mines department will spend $1,000,000, and the health department a lesser amount. The Ontario Water Resources Commission — a provincial agency — will conduct other sampling.

Somewhat less tangible — and considerably further in the future — is a role that may be played by the Canadian Council of Resources Ministers, a federal - provincial creation set up several years ago with a secretariat in Montreal.

The conference is planning a fall convention on "Pollution and Our Environment" — it calenderizes water, air and soil pollution costs Canada $1,100,000,000 a year — and is going to start off with 100 expert-written background papers on the subject. After that, there will come another series of papers on how to control it.

But this is a long - range proposition operating on a broader basis than the lake problem, which not only is beset by rakstive immediacy but by the complications of international, national, provincial-state and local responsibility.

The U.S. government appears to be moving in to grasp control firmly on its side of the border, using a combination of legislation, knuckle - rapping, potential court actions and money.

In Canada, "there should be a clarification of who is to do what in these waters," says Dr. J. A. Vance, chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, set up 10 years ago to manage Ontario's water resources, including pollution control.

"They're Ontario waters but they're also national waters," he says of the lakes. "As far as I know, it isn't a case of disputed jurisdiction, but clarification is needed."

He and Mr. Pepin have been conferring on lake pollution recently, and the latest word from Mr. Pepin is that he has had an "interesting report" — contents undisclosed — from Ontario.

In fact, Dr. Vance's OWRC — whose jurisdiction covers the whole northern part of the Great Lakes — has been stepped out on its own at an accelerated pace for years, probably well ahead of any of the eight states touching on the south sides. It has even seen the spending of $1,000,000,000 in its 10-year life — more than in all Ontario's previous history of water use — of this amount $772,000,000 has gone toward pollution control. Its budget is up $125,000,000 a year and probably will be boosted 15 or 20 per cent this year.

Concurrently, major industries in the province have spent an additional $110,000,000 or so cleaning up their waste discharges in the last six or seven years.

"We're still worried about some of them but we're making progress," Dr. Vance says.

He thinks the International Joint Commission's latest alarm signal will have a stimulating effect all around, though outspoken Dr. Langford is critical of the Great Lakes Institute is noticeably less enthusiastic about the work of the Canada-U.S. body.

"The IJC is like a man preaching against sin," Dr. Langford says. "No one pays any attention to it because it hasn't any authority."

He suggests a full-fledged federal department with a minister — one with "savvy and authority" — plus a water board that could work with a similar U.S. agency to "gather up all the loose ends of the 77 various agencies now in operation." The IJC could act as a sort of referee.

"I'm sure satisfactory arrangements could be worked out with Quebec on the problem of divided jurisdiction."

"I don't think there's any black or white answer to the problem," Dr. Vance says. "We're not going as fast as I'd like to see, but I think we're overtaking our (Canadian) pollution. But you can't clear this up overnight. We've been working at it 10 years. It's been happening for 100 years."

Kosygin Says Housing Shortage in Russia Will Continue Beyond 1970

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin last week said there is a housing shortage in Russia and that it will continue to be one beyond 1970, despite extensive construction.

"It takes decades to build up housing facilities," Kosygin told the Soviet Communist party's congress.

From the Bolshevik revolution in 1917 until 1952, the year before Stalin died, only 2,200,000,000 square feet of housing space was built—while the population rose more than 35,000,000 and 25,000,000 persons lost their homes to Second World War destruction.

This meant less than eight by eight feet of floor space was built for each of these 60,000,000 persons alone. Meanwhile pre-1917 housing deteriorated, and industrialization packed a higher proportion of the total population into cities.

Since 1952 housing construction has begun to speed up. New apartment buildings can be seen rising all over the Soviet Union.

By 1970, Kosygin said, there were 42,000,000 apartments and cottages in the Soviet Union—one for each 5.25 persons. By the end of last year the total was 29,000,000 units and the average down to four persons apiece, his statistics showed.

CHILDREN A LIABILITY

Soviet spokesmen say the average should be three persons an apartment, the average family size in a land where children may be regarded as an economic liability and single people and widows numerous.

Even today, the statistics and conversations with Russians show, apartments with several families are common. In 1962 the official Soviet news agency Tass said "in two decades each family, including newlyweds, will have a separate apartment."

Kosygin said 490,000,000 square metres (4,400,000,000 square feet) of housing will be built in the 1966-70 economic development plan, enabling some 65,000,000 persons to move into new quarters.

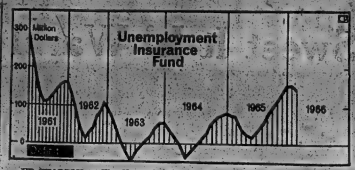
This means each person will get an average of nine by nine feet, of floor space, not including kitchenettes, bathrooms and halls.

The money for this housing will come from the government budget, but Kosygin also advocated more co-operative housing that Russians pay for themselves with the help of government loans.

A NATURAL THING

A prominent Soviet economist has argued that "the fact that working people will be acquiring housing for money is just as natural and regular as their acquiring bread and other products for money."

But some non-Communist observers consider this a deviation from Marxist principles since it enables the rich to evade the long waiting line for apartments which the average worker faces.



Five U.S. construction company officials who spent 26 days touring the Soviet Union in 1962 estimated that the apartment buildings they saw would last only 10 or 20 years and Pravda said in 1962 that 124,000,000 square feet of housing had to be abandoned in the previous three years because of lack of repairs. This was more than 10 per cent of all new housing built in that period, Pravda said.

Despite these problems, the general tone of Kosygin's remarks on housing was that great progress is being achieved.

Few observers here would doubt it. Nor would they doubt Kosygin's frank admission that even the new economic plan will not fully solve the Soviet housing problem.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

There's a long, long trail of sport-winning ifeak unendingly through the history of the Gerow family.

It's origin I do not know, but it heredity means anything it extends far beyond the youthful days of Walter Gerow, senior, the epitome of baseball and sports in general in this district.

The baseball records and other achievements of the late, tall, thin player and manger is a glowing page in the sports archives of this area. Veterans and younger players and fans will never forget "Walt."

The sports torch he threw was quickly caught by Walter, junior, a slim tall chip of the paternal block who also established a fine record for himself in baseball, hockey and management.

"Young" Walt is perhaps better known hereabouts for his fine play during the old city scene "D" era when Williams and Leo Geyer on what was the "best line" in the league.

Now the manager of the Napanee Community Centre, he has laid away the war gear and has developed into one of the top coaches of the district. His managerial ability leaves nothing to be desired.

He organized, coached and played with a Napanee Intermediate club which won the provincial intermediate title three years in a row, 1957-58-and 1959.

Another "Gerow" has taken up the parental cudgels in the realm of hockey. "Ricky", number one son, (Wendy was the most valuable player award of the Napanee junior squad, scoring 49 goals in 1 schedule play.

But Ricky has not inherited all the sports ability handed down by his forebears. The powers that control such things saw fit to share some of it with another member of his family.

Bellevy it or not, the latest sports acquisition to the Walter and Phyllis Gerow offspring is ten-year-old Janean, better known as "Jeanie".

Jeanie is a very pretty feminine youngster. There is something of the Gibsonish about her. But she is as loveable as a young kitten.

She learned to skate at the toddling age. She loved it, and whether it was the family love of hockey in her blood, she wanted to try it.

Two years ago when she was eight, Jeanie lined up with a Napanee tadpole team in her first hockey trial. She scored a goal and had two assists in her clubs 2-2 victory.

But minor hockey frowned upon a girl playing in the registered ranks and it wasn't until two years later that Jeanie got another chance with stick and puck.

She got permission to play with Roger Carrison's Bears and scored the only goal in her teams 1-0 victory.

But Ontario Minor Hockey Association rules are stern and call for "boy players" only. Jeanie naturally is disappointed but there is no doubt the pretty youngster may be left with the satisfaction that girls can play hockey as well as boys — and she's proved it.

But I imagine she is not worried too much. After all she is, as I said; a lovable youngster who is all "feminine" and loves being just that.

And she gets some hockey satisfaction with playing with a girls' softball team, the "Jets" in Napanee. This takes a lot of edge off Jeanie's frustration, if she has any.

Unlike other cases where a girl played on a boys' hockey team, Jeanie seems popular with her hockey-playing boy associates. They showed no resentment, in fact her ability with stick and puck in low brief appearances may have inspired them to greater effort.

But Jeanie is all girl. She plays the piano. On Sundays she sings in the church choir. She can cook and is an excellent seamstress.

Nor is hockey her only sports love. She is an excellent ballplayer and in track and field won a trophy for winning three events in her age group.

Bruins Take Peewee Title Barons Win

The Bruins registered their second victory in as many nights to capture the BMHA Peewee "A" championship last night.

Bruins topped the Generals 6-3 and won the titular set in two consecutive games.

In the novice finals, Bellwood Barons and Hawks tied in goals 2-2 but Barons won the game and tied the series on the strength of most shots on goal in the overtime.

Deciding game of this set will be played Thursday night at 8:30.

Chris Evans scored the first and last goals in the peewee Bruins' championship victory. Ked Cochrane paced all point men, however, by scoring one goal and assisting on three others. Mike Sullivan had a goal and one assist, A. Mac-Donald a goal and Allen Tebworth one assist.

Dale Caul, Stuart Boardman and David Taylor were the Generals' marksmen. Caul, John Bowerman and Bleks Reeves got helpers.

Scott James scored both the novice Barons' goals with Bill Gibson, Joe Muldoon and David Powell getting assists. Donald Thompson had a goal and assist for the Hawks as Steven Tracy notched the other goal.

In a novice exhibition, Wings blanked the Generals 3-0 with Dean Deakin clashing up the shutout. Eric Powell, Darrell Hamilton and Michael Crewford had the goals and Bruce MacDonald got an assist.

The tyke division finals will be played tonight.

'How Sweet It Is' Warbled Mr. Duff

By BOB TRIBBER

TORONTO (CP)—Dick Duff picked Tuesday night to remind sports fans that traded players come back to haunt their old teams and today his former buddies—Toronto Maple Leafs —have only a ghost of a chance to bounce Montreal Canadiens from the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The 30-year-old left winger made it by interception of a clearing pass to set up Montreal's first goal and launch a comeback that gave Canadiens a 5-3 victory over Toronto and a commanding 3-0 margin in their best-of-seven semi-final.

Until Duff picked off a stray pass by Toronto defenceman Tim Horton and set up Ralph Backstrom for a goal, Montreal appeared anything like defending Stanley Cup champions.

Toronto had taken a 2-0 first period lead and the margin could have been greater except for erratic shooting by Leaf forwards. The Leafs maintained the pressure early in the second and appeared set to run Montreal right out of the rink.

But Duff, one of the few Canadiens able to maintain any semblance of poise in the first 25 minutes of the game, made the play that changed the complexion of the game and possibly the entire series.

Toronto now enters the fourth game Thursday with the realization that only one club in Stanley Cup history—the 1942 Leafs—ever came back after losing the first three games.

BITTER IN 1954

Duff, bitter in 1954 about a trade that cut his ties with Leafs after helping the club win two consecutive Stanley Cups, also was a tower of strength in the late stages when Montreal moved to the defensive to protect its margin.

Backstrom, Bobby Rousseau, defenceman Terry Harper, John Ferguson and Jean Beliveau shared the Montreal scoring. Eddie Shack and Bob Pulford counted for Toronto in the opening period.

If the series is extended beyond Thursday, the fifth game will be played in Montreal Saturday, the sixth here next Tuesday and the seventh in Montreal Thursday.

Toronto came out flying at the start of the game and Shack counted his second goal of the series on a power play at 1:26.

RALPH BACKSTROM

The rugged winger broke through the Montreal defence and slid the puck into the right corner when netminder Gump Worsley sprawled to the wrong side.

In the next 15 minutes Toronto dominated play and did everything but put the puck into the net. Worsley looked particularly jittery and it was more erratic Toronto shooting than his netminding that kept the score close.

Horton got the final Leaf goal after 17½ minutes of play with a bullet drive from the point that Worsley never saw. Just minutes earlier both Dave Keon and Frank Mahovlich—two Toronto stalwarts — shot wide with Worsley out of position and seconds after Horton's goal, defenceman Bobby Baun hit the post.

SPARKS THE VICTORY

Toronto continued to dominate play until Backstrom scored at 2:16 of the second period and ignited Canadiens.

Within three minutes and 10 seconds they moved to the front on goals by Rousseau, his third of the series, and Harper to take a lead they never lost.

Veteran Johnny Bower, back in goal for Toronto after missing the first two games of the series because of the flu, saw his defence crumble in front of him. Allan Stanley—out for the season with a knee injury—was sorely missed.

DICK DUFF

Ferguson killed the last Toronto hopes with his goal 16 seconds into the final period and Duff's clever wrapped it up, scoring into an empty net after Bower had been pulled for an extra attacker.

Fergy, who had several bouts with Shack, was picked by coach Toe Blake to check the rugged Toronto winger. The assignment elated Ferguson and he was even happier when Shack drew a penalty for high sticking him, which gave Montreal a power play that produced Rousseau's goal.

Toronto's chances of winning the series are slim. Montreal hasn't lost four games in a row this season and Henri Richard, Montreal's speedy centre who sat out Tuesday's game with a knee injury, is expected to be ready Thursday night.

Will Re-arrange Light Poles At Alemite

Recreation Director Lloyd "Ked" Doran conducted a meeting that the light standards at the renovated Alemite Field will be moved.

Doran said the decision was made Monday and that the changes are now under way.

Softball officials from the city had earlier expressed concern over the placing of four light poles in fair territory, 225 feet from home plate.

Under the new plans, the two poles in centre field will be moved back to a point 250 feet from home plate. There will be 50 feet in length, says Doran, as compared to their present 45.

The two poles nearest the the foul lines, in left and right fields, will remain but their height but are being moved into foul territory.

Underground wiring will be used for the lighting system and the control panel will be placed inside the building.

The park will be ready for use by the opening of the ball season here, around May 24.

Adult Sailing Classes at Yacht Club

Ben Gapper, Fleet Captain of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, announced that the adult sailing course will be conducted again this year.

Registration and the first lesson will be held Thursday at 8:00 at the club in Victoria Park. Qualified instructors will be in charge of an informal classroom series, covering such topics as basic sailing; navigation; first aid on the water; knots and racing.

"It's an opportunity for all adults in Belleville and district to learn more about this fascinating sport of sailing," he said.

Basic sailing lectures will be given by Mr. Freeman Burrows and Miss Shewe Doyle; Mr. Don Adamson will hold a session on knots and lashings; Mr. Jim Morch will instruct the course in racing and racing rules; Bay of Quinte Power Squadron members will provide two sessions dealing with navigation.

Tiger In Yank Tank Stops Ford

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Whitey Ford had this plastic bottle in his back pocket. No. It wasn't filled with Irish mist or cough syrup. Just plain old hot water.

Whitey had the jug with him Tuesday when he pitched his 11th opener for New York Yankees and lost 3-1 to Detroit Tigers. That is, he had the jug at the start of the game.

Ever since Ford underwent surgical operation a year ago for a circulatory condition in his left arm, the fingers in his left hand have had no feeling in cold weather.

After Ford threw two pitches in the first inning, play suddenly was halted. Out came Charley Dressen, the little manager of the Tigers, making motions toward the umpires.

"You can't use it," Dressen said, igoring directly at Whitey. The umpires agreed because there is a rule against carrying anything in your pocket that might contain a foreign substance.

"You sin't gonna win any peanants that way," said Ford to Dressen in an expurgated version.

CASH PROVIDES VICTORY

Ford also gave up — even more grudgingly — a run-scoring single to Norm Cash in the ninth that sent the Tigers to victory before the largest Yankee Stadium first day crowd in 14 years.

Chicago White Sox struggled through 14 innings before subduing California 4-3 and Baltimore Orioles eked out a 3-2 decision over Boston Red Sox in 12 innings and Minnesota Twins edged Kansas City Athletics 3-1 in other American League openers. The four games drew a total of 102,325, all to cool weather.

The Twins opened defence of their league title with a squeaker. They managed only four hits off Jose Jim (Catfish) Hunter, but two of them were run-scoring singles by Sandy Valdespino, the last a tie-breaker in the ninth.

Tom McGraw's bases-loaded single off the first baseman's glove broke up the 14-inning, four-hour, 29-minute affair at Chicago. White Sox rookie Tommy Agee sent it into extra innings with a two-run homer in the seventh. Joe Adcock had a homer for the Angels.

Jim Lonborg's bases-loaded, two-out bak allowed Bob Johnson to stroll home with Baltimore's winning run in the 13th at Boston. Lonborg had pitched three perfect innings of relief before Johnson singled and moved to third on a sacrifice and fly ball.

Frank Robinson, the former National Leaguer, had a homer and a single for the Orioles while Brooks Robinson drove in three runs on a homer and two singles.

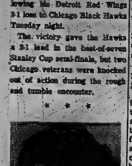
Hawks Grab Rough And Tumble 2-1



May Prove Costly

By STERLING TAYLOR

DETROIT (CP)—"Now it's a case of which team stays the fittest," coach Sid Abel said following the Detroit Red Wings' 3-1 loss to Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday night.

The victory gave the Hawks a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals, but two Chicago veterans were knocked out of action during the rough and tumble encounter.

ERIC NESTERENKO

Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby ran into Chicago's Chico Maki. The chunky forward suffered an injured nose, and although he wasn't taken to hospital, Chicago coach Billy Reay was unable to say whether he will be available for the fourth game of the series here Thursday.

Defenceman Elmer Vasko suffered a 10-stitch cut on his right thigh when he and Detroit's Norm Ullman ran into the boards behind the Chicago goal.

The injury occurred in the first period and Vasko was reported limping badly after receiving the stitches.

SCOFFS AT INJURY

"That doesn't mean too much," said Abel. "I remember Bobby Baun came off the Toronto Maple Leaf bench with a broken leg in the 1964 semi-finals and scored the winning goal against Montreal Canadiens."

Super-star Bobby Hull is also limping from a knee injury suffered in the opening game in Chicago last Thursday. Veteran Doug Mohns suffered a shoulder injury in Sunday's second game in Chicago, and defenceman Doug Jarrett played sparingly Tuesday for the first time since receiving a back injury in the first game.

Hull and Mohns also played Tuesday night.

"Jarrett's shoulder was sore but he played real well," said Reay.

The big surprise of the night came at the opening faceoff when Reay sent out a line of Hull, Maki and Stan Mikita. That left Mikita's regular Scooter Line of Mohns and Kenny Wharram with centre Phil Esposito.

"I decided to play them with Hull, hoping Mikita would break loose with everyone shadowing Hull," Reay said.

Hull was handcuffed by Bryan Watson all night but it was Maki who broke loose to score the first Chicago goal and give the Black Hawks a 1-1 tie in the second period.

SCORES FOR DETROIT

Eric Nesterenko scored the other Chicago marker, while Watson scored the only Detroit goal.

Watson, who has become an overnight hero since he was first assigned to shadow Hull early in Sunday's second game of the series at Chicago, drew rousing cheers from the 14,685 fans for his checking efforts. Hull did get one assist on Maki's goal.

But Watson was responsible for forcing Hull into taking two penalties and drew two himself.

The Wings' forechecking ability was only a shadow of what it had been during their 7-0 rout of the Hawks in Chicago Sunday. Detroit defencemen Garry Bergman said it made the differences between winning and losing.

"If you can forecheck them into their own end like we did Sunday, they just can't get going," Bergman said.

"But they turned the tables on us and we couldn't do a thing about it."

The Wings outshot the Hawks 30-26 with a 13-6 edge in the opening period.

OPENS THE SCORING

Watson opened the scoring at 15:01 and the goal was poetic justice for the partisan crowd.

He had tangled with Hull behind the Detroit net and was thrown to the ice by the stronger man. Almost instantaneously Watson leaped to his feet, scooted down the right side, caught a pass at the Chicago blueline and fired a long bouncing shot past goaltender Glenn Hall.

Both teams were one man short at the time.

Maki's goal came while Detroit's Bert Marshall was sitting out a hooking penalty in the second period. He took a pass from Mikita and went in alone, beating netminder Roger Crozier easily with the prettiest goal of the game.

Nesterenko scored the winner late in the same period. Crozier came out of the net to retrieve a lost puck but Nesterenko, with Detroit's Paul Henderson draped around him, stabbed at it with his stick and poked it into the net.

There were 12 penalties called in the close-checking contest, with the Red Wings taking seven. Jarrett was also assessed a five-minute major penalty for cutting Andy Bathgate behind the left ear with his stick.

The fifth game of the series is scheduled for Chicago Sunday with the sixth, if necessary, back here next Tuesday.

First Negro Umpire In Majors

WASHINGTON (AP)—After 15 years of waiting, Emmett Ashford had finally made it as the first Negro baseball umpire in the major leagues.

Ashford had butterflies before his debut in the American League opener Monday between Washington and Cleveland, but he apparently had none during the game, although he had scant opportunity to prove himself at his post near third base.

Ashford has travelled hundreds of thousands of miles during his years as an umpire. He spent most of his time in the southwest and the Pacific Coast League, where he was umpire-in-chief for two years.

Ashford's view on the differences between the majors and the minors:

"In the minors you might see a top flight pitcher every few days, but in the majors every pitcher is able to pick off three runners. So you have to bear down just a bit more so that you don't miss a call."

OBJECTS TO LIMITS

TORONTO (CP)—The Urban Development Institute charged Tuesday that too much control by municipal officials is placing a straitjacket on development projects. Grant Duff, UDI president, said in a statement that unless the Ontario government sets up a method of arbitrating disputes between municipalities and developers, red tape will choke off imaginative projects.

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—Jim Tettmar paced his Markham team to two wins in the Young Canada Week hockey B series Tuesday.

He scored three times as Markham defeated Ingersoll 4-3 and came back with five more to lead his squad to an 8-2 victory over Petrolia.

Aid in the B series, Eddie Wagner scored three goals as Petrolia downed Listowel 8-2.

Bobby Pearce was strong man in Harspeler's 2-1 B-series win over Hanover, scoring four goals.

Exeter scored a 3-1 B decision over Milton.

In the A series, Doug Demeyere scored two goals to pace Simcoe to a 4-0 victory over Georgetown.

David McDonald and Barclay Mayhew scored three goals apiece as Renfrew blanked Stratford 9-0.

Galt defeated Chatham 6-1 with Paul Smith and Jim Darcy each scoring twice.

Randy Musselman and Dave Weber each scored twice in Weiler's 5-1 win over St. Thomas.

Larks Buy Bill Gray

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced Tuesday they have purchased halfback Bill Gray from Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Conference.

Darrell Mudra, the Ala' new head coach, said the club has also signed Dave McIntosh, a defensive halfback with Loyola College Warriors of the Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference.

Edge Kitchener 3-2

Generals Capture Title

OSHAWA (CP)—Oshawa Generals, often Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions in the 1930s and early '40s, took the championship again for the first time in more than 30 years with a 3-2 victory over Kitchener Rangers Tuesday night.

The Generals won the best-of-seven final 4-1, fighting off a strong Kitchener attack in the final game.

Rangers' aggressiveness was intensified in the last eight minutes of the game after John Beechey pinned them within one goal of a tie. Coach Wally Kilman pulled goalie John Voss in a last-minute attempt to even the score.

Bill Little, Wayne Cashman and Barry Wilkins scored for Oshawa, while the other Kitchener scorer was Walter Tkaczuk.

GOALIE'S GOOD

The Oshawa team swarmed over goaltender Ian Young at the end of the game. Young stopped 37 Kitchener shots, and was under especially heavy pressure during the final period when Rangers were pressing for a tie.

Several fights slowed the game in the second period. Referee Bob Wedin imposed major penalties against Oshawa's Danny Sandford and Kitchener's Ron Schock. Barry Wilkins of Oshawa and Don Tozer of Kitchener received double minors for roughing early in the period.

Another major penalty went to Oshawa during the first period after Bill White left bench to join in a brawl.

Shawinigan Rally Beats Halifax 6-4

HALIFAX (CP)—Three third period goals in less than four minutes brought Shawinigan Falls Bruins a 6-4 victory over Halifax Canadiens Tuesday night in the opening game of their Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-final.

In the best of the best-of-seven series tonight, the Canadiens hope to get extra mileage from their scoring leader, Pete MacWilliams, who missed the opener while sitting out a suspension for three games because of a stick-swing incident in the previous round.

The Canadiens battled the Bruins on even terms for the first two periods Tuesday night going into the second intermission with a 3-3 deadlock.

The bubble burst when Bruins' Pepin, killing a Shawinigan Falls penalty, broke loose to score at 9:57 of the third period. Before the Canadiens could recover, defenceman Alain Beaule drove home a slap-shot at 11:48 and Dominique Pezzetta put the game out of reach with another goal, his second of the night, at 12:12.

Willie Wallops First Homer

Dodgers, Giants, Pirates Win Openers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

At Connie Stadium in Milwaukee, Florence M. Murray, 62, who had never missed a Braves' home opener, took her regular seat in Box 11, Tier 21, holding the scorecards of 12 past seasons.

But there wasn't much going on. The Braves aren't in business in Milwaukee any more.

"It was lonely," she admitted.

At Atlanta Stadium, Willie Landers, 34, took his seat in Aisle 340, Row 23, waving his can of beer and booing as the Braves made their debut in the Deep South.

There was plenty going on.

But Landers was lonely too.

CROWD DRIFTS OUT

"Too many ties here for these people to be real baseball fans," said Landers as he watched the crowd begin to sift out of the new $18,000,000 arena when the game went into extra innings.

And by the time Willie Stargell slugged a two-run homer in the 12th inning, giving Pittsburgh Pirates a 5-3 victory and ruining the Braves' Dixie debut, in half of the crowd of 30,671 had left.

It had been a long day for many of the fans, who had taken part in a day of celebration heralding the Braves' official arrival. Schools and businesses were closed and a ball-day atmosphere took over the city as the Braves paraded down Peachtree St.

And the crowd at the ball park, though 200 less than capacity, exceeded season-opening attendances in either Boston or Milwaukee, the Braves' last two homes.

Leo Durocher's debut as manager of Chicago Cubs also was ruined with Willie Mays frustrating his former boss with a 415-foot homer that propelled San Francisco Giants to a 9-1 victory.

In the only other National League game played, Ron Fairly drove in all three runs as the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Houston Astros 3-2. The New York Cliff Mets and Philadelphia Cardinals game was rained out.

Joe Torre hit two homers for the Braves, the first off Pirate starter Bob Veale in the fifth inning. Jim Pagliaroni tied it in the sixth with a two-run homer off Braves' starter Tony Cloninger and it stayed that way until the 11th when Matty Alou beat out a bunt and Stargell connected.

Torre got one run back in the Braves' half with his second homer, but it wasn't enough.

Juan Marichal got the victory for the Giants, hurling six innings of perfect ball and fanning with a three-hitter, Maritek struck out eight and walked none.

Mays' homer off Larry Jackson broke up a scoreless game and started a six-run fourth inning. Len Gabrielson also homered for San Francisco.

The Handguns

Frank Allin's 203 was the top score at the Quinte Marksmen's regular shoot, at the Armouries, last night.

Don Wilson was second with 264, followed by Louis Rakuse with 262, Clef Smith with 230 and Cheskins with 218.

It was announced that a competition will be held with Kingston this coming Sunday afternoon, at 2.30.

And a Handgun League meeting has been scheduled for tomorrow (Thursday) night. It will be held at the Recreation Centre, at 7.30.

Lions Win Opener At Trenton

TRENTON (STAFF) — Making their first start in the Lions All - Star Midget Tournament here yesterday, Trenton Lions skated to a 5-4 win over Woodbridge and will meet the winner between Weston and Windsor in a 2.46 A series game this afternoon.

Jim Steenburg sparked the Trenton team with a pair of goals, Barry Castellani, Paul Wannamaker, Wayne DeMille and Bill McDonald shared the other goals for the winners.

Last night in A Series play, Richmond Hill sidelined Ottawa Capitals 4-3 and Overbrook Bruins knocked Lawrence Park out of the running by an 8-5 score.

In the B Series games, Galt, Scarboro Lions and Riverside were put on the sidelines, Lindsay tripped Galt, 3-1; Ted Reeves downed Scarboro, 7-3 and Ottawa Nationals defeated Riverside, 5-2.

The five - day tournament runs through Friday when the championships will be decided.

EDUCATION FOILED

WINNIPEG (CP) — When rural sociologists asked 560 Grade 12 students about their plans, 84 per cent said they wanted further academic, professional or vocational training. But fewer than half were able to continue their education, because of academic, social and religious restrictions.

"How can I be sure somebody else didn't leave this umbrella?

Movie Column

Lillian Gish Does Not Look Like Museum Piece

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lillian Gish neither looks nor acts like a museum piece.

Her long career would indicate that she should be put on display at some repository of movie history. After all, she appeared in her first film in 1912 and starred in such D. W. Griffith classics as Birth of a Nation, Intolerance, Broken Blossoms.

Yet the soulful Gish eyes remain as alert as a teen-ager's, and she has an outlook to match.

"I don't believe I had more than two days off in the last year," she remarked. "I did a season of Shakespeare up in Stratford, Conn. Then I was right out here for Follow Me, Boys at the Disney studios.

"After that, I went back to New York to begin rehearsals for Anye, which George Abbott directed. It was a beautiful play which lasted only a month in New York because of three bad reviews."

APPEARS WITH 'FUGITIVE'

Miss Gish flew here from an Dallas vacation to appear in The Warning Shot with David Janssen. If there is any time left, she may do some more on the memoir she is writing about her great mentor, Griffith.

"But that is terribly hard work for me," she admitted, "and I usually have to hole up in a room in Switzerland to get anything written."

Her schedule may seem remarkable for a 60-year-old, but it doesn't seem so to Miss Gish. She asked about a star who had been a contemporary of hers and has recently been ailing.

"That is too bad, but then, it has been years since she has worked," observed Miss Gish. "It's a mistake, I think. When you have been working since the age of five, as I have, it's wrong to quit. You remain more attuned to life, when you work."

Fortunately for her, she is not required to maintain an income. During her heyday on the screen, from age 12 to 30, she managed herself well. She never succumbed to the grand living that consumed the fassets of many stars.

NEW YORK'S HOME

"I never even bought a home in California," she explained. "New York was always my home and still is. The money I made went into the bank, not into acquisitions."

And it was big money. She pooh-poohed the suggestion that huge salaries for stars are a recent development.

"Does anyone get.35 per cent of the gross nowadays?" she asked. The answer is no, although Elizabeth Taylor, Marlon Brando and a few others have been able to draw 10 per cent of the gross—meaning 10 cents for every dollar accruing to the distributor.

"I received 15 per cent of the gross of The White Sister," said Miss Gish, recalling it sadly. "And the picture (co-starring Ronald Colman) made many millions of dollars."

AT THE BELLE — "That Darn Cat" is Walt Disney's latest hilarious live-comedy, with the feline under the best. The cat's-eye view shows Hayley Mills, Dean Jones and Dorothy Provine up front supported by a contingent of entertainers in "That Darn Cat", suspense live comedy, now showing at the Belle Theatre.

Many on Strike in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — More than one per cent of the Quebec labor force was on strike in four separate disputes Wednesday and more than 30,000 non-striking workers were idle.

The striking employees, all members of Confederation of National Trade Unions affiliates, totalled more than 20,000. Most are employed on the Island of Montreal.

The largest dispute, involving 10,000 construction workers, began Wednesday with workers picketing some of the more than 150 projects halted.

The union refuses to accept new contract terms by the Montreal Construction Association, which has offered key labrasses raising laborers' salaries to $140 for a 45-hour week, for example.

There are no indications negotiations will resume soon in the dispute between the CNTU and Hydro-Quebec which has kept about 2,000 men off hydro-electric projects in northern Quebec since the middle of March. Contract talks are due shortly.

STRIKE SNOWBALLS

The 1,700 that left their jobs in small numbers to hold study sessions when several co-workers were fired. The walkout snowballed when the company suspended more than 100 for their part in the original walkout.

The parties negotiated a seven-day truce Tuesday before talks broke down.

The men are employed on the big Manicouagan and Outardes river projects about 200 miles north of Baie Comeau, Que.

A strike of 2,900 teachers, also CNTU members, was in its second day Wednesday. The teachers, employed by the provincial government, are demanding higher pay, better working conditions and government recognition of their union, the Syndicate of Teachers.

An interim injunction against the strike was obtained by the provincial government Wednesday. The government argued that the teachers, as a vital service, do not have the right to strike.

The union was to discuss the injunction today. Meanwhile, 30,000 students are getting a holiday.

About 2,600 employees of the Dominion Textile Co.'s plant at Magog, Que., 80 miles east of Montreal, walked off the job Wednesday in a dispute over salaries and seniority.

It was the fifth textile plant to be struck by the union. Dominion Textile's plant at Drummondville, Que., has been idle since Monday.

Iraq President, Two Ministers Killed in Crash

From Reuters-AP

BAGHDAD (CP) — Baghdad was under curfew today at Iraqis mourned the death of President Abdel Salam Aref, killed when his helicopter crashed in a violent sandstorm near the southern city of Basra Wednesday night.

Ten other persons died in the crash, including Interior Minister Maj.-Gen. Abdel Latif Darraji, Industry Minister Mustafa Abdullah and the governor of Basra district, Baghdad radio said.

They were touring the Basra area and had just taken off from the village of Al-Qurnah when they ran into the storm. Two other helicopters accompanying the president returned to Al-Qurnah.

As dawn broke, 10 search helicopters sighted the president's machine, believed to have exploded on hitting the ground.

CURFEW ORDERED

A curfew was imposed at noon today until further notice. All official departments and schools closed and a one-month mourning period was ordered.

The president's funeral will be held Friday.

An official government statement said Premier Abdel Rahman Bazzaz took over the duties of president until the election of a new head of state.

Under Iraq's interim constitution, a new president will be elected within one week by a two-thirds majority of the cabinet and the national defence council.

Aref's brother, Gen. Abdel Rahman Aref, is chief of staff of the army and had been considered a possible successor to the presidency. The general is in Moscow as head of a trade and military delegation.

Diplomatic observers in Iraq fear Aref's death several likely to set off furious political manoeuvring and perhaps worse, political and religious factions.

Aref was 45. Since the military made him president in February, 1963, he had maintained a precarious dominance over the country's feuding political and religious factions.

A pan-Arab group wants Iraq to federate with President Nasser's United Arab Republic while a rival nationalist faction is against giving the povertystricken U.A.R. access to Iraq's huge oil revenue.

Aref's regime also was plagued by a conflict between

Jobless Number Decreases

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment at mid-March dropped to 341,000 from 356,000 in February and 367,000 in March last year, it was reported today.

The national jobless rate fell to 4.8 per cent of the labor force, compared to five per cent in February. Seasonally adjusted, it was 3.3 per cent compared to 3.5 in the previous month.

An estimated 55,000 new jobs turned up during the month due to a seasonal expansion in non-farm industries, but the labor force also increased by 40,000.

A joint report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Immigration department said the number at work in March was 300,000 higher than in March of last year.

The job picture in brief (estimates in thousands):

Unemployed	341 356 387

Estimates are based on a survey of 35,000 households in the week ended March 19.

NOTICEABLE INCREASE

"During the last few months there has been a noticeable strengthening in employment for both men and women," the report said. "The number of employed men increased by 197,000, or 3.5 per cent, over last year. The number of employed women was 122,000, or

Hearing Held in Secret

OTTAWA (CP)—What's good enough for Mr. Justice Wishart Spence apparently is good enough for Mr. Justice Dalton Wells.

And what's good enough for both of them is unlikely to satisfy those who would be initiated by "open-court" revelations of Canadian called to testify at the two inquiries now under way into matters involving the nation's security.

The inquiries are into the Gerda Munsinger affair and the alleged espionage activities of the late George Victor Spencer.

And in both cases, opening hearings were held in secret, unannounced and with an apparent desire for as little fanfare as possible.

Mr. Justice Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada opened his inquiry into the sex-and-security Munsinger case a week ago and immediately ran into criticism from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and former justice minister Davie Fulton that they were not notified in advance.

Mr. Justice Dalton Wells of the Ontario Appeal Court opened his inquiry into the Spencer case Wednesday night again without warning, and behind closed doors.

HEARINGS CONTINUE

Shortly after midnight, J. J. Robinette, prominent Toronto lawyer acting as commission counsel, told a reporter the hearing started at 8 p.m. and was continuing Wednesday.

Officers of the RCMP's tightlipped security and intelligence branch and government officials were expected to testify at the closed hearings in the West Block of the Parliament buildings. The inquiry likely will move to Vancouver.

Spencer, a Vancouver mail sorter whose case rocked the Security Pearson government, has been accused by the government of helping Soviet diplomats collect classified information about Canada and of receiving up to $4,000 from the communists.

Spencer was fired by the cabinet New Year's Eve without appeal or pension rights and placed under "perpetual surveillance" by the RCMP. He was found by a neighbor Saturday night, four to six days after a bottle of undetermined causes.

A coroner's inquest into the death was opening today in Vancouver. Police have refused out the possibility of foul play.

Portuguese Take Over Control of Oil Tanker

By JAMES BROWN

BEIRA, Mozambique (Reuters)—Portuguese officials today took over control of the Greek-owned tanker Ioanna V, lying alongside a dock here after a cargo of oil apparently destined for Rhodesia.

The move followed Panama's cancellation of the ship's registration earlier this week.

The Ioanna and another Greek - owned oil tanker, the Manuela, now berthed at Durban, South Africa, have been arrested in a crisis involving Britain's rebellious colony of Rhodesia, which declared independence unilaterally Nov. 11.

Britain applied economic sanctions against white - ruled Rhodesia for the independence step — which Britain considers illegal. As a result of a United Nations blockade, no oil has passed along the pipeline from this Portuguese Mozambique port to Rhodesia's Umtali refinery since the beginning of the year.

The Ioanna V is a stateless ship. Its original Greek registration was revoked last week after it arrived in Beira with a cargo of 18,000 tons of oil.

HONORS BLOCKADE

The Greek government is unwilling to allow any Greek-registered ship to violate the oil blockade against Rhodesia.

Portuguese government official Wednesday reported that the captain of the port of Beira boarded the Mozambique morning and took control of the vessel on behalf of Portuguese authorities. Mozambique is a Portuguese colony.

The move followed a meeting with the Panamanian consul here.

The Panamanian flag, which flew aboard the Ioanna, and the vessel's stern only 6 hours ago, was lowered.

Panama announced Tuesday it revoked the Ioanna's registration, but gave no reason. It said earlier it would cancel the registration if the ship were unable to make headway to break the oil embargo.

The Ioanna was awaiting clearance signs of discharging its cargo today, four days after docking within yards of the intake of the city's water supply.

NINE LEAVE SHIP

The Greek consul here, Pantelis Zambelas, and nine members of the crew left the ship to return to Athens following

Dikes Built, Now Manitobans Are Keeping Anxious Watch

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE, Man. (CP)—Dike builder has given way to tension — filled dike watching in southern Manitoba, with attention focused on this tiny community at the junction of the flooding Pbm and Red rivers.

Dikes were holding Wednesday thanks to constant surveillance by military patrols and the patient reaction by about 300 RCMP officers to frequent reports of trouble along the miles of dike that holds back water 25 feet deep, keeping most of the town dry.

"We're optimistic, we think we've got it licked," said Georgs Romedry, flood co-ordinator, "and it's a good feeling."

His confidence stems from the prediction that the Red was expected to crest by today with the water about six inches from the top of the soggy dikes. Barring strong winds, which could whip waves over the top, or rain, Romedry says he thinks the dikes will hold.

Rain showers moved into Manitoba Wednesday night but the weather office said flood-crest amounts were not expected over the Red River Valley.

Volunteers and soldiers were still working Wednesday reinforcing the dikes against a huge lake that encircles the town. The job was complicated because most work had to be done at night as dike chiefs are reluctant to use wide enough to support load vehicles.

Three boats were lost Wednesday, sinking under loads of sandbags being ferried to weakened north and west sections of the dike.

There were the sections that caused concern Sunday when they started leaking. About 100 soldiers from the 42nd Air Force Base were flown in to relieve soldiers who had been working around the clock.

The airmen didn't see a bed for 32 hours but now the men are working eight hours on duty and 16 off.

Regular shifts are also on playing at Emerson, 30 miles south of here and 60 miles south of Winnipeg, and at Morris, 30 miles to the north, where the dike level is two to three feet higher than the flood waters.

The crest passed Brandon Tuesday night and was expected to reach Morris at almost the same time as St. Jean. Morris and Emerson dikes are holding their constant patrolling are required to watch for breaks and seepage. The river dropped three inches at Emerson Wednesday.

Wave action on railway tracks brought a halt Wednesday in passenger trains to Emerson. Dikes there held back up to 14 feet of water.

Morris is surrounded by nine feet of water from both the Red and Morris rivers and seepage

Pan Am To Spend Half Billion For 25 Huge Planes

NEW YORK (AP)—A new era in long distance aviation will be ushered in by the end of the 1960s, carried at 45,000 feet on the wings of jets seating up to 490 passengers, some in stateroom.

Pan American World Airways Wednesday ordered 25 Boeing 747s at a cost of $525,000,000, a figure the companies said represented the largest commercial aviation order ever placed.

The new craft is expected to sharply cut the cost of air travel.

"THIS IS AN AIRPLANE — Mockup of a new Boeing 747 airplane of which Pan American World Airways has ordered 25 at a cost of $525 million, shows two aisles and seating nine abreast in economy class. Total carrying capacity will be 490 passengers, or 2½ times that of existing aircraft. In thrift class seating will be 10 abreast. Pan American ordered 23 passenger planes and 2 all-cargo craft, for delivery starting in September, 1969. (AP Wirephoto)

The 747, about 20% times the size of today's largest jet, will cruise at 625 miles an hour, 10 per cent faster than present cruising speeds. It is subsonic—flying at less than the speed of sound.

When completed, the aircraft could be based on Immediately competitive with maritime shipping in transporting some cargoes from continent to continent.

Deliveries will begin in September, 1969.

The enormous plane will carry 214,000 pounds of freight, a capacity double that of existing planes. It is the first plane capable of loading "shipway size" shipping containers which have become standard on ships, rails and trucks.

The 747 will be capable of carrying 490 passengers in thrift class or 378 in mixed economy and first class. It will have a cruising range of 6,000 miles.

The over-all length will be 220 feet, six inches; the wingspan 195 feet, seven inches; the gross weight 680,000 pounds compared with 333,500 for the Boeing 707.

Power for the 747 will be supplied by a new fan-jet engine to be built by Pratt and Whitney aircraft. Each of the four engines will deliver 41,000 pounds of thrust, almost twice the power of any jet engine in service today.

Buddhists Still March Despite Pledge of Vote

SAIGON (CP) — More than 20,000 Buddhist staged an orderly march through Saigon today in a demonstration against the ruling military junta despite a government pledge earlier in the day promising elections within five months.

Buddhist leaders planned the demonstration to underline their demands for elections for a return to civilian rule.

Following today's government concession, the Buddhist objection appeared to be drastic changes in the interim government.

At this morning's conference between the military junta which finally bowed to all demands of its Buddhist opponents and Buddhist leaders, the military asked them to support the government announcement of this morning.

There were some indications earlier the demonstration might be called off following major concessions by the military government during the national political conference here.

However the "hard line" wing of the Buddhist hierarchy appeared to have overruled the moderates and seemed pressing now for the resignation of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky or at least drastic changes in the government.

Air Vice-Marshal Ky offered to step down immediately as premier if that was what the country wanted.

The national political congress — at which the military junta made its election promises earlier — adjourned with no agreement on whether the government should resign or remain in office until after the election.

The majority of speakers wanted the government to continue in office, but an unofficial Buddhist representative suggested Ky should resign at once.

The congress agreed to set up a committee to draft an election law and supervise the elections.

600,000 Already Signed In OMSIP Club Told

With the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan scheduled to go into effect this summer, already approximately 600,000 residents of the province have signed up for OMSIP.

This was stated last night by Syl Apps as he addressed members of the Chartered Accountants of Ontario at the Hotel Quinte. Approximately 40 Association members were present.

Mr. Apps, a resident of Belleville, attended the dinner presided over by Frank Harvey of Kingston.

Also Association membership extends from Trenton to Brockville, Madoc and Marmora and Campbellford.

Following the business session a showing was held each year in Belleville.

Belleville residents are joining the provincial government sponsored OMSIP at the rate of about 15,000 a day," the former Maple Leaf hockey player declared in the meeting.

OUTLIVES CRITICS

He said that the plan was directed primarily towards those people who are financially unable to help themselves.

"But in those in the low income bracket, who cannot afford Ad medical insurance, and elderly persons, who also, can not afford private insurance.

Residents with no taxable income will have their premiums paid for by the government, while those with some taxable income, but still requiring assistance, will be partially paid for by the government.

Mr. Apps said that university students will be those who have no taxable income can get the OMSIP coverage.

PEELS COST JUSTIFIED

The plan this year would cost the Ontario government about 60 million dollars, but the Kingston MLA felt the cost was justified.

"We must look after those people who cannot look after themselves," he said.

As the same time, however, Mr. Apps noted that when governments are forced to provide services for people who can free dom, which can never be recovered.

"It will be a sorry state when governments look after everything", he said.

Spot checks will be made by government officials to guard against people with taxable income trying to get free OMSIP coverage. However, surveys have shown that approximately 95 per cent of the people are honest.

Door to door "order takers" who canvas Belleville may be required to take out licences in the future if a resolution concerned in by city council is acted on by the Ontario Legislature.

The resolution from the town of Paris asks that the Municipal Act be amended to provide for the licencing of persons who go from door to door taking orders for the later delivery of goods. Subscription salesmen for magazines and other periodicals would be included.

Council also concurred in a resolution from the city of Port Arthur asking that provincial legislation regarding motor vehicle licenses and gasoline taxes be reviewed with the view of assisting municipalities operating municipal bus systems, most of which now operate at a loss.

Japanese Say Kidnap Charge Just Mistake

By KEVIN GARRY

TOKYO (Reuters) — Russian claims that the United States kidnapped a Soviet spy-diplomat here were touched off by a brawl among two American soldiers in a Ginza coffee boy-sissssman and the Russian, Japanese sources said today.

The Russian, Nikolai Fedorovsky, was said earlier in the day to have disappeared. Fedorovsky, first secretary at the Soviet Trade Delegation here, was involved in a fight with three others at his apartment building on March 17.

A Russian note delivered to the U.S. Embassy last Monday charged the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency tried to kidnap Mr. Fedorovsky.

Russian New All-weather Plane Wrecked

BERLIN (AP)—The crash of a Soviet plane in a West Berlin lake gave Western military experts their first inspection of a new R u s s i a n all - weather fighter.

The wreckage of the plane, which crashed eight days ago in the city's British sector, was delivered Wednesday to a Soviet pontoon raft in the Havel River near the East German frontier.

A B r i t i s h spokesman confirmed for the first time that the two-seat, twin-jet plane was of an advanced type previously relatively unknown in the West.

"The aircraft appeared to be the Yak-28 type," the spokesman said, adding: "This is a most modern type of Soviet all-weather fighter."

The plane's two crew members were k i l l e d and their bodies were turned over to the Russians last Friday.

Informed Allied sources said they understood the plane had been outside the Soviet Union for only about three weeks at the time of the crash.

Time of the show is 8 p.m. The half-hour Telescope presentation shows glimpses of the CP operation in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, London and Washington. The way a Canadian newspaper provides its local news to the national news-gathering co-operative is shown by film taken at Kitchener-Waterloo Record.

The program includes interviews with Stuart Keate, publisher of Vancouver Sun and CP president; Charles H. Peters of Montreal Gazette, a former CP president; and a number of CP staff men present and past.

Their men in my opinion have taken on a kind of coloration," Mr. Keate told Telescope. "It's not so much a news agency as a cult. . . ."

Producer of Telescope on CP is George Ronald, a CP editor from 1946 to 1951 in Toronto, Ottawa, Windsor, Onl., and Washington.

Telescope's host is Fletcher Markle.

"Litter-Vac" Now Operating

TRENTON — If any Trenton housewives think they've got spring house - cleaning troubles, they'll have to answer the plight of the men in the public works' department now now have seven miles of "vacuum."

The town now has a "Litter-Vac" which is prowling the streets in the downtown area in the very early morning hours, (2:00 a.m. to 5:00 a.m.) scooping up dirt from the gutters.

In the autumn, the vacuum will be used to scoop leaves and relay them to the trucks for disposal.

Another "clean - up" - week-end order is on the streets this week . . . a yard drive on the part of middle and monster garbage can. The legend on the can reminds householders that April 18 and 22 is Clean-Up Week, and time to drag up debris refuse from the cellar or drag the clutter of the yard to the attic. Two town trucks will be out to pick up the items from curbsides next week.

Large-scale Evasion Of Immigration Procedures Expected to End Soon

By GERARD RENELL

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislative measures to end large - scale evasion of normal immigration procedures are expected after the Commons resumes sitting Tuesday.

They may include limits on the discretionary powers of the immigration minister and increased authority for the Immigration Appeal Board, which rules on deportation cases.

The object is to stop the flow of would-be immigrants who have been using relaxed visa requirements to enter the country as visitors since early 1964. Once in, they stay.

There are an estimated 20,000 aliens who have entered Canada in this way now living and working in the country, about half in the Toronto-Hamilton area. They have no legal status.

About 13,000 have applied for permission to land on compassionate but the law makes no provisions for such an inundation of backdoor immigrants, officials say.

"We have to clarify this situation," Immigration Minister Marchand said in an interview March 31. "That doesn't mean we are going to deport the 20,000.

"Far from that; I think we are going to be glad to keep them there, but it has to be straightened out."

WANT FRACTICE ENDED

If both concerned officials say more immigrants may be encouraged to enter by the backdoor method than through normal channels.

Officials say 90 per cent of the 20,000 who are in Canada are deportable and many would never have got into Canada through normal channels.

The influx makes nonsense of Canada's policy of selective immigration, one top-ranking official says. It opens a route for a small selection of undesirable or subversive elements to enter Canada, he adds.

Normally, these types are weeded out when interviewed in their home country. The background, health, education and skills of landed immigrants are thoroughly checked before they ever get to Canada.

No such checks are made of visitors.

They haven't needed visas since 1954, when an easily-had visitor's permit was established in an effort to foster the tourist trade and freer travel.

The government doesn't want to do anything to discourage tourist traffic to the Montreal world fair in 1967 and the centennial celebrations next year.

Visitors normally would be deported once their three months was up, but the department has been bafflued by the numbers who have turned up.

NEED VISAS

They can't acquire landed immigrant status there because they need a visa, obtainable only in their native country.

However, the department has been accepting applications pending development of a policy.

Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick recognized the problem in a recent report to the government on immigration.

He noted that thousands have entered ostensibly as visitors, then refused to leave.

"Many simply remain here surreptitiously while others succeed in bringing sufficient pressure to bear, political and otherwise, to gain admission as permanent residents."

Mr. Sedgwick said the practice had become so common—notably from Greece, Portugal and Italy — "that immigration from some countries through normal channels is on the verge of chaos."

He recommended that the Immigration Appeal Board be made a court of record to deal with such cases, with provision for appeal to the courts.

At present, the immigration minister may overrule the appeal board and that is where political pressure has come in. Ethnic groups exert pressure on him, who in turn strongarm the minister.

"If the board's decision is unfavorable, recourse to the minister is almost automatic," Mr. Sedgwick noted.

The board has said he favors a strong appeal board to end pressure on the minister. Whether action will be taken in time to study each case seriously and decide it on its merit.

CN Will Slow Trains for Track Work

MONTREAL—Canadian National Railways will add an additional half hour to schedules on its Toronto-Montreal service on June 17 to meet heavy construction between the two cities.

The train, the Premier, will operate on a schedule between hours and forty-five minutes. It will make only one intermediate stop — at Dorval, between and Montreal — and none in the opposite direction.

With the exception of the Rapido the fastest train in the service, the schedules of CN's Montreal-Toronto trains will be slightly lengthened this summer while track and signal work is carried out.

The work involves the installation of centralized traffic control signalling between Dorval and Cobourg, Que., and from Bowmanville to Pickering, Ont., along with rebuilding of the construction of passing and cross-over tracks at various points and the installation of new banking of numerous curves.

The track work will be completed in the fall and the signalling in the spring of 1967.

The upgrading of the line is required due to the increasing frequency and length of both passenger and freight trains during recent years. Present freight schedules will be maintained during the work, which means that all passenger trains will return to normal schedules in the fall.

Kenya Leftist Quits Charging Govt. Is Venal

NAIROBI (Reuters) — Vice-President Oginga Odinga of Kenya, stormy leftist politician accused of favoring Communism for this two-year-old African state, today announced his resignation from the government.

"His guiding star has become personal gain, therefore that it impossible to be part of it," he told a press conference.

Odinga, 54, also announced his resignation from the ruling Kenya African National Union —Kenya's only political party.

Odinga declined to say if he would form another party. Reports circulating here last month suggested he might support such a move.

Odinga recently lost his post vice-president of KANU.

Rural Fires Take Heavy Toll in Barns, Livestock

Rural fires in Hastings county in recent weeks have taken their toll of barns, buildings, livestock and in farm machinery and other equipment.

The most recent blaze was at the George Dickey farm in the Zion Hill district where Tuesday morning the recently remodelled barn was burned, killing 16 head of cattle and destroying considerable farm machinery.

Sunday morning in the Lodge Room area of Hungerford township, the barn of Arthur Palmateer fell prey to flames killing 17 cows, the number of calves, a bull and 72 hogs.

And about a month ago Roy Sills of Thurlow township lost a barn with 15 head of cattle destroyed and raining farm machinery.

Then at Chisholm's Mills a little more than two weeks ago the modern sawmill owned by the Chisholm Brothers burned resulting in heavy loss of mill and equipment.

Sunday morning's blaze at the Palmateer farm was spotted by neighbors about 6.00 o'clock but it was already too late to save the stabled livestock.

Fire departments from Belleville and Tweed failed to respond when for some reason the alarm was not received at the Belleville Fire station.

Pie Throwers Being Sought By Police

Shades of old vaudeville . . . only this time not so funny.

City police are looking for a group of teenagers believed responsible for a zany pie-throwing escapade involving the streets about 4 a.m. today.

A quantity of pies were taken from the rear of a store on the Belleville Plaza and heaved out of the window of a car. The pies hit two or three parked cars and one, a cherry pie, smashed through a window at The Grapevine, the teen coffee house at Bleecker and Station Street.

Police are continuing their investigation.

Education Minister Fires Another Salvo at Grade System in High Schools

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis fired another salvo at the grade system in schools Wednesday but a university dean fought back against the minister's announced abolition of Grade 13 examinations.

Dr. Davis announced March 24 that Grade 13 exams will be abolished within two years. On Wednesday he told the primary school teachers' section of the Ontario Educational Association: "I do not think, in this day and age, that we need to continue our ideas of annual grade promotion."

Dr. Gordon Parr, dean of applied science at the University of Windsor, told about 250 members of the Personnel and Guidance Association that dispensing with Grade 13 exams will spell the end of Grade 12 also.

The annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association, which has attracted 12,000 teachers and educationists from across the province, was in its final day Thursday.

Outlining his ideas on primary school grades, Mr. Davis said "it may be advantageous to apply rigid grade levels in schools.

The 36-year-old father of five children, ranging in age from one to 13, said he has always been fascinated by the differences among children of any age group.

"It seems to me in bringing up my own family that if I tried to apply the same kind of conditions and rules I used for the first child, the results would be disastrous.

"With the exception of the Rapido the fastest train in the service, the schedules of CN's Montreal-Toronto trains will be slightly lengthened this summer while track and signal work is carried out.

Professor John Milanis of the University of Toronto Institute of Child Study told the conference that the practice of failing children in Grade 1 is "making them wrecks."

Dorothy Campbell, a department of education inspector for occupational classes, agreed she said she was shocked to find that 500 of 1,000 students surveyed in special vocational classes were Grade 1 repeaters.

"No wonder they're becoming hostile and frustrated before we meet them in higher grades," she said.

Preliminary Hearing Set For April 28

The preliminary hearing of four Montreal men charged with armed robbery was set for April 28 by Magistrate T. Y. Wills today.

Maurice Langis, 31, Armand Bisson, 29, Victor Tessier, 42, and Gilles Gaudette, 27, all of Montreal, are charged with armed robbery of the Bank of Montreal in Frankford March 30.

Defence lawyer Robert Temple asked Magistrate Wills to set bail at $5,000 cash each. "Any larger amount is, in effect, impossible," he said.

"I believe that's what the crown had in mind when setting bail at $25,000 each," Magistrate Wills replied.

Acting Crown Attorney Ralph Graham called for retention of the $25,000 bail. "Two of these men are presently on bail awaiting trial on an assault charge," he said, "and I feel there is no assurance these men would return to court if freed on $5,000 bail."

Magistrate Wills upheld the larger bail and remanded them one week.

Engineers Society Holding Exams Here

Is 13 Ontario centres this week more than 600 persons are writing examinations to qualify for registration as engineering technologists.

The exams are held annually by the 23,000-member Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario, and are open to persons who have not graduated from an accredited engineering school and who are seeking exemption in the practice of professional engineering.

Belleville has been designated one of the 13 examination centres. About half a dozen area candidates will write for six hours each day this week in room 101 at B.C.I.

(Extracts from the diary of S. Wilmot of the original survey of Belleville in 1816; notes by Tom Rasmus O.L.S.)

Sunday 14th — Making a sketch of operation of the Survey, of ascertaining the true position of lot No. 4.

Note: Wilmot's report to the Surveyor General included a strong report from Alexander Chisholm, as follows: "Mr. Alexander Chisholm called on me yesterday and reported that he was employed by Mr. Cozell, Surveyor, as one of his surveying party in the Township of Thurlow and that they began at the western boundary and surveyed the base line by a right angular Survey, and they were obliged to cross the River Moira, about one chain (66 feet) below where the present Bridge is erected, and that he did cut a Barwood Post, and planted it about sixty seven feet from the white oak tree noted in the River, but he is remarked, as they had to survey by offsets, and cross the River where it was deep, that it would not be chained so accurate as upon the Ice, and also states, that the full width of nineteen chains was allowed for the Reservation, and adds, that he is confident and has always said, that the land Mr. John Taylor sold to Mr. James Harris belonged to the Reservation".

James Harris, the hatter, purchased his house and land from Taylor in 1797.

Buoy Lights Now Placed In Harbor

The first boat of the season has still to arrive at the Belleville harbor, but navigation on the Bay of Quinte is again officially open for another summer.

Local Harbor Master Don Barrett reports that the government lender had been in and buoy lights have been placed for another year.

The visit of the buoy tender at the Belleville dock was brief but it was not without incident.

It seems that during the whistle one of the buoy floats managed to spring a leak and there was a hurry up call for a weld, or before the buoy could be placed.

Whilst no cooler or oil boat has this year docked at Belleville, the Canada Cement Company "Lafarge" cement boats are first trip up the bay to Point Anne almost two weeks ago.

Sidney Twp. Street to Link Palmer and Avondale Roads

After being in the discussion stage for at least a year, the way as now open for extension of Bleecker Avenue to a new city street to be built in the rapidly developing West Belleville area.

The new roadway will extend about 2600 feet west from Palmer Road and will tie in with Avondale Road at the rear of the twenty westerly limits of the City.

The city will pay all costs of the roughly one half of the roadway to lie within the township of Sidney.

It may seem strange for the city to be paying costs for a roadway in the neighboring township area, but, as Mayor J. R. Ellis pointed out to council this week, the street will be, of no use to the township, whereas it will be a big benefit for city residents living in the area.

The roadway will be used by both elementary and high school age children to get to the new schools in the area. The new high school (Centennial Secondary School) is now under construction, while the new public school is expected to get underway shortly.

Buses would also use the proposed roadway to better serve the Avondale and Wright Ave. district.

PLAN WATER MAIN

Also the public utilities would use the right-of-way to lay a watermain from Palmer Road tying in present "dead end" mains at the western end of Avondale Road, Glenn Road and Wright Ave.

The above agreement, and the watermains serving them now

New Set Of Proposals Is Drafted

TORONTO (CP)— The joint bargaining committee of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) met Wednesday and drafted a new set of proposals to present to the Ontario Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau in an effort to settle a 12-week-old trucking strike in the province.

A proposed settlement, supported by the union's joint bargaining committee, was turned down by rank-and-file members in meetings last weekend.

Educational TV

The impact of educational television after eight years is negligible and has not justified the expense, according to Donald Rutledge, director of the Ontario education board's language study centre.

Well, Mr. Rutledge should know, although his statement — made at the Ontario Educational Association convention — comes as a bit of a shock. One would think that television, being a medium with which children are familiar, would have evoked a greater response than has "live" teaching.

But no. Said Mr. Rutledge: "It seems to stress for children not to enjoy the programs — they are not like the ones at home. School programs are dreary, earnest and it is significant educational television has not done well."

Professor Donald Theall, director of English and communications studies at York University, said educational television is like a baby and teachers should wait for it to develop.

But surely it is not that immature. So the programs are dull (a condition shared frequently by the commercial variety). Have the programmers, to use a modern word, no sense of humor? Can they not inject some life into the subject matter. If the programs are simply a pale replica of the fare youngsters are being served up in class, it is no wonder they find interest fallen.

We are not suggesting educational television be merely an hour of fun, or a diversion. But if it is to be continued, it is one medium that lends itself to presentation in imaginative and humorous vein, and these qualities should be used to increase the impact of the subject matter.

Learning should be to some degree entertaining. If it is a bore, it is no wonder school is a difficult time for many youngsters. And if, with the advent of educational television, it is still a drag, then something is very wrong.

Those Mannerisms

A Western Ontario newspaper has run a couple of articles on the mannerisms of women that men do not like, and vice versa. They range from conduct to attire, and as the features reveal there is plenty that each sex dislikes about the other.

Which sex is the tidier — around the home and with regard to personal grooming? Well, to give the nod to one or the other would be to neither fair nor accurate. To come up with a definite answer one would have to survey the entire population and then feed the results into a computer. Come to think of it, that might not be such a bad idea. This is a messy, better-groomed everyone would be if they knew such a survey were being planned!

In any event, there is always Ann Landers to reveal trends in this regard. A letter to her column the other day said in part: "Any woman who works as a janitress knows more about personal habits of secretaries than the most accomplished psychologist in the world.

"I work in a beautiful, modern office building, where the company has spent a fortune on the very best furniture, and equipment. Some secretaries are smart enough to make $500 a month but they don't know a washcloth was built to hold paper. It never occurs to them a garbage pail . . . I find sugar spilled on the tops of desks and it just stays there right along with the blobs of coffee cream, cookie and hunks of chewing gum stuck to old pencils.

"Women are always yelling about how messy men are, but so help me I'd rather clean up after 20 men than two women."

A clear victory for the men, we should say. However, to arrive at such a conclusion, beyond all yea or nay, it would be politic to hold that national survey we mentioned. Apart from any conclusions reached it would create some work for the computer programmers!

Dogs Neglected

A letter appearing elsewhere on this page draws attention to by-laws governing the behavior of dogs, or more specifically the responsibilities of dog owners.

The sad fact is that there are many people with dogs who have no business owning them. They neglect the animals. They fail to groom and above all exercise them; in short, they do not regard them as man's best friend, which the dog is supposed to be, and certainly which the dog if treated properly.

One of the reasons why communities find it necessary to pass by-laws governing dogs and to employ dog catchers is the failure of owners to look after their charges.

One of the worst things anyone can inflict on a dog is to leave it virtually alone all day, cooped up behind a wire fence, on damp and dirty ground and give it no exercise. We could point to at least one instance of this in Belleville.

We feel little sympathy for anyone who owning a dog fails to care for it properly.

Letter to the Editor

Wants Dogs Banned From Our Cities

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Congratulations are due the "town" Council for their courage in passing such a badly needed by-law on dog control!

This was reported in The Intelligencer on April 8 under the "Trenton news" column.

Let us hope that this by-law will be very strictly enforced because, except for the "police" and the "working-eye" types, dogs now have no practical value and should be eliminated from all cities and towns.

Will the city manager kindly inform us how the Belleville by-laws compares with the by-laws of Trenton? It is obvious that the local animal control officer needs more help and much better pay. He also deserves a proper uniform and a good truck.

Every dog owner should be made familiar with his duties to the public before a licence is issued. This should include a reminder that it is an offence to allow their animals to disturb the peace by prolonged and unnecessary barking! Something ago you published a letter from a resident of Elizabeth Crescent suggesting that all the so-called "dog-lovers" form a club with the sole aim of cleaning up behind their own dogs's lives by their wretched animals! What a wonderful suggestion!

Disgusted Citizen.

Diet Can Help Avoid Clogging of Arteries

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Four months ago I had hemiparesis caused by thrombosis in an artery. I was told that this was a warning. What would you recommend as a good diet? — A. F. H.

* * *

Hemiparesis (muscular weakness on one side of the body) is a warning, all right. Expecting a good diet to be a solution to the problem is oversimplifying things.

You've been put on warning to do what you can to prevent another episode.

There isn't any magic diet that will prevent clogging of an artery. You can, however, make certain changes which will help. You have to know what you are trying to do, and you need your doctor's guidance.

If your blood pressure is unduly high, your doctor may restrict your salt intake—"put you on a low-salt diet," as it is often phrased. This means not using ordinary salt on your food and avoiding all salty foods: pickles, sausage, salted meats, all kinds of potato chips, salted fish.

If you are overweight, some decrease may change substantially. The proper course is obvious: Reduce.

If your blood cholesterol level (as a gauge of blood lipids or fats) is high, avoiding saturated fats is helpful. This, in general means those fats are solid at room temperature: fat in meat, lard, butter. Instead, substitute vegetable fats and oils.

There isn't any single food or diet that is good for preventing strokes. The proper diet is just a well-balanced one, plus taking into consideration the elements mentioned above.

Strokes result from combination of conditions: arteries that have become partially clogged with fatty deposits; weakness of an artery at some strategic point; high blood pressure.

Really, your goal, is to put your arteries and circulation in as good shape as possible, to the extent that proper diet can influence your overall health (and hence your blood pressure), and can prevent overloading your tissues with fats, it can be important to you.

But don't be misled by any idea that eating some particular food will solve your problem. It just isn't that simple.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is 32, and sleeps from 10 to 12 hours a night. Is this normal? He is a salesman with no strenuous work. His only activity is occasionally cutting the grass. He has always slept like this. Should see him only in prone position. — Mrs. C. T.

There is considerable variation in people's sleep requirement. Some need many, some less. I hope that he has a physical examination to eliminate the possibility of some fatigue-provoking condition such as anemia, low thyroid activity or chronic infection.

If he awakes full of get-up-and-go, he may be one of the people who needs more sleep than the rest of us. If he just drowses and gets up grouchy, he may be living sked longer than he needs from sheer habit. Or s he just bored?

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes enlargement of the bone at the base of the neck? I have some pains around it. — Mrs. M. E.

I'd prefer to know exactly which bone you mean. However there are seven bones in the neck portion of the spine and the seventh (lowest) is the one most likely to show some prominence from poor posture or stooping as we grow older. It may, in fact, become quite prominent, especially in lean persons. But there is nothing to do about it.

TV Hypnosis

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Those who felt that television would be a new means of uniting the family together missread its sociological impact. It became a little merit in a family staying together, if it does so in becoming silence, staring hypnotized at that small ice-blue screen.

Strictly Personal

Prodigies, Statesmen, Robbers

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prefixtures: In my mind, the 10 most overworked adjectives in the modern American vocabulary are: "glamorous," "fabulous," "fantastic," "intriguing," "great," "sensational," "dream," "challenging," "ultimate," and "creative."

The most neglected child in the whole educational system is the mediocre child, but the gifted one who is bored with a mediocre millen — and it is a depressing fact that among the upper seventh of mental ability, fewer than half ever enter college.

Almost all choices in life are between "lesser evils" and "greater evils"; and the tragedy of the human situation consists in the realization, when it is too late, that the "lesser evil" was not as much the "lesser" as we had thought.

A religion which says "You have to do this" is the commonest cants, without at the same time condemning them to want to do it, is dead in spirit, no matter how large its members and influence may be, but loyalty out of fear or submission has no real strength in a crisis.

An "older statesman" is just a politician who has become too embedded to shout.

Perhaps women aren't great creative writers, in a literary sense, but what man could do half as well as a woman in writing a vibrant thank-you note for a present he hasn't the slightest use for and intends to exchange at the earliest possible moment?

Inspirational orators who praise "will power" as a paramount virtue tend to forget that the most determined, patient, persistent, ingenious and relentless man in society is the bank robber.

We call those who try to live less than "spectacularly" — who don't we call them many more who live beneath themselves "downstarters"?

The reason that genuine progress comes so slowly was discovered by Lord Halifax three centuries ago when he observed: "Others are hardly two centuries of a more different species than the same man now aspiring to a place and when in possession of it."

People who have to ask the same question two or three times ("Is this the bus to downtown?") before they believe the answer, must have been lied to consistently by their parents when they were young.

The soundest financial advice I've ever heard was handed me off a card the other day: one side proclaimed, "How to Become a Millionaire in Less Than One Year!" The other side gave the answer: "Deposit $20,000 in the bank every week for 50 weeks, you will be a millionaire."

There To Learn

Winnipeg Free Press

The notion that students should have representatives on the boards of governors of a university is a silly notion. Students are in universities to learn. They complain a great deal today about the presumed the burden of modern learning puts upon them. Obviously then, their studies are subjects they can handle. They should not be additionally burdened with the weight of matters far beyond their comprehension.

The Church And Expo 67

Montreal Gazette

On Ile Notre Dame, the cornerstone of the Expo '67 Christian pavilion has been laid.

This was a highly significant ceremony, partly because it was timed to coincide with Easter, but because it so well represents the ecumenical spirit of Expo's present age.

The major churches which have agreed to participate together in this common Christian pavilion span the entire field of Christian division and disagreement as it has grown over the centuries—Roman Catholic, Anglican, United, Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist and Greek Orthodox.

Expo is meant to be a universal exhibition, is meant to rise above human divisions and to stress the things that mankind has in common. For this spirit to be so well represented by the Christian pavilion at Expo augurs well for the future.

For in this coming together by the Churches represented are losing none of their special and valued unique qualities. They are showing that respect for diversity need not prevent the Christian Churches working together for the things they have in common.

The other day when he all but ridiculed the capital punishment question, he proceeded to have gone, at last, beyond the point of no return with the Prime Minister.

JUST TOO TOUGH

Those who were there, report that the Prime Minister's face faced and sputtering in fury, rushed out of the Commons, ready to let loose on Parliament Cowan out of the Party.

Mr. Cowan is reported saying: "This time that man's gone too far — we've simply got to get rid of him."

Sounds kind of mild, doesn't it? But you've got to remember that Mr. Cowan is not a man who characteristically will set down on a hard word if a soft one will do.

That being so, his outburst must be taken by the Party captains as a sentence of finality and following officers: Captain, Ernest M. McMillan; First Lieutenant, E. Ashley; Second Lieutenant, Fred Burrows; Secretary-treasurer, Mack Jamieson.

Play-for-Pay

Victoria Daily Times

Governor-General Vanier undoubtedly found a widespread and responsive audience for his comments on the play-for-pay philosophy of a large section of sport today.

"If ever young people should acquire the impression that sports are dedicated to commercialism," he said, "it would be very sad indeed for our country."

But our present-day society seems to have created in addition to the sound by-word anybody who was even more sacred of them.

So nobody did anything and Ralph Cowan — yes, he was "Who in hell wouldn't, I ask you, be?" — walked out, laughing.

They're trying to tell each other what they did the wise thing.

That is have said as much as "Naughty, naughty" to him would have been to set off such an explosion as none of them dared to think of.

Ralph Cowan, it seems, is an MP who doesn't mind — in fact insists, on — saying what he thinks. And that's a quality calculated to baffle all but a tiny handful of Parliamentarians.

Ottawa Offbeat

Outspoken Ralph Cowan Frustrates Fellow Liberals

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Well, the Government again has met more than its match.

It can't figure out what to do about roughriding Ralph Cowan, the furiously outspoken and fiercely independent-minded MP from the Toronto constituency of York - Humber.

For three years they've been working on him.

And finally it's admitted that Prime Minister Pearson's MPs and Prime Minister Pearson's Senators can't put Ralph Cowan in his place satisfactorily (that is like putting him on the back bench of the Commons with a pig stuffed in his mouth).

So, they're doing nothing hoping perhaps that if they ignore him, the Party's "bad boy" will go away.

To begin with, Ralph Cowan doesn't care for the Prime Minister — and doesn't mind saying so.

He cares even less for some of the Prime Minister's political pals.

He first kicked over the Party traces on the new red and white Maple Leaf flag.

Fighting for, as he put it at the time, "the Union Jack, the Red Ensign and the British connection," he blamed the Maple Leaf Emblem on the Prime Minister, charging that Mr. Pearson "letting Quebec go to his head, has gone mad over French-Canada."

BE AND BE:

He took it a step further when speaking of the Prime Minister's Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, an investigation that's been in progress nearly three years and threatens to cost more than $5,000,000 before it has done its uncertain bit in the name of National Unity.

"What," said Mr. Cowan, "is bicultural about it? It isn't French, then the Prime Minister would be part of it."

"Hell, the Quebec MPs go home nights to dream up things they want, and to do their canvassing, and get it from the Prime Minister the same afternoon."

Ralph Cowan objects, too, even more vigorously, to what he terms the scandalously extravagant way the Prime Minister spoon-feeds the CBC.

He wants the Government to sell the CBC to the highest bidder.

Just two years ago, he says, the CBC cost the taxpayers $86,000,000, and this year the tab reads $110,000,000.

"If we don't, soon get rid of the Federal Broadcasting Corporation," he warns, "we'll end up the most cultured bunch of tax defaulters in the world."

If there has been any program or policy that Ralph Cowan has liked, he hasn't noised the notice of the Commons.

He has an abrasive quality as a Party critic, and a facility for action within his own Party that has begun to irritate the Prime Minister far beyond the point of exasperation that even Conservative Leader Diefenbaker can attain.

The other day when he all but ridiculed the capital punishment question, he proceeded to have gone, at last, beyond the point of no return with the Prime Minister.

The other, the Partridge-Burtbrow Co., will locate on a site on Station St., near the Swift Canadian Co. plant and will manufacture cement and any other blocks, employing some 30 hands.

Many Accommodation Inquiries Received by Tourist Dept.

TWEED — The April meeting of the Land O' Lakes tourist association was held at the home of Bill Scott in Denbigh on April 6th. Mr. Garth Reid, district representative of the Department of Tourism and Information of Lansdowne and Mr. Stan Mika of Sharbot Lake were guests at the meeting.

Mrs. Jeanette Whitfield reported that inquiries for accommodation this year were at an all time high. An average of 80 letters per week regarding accommodation are received. Land O' Lakes brochures are to be sent to people having made inquiries regarding accommodation at the Columbus, Ohio Sportsman Show.

The hospitality seminar which was to be held April 19th will be postponed until next year. Mr. Garth Reid told the executive that April 19th was not available and the Land O' Lakes could hold the seminar at a later date, but it was felt it would be better to have it in March of next year.

PLAN SEMINAR

Mrs. Whitfield was directed by the executive to write and ask Mr. Fred Hooper, executive director, Dept. of Tourism and Information, Toronto, to speak at the Land O' Lakes general spring meeting in June on "Hospitality." Mr. Boyer was guest speaker at the March 31 meeting and their hospitality seminar and was most interesting.

Don Hogarth and Ron Wilson were given permission by the executive to hire summer help for the Land O' Lakes Tourist Information Centre at Napanee and money spent to run both for the season not to exceed $700. Mr. Bill Scott of Cloyne, Ont. will have the Land O' Lakes Information Centre at his store in Denbigh.

The secretary manager was asked to write to the Trenton Chamber of Conference regarding stores in Tweed remaining open all day Wednesday for

Ann Landers
Agrees to Divorce, Disappoints Husband

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Three months ago my husband brought a tramp-looking girl to the house, introduced her as the woman he wanted to marry and asked for a divorce. I managed to keep my composure although I thought I would die right then and there. I agreed to a divorce and they left.

The next day my husband came for his clothes, kissed the children goodbye and said I'd be hearing from his lawyer. I received no call.

In a week my husband was back—furious. He said I had let him down. His wife shocked that I agreed to the divorce. He insists he gave me all sorts of signals to say "No" in front of the girl. Now he is begging to come home. He promises never to fall me again.

The children love their dad and need him, but I can't get over the hurt and humiliation. If he could do such a terrible thing once, why couldn't he do it again? I need your counsel. — NOT RECOVERED.

DEAR NOT: Your husband sounds like a four-door, brass-plated heel, but give him another chance.

And let this be a lesson to you, students. Men, like children, don't want everything they ask for.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a high school junior who thinks there must be something drastically wrong with me. I am so envious of everyone I can hardly stand it. Although I get good grades and have won many honors I still get green when something good happens to my friends.

Yesterday my best friend won an essay contest. I couldn't have won it because I didn't even enter but when I heard she had won I was awfully unhappy. Naturally, I put on a false face and told her I was thrilled.

Why can't I be gracious and really rejoice when other people get honors? — HATE MYSELF.

DEAR FRIEND: Maybe you hate yourself, but I like you — because you are honest.

Each of us is our own first choice for everything good that happens. This is normal but it's not realistic — because life doesn't work that way. Nobody can win everything all the time.

It will help you feel less guilty if you tone down the compliments when you are congratulating others. Be pleasant but don't go into ecstasy about how "thrilled" you are.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have seen several letters in your column over the years from people who want to know how to get rid of pesty relatives. It is amazing that this problem is so widespread because it means the guilty folks are taking over and the meek and mild are trapped simply because they are meek and mild.

Why don't you tell people who are imposed on to use the Irvin S. Cobb approach? He said, "The best way to get rid of scoopers is to say, "You are getting on my nerves. Please get the hell out of here'."

You'll probably be amused by this letter, but I'll bet you won't print it. — DR. W.G.R.

DEAR DOC: I'm not amused and I hope you didn't bet your stethoscope.

Mr. Cobb's approach is one I recommend only if you want to get rid of the visitors permanently.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

PLAINFIELD WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The April meeting of the Plainfield Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Grant Kerr with the president, Mrs. Robert Sullivan opening the meeting in the usual manner.

The swimming classes for the children during July were discussed and it was decided to sponsor a dance in the Hall in April to defray the expenses of those classes. Members were reminded of the district annual to be held in Melrose on May 10th. Each convenor reported on the year's activities and submitted their reports:

The branch directors brought in the new slate of officers as follows: past president — Mrs. Robert Sullivan; president — Mrs. Art Wright; 1st vice — Mrs. Earl Thompson; 2nd vice — Mrs. Art Legge; secretary treasurer — Mrs. Garnet Denyes; district director — Mrs. Robert Sullivan; curator — Mrs. Harry Harrison.

Committees are: citizenship and education, Mrs. Lawrence Marshall; historical research and current events — Mrs. Orville Rollins; home economics and health — Mrs. Bob Lightfoot and Mrs. R. Sullivan; agriculture and Canadian industries — Mrs. Gerald Swan; public relations — Mrs. Garfield Hall; branch directors — Mrs. Fred Hodgson, Mrs. Stan Hazard and Mrs. Carman Hoffman; resolutions — Mrs. Clarence Hall.

Special guest for the evening was the district president, Mrs. Don Chisholm of Roslin, who spoke on human relations and the art of getting along. Her theme was "Let us work with willingness, let us work with bright minds and let us work with harmony".

Education and the art of getting along should begin in the home and great stress should be placed on reading good books that require thought and improve the minds.

"Let us speak to each other with harmony. Begin at home to make it a contented and happy home and you will carry it on through your life and it will also be carried by your children. Harmony is a difficult way of life and requires skill. Harmony is based on mutual understandings. Consideration and unselfishness are great assets to harmonious living," stated the speaker.

Mrs. Chisholm was presented with a gift as a token of thanks.

The new president, Mrs. Art Wright expressed pleasure and asked for the co-operation of the members in her new position as president.

The meeting was closed and lunch was served by the hostess and her committee.

HOSPITAL IS VITAL

MONTREAL (CP) — The chances of death immediately after a heart attack are 25 per cent, and 50 per cent during the next 48 hours. The risk declines only over a two-week period, says Dr. Arnold L. Johnson of Royal Victoria Hospital, so a person must enter hospital immediately after a heart attack.

ECCLES CAKES FAST PUFF PASTRY

Nagging me every day for a month was a letter from friends T. giving me an authentic test-ed recipe for Eccles Cakes using "rough puff pastry".

Finally, last night I got around to making them. I understood why English use the adjective "rough". There is nothing rough about the pastry. It is smooth and flaky and delicious, but the method is speeded up.

We had these with our morning tea break and I wish you had been there to share them.

ECCLES CAKES (Courtesy Rosalie T.)

"Rough" (meaning Fast) Puff Pastry:

1¼ cups plus 4 teaspoons unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons good quality shortening or lard
1 teaspoon lemon juice
4 tablespoons ice cold water

Filling:

5 tablespoons soft butter
5 tablespoons light brown sugar
½ cup choice currants
4 tablespoons finely chopped mixed peel
(Or use approximately 1¼ cups mincemeat for the filling)

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Pork Hocks with Sauerkraut or New Shredded Cabbage; Parsleyed Whole Potatoes; Mustard Pickles; Celery Hearts; Raisin Pie; Cheddar Cheese; Coffee.

SUNDAY

Chicken Cacciatore; Noodles Romanoff (see Friday); Green Peas with Onions; Bowl Salad of Tomato and Lettuce Wedges; Italian Dressing; Chocolate Layer Cake with Date Filling; Tea.

To make this delicious pastry cut the butter and shortening into the flour and salt until the size of marbles (quite large pieces). Add lemon juice; then drizzle in the cold water, 1 tablespoon at a time, tossing with fork. Press into ball. Roll out on floured board into an oblong ¼" thick. Fold the bottom 1/3 of pastry up and the top 1/3 down to form 3 layers.

Press edges to enclose air. Give pastry half turn to right, roll into oblong again and repeat above process until pastry has had four rolls. Chill and roll into 16" oblong, ¼" thick. This is lovely flaky pastry to handle.

Mix filling ingredients (or mincemeat).

Cut pastry out into 4" rounds. By the time I finished I had 16 rounds. Put 1 level tablespoon filling in each, moisten edges and draw edges up around filling like puckering a purse string or like you would draw pastry up around an apple for apple dumpling. Moisten to seal. Turn over on floured board and pat or gently roll to flatten to ¼" thickness by 2½" to 3" diameter. Place on ungreased cookie sheet, and make 3 small slits on top with knife. Sprinkle sparingly with sugar. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 26 minutes or until tinged with gold. Taste one of these delectable cakes while it is still warm from the oven. These should be reheated and served warm. I hope all of our pastry will try them for the sake of the lovely pastry alone.

Socialite Gloria Vanderbilt Paints While Husband Writes

By JEAN SFRAIN. WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Ring twice. At the signal, Gloria Vanderbilt swings open the unmarked door to her very private world away from home.

Once she was called the poorest rich girl. Don't paint her blue now, though. Pallid her radiant is a fire-engine red Courreges suit piped in white leather, very stylish. After all, she is on the world's best dressed list.

Here is the studio where she paints, yellow with sunshine; red with whimsical canvases; vivid with plump needlepoint pillows; charming with old dolls slumped pointlessly over the fireplace mantel and small sofa; amusing with a silent, full-sized main window manikin sitting cross-legged on a wooden chair; friendly with family photographs, books, coffee cups.

Once Gloria Vanderbilt had flings at selling, writing plays, short stories and book reviews, as well as painting. Today she dutifully recalls the three years she sweated over a play that never got off the ground.

"God, it was tough, tough, tough. Frustrating. I don't want to think about it anymore."

Two years ago she married handsome Californian Wyatt Cooper, who writes. She has decided one in the family is enough. She is content to concentrate on art.

Although she is the great-great granddaughter of railway builder Cornelius Vanderbilt, an heiress at 21 and very social, she skips the chic luncheon spots and often the party circuit.

And although she is on the best dressed list, she claims she does not know how it ever happened.

"I'm not criticising, but with most women on the list, clothes are their lives. I like to look well but I like to put something on and then forget it."

When interviewers ask what is out of her painting uniform—"a sweater dress I can move around in and a pair of socks"—because she had promised her framer not to finish any more paintings before he current one-man show.

"Do you know there are not many really great woman painters?" Gloria does not wait for a reply.

"It's hard to combine the kind of discipline you need with a family. It takes an enormous kind of control, a kind of hardness . . . not hardness exactly . . . but a kind of purposefulness. Or determination.

"It's the instinct of a woman to give, want to be loving. Well, if you're married to a man who doesn't appreciate what you hope to do. . . ." her voice trails off.

"I'm fortunate. I have a husband who understands. He's a marvellous sounding board. He is instinctively talented. I like telling my canvases into perspective. And when he criticizes it does not hurt me at all.

Not in her dress—which is always vividly contemporary and in personality — which is as bubbly as champagne—is there any sign that this Gloria Vanderbilt was once the sad little child in the middle of a custody dispute between an aunt and her mother. The aunt won.

There also have been marital phases in her life. At 17 she wed theatrical agent Pat di Cicco. Gloria then married white-haired symphony conductor Leopold Stokowski. From this 16-year May-December union are two sons, Chris, now 14, and Sian, now 13. The Stokowskis were divorced in 1955.

There was a brief marriage to Sidney Lumet, stage and screen director. Then Wyatt. Last year the couple had a son Carter.

Licks Flu So She Can Celebrate 106th Birthday

CARRYING PLACE — Northumberland County's grand old lady with the remarkable memory is 106 today.

Centenarian Mrs. Laura Weller expects to receive numerous friends and relatives while celebrating quietly at home in the village. She'll be showing the usual telegrams from the leaders of both federal and provincial governments, along with dozens of cards and letters of congratulations. Bloomquoted flowers are among the gifts she displayed with the other mementoes.

Late last week there was a question whether Mrs. Weller would be up and around to mark the occasion. She had to stay in bed suffering from influenza.

By Tuesday, however, she became concerned about begging off her birthday festivities. Yesterday she was not to be contained any longer. She waited for her doctor during his office seat a message that he would not be calling because he had been stricken by a similar virus and was confined at home.

REMEMBERS JOHN A.

Mrs. Weller, who was seven-years-old when Confederation took effect July 1, 1867, possesses a remarkable gift for remembering events of the past. She recalls many details of a political rally at nearby Twelve O'Clock Point when Canada's first Prime Minister, Sir John A. MacDonald, Conservative, spoke. She has cast a Conservative ballot continuously since women were granted the right to vote.

Still she would not want to be branded as a political partisan and it is difficult to understand the platforms of all parties reached a variety of subjects, including The Intelligencer.

Mrs. Weller could read and write when she started to school at Stockdale where she was seven years old. Her mother, who had been brought up in the United States, taught her the fundamentals at home. Her first school teacher was Dr. Byron Moran. She recalls that pupils received a small degree after spending a period teaching. He married one of his pupils, named Emmaline Osterhout. It was not unusual for young women in their 20's to Roland elementary classes in those days, she says. She remembers them wearing full length dresses and high button shoes, which were styles of the times.

WEARS NO GLASSES

One of Mrs. Weller's favorite pass times is sitting at the kitchen window watching activity at the village's four corners some 250 yards away. She has no trouble seeing without eye glasses, says check-up by J. W. Farley three weeks ago showed her pulse and blood pressure normal and heart "better than mine," in his words.

Mrs. Weller does not believe in dieting. She insists on having grapefruit with her toast and tea every morning. She drinks lots of milk and eats healthy helpings of potatoes and meat. She likes cabbage, raw or cooked. And raw onions with bread. She also favors sweet foods like marmalade, jelly, pie and pudding. She has always abstained from alcoholic beverages and tobacco.

Her daughter, Miss Myrtle Weller, says her mother keeps no regular hours for sleeping. "Often she'll be listening to the radio at 11.00 p.m. and have to be reminded to go to bed," she said. "Then she's awake at 6.00 a. m. and ready to begin another day." This daughter is one of Mrs. Weller's seven children. A son, Everard, lives next door. He's been ill in the hospital but hopes to come out for a few hours today to be with his mother. She has survived her husband, the late James Weller, and five of their children.

There are 31 grandchildren; 56 great grandchildren and two great great grandchildren.

WORKED ON FARM

Mrs. Weller is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Osberia, pioneers of the Quinte district. Her attended life soon began at Mount Zion, near Stockdale. Perhaps her longevity can be attributed to hard work on a farm when she was a young woman. Her tasks included cultivating crops with a horse and chopping wood for the cookstove.

Aware of current happenings in the ever - changing world, she disagrees with scientist's prodding outer space. "Our chief weather of recent years has been caused by them tampering with the moon," she observed. And then looking up from a well - wisher's card she was admiring, she divulged that she was looking forward to joining in Canada's celebration of its 100th birthday next year. Then she exchanged smiles with the reporter as he was leaving.

Canadian Divorces Set Record

OTTAWA (CP) — A record 8,941 divorces were granted during 1965 by provincial and territorial divorce courts and the Parliament of Canada, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

The figure for 1964 was 8,025. There were increases in the Maritime provinces, Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia. There were 3,264 divorces granted in Ontario in 1965, compared with 3,308 in 1964.

The bureau also reported the divorce rate has been climbing steadily since 1960. The rate — the number of divorces per 100,000 population—was 36 in 1961, 44.8 in 1964, and 45.7 last year, the highest since 1948 when it was 54.6.

Newfoundland's divorce rate has consistently been the lowest. It was 0.6 per 100,000 last year, compared with Quebec's 4.0, next lowest, and British Columbia's 108.6, highest in the country.

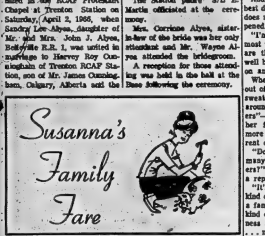
MR. AND MRS. HARVEY ROY CUNNINGHAM



Cunningham – Alyea

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the RCAF Protestant Chapel at Trenton Station on Saturday, April 2, 1966, when Sandra Lee Alyea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Alyea, Belleville R.R. 1, was united in marriage to Harvey Roy Cunningham of Trenton RCAF Station, son of Mr. James Cunningham, Calgary, Alberta and the late Mrs. Cunningham.

The Station padre S/L E. Martin officiated at the ceremony.

Mrs. Corrinne Alyea, sister-in-law of the bride was her only attendant and Mr. Wayne Alyea attended the bridegroom.

A reception for those attending was held in the hall at the Base following the ceremony.

Ain't What You Use, It's The Way . . . .

Dear Susanna: An ordinary window spray bottle (with sprayer top) filled with water, can be used to: (a) dampen hair enough to set it without soaking or dripping. (b) Spray very small pleats before they are strong enough to take a heavy sprinkle of water. (c) Spray parts of dry clothes when one is ironing, or dampen the entire garment just before it is to be ironed.

At the risk of being tried for treason may I also say that I've produced some of my shiniest windows when armed with nothing more than one of these bottles filled with WATER, plus several soft, absorbent, clean, lint-free cloths.

Where windows are concerned, I'm afraid I'm more inclined to put the accent on using proper cloth rather than on the type of cleaning agents used.

Hope you wpn't all hate me for this!

Susanna

Dear Susanna: As we are planning a pain party in our church group, I think we could use your pattern for the crocheted coal drink coasters to advantage. I would appreciate receiving it.

Others, who also sew for bazars, will be pleased with my suggestion for saving time and thread.

When sewing small doll's clothes in large quantities, or making several dozen little articles all the same, it is wise to continue your seams one after another without stopping and breaking the machine thread in between.

Did you ever use the mushroom brush a can and wonder what to do with the liquid?

Freeze it in ice cube trays, remove, and wrap individually in foil and place in freezer for flavorful addition to soups, stews, casserole. Even better, for Chinese recipes.

Mrs. F. M. Arnold.

Strange Things Happen When Twins Wed Twins

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Strange things may happen when identical twins marry identical twins.

Dr. G. J. S. Wilde, a Queen's University psychologist, turned up an incredible story while doing research on twins in his native Holland.

The two couples of identical twin brothers and sisters set out to furnish their homes after their marriage. And although they shopped independently they came home with purchases that were "almost exactly alike."

The result, Dr. Wilde says, is that within a short time the interiors of their homes "completely mirrored each other."

He added that they also bought flowers each Saturday and, although there was no prior consultation, they would almost invariably choose the same blooms.

The first child of each couple was born within the same week and when they bought baby carriages they went to different stores but purchased identical models.

Dr. Wilde, whose previous research was performed at the University of Leyden, now is undertaking a similar program at Queen's and has advertised in the Kingston Whig-Standard for twins in the area to take part.

The response has so far been far better than I expected," he says of his appeal for help from the estimated 400 twins within 50 miles of the city.

TWINS IN MEDS

Identical twins who will participate are Bob and Jim Nugent, 19, year - old pre-med students at Queen's.

Their school career in Edmonton, their home town, was filled with the same ups and downs, with only a variation of a few marks. They did poorly in Grade 11, they say, but obtained honors the following year.

Bob says they resemble each other except that Jim needs a larger hat size. They also wear their hair differently because of a desire to be different. But they share much the same opinions and tastes—and have a flair for art but no musical talent.

They are also interested in the same sports, both as spectators and participants, but they root for different National Hockey League teams, one pulling for Toronto Maple Leafs, the other for Montreal Canadiens.

TWO OF A KIND — Bob and Jim Nugent, 19-year-old identical twins from Edmonton, are participating, in a study by a Queen's University psychologist to determine the importance of heredity in forming characters. The pre-med students have the same tastes, talents and opinions. The university hopes to hear from most of the estimated 400 twins in the Kingston area. (CP Photo)

They take mostly the same classes and this occasionally causes some confusion. In one of the few classes they take separately, a perplexed student asked one of the twins why he was called Jim in the morning and Bob in the afternoon.

The boys haven't bothered much with dating so far, so they haven't tried to confuse any girl friends—yet.

Nutritionists Said Failing In Mission

TORONTO (CP) — Nutritionists are not getting information on diets and food across to the people who need it most, a University of Guelph sociology professor said Wednesday.

Helen Abell, who left a career in home economics to take up sociology, told the Toronto Nutrition Committee that too many nutritionists wait for people to come to them for advice.

"People who need us don't come to us. We can produce facts but no one would read them," she said, adding that often the information is not put across in a way the listener will understand.

Some people are over - conscious of nutrition, she said. They give their families vitamins not needed because the family meals are wholesome in themselves.

"They're so serious to be sure, they go overboard," she said.

AIMS FOR NORTH

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Sharon Wonestenski of Port Alberni, B.C., is the first girl to graduate in education from Notre Dame University here. The 21-year-old teacher plans to work in Inuvik, N.W.T., where 800 of the 2,000 residents are in school.

Successful Living

Deserting Husband Wants a Second Chance

DEAR DORIS: My husband has been having an affair with a girl at work. He hasn't lived with us for four months. He supports us bought another house but now he tells me he wants his home and children again. He claims he doesn't love me but admires me. I know the children want their father and I do still love him.

DORIS CLARK

Could there really be a future for us as a family? He looks so thin and sick since he hurt his spine. That's when he changed and started this business. Is it worth throwing ten years of marriage away because of his mistake? Can you live together if one loves the other but it's not returned?

Most of all the children; what of them? Because they know the truth. Could they forgive him and learn to respect him again? — HOPING AGAINST HOPE.

DEAR HOPING: "Love hopeth all things." And I'd say there's hope.

His affair, his illness and his capitulation suggests that your child-husband will be grateful for forgiveness and mothering. But if you take him on again, be sure the mothering includes a good share of firm expectations, as with any child. As he grows up a little more, there's hope he'll replace the admiration with gratitude and love.

Your boys and girls will take their cue from you.

DEAR DORIS: One of your letters to Depressed Wife and Mother could have been to me. Could I obtain the booklet "Facing Forty"? (Ten cents enclosed.) It may help me settle down to happy living again. I've slipped.

May I give you, in return, information about a new book put out by my doctor, A. Hoffer, director of Psychiatric Research at the University Hospital, Saskatoon. The book is called "How to Live With Schizophrenia," and is written by A. Hoffer and H. Osmond. It can be obtained from The Ryerson Press, Toronto.

Schizophrenia is a much misunderstood disease which affects at least 1 percent of the population (the same ratio as diabetes.) I hope this information will help some of your readers.

DEAR HOPEFUL: It's a fair exchange. Readers who are up against this problem will be grateful for your message.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: In the summer of 1965 two boys moved near my house. Before I didn't pay to much attention of them but now I really like them. The trouble is this:

(1) I like both of them.

(2) They keep to themselves, therefore I can't meet them. How do I find out if either one of them is interested in me? — WISHING.

* * *

DEAR WISHING:

(1) Just a normal Canadian girl.

(2) My crystal ball tells me that any possible interest is dormant right now. Why not ignore the Sermits and look around for more likely prospects?

DEAR DORIS: I am 12 and adopted; a fact which I learned at nine years of age. I cried my heart out but my mother put her arm around me and told me it didn't mean she didn't love me as much as if I weren't adopted.

If all mothers were like this there would be no problems about adopted children, I feel.

I would also like to say something in the defence of parents who do let their children dress according to style; also who let them act like everyone else, — THANKS FOR LISTENING.

DEAR LISTENING: Glad to hear from you. It's the loving mothers and fathers who have made the practice of adoption the terrific success it is. The unenlightened ones are an extremely small minority.

Your two-cents'-worth about dress is welcome too.

A HOUSE WITH HISTORY — Kent House, on the corner of St. Louis and Haldiman Streets in Quebec, has sheltered some of the most illustrious figures in Quebec's history. It was build in 1650 by a governor of New France and used as a residence until 1919 when it became an office building. The outside looks almost the same as it did 316 years ago. (CP Photo)

Quebec City House Home to Many Famous People

MONTREAL (CP)—What do Queen Victoria's father, the French governor who surrendered Quebec to the English and the first Anglican Bishop of Quebec have in common?

They all, at some point, lived in one of Quebec's oldest houses —a building whose list of tenants reads like a Who's Who of Quebec history.

Kent House, on the corner of St. Louis and Haldimand streets, was built in 1650 by Louis D'Allebout, the third governor of New France.

By 1691 it had passed to Louis Theandre Chartier de Lotbiniere, civil and criminal lieutenant for the city. Jean Mailloux, architect and contractor of the king, bought it in 1713 and lived in it for 40 years.

The next owner was the commandant of the Quebec garrison, Jean Baptiste Nicolas Roch de Ramezay. Four days after the battle of the Plains of Abraham he signed the capitulation of the city.

After de Ramezay returned to France the house was sold to a British merchant. In 1777 title passed to Adam Mabane, a Scot who came to Canada as a surgeon's mate in Wolfe's expedition.

LEASED TO DUKE

In 1791 he leased it to Edward, Duke of Kent, the fourth son of George III and father of Queen Victoria. Edward, then 25 and commanding the 7th Fusiliers, lived for three years in the house which from then on was known by his name.

One of the first tenants after Edward returned to England was Rev. Jacob Mountain, first Anglican Bishop of Quebec and father of the first principal of McGill University.

Supreme Court Justice Jean Thomas Taschereau and his son, Sir Henri Thomas Taschereau of the Court of Queen's Bench, were among its 19th century tenants.

The building entered a somewhat less glorious phase of its history in 1919 when it was purchased for use as an office building. Today it belongs to Domtar Newsprint Ltd.

From the outside, Kent House looks almost the same today as it did 316 years ago; the only change has been the removal of one of the two entrances. But the interior of the building has been altered radically by one of the firms which uses it as an office.

ROMANIA FUSHES OIL EXPANSION — A glistening, fully-automated refinery complex at Brazi, Romania, is, to Romanians, a symbol of independence as well as a source of wealth. Romania has rejected the Soviet-proposed economic integration scheme for Eastern Europe and is pushing its own industrial development. (CP Photo)

PRIDE AND NATIONALISM SPUR EXPANSION — Modern farm equipment is produced in modern factories in Romania as the country scrambles to catch up with the industrialized world. Romania is well-developed, even rich, agriculturally, but official opinion is that only industrialized nations are "advanced." (CP Photo)

Rebuilt Oil Refinery Is Example of Policies

By JOHN BEST

BRAZI, Romania (CP) — There's an oil refinery at this town just outside Ploesti, 40 miles north of Bucharest, that was built in 1936.

"But we consider it new," says Victor Nica, the refinery's technical director. That's because most of its productive capacity has gone into operation since 1960, the beginning of Communist Romania's "great leap forward" in industrial expansion.

The refinery and an adjacent, newly-developed petrochemical combine are glamorous symbols of this country's drive for economic growth and its determination not to be a party to Soviet-proposed economic integration schemes for Eastern Europe.

Hundreds of new factories have sprung up in different parts of the country, and more are being pushed to completion every day.

Both chemicals and iron-and-steel — the big two of sophisticated modern industrial economies—are covered in the broad sweep of the strictly home - grown campaign.

Steel output is scheduled to climb to 6,300,000 tons by 1970, compared with 3,400,000 tons in 1965. Chemical industry production is scheduled to increase 2.3 times in the same period.

At the Brazi refinery, a wide range of new products is being turned out as a result of an investment program totalling more than 1,000,000,000 Romanian lei in the last six years.

The official exchange rate on the lei is six to the American dollar but its actual buying power is closer to the rate tourists enjoy: 12 to the dollar. Even at that the investment in this one installation works out to something like $50,000,000.

Asked whether the Soviet Union or any other foreign country had helped Romania to finance the expansion, Nica replied: "The funds exported only from Romanian capital-accumulation."

However, 15 to 20 per cent of the equipment was imported, mainly from Austria, France, Italy and Czechoslovakia.

"We bought where the best terms were offered," he said.

New products which the glistening, fully - automated complex is turning out include high - octane gas, raw materials for synthetic fibres and synthetic rubber, and materials for Romania's new polyethylene industry. In addition, the range and quality of diesel oil production have been improved.

OUTPUT GOES ABROAD

Most of the refinery's production is for export, says Nica. Purchasing countries include France, West Germany, Russia, Italy, Sweden and Austria.

"We can't keep up with the demand from our foreign trade enterprises."

The factory thus brings in foreign exchange which Romania in turn can use to finance further purchases on the world market of goods and equipment needed to push on with the industrialization drive.

The oil industry is a field in which Romania feels eminently well qualified to run its own show, without dictates from any outside power. "After all," comments the technical director, "we've had more than 100 years of experience."

The centenary of the oil industry here was marked in 1958.

"We are able to export high-quality goods. We have built a refinery in India and helped the U.S.S.R. to build a second one there. Now we are building an installation in East Germany. Romanian oil technicians have served in a number of countries."

Though additional reserves have been discovered in Romanian Moldavia to augment the main reservoir in the Ploesti oilfields, and explorations are continuing, the country maintains a strict no-export policy on crude oil in the knowledge that its resources are not unlimited.

It is willing to export its oil products, but not its oil wealth. There are good economic reasons for this policy —the profit on oil products is many times greater than on oil itself.

At the same time a campaign is under way to make better use of the oil being consumed. For instance in the five-year plan now beginning, though output of the refinery will markedly increase, it is hoped that actual consumption of crude oil will remain stable.

Built three years before the Second World War, the original Brazi refinery was heavily damaged by bombs during the war, for most of which Romania fought on the side of the Germans.

The refinery was re - constructed after the war, and nationalized when the Communists took over in Romania.

In 1953, it consumed 1,000,000 tons of crude oil. Now it is consuming at four times that rate. The plant employs 2,700 workers.

Romanians Place Main Stress On Industrialization of Nation

Romania has decided that the key to future development of the country is industrial expansion rather than agriculture, Canadian Press reporter John Best, who visited Romania during a tour through Eastern Europe, reports in this story that the decision was based largely on nationalistic and patriotic grounds.

By JOHN BEST

BUCHAREST (CP) — Romania provides a communist example of an underdeveloped country scrambling to catch up with the industrialized world.

It started from a more advanced base than most countries of Africa and Asia, but nevertheless the same emotional and psychological ingredients are at work.

"Modern states are states that are developed industrially," says a leading Bucharest editor.

"Backward countries are agricultural countries," disdainfully adds a Government official. "The advanced countries are the industrialized countries."

Spokesmen are not impressed with the argument that some countries have achieved an extremely high standard of living by specializing in agriculture.

You suggest that on strictly economic grounds Romania would be better off to concentrate on agriculture—it is a country richly endowed with good farming land—and you get a conversation - stopping reply such as:

"Look—only we Romanians know what is best for Romania."

REASON WAS POLITICAL

And of course the official who said this was putting his finger precisely on the reasons behind this country's entire development policy: industrialization is needed for its own sake, to make Romania "modern."

The decision to go full speed ahead with industrialization was a political one, based largely on nationalistic and patriotic factors.

The program began in earnest in 1960. It was viewed with misgivings by the Soviet Union, which had begun to form an integrated East European economy in which Romania's chief role was to supply food and raw materials for industrial countries like Czechoslovakia and East Germany.

The Romanians see a direct connection between their determination to develop their economy the way they want to and their right to political independence.

"Only a country economic Independence and you deny it sovereignty," says a high Romanian government official.

When it came to justifying their position on theoretical grounds the Romanians gleefully, cited the words of Lenin himself: "The only material basis of socialism is mechanized industry exclusively."

U.S.S.R. SET EXAMPLE

As for the out-manoeuvred but still-protesting Russians, Romanian leaders could throw at them the experience of Soviet Russia itself, where heavy industry has always received priority over agriculture and where in this day agriculture is a severe and expensive drag on the economy.

In the 1960-65 period, says the Romanian government, 302 new enterprises were built and the same period witnessed a phenomenal industrial growth of 225 per cent.

Experts caution that such a growth rate, while impressive, has to be measured against the fact that Romania was starting from a relatively low base. In the five - year period 1965 to 1970, from an average annual rate of 14.5 per cent. It is expected to taper off to a still-respectable 10.5.

The men who provide the push for Romania's sink-or-swim development program are a self-confident lot, full of patriotic zeal and generally not inclined to worry too much about problems which today's mammoth development will impose upon tomorrow.

Many independent observers have wondered where Romania is going to dispose of the heavy equipment and machinery which it is turning out now when its own development needs are met and it sits with a modern industrial plant facing a strongly competitive world market.

"Sure we'll be able to compete," says Ion Lazeanu, commercial director of a shiny new machine tool factory on the outskirts of Bucharest. "even now we are able to export, and we are just beginning."

TRAINED IN SKILLS

Guiding a Canadian reporter through his busy, well-lighted plant, Lazeanu drew attention to a 12-ton lathe produced in the Soviet Union. The Romanians, taking advantage of a licensing arrangement, had adapted their own model from it. This year they expected to export 30 such lathe models to the Soviet Union.

Romania imports machine tools under similar licensing arrangements from several Western countries.

Most responsible Romanian authorities admit that the task of competing on the world market will not be an easy one in many branches of production — especially for a country where everything is collectivized down to shoeshine men and where only now are some much-needed, efficiency-inspiring market influences being introduced into the economic structure.

Independent observers say the productivity of Romanian workers is decidedly low by Western standards.

To help meet the problem, many of the newer factories have their own schools at which the latest technical and engineering skills are taught. Delegations are sent abroad to study Western market demands.

KEEN MARKET IN RUSSIA

In developing its industry Romania also has in mind the needs of the underdeveloped countries of Asia and Africa.

Besides, if it can't sell in the West it can presumably always turn around and re-direct more of its trade to the less fussy East, particularly the huge receptive market of Russia. However, this would undoubtedly mean a concurrent turning - back in its cherished pursuit of complete political independence.

Romanian officials admit that in their eagerness to industrialize the country they have to some extent neglected agriculture, which however is so richly endowed as a farming country as this can always be expected to produce, and has kept producing enough foodstuffs not only for the domestic population but for export as well.

More attention will be paid to agriculture in the new five-year plan. Investment in this sector is scheduled to increase by 60 per cent while production of chemical fertilizers is scheduled to increase 3½ times.

Tomorrow: Romania intends to hang on to Transylvania.

He confirmed that Capt. Georgeis Dimopoulos had replaced Capt. George Vardinoyannis as master of the tanker. Vardinoyannis was said to be in Gibraltan where the Manuela docked Wednesday night with 15,000 tons of oil on board.

The Manuela arrived off Durban Tuesday after being diverted from Beira by a British frigate following a United Nations resolution allowing Britain to use force in imposing its embargo.

There was no immediate signs that the ship planned to move from a supply berth to a position from which it could discharge its cargo.

(In Athens Nicholas Vardinoyannis, main stockholder of the Greek company which owns the Manuela, said the tanker would discharge its cargo in Durban but declared it was not destined for Rhodesia.)

mondville, Que., 70 miles east of Montreal, has been shut down by a strike of 700 employees for five weeks.

Another 1,400 employees have been on strike for two weeks at the company's mills at Sherbrooke and 1,000 workers went on strike at Montmorency last week.

The striking workers did not picket the lines but they were closed down when non-strikers did not show up for work.

In another dispute, 250 engineers employed by Hydro-Quebec are on strike for retroactive salary increases.

Meanwhile, talks were continuing here today in an attempt to avert a strike of 30,000 Quebec hospital workers seeking their first uniform working agreement. The dispute centres on salaries.

Several other strikes and threatened strikes involve hundreds more workers.

two Moslem sects, the Shias in the south and the Sunnis in the north, and by the four-year-old rebellion of Kurdish tribesmen in northern Iraq who want independence from Baghdad.

Aref began a visit to Basra Tuesday, and Baghdad radio said Wednesday he had laid the foundation stone there for the biggest paper factory in the Middle East.

HELP LEAD REVOLT

Aref, a former army colonel, was co-leader with Abdel Karim Kassem of the violent revolution that overthrew King Faisal II in 1958. Faisal, most of the royal family and most of the government were killed.

Kassem became premier and Aref deputy premier, interior minister and commander of the army. The two soon split over Aref's advocacy of a merger with the U.A.R. (Aref signed a military co-operation pact with Nasser, but Kassem ousted him before it could be implemented. In October, 1958, Kassem asked Aref to Basra as Iraq's ambassador to West Germany. Within a month, Aref returned in Baghdad and Kassem had him arrested.

Convicted of plotting to overthrow Kassem, Aref was sentenced to death, but Kassem commuted the sentence to life imprisonment. He freed Aref from prison in 1961 but kept him confined to his home.

The military overthrew and executed Kassem in February, 1963, and installed the Baath (Arab Socialist) party in power. Aref was asked to become a figurehead president. Nine months later he staged his own coup and took over actual power.

Consumer Price Indexes Up In 11 Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer price indexes rose last month in 11 of the 12 cities for which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics compiles regional indexes, the bureau reported today.

There was a slight decrease of a tenth of a point in the Montreal index to 141.1 from 141.2.

The indexes, based on 1949 consumer prices in each city equalling 100, rose a point in Saskatoon and Regina to 135.0 from 134.0, and nine-tenths of a point in Halifax to 136.8 from 136.0.

The city indexes measure only the change in consumer prices since 1949, and do not indicate whether living costs are cheaper in one city compared with another.

DBS said mixed price movements occurred between February and March, with most showing higher food prices.

Indexes for March for the other cities, with February indexes in brackets: St. John's Nfld., based on June 1951 equalling 100, 134.8 (134.4); Saint John, N.B., 134.8 (134.7); Ottawa 142.0 (141.5); Toronto 144.5 (143.8); Winnipeg 138.8 (138.1); Edmonton 137.4 (137.1); Calgary 132.9 (132.5); Vancouver 137.9 (137.5).

through the earth dikes is a constant problem. But the Red rose only one-tenth of an inch Wednesday.

The river crest is expected to reach Winnipeg Saturday at a revised level of 36.5 feet above average winter ice level. Forecasters chopped a foot from the anticipated crest Wednesday, putting it well within the handling capacity of Winnipeg's primary dikes.

In all, more than 1,200 military personnel are engaged in flood fighting throughout the valley.

"It's great for integration of the forces," ventures Lieut. Bob Chaddie of Corner Brook, Nfld., reporting that many men fighting the 1966 flood gained experience in the 1950 disaster.

Dupuis Claims He Was Used As Vehicle to Transfer Money

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Yvon Dupuis said Wednesday he was "shocked" to learn he had been used in 1961 as a vehicle to transfer money from one person to another in connection with a bid for a race-track permit in his riding of St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville.

Mr. Dupuis, a former minister without portfolio in the Pearson cabinet, was testifying in his own defence on a charge of influence peddling.

He said it was not until 1964 that he learned of a financial transaction between Rock Desjardins, attempting to obtain a provincial permit to operate the track, and the late Paul Earl, then Quebec revenue minister.

Under examination by his lawyer Wednesday, Mr. Dupuis said he recalled Mr. Desjardins, a chiropractor of St. Johns, Que., saying to him in 1964: "Don't you remember the time I had you go to Ottawa with documents to be given to Mr. Earl to prove my solvency? Well then, Mr. Earl held me to get the money in a brown envelope."

The Crown accuses Mr. Dupuis of accepting $10,000 from Mr. Desjardins to intercede with the Quebec government to get the original franchise.

LOST INTEREST

Entering the stand Wednesday as the first defence witness after the Crown concluded its case against him, Mr. Dupuis said he lost active interest in the plan for a racetrack when he learned of a rival group and the possibility that the track would be established outside his riding.

Mr. Dupuis acknowledged that he signed two statements he made to the RCMP Jan. 9, 1965, and Jan. 20, 1965.

In the first statement he said Premier Jean Lesage encouraged him to take an interest in the project, adding that he never mentioned money in connection with the affair.

In the second statement, he mentioned meetings with Mr. Lesage, Mr. Earl, and Bernard Pinard, then provincial roads minister.

At these meetings only Mr. Earl spoke of a deposit to show financial solvency, he said.

Mr. Dupuis said he still stands by the two statements he gave to the RCMP.

Mr. Dupuis continues his testimony today.

The last witness called by the Crown Wednesday was Mr. Desjardins, who was treated as a hostile witness about giving $10,000 to Mr. Dupuis.

8.9 per cent, higher than a year earlier."

For the last 10 years the March-to-March gain in total employment has been 2.5 per cent. This time it was 4.6 per cent, chiefly due to sharp gains in the service and construction sectors of industry.

All areas of the country showed lower unemployment in March, although the Atlantic region continued to be well above the national rate with 12.3 per cent of its labor force seeking jobs.

Quebec had 4.5 per cent jobless, Ontario 2.8, the Prairies three and British Columbia 4.9.

The national rate of 4.8 per cent compares with 5.4 per cent in March of 1965, and 6.8 in March, 1964.

Of the 341,000 unemployed, an estimated 26,000 were on temporary layoff and another 68,000 had been out of work for less than a month. There were 162,000 who had been job-hunting for between one and three months and the remaining 107,000 had been jobless for longer periods.

DEFICIT INCREASES — Canada's balance of payments deficit increased in 1965 in sharp reversal of the trend since 1959. The dificit for 1965 is more than $1,000,000,000. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics says the increase was caused by a smaller surplus in last year's commodity trade coupled with larger deficit in trade with the United States. (CP Newsmap)

Student Is Candidate For University Board

By KEN EMMOND

WINNIPEG (CP)—A country-wide student demand for representation on governing bodies of universities may soon get a practical try-out. Eli Welsztub, a third-year medical student at the University of Manitoba, has taken advantage of a loophole in Manitoba's University Act to become a candidate for the University's board of governors.

Mr. Welsztub, 29, is running as an alumni representative by virtue of a Bachelor of Arts degree he received here in 1963.

If the 22,000 University of Manitoba alumni elect him to the 14-member board in a mail-in vote this spring, Mr. Welsztub will be the first student to sit at the university's highest level of government.

The board consists of nine government appointees, three elected alumni representatives and two ex-officio members—the university president and a local judge.

As a board member, Mr. Welsztub hopes to breach what he believes is a communication gap between students and the administration.

"A student who is responsible can contribute something vital to the board of governors," Mr. Welsztub said. "There are many ideas which students have that could be put to use."

STUDENT WANTS VOICE IN UNIVERSITY GOVERNMENT — Eli Welsztub, a third-year medical student, is taking advantage of a loophole in the law to run for the board of governors of the University of Manitoba. If elected he will be the first student to sit at the university's highest level of government. (CP Photo).

FACULTY IGNORED

He hopes to alleviate the "stifling influence" of the administration on students and faculty, and plans to propose to the board a "faculty and student advisory council" at which the administration, faculty and students would exchange ideas.

"If there were a board representing faculty, administration and students, I wouldn't even be running for the board of governors," Mr. Welsztub said.

He said the board has not coped with faculty demands for representation and this has led to antagonism on the part of the faculty.

Prof. C. R. Hiscocks, former head of the university's political science department, gave as his reason for leaving, in 1964, "frustration because of lack of faculty representation on the board of governors."

Dr. Hugh Saunderson, president of the University of Manitoba, said there is "not much communication as there should be (between administration and students) but it should be focused at the working level and not at the board level."

OBJECTS TO SECRECY

He said most agenda items at board meetings are not ones in which students would be interested.

The in-camera nature of board meetings would limit the communications channel created by Mr. Welsztub being a one-way street—from students to the administration, he said.

Dr. Saunderson doubted whether a student representative on the board would be as effective as he student is hoped.

David Saunders, newly-elected president of the University of Manitoba Students' Union, disagreed. He said a student representative would "benefit the board greatly."

Mr. Welsztub criticized the board for the aura of secrecy that surrounds it. He said it has failed to take stands on major educational issues—free education, for example.

He said the shroud of secrecy on long-range development plans for the university is hurting its image.

"When they don't publish their plans people get the idea there are no plans."

Safe Tires Still Need Good Care

By EUGENE S. MILNOR

When tire makers put their products through torture tests it's not done merely to provide a dramatic gimmick. On the average car, tires are daily subjected to torture tests, too: pot-holes, debris, hard braking, high-speed turns and sharp curves which cause terrific strains and dangerous tire distortions.

Thus, there's a constant effort to strengthen tire resistance to heat, blowouts, skids, impact, penetration and cornering punishments. But even the safest tires can become dangerous when not properly cared for . . and many are not.

Improper inflation — usually too low — is probably the most common neglect. Other tire abuses result from wheel imbalance, misalignment, failure to rotate for more even wear, and from such bad driving practices as panic stops, racetrack starts, screaming turns, curb slamming and complete indifference to bad road surface conditions.

Q. L. asks: "What is usually the cause when one of the hydraulic valve lifters is noisy, even after the engine is warmed up?"

Dirt or a leaky plunger.

From R. J.: "My car is a '56 eight-cylinder sedan. Most of my driving is on the thruway at 70 mph. I get an average of 14.5 miles per gallon. One person tells me this is good gas mileage and another tells me it's poor. Which is it?"

For 70 mph it's not poor. At that rate, you'd get 18 or 19 mpg at moderate speeds of 45-50 mph.

L. F. writes: "My brakes squeak, so the service station checked the shoe adjustments. That didn't help, and now they tell me it's due to the type of brake linings on the car."

It could be. Some high-friction linings tend to be noisy. However, this brake squeak also could be due to grit or other foreign particles on the linings.

R. J. asks: "Isn't it true that oil filters should be changed more often in winter?"

Not the filter, but the oil itself. Oil filters do not screen out contaminants such as water and gas which get into the oil at a greater rate in winter.

Stirling

STIRLING — A Maundy Thursday service was held on April 7th at St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling. Rev. F. F. F. Downing presided and the sermon was given by Mr. Carl Young, pastor of Good Tidings Tabernacle. Rev. F. Bruce Ismail of St. Paul's United Church and Rev. F. A. Frank Nighbor, Great Hockey Player, Dies

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Frank Nighbor, the Pembroke Peach who was one of the National Hockey League's great stars in the 1920s, died in hospital late Wednesday of Cancer. He was 73.

He played on five Stanley Cup championship teams — the Ottawa Senators of 1920, 1921, 1923 and 1927 and Vancouver Millionaires of 1915.

Nighbor, the 12th player to be voted into the International Hockey Hall of Fame, spent 18 seasons in the NHL and the old National Hockey Association from which the NHL evolved.

He was the first winner of two of the league's top annual individual awards, the Lady Byng Trophy for sportsmanship and the Hart Trophy for the most valuable player.

Although he spent most of his playing years with the old Senators, Nighbor began and ended his professional hockey career in Toronto. He last season was with Toronto Maple Leafs of 1929-30.

Later he coached Buffalo Bisons of the International League for three seasons, winning the title in the first two, and spent another season as coach of London Tecumsehs in the same league.

SCORING DUEL

During the 1916-17 season, his rookie year with the Senators, he and Joe Malone of Quebec, who staged one of the greatest scoring duels in the game's history, up tied 41 41 goals each in 20 games.

In an interview three years ago Nighbor recalled as his greatest thrill the surprise presentation of the Byng Trophy in 1925.

Lady Byng, wife of the then Governor-General, asked him to drop in at Government House one night. She showed him the trophy and asked him if he thought the league would accept it as an award for its most sportsmanlike player.

When Nighbor said the league would be delighted, Lady Byng handed it to him, saying: "I present this trophy to Frank Nighbor as the most sportsmanlike player of 1925."

A year later the league's governors voted the award permanent by voting him repeat winner of the trophy.

Frank Pembroke, he began skating at the age of four and was a local hockey sensation at 15. He left home at 16 to break into pro ranks at Toronto in 1912 after a year with a Port Arthur junior team.

At that time Toronto had the best hockey arena in the league and his salary in the NHL was $750 a year. He scored 29 goals in his first year — a rookie but drew more attention for the introduction of the sweep check and the poke check.

An outstanding two - way player, he won the inaugural Hart award in 1924 although he was only 12th in league scoring. But Ottawa's league title that year was attributed to his defensive play.

Nighbor was predeceased by two wives, Gertrude, one four children, Frank Stanley, who was born the night Ottawa won the Stanley Cup in 1927, and nurse his father's old insurance firm here, Frank, a student in Ottawa; Mrs. Michael (Vera) Catharine, both of Pembroke.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Life of Gallantry, Daring Ends in von Luckner's Death

MALMOE, Sweden (CP-AP) —Count Felix von Luckner, who sank 14 Allied ships in the First World War without taking a life, is dead at 84.

Von Luckner's death Wednesday of an undisclosed illness ended a life of gallantry and daring that earned him fame as the Sea Devil.

During the war he commanded an innocent - looking windjammer that carried concealed guns and a powerful motor. Masquerading as a Norwegian freighter, von Luckner's (Sea Eagle) scuttled 225,000 tons worth of Allied ships, but he took their crews — and even their pets — off first and locked after them until he could put them ashore.

"I broke the British blockade with a clear conscience," he said. "No mother, wife, child or father lost a tear."

The Seeadler's cocoanuts rebelled from sheer boldness and deception, for the raider was equipped with no torpedoes and with light guns. A formidable looking cannon was mounted on deck, but it was merely a dummy.

FLEW NEUTRAL FLAG

Von Luckner's strategy was to fly a neutral flag on sighting a prospective prize. Then, at a point which "meant I have something to tell you" were raised. When the prey drew close, the German flag was raised, the raider was exposed and von Luckner, using a megaphone, cautioned that the torpedoes would be launched. Then his sailors would board the enemy chainman, ready for action if resistance was offered.

Crews were removed to the Seeadler before the merchantman was sunk or blown up, usually the status of guests.

After selling 35,000 miles, the Seeadler was wrecked on a South Sea coral reef in August, 1917. Von Luckner and five of his crew sailed a lifeboat loaded with ammunition for 48 days to the Fiji Islands, where they hoped to seize another ship. Instead, a British police officer and several native policemen captured them.

The British sent him to New Zealand, but he escaped in a motorboat and during an hour of freedom seized a small sailboat. A New Zealand warship reconaptured him and he spent the rest of the war in New Zealand.

He was a successful propaganda ambassador for German causes for many years after the First World War.

The count's efforts as a "peaceful mischief" began in 1909 when he sailed his schooner Vaterland into New York Harbor on a trip to promote understanding of German manufacturers.

A formal reception at New York's City Hall launched him on one of the most successful propaganda missions ever undertaken by a German abroad.

Much of the next seven years — until 1933 — Count von Luckner spent touring, lecturing and conducting cruises to the Caribbean.

Before he began a radio series in 1933, it was estimated that he was known to 20,000,000 Americans and that more than 250,000 copies of The Sea Devil by Lowell Thomas were in the hands of American readers.

In 1937, Count von Luckner acquired a new ship, the Seefeufel (Sea Devil) which was equipped with projectors and films to show the development of national socialism, and sailed for Australia and New Zealand to give propaganda talks. His reception, however, was cool.

The count dropped out of sight after returning in 1939 from his unsuccessful Australian tour.

He was too old (60) to be of use to sail for Germany during the Second World War. After the war he said he felt little disfavor with the Nazis when he refused requests to renounce membership in the Free Masons and honorary citizenships that had been conferred on him by Bermuda, San Francisco, Miami and North Dakota.

Von Luckner said he spent the latter part of the war hiding in the Harts Mountains.

Diefenbaker Critical of New Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker charged Wednesday night that the Gerda Munsinger inquiry is reminiscent of the Star Chamber abolished by Britain in 1641.

In his strongest attack yet on the inquiry, he accused the Pearson government of opening the way for witch hunts and political vengeance.

Speaking on The Nation's Business, a CBC free-time political telecast, the Conservative leader and former prime minister said Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada will begin closed hearings Monday.

"Such a commission has never before been set up in British history nor in Canada. Never since that time of the Star Chamber was abolished has there been a commission such as this."

He said he agrees with a newspaper editorial supporting the terms of reference drafted for the inquiry by the Liberal cabinet as whole.

Mr. Justice Spence was instructed to report whether several ministers in the Diefenbaker cabinet were sexually involved with Germany playgirl Gerda Munsinger in 1957-61 and whether national security was threatened.

SETS OFF CRISIS

Justice Minister Cardin set off a parliamentary crisis last March when he charged that Mr. Diefenbaker mishandled the Munsinger case when he received an RCMP report about it.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government set up the Munsinger inquiry for political vengeance — "to punish me or anyone associated with me for daring to take a stand against the government of Mr. Spencer case."

He had no apologies for pressing the government to set up the inquiry into the George Victor Spencer security case, Spencer, found dead in his Vancouver home Saturday night, had been fired by the post office without a hearing or trial where they can meet and confront his accusers.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government is trying to get even with opposition MPs who forced Prime Minister Pearson to reverse himself and appoint the Spencer inquiry.

"When I was in office, I refused at this time to look at the records of the previous (Liberal) government because the British tradition is that no government looks back on the records of another."

WORK HALTED

REGINA (CP)—Work is to be halted on Regina's centennial auditorium to allow close scrutiny of the building in an effort to reduce construction costs through a new design, Jack Peart, chairman of the Auditorium Foundation Board's building committee, said Wednesday. It probably would be August or September before the fate of the building is known.

Persons Affected in Munsinger Case to Have Lawyers Present

OTTAWA (CP)—Persons affected by the Gerda Munsinger inquiry will be allowed to have their lawyers present at future hearings of the Spence commission and to question witnesses, Mr. Justice Wishart Spence ruled Wednesday.

His decision was made public in an interview in his office where he and the inquiry commission staff will be arranging further evidence - taking sessions.

The pipe - smoking, gruff-voiced jurist who celebrated his 62nd birthday a week ago indicated that he will be guided to some extent by the experience of Lord Denning in investigating the 1963 Profumo affair.

He was politely tight-lipped about who has been selected before him or who might do so in future. He suggested that most hearings, if not all, will be held in secret.

The inquiry held its first session a week ago in secret. This raised immediate protests by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and former justice minister Fulton that they were not notified of the sitting and were not represented at it by counsel.

FOLLOWS CHARGES

The inquiry was set up following charges by Justice Minister Cardin that the former prime minister mishandled the Munsinger case in failing to act on referring it to the justice department's legal officers for an opinion.

Mr. Cardin said that two or more Conservative cabinet ministers were involved with Mrs. Munsinger, 36-year-old German blonde. He said she has been a setive in espionage work before coming to Canada in 1955. She returned to Germany in 1961.

Mr. Justice Spence said Lord Denning concisely set out in his 1963 report the standards applied to persons having access to security information.

He acknowledged that these would differ between persons with different governmental responsibilities. He did not say which parts of Lord Denning's report he meant.

In Lord Denning's examination of what a security risk is, the British jurist says:

"In my opinion immorality of discreditable conduct is only a security risk if it is committed in such circumstances that it might expose the person concerned to blackmail or to undue pressures which might lead him to give away secret information. . . ."

DISCUSSES PROCEDURE

On the question of the procedure he will follow, Mr. Justice Spence said:

"The order - in - council (appointing him a one-man commission of inquiry) says I may adopt any procedure I deem fit; I have done that and I'm not unanswerable to the press for it."

As to hearings being open to the press and public, he said: "Hearings of this commission would have to be governed by the paramount interest of national security. Hardly a thing we take up wouldn't be of a classified nature and it would be impossible to hold that public."

"I make myself public with a document known as a report. It is given to the Privy Council."

Mr. Justice Spence said it is impossible to estimate how long it will take to complete his inquiry.

"This is going to be a task which I will perform with all the rapidity of which I'm capable."

He said that the reasons for this are two-fold:

"The government and Parliament are entitled to an early report. The Supreme Court of Canada begins sittings later this month and I should be there."

COMPARES CASES

He was asked the extent to which he will be guided in procedure by the actions of Lord Denning in Britain's Profumo affair.

He noted that Lord Denning's inquiry was held "without benefit of counsel, of evidence on oath and with Denning doing his own investigating."

(The main difference is that the Canadian Supreme Court Justice was appointed by the Liberal cabinet to inquire into allegations involving sex and security with respect to former ministers of a Conservative government - out of office three years.

(When Lord Denning undertook his inquiry, it was at the request of then Prime Minister Macmillan who two weeks earlier had accepted the resignation of his own war minister, John Profumo. Profumo resigned as minister and later as a member of Parliament, for having lied to Parliament about his association with playgirl Christine Keeler.)

Tattoos for Drunken Lobsters Latest Thing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Drunken sailors getting tattooed is nothing new, but the latest thing is tattoos for drunken lobsters—at the government's expense.

It's part of an attempt by the federal fisheries department to nurture the tasty crustaceans in Pacific waters—the fifth attempt since 1956.

Fisheries Scientists Wednesday released 1,000 lobsters imported from New Brunswick, to the Vancouver stadio of Doc Seaman, British Columbia's leading tattoo artist.

They were brought to Vancouver from Barker Island, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, where the latest lobster-raising attempt is taking place.

All the other attempts failed, and nobody seems to know why. The lobsters, instead of taking up housekeeping and producing native lobsters, just disappeared.

LACK IDENTIFICATION

One of the difficulties in keeping the latest little group of lobsters in order, however, is lack of identification. One lobster looks pretty much like another, so the marine biologists decided to mark them.

Tags or big bands would do, they decided. They kept coming off or getting waterlogged or being ripped off by other lobsters.

So they're trying Doc Forbes' needle.

Fisheries officials hope the lobsters will multiply, because epicurean tastes have made the lobster the most valuable single marine species in Canada.

Last year, the lobster industry was worth more than the landed value of all Pacific salmon combined.

Gang of Kidnappers Paid $211,000 for Return of Wife, Son to Millionaire

PRETORIA, South Africa (CP-AP)—A Johannesburg millionaire has paid a ransom equivalent to $211,000 to a gang of kidnappers for the return of his wife and seven-month-old son, the national police commissioner reported Wednesday.

Commissioner Gen. Johannes Keevy declined to give the present to disclose the name of the white family involved, but it was reported that several persons have been charged with the March 30 kidnapping and will appear in court Friday.

Police also disclosed that a man being questioned by authorities after he was arrested in Johannesburg broke away from his interrogators Wednesday and leaped to his death from the 12th floor of an apartment block.

He was said to be one of four men and two white women rounded up in Johannesburg and Cape Town in an intensive hunt by security branch detectives after the mother and child were handed back March 31.

Brig. H. J. van Den Bergh, chief of the police security branch, held a press conference that the case is unprecedented in South African history and compared it with the 1932 Lindbergh kidnapping in the United States—with the difference that the Lindbergh baby was murdered.

The kidnapping was carried out in Johannesburg early March 30 apparently by three men who broke into Mrs. Gold's safe. The woman and her child were kidnapped with violence," the authorities added.

Correspondents were told the ransom was delivered to the gang at aggundisclosed spot in Johannesburg. They promised to release his wife and child when they got the money provided he did not call in the police.

His wife and baby were returned to their home. The child was unharmed, but the woman had what police described as light facial injuries and was hysterical.

MEMO TO SMELT FISHERMEN

Your favorite fish is running thicker than ever in Lake Ontario according to Stanley Rankin, Cherry Valley who fished out of Salmon Point. The run began March 6th and he expects it to continue to May 15 or thereabouts.

He is using gill nets to catch the fish at levels ranging from 100 to 150 feet. He says if other years are a guide the smelt will come near enough to be caught by fishermen with thigh boots and nets around April 15th.

"There is no problem catching them this year" he says.

However here's a tip. If when you are hauling in the catch off or in the Salmon River, Shelter Valley Creek, Wilmot Creek or around Glenora, and find day strangers bobnobbing with the silvery spilsiers, don't be alarmed.

They are not piscatorial .007's or miniature spies from an Iron Curtain hatchery.

The chances are 1,000 to one you won't find any. There is a possibility but not a probability.

They resemble the smelt in a somewhat silvery appearance but have a stubby blunt snout and a much stouter body.

They are the results of the first stocking in Lake Ontario and the rivers mentioned of the kokanee salmon, origin British Columbia.

Lands and Forests Department biologist Jack Christie of the Glenora Fish Hatchery tells me one and one-half million kokanee were planted in the rivers mentioned and off Charity Shoal and Main Ducks Island in Lake Ontario.

The department, Mr. Christie says, is making an extensive study of the kokanee's reaction in Lake Ontario and other waters.

The kokanee, Mr. Christie says, is a landlocked version of the sockeye salmon, with nearly all its characteristics. The major difference is its size plasticity. It has tremendous range from one to eight pounds.

Like its Pacific coast relatives the kokanee returns to its birth grounds to spawn and has a life expectancy of 5½ to 6 years.

Thus far, Mr. Christie says, no returns of last year's stocking have been reported. This is not unexpected for the kokanee is a different fish to Ontario waters and probably has different habits.

"We have yet to ascertain what its habits are or will be and behavior with regard to smelt. There is a possibility it will be around the shorelines with these fish. That is why we are asking the full co-operation of smelt fishermen in reporting their finds, if any, to the department."

Travel headquarters of the Department states that Bolter Lake north of Bancroft has also been stocked with the kokanee.

The homing instinct of the kokanee in returning to its place of origin to spawn, and salmon-like, to die, is one of the reasons the fish was planted in Ontario waters.

Lands and Forests officials, particularly biologist Christie are heeding all efforts to obtain as much information as possible regarding the result of the kokanee experiment.

The presence of the kokanee in hauls of smelt will scarcely be noticeable at a quick glance, particularly at night.

Fishermen are requested to study their catches closely as all kokanee specimens will be of great value to department biologists who are assessing the survival and growth of the landlocked salmon.

While it is extremely doubtful that the kokanee will mingle with the smelt, Mr. Christie says, it is possible some specimens will be taken.

Fishermen catching a kokanee are requested to get in touch with Mr. Christie, Glenora Fish Research Station at Picton (tel. 613-476-2480) or the District Lands and Forests offices in Kingsbury (Tel. 705-224-4121) and Tweed (Tel. 613-478-2316).

(A report late this morning stated the smelt will be running in the Moira this weekend).

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. census bureau is considering questioning people on religious beliefs in 1970 for the first time. He said Jews and Christian Scientists are opposed.

Wings Bring Up Godfrey ★★★★★★ ★★★★★ Mohns May Not Play

Hawks Call Dennis Hull, Two Others

By STERLING TAYLOR.

DETROIT (CP)—The parade from the minor leagues to replace crippled Chicago Black Hawks began Wednesday on the eve of the fourth game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final against Detroit Red Wings.

The Hawks, who lead the set 2-1, summoned left-winger Dennis Hull, right - winger Oscar Gamdet and defenceman John Mizuk from St. Louis Braves of the Central Professional Hockey League.

The Wings have called up veteran defenceman Warren Godfrey and an unnamed forward.

Chicago will probably be without defenceman Elmer Vasko and right-winger John Mahl. Mahl received a knee injury and Vasko a 10-stitch cut on his right thigh during the third game of the set Tuesday.

Chicago coach Billy Reay is also, worried about forward

DENNIS HULL

Doug Mohns who injured a shoulder in Sunday's second game at Chicago and his left leg in Tuesday's game. Then there's Bobby Hull who has been playing with a knee injury since the opening game.

Gamdet, 24, is the only one of the three Chicago replacements without National Hockey League experience.

The native of St. Joseph N.B., played last season with Buffalo Bisons of the American League and spent this season with St. Louis.

Mizuk, 25, a Polish - born product of the Detroit farm system, was with the Red Wings for the greater part of the 1963-64 season and was acquired by the Black Hawks the following year.

The Hawks called him up from Buffalo for three games of last year's playoffs and brought him up again from St. Louis this season for two games in which he played a goal and assisted on another.

Dennis Hull, 22, Bobby's younger brother, played in 18 games with the Hawks but season and scored 13 goals and four assists.

He played another 25 games this season, scoring one goal and one assist before being sent to St. Louis.

The Wings returned defenceman Bob Wall to Pittsburgh Hornets of the AHL Wednesday for the league playoffs. He had been called in to replace Pete Goegan, who had been suffering from flu. Goegan will play tonight.

The Wings' other standby performer is believed to be Doug Roberts, a former football allstar at Michigan State College in Lansing.

Roberts, who spent the season with Memphis Wings of the CPHL, tied for the team's scoring championship with 28 goals.

Fifth game of the series is set for Chicago Sunday, with the sixth game, if necessary, here next Tuesday.

"Shucks I'm A Shack Fan" Says Fergy

No kidding.

The rugged Montreal Canadiens left winger, who has been trading bodychecks, elbows and the occasional high stick with Eddie since the start of the Habs' current Stanley Cup semi - final against Toronto Maple Leafs, says he holds no grudge against the Toronto right winger.

"In fact, I think he is a fine hockey player," he hedged, lie-tro-ed Canadien insists.

"I attend many hockey games over the season and the player I am most asked about is Eddie Shack. I always answer that Eddie is a fine player. But he has become a productive player and he must be stopped."

Someone passed along Ferguson's tribute to the tempestuous Toronto forward. Shack almost blushed.

"Aw, is that right?" he said with a lop-sided grin.

"Did he really say that?"

Then Eddie went to his task of massaging a tender ankle, banged up in Tuesday night's game.

Accept New Umpires Group

Five Clubs Enter BD Softball League

The election of a slightly revamped executive, the acceptance of a new umpiring group and the entry of five clubs featured the meeting of the Belleville and District Softball last night.

Five clubs prepared to go are Belleville Bobcats, Belleville Trudeau Motors, Belleville Ellis Juniors, Bloomfield and Moira.

Two other possible entries represented at the gathering, Point Anne and Lightcot Construction from the Consecon League, are uncommitted. Tweed Lumbanks do not have entry this year.

Rumors of a Trenton club continue to fly but after three meetings no representative from that centre has appeared.

The entry deadline has been established as Sunday, April 24, when the next meeting will be held. The entry fee was was dropped from $25 to $20 per team, chiefly because of a healthy current bank balance.

Following a motion from the floor the offices to be filled for a league executive, the following were named to positions of honorary president, Harry Rollins; past president, Harold Sweet; president, Frank Insley; vice-president, Clifford Belch Jr.; secretary, Doug "Chip" Reid; treasurer, Allan Sills and executive delegate at large, Wally Moffat.

All have voting powers and the motion passed also called for a sponsor or a representative, named by each club to having voting rights in all matters except those pertaining to their own club. This body is to be known as the "Board of Directors."

The main changes in the executive from last year have Belch switching from secretary to vice-president, Reid's appointment as secretary, the establishment of the new board of directors and the resignation from the executive of Gerry Alexander.

Both the Belleville and District Umpires' Association and the new Quinte District Umpires' Association made a bid to handle league games this year.

After some discussion and numerous questions, the league voted 13-6 to accept the Quinte bid for the 1966 season. The contract is a one-year affair, calling for $8.50 per umpire per game, $10 per game for one umpire, President Bruce Nickle and Vice-President Austin Watkin represented the Quinte officials at the meeting. The agreement also called for any new umpires accepted for the B. and D. League to be approved by the league executive, President Harold Rowden and umpire-in-chief Al Kelleher represented the B. and D. Umpires' Association.

Other league business saw the signing deadline for players set as July 1. Each club can sign 18 players but have only 15 dressed for any one game and all 18 players signed at date of the deadline are eligible for all league playoffs.

It was agreed that no extension will be given teams past the April 24 entry deadline. The league also hopes to secure a league statistician by that date.

President Insley offered congratulations on behalf of the league to Clifford Belch for his recent election to the OASA executive.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Senators sold pitcher Steve Ridzik to Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday and acquired pitcher Diego Segui from Kansas City Athletics. Ridzik, once with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, won six and lost four last season.

Shawinigan Clobbers Halifax

A crowd of 4,500 sat in near-stiegged during the last two periods of Wednesday's game as the Quebec champion Bruins outplayed the Canadiens in every way to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The teams were tied 1-1 after the first period but Shawinigan scored three unanswered goals in the second and added four in the third.

Doug Reid, Mike Brant and Jerry Hill triggered the Sunoco goals. Gerry Brennan, Carol Bralley, Harry Cole and Pat O'Connor each collected one assist.

Both Marysville goals were unassisted efforts. Ray Summers and Bruce Pearce were the marksmen.

This was the second year of operation for the league.

Backs-To-Wall Leafs 7-6 Favorites

Imlach Worried

By JIM CREBAR

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs are only one loss away from a repeat of their 1960 Stanley Cup nightmare and coach Punch Imlach is understandably distraught.

He was so angry Wednesday he banished three of his players to an early shower as he ran the Leafs through a brief workout in preparation for tonight's fourth game of the best-of-seven semi-final against Montreal Canadiens.

The Leafs trail 3-0. If they don't win at least once it will mark only the third time they've blown a playoff in four successive games since 1927.

The last time they plumbed such depths was 1960 against the Canadiens in the final. The only other time was the 1952 semi-final sgnst Detroit Red Wings.

The 1952 Wings and 1960 Habs are the only teams in NHL history to sweep the playoffs in eight games without a defeat. Imlach coached Toronto in 1960 and was the victim of the same Montreal coach he's facing tonight—Toe Blake.

Imlach sent forwards Eddie Shack, Frank Mahovlich and Brit Selby packing from practice.

"They didn't appear interested," said Imlach, "so there was no sense wasting my time and theirs, too. Maybe they think they're saving it for the game. We'll wait and see."

MADE HIM SICK

Imlach, recovered from influenza that felled him last week end, said Leafs' play in their 5-2 loss Tuesday night made him sick all over again. He promised to go to any lengths to prolong the series and Toronto bookies made Leafs 7-6 favorites to win the game, which begins at 8 p.m. EST.

Blake directed the Habs through a leisurely skate Wednesday. But he was concerned with a statement attributed to him Tuesday night that the Leafs were tired in the because of overwork in practice.

"I didn't say it," he declared.

He did say he liked the way his younger players are performing, especially winger John Ferguson. Blake, who squawked about Toronto's rugged tactics earlier in the series, got enough muscle from Ferguson Tuesday night to cool out the Leafs after their horrid first-period pace that put the Habs behind 2-0.

Ferguson decked Shack with a bone - jarring check t hat stopped Toronto cold and started the Canadiens on the way to their comeback victory.

Shack checked in Wednesday with a bruise on the inside of his left ankha bet said he'll be well enough to play tonight.

Neither coach contemplated any lineup changes. Lorne Worsley was scheduled to start in goal for the Habs and Johnny Bower for Toronto.

The Canadiens will still be without centre Henri Richard, who missed Tuesday's game because of twisted knee cartilage.

All Over For RCAF

PORT PERRY — An 8-3 win over Trenton RCAF Flyers last night moved Port Perry Bulldozers to the OHA intermediate C provincial final series with Fort Elgin. Bulldozers took the best of seven series with Flyers, 4-2.

In front 3-0 after one period last night, Bulldozers opened up a 7-1 lead in the second. Flyers held a 3-1 edge in scoring in the final 20 minutes.

Whip Collingwood 8-3

Regals Take 3-0 Lead

GUELPH (CP)—Joe Malone's three-goal performance sparked Guelph Regals to an 8-3 win over Collingwood Shipbuilders Wednesday night, and gave them a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven Ron Cup eastern semi-final series.

The game was tied 1-1 at the end of the first period then Guelph opened a 5-2 margin going into the third. Fourth game of the series will be played in Collingwood Friday night.

Ray Ross, Dirk Cherry, Joe Hogan, Elmer Skov and Terry Oliver scored the other goals.

For Hamely, Bill Abbott and Dave McComb replied for Collingwood.

The Regals hit for three goals in a matter of one minute and 41 seconds early in the second period.

Ross showed Walt Bradley's goal - mouth pass past Harry Lumley in the Collingwood nets at 6:28 of the second period. One minute and 10 seconds later Malone broke in alone on the Collingwood net and 31 seconds later Oliver scored on Dave Lochak's pass.

Power-play goals by McComb and Skov completed the scoring in the second period.

Guelph dominated play in the third period, adding three more goals before Hamely netted the final Collingwood goal.

Milwaukee To Get New Franchise, Or Braves Back

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Major league executives were busy today digesting Judge Elmer Rolfe's decision that either the National League provides Milwaukee with a new franchise for 1967 by May 16 or the Braves must return to Wisconsin.

Calvin Griffith, president of Minnesota Twins, said: "There are so many facets to this thing, that it's pretty hard to say this is it. It most likely will finally end up in the United States Supreme Court."

Baseball commissioner William D. Eckert said Wednesday night: "I have no comment now. I will take it under advisement and make a comment tomorrow."

Warren Giles, president of the National League, said: "I'd have to read the whole decision and talk with the lawyers before making any statement."

In Atlanta, Bill Bartholomay, chairman of the board of the Braves, refused immediate comment.

The Milwaukee Sentinel quoted Walter O'Malley, president of Los Angeles Dodgers, as saying: "It seems utterly impossible to comply with the court's decision, but we'll be guided by the lawyers who have represented us in the litigation."

STAFFORD IS HAPPY

Willard S. Stafford, head of the task force of Wisconsin lawyers who argued the case for the state, said he was delighted with the decision.

Stafford foresaw a rousing welcome from Milwaukee fans if the Braves return to Wisconsin.

"I think this trial has purged the ill feeling of the average fan," the lawyer said. "One thing is sure, we can do better than that 30,000 attendance on the second night."

He referred to the 13,721 fans the Braves drew to their second game in Atlanta Wednesday.

Attorney-General Bronson La Follette of Wisconsin had no ready answer for enforcement of any state contempt action that might arise if the court order was ignored.

"It's premature to speculate on what course of action we would take if other states didn't co-operate on any contempt actions," said La Follette.

Auto dealer Allen H. (Bud) Selig, president of the Milwaukee Brewers Baseball Club, Inc., which was formed down last December in its request for a 1966 expansion team, said: "We are ready, willing and able to begin immediately the active running of a Milwaukee franchise."

Generals, Trappers Friday

TORONTO (CP) — The best-of-seven final for the Ontario Junior A hockey championship between Oshawa Generals and North Bay Trappers will open Friday night in Oshawa, the Ontario Hockey Association announced today.

The second game of the series, which is also an Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-final, will also be played in Oshawa Saturday. The series then shifts to North Bay for games Monday, April 18, Wednesday, April 20 and, if necessary, Thursday, April 21.

If sixth and seventh games are necessary, they will be held in Oshawa but dates have not yet been set.

Hillman Looks For 'Egg' Break

TORONTO (CP) — Defencemen are supposed to be the unsung heroes of hockey and nobody knows it better than Larry Hillman.

Hillman, a 29-year-old defensive standout with Toronto Maple Leafs in their Stanley Cup semi-final against Montreal Canadiens, has been in 80 National Hockey League playoff games and hasn't got a goal.

No other active player has gone that long without scoring.

"I don't mind," Hillman said, "but maybe I'll get that goal this week."

He has a chance tonight when the Leafs, trailing 3-0 in their best-of-seven series, play Montreal in the fourth game here.

"I really didn't worry about playoff action in other years," said the 180-pound native of Kirkland Lake, Ont. "I was often the fifth defenceman."

He made the playoffs twice with Detroit Red Wings, in 1955 and 1956, and was shot out in 13 games. In 12 playoff games with Boston Bruins in 1958 and 1959 he was blanked again. It was the same story in five playoff contests with the Leafs in 1961 and 11 more in 1964.

He picked up a playoff assist while with Detroit and three more as a Bruin. But until last Thursday's opening game, won 4-3 by Montreal, he had a pointless existence in the playoffs as a Leaf. He finally broke the ice by helping set up a second-period goal by Frank Mahovlich.

Hillman has never been a big scorer in the regular schedule. In 251 regular-season games in the NHL he has just 18 goals. He got three in 48 games this season.

But he's getting more ice time this year, takes more shots from the point and now all he wants is one of them counting.

OSHAWA (CP) — Oshawa Generals coach Bep Guidolin almost got charged with obstructing police during the game at which his team won the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A championship here Tuesday night.

"Only the crowd saved me," said Guidolin.

He got into an altercation with a Kitchener Rangers fan at the end of the first period but a group of Oshawa fans gave him vocal assistance when a policeman moved in.

Guidolin got into the verbal exchange with the Kitchener fan who was sitting immediately behind the Kitchener bench. After arguing with the fan for a couple of minutes the Oshawa coach moved as if to climb into the seats after the fan.

That's when he was restrained by two police officers.

"The cop almost broke my arm," said Guidolin. "Sure I tried to get away. I told him I was coaching the Oshawa team but he said that didn't make any difference. He had his book out making out a charge but I guess some of my friends changed his mind."

It was hockey fan Bruce Affleck, Oshawa Crown attorney, who persuaded the officer that Guidolin should be allowed to remain to coach Generals for the final two periods.

Astros Nip Dodgers

Koufax Blasted From Mound In Opener

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax must have had the stage fright.

What else could account for his fumbling performances in his first start of the 1966 baseball season?

Koufax, who ended his 32-day holdout and his movie career at the same time two weeks ago, was battered from the mound in the fourth inning Wednesday night in Houston Astros' 7-6 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

The left-hander, a 36-game winner last season, glittered in the first inning, but there was nothing award-winning about his performance after that. He gave up five runs on five hits and two walks and was around long enough only to pitch to one batter in the fourth inning.

Although Koufax encountered a few such games last season, he never made an error. He did against the Astros, though, and that's what led him off the stage.

After Sonny Jackson beat out an infield single with one out in the third inning, Jim Wynn grounded to the mound. Koufax fumbled the ball and the Astros had two runners on.

Dave Nicholson struck out for what would have been the third out, then Bob Aspromonte singled for one run and Joe Morgan clouted a homer for three more.

TRIPLE RETIRES HIM

Koufax finally retired the side on 3-2 when John Bateman lined off the next inning with a triple and retire Koufax.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Atlanta Braves 6-0, San Francisco Giants defeated Chicago Cubs 5-0 and Philadelphia Phillies nipped St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in 12 innings. Reds washed out New York Mets at Cincinnati for the third straight day.

After Morgan's homer gave the Astros a 5-3 lead, John Roosboro tied it with a two-run homer. The Astros finally won in the ninth when Chuck Harrison singled, was sacrificed to second and raced home on Rusty Staubs' single.

Vernon Law and Bob Bolin pitched four-hitters and didn't walk anyone in the Pirates' and Giants' victories.

Law stopped Atlanta while Willie Stargell and Donn Clendenon each hit two-run homers. Stargell added two other hits and drove in another run.

Bolin allowed the Cubs to get more than one man on base only once. The Giants put the game away with three runs in the third inning, two on Tito Fuentes' single.

John Herrnstein's pinch-hit, run-scoring single in the 12th inning carried Philadelphia past St. Louis. Rich Allen, singled with two out and stole second before Herrnstein singled.

SEEKS GUARANTEE

MIAMI (AP)—Cassius Clay's divorced wife, Sonji, petitioned Wednesday to have the boxer held in contempt for failing to post a $25,000 bond to guarantee alimony payments. Counsel for Mrs. Clay said the divorce decree signed in January stipulated the posting of the bond. Clay escaped being jailed last week when he paid up back alimony.

Officials Flee Hotel Fire

DETROIT (CP) — Referee Bill Friday and linesmen Matt Pavlich and John D'Amico fled down a smoke-filled fire escape during a fire in their downtown hotel before Tuesday night's Stanley Cup semi-final.

The three National Hockey League officials were preparing to leave the Pick Fort Shelby Hotel for the third game of the best - of - seven semi-final series when the fire broke out on the ninth floor, claiming the life of one hotel guest.

"I was packing and getting ready to go to the game when I heard fire bells and smelled smoke," said Friday, a former Hamilton fire chief.

"When I opened the door, I couldn't see a thing. It was all smoke. I took the stairs two at a time."

Friday explained that although he couldn't see, he knew exactly where the fire escape was.

"That's the first thing I look for when I go into a hotel."

The fire area was only a few doors from the room occupied by Friday.

Pavlich and D'Amico who were staying on the 17th floor also made their escape down the fire escape.

Aces, Bears Beaten In Openers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hometown fans received a couple of jolts as the American Hockey League playoffs began Wednesday night.

In the best-of-seven semi-final involving the two divisional champions, Rochester Americans came to life with three third-period goals to nip Quebec Aces 3-2. The Aces won the right to open at home by scoring more points in the over-all standings.

Springfield Indians, third in the Eastern Division, set back second-place Hershey Bears 3-2 in the first game of a best-of-five quarter-final at Hershey. In the other quarter-final, Cleveland Barons flattened Pittsburgh Hornets 5-2 for the only home-ice victory of the night.

MAN WITH A MISSION — Hans Maciej is confident that Banff will be awarded the 1972 Winter Olympics when the decision is handed out in Rome April 26. The 37-year-old Calgarian is one of the original developers of an association to get the games for the Rocky Mountain resort. On leave from his job with Shell Oil Canada Ltd., he has one of the few paid positions as manager of Olympic '72. (CP Photo)

New Orioles Combo

Swinging Robinson Rock Rocks Sox

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore Orioles are doing the Robinson Rock, a swinging new step that could make a lot of American League pitchers look like monkeys before this season is over.

It's really a simple step. First Frank Robinson works over an opposing pitcher. If the hurler still shows any signs of fight, Brooks Robinson steps in and finishes the job.

The Robinson boys demonstrated against Boston Red Sox Wednesday as the Orioles completed a two-game sweep 3-1.

In the only other American League game played, Minnesota Twins used an eighth inning home run by Tony Oliva to get past Kansas City Athletics 3-2.

Rain and cold weather postponed Cleveland Indians' game at Washington and Detroit Tigers' date at New York.

The Robinsons practiced their thunder and lightning routine on Dave Morehead after the Red Sox starter had struck out the first two batters. Then Frank teased the second homer of the season and Brooks followed with his No. 2.

HITS HOMER

That was enough for Jim Palmer, who limited the Red Sox to five hits and walloped a two-run homer of his own in the second. Paul Blair ripped the bases-loaded double for three more runs in the eighth.

The homers brought the Robinsons' two-day haul in Fenway Park to a combined 7-for-18, including four homers and six runs batted in.

Minnesota was trailing Kansas City 3-2 with Athletics' rookie Paul Lindblad working on four abutout innings of relief in the eighth when the Twins rallied.

With two out, Zoilo Versalles singled and moved up on Sandy Valdespino's hit. Then Oliva walloped his first homer into the bullpen in right centre field, 420 feet away.

Valdespino had connected with a mate aboard for Minnesota's first two runs in the first inning.

Kansas City had taken advantage of some shoddy Minnesota fielding for two runs against starter Camilo Pascual in the fourth. Ken Harrelson singled and came all the way around on Ed Charles' hit when Harmon Killebrew let a throw from the outfield skip past him. Charles then stole third and scored when Ezri Battey's throw went into left field.

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—Ferguus, knocked out of an OMHA playoff berth by Hespeler, has a chance to reverse the compliment in the Young Canada Week peewee hockey tournament.

Two wins Wednesday sent Fergus into the B series semi-final Saturday. There is a chance the Fergus opposition then might be their rival Hespeler which is also represented here.

Playing its first tournament this season, Fergus had little trouble disposing of Aylmer 9-1 in the division's other setting for a 1-1 tie with St. Marys bot gaining the decision over the latter by edge on goal.

Earlier, St. Lambert, Que., scoring five goals in the third period, carried to a 6-0 victory over Preston, Ont.

Richmond Hill, Ont., scored two goals in the fifth period to clinch its A series victory over Cote St. Luc, Que.

In other A games, Lindsay, Ont., edged Woodstock 2-1 and Brampton downed Riverside, Ont., 6-4.

In the B series, Aylmer, Ont., and Stoney Creek, Ont., played to a scoreless tie, but Aylmer got credit for the victory with 32 shots on goal to 15 for the losers.

Also in the B series, Goderich took a free - wheeling contest from Tillsonburg 8-4.

Delhi, which lost out in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association quarter-final to Hespeler, moved into the B series semifinals slated for Saturday with its victory over Clinton.

CLAY MAY FIGHT

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—An attorney for Cassius Clay's Louisville sponsoring group said Wednesday there is a good chance the heavyweight champion will fight Henry Cooper in London next month.

College Football Expands

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference next season will expand to 10 teams through the addition of University of Montreal and Laurentian University. Sudbury, retiring league convener Keith Harris of Carleton University said Wednesday.

Harris, who will be succeeded by Al Smith of McMaster University, Hamilton, made the announcement following the conference's annual meeting in Kingston.

The Montreal team will be coached by former Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchman Dave King and Mike Kovach, a one-time Montreal Alouette.

The Laurentian team will play under Bob Rogers, a member of the university's physical education staff. The university has indicated it expects to build new sports facilities, Harris said.

Trenton Midget Tourney

TRENTON (Staff) — Two of four semi-finalists in each group were decided during a rather hectic third day of the 10-ny All-Star Midget Tournament yesterday at the Community Gardens here.

In A Group, Kingston cheated up its third consecutive win, defeating Bowmanville, 6-1 to join Brampton Legion in the championship. Brampton qualified earlier in the day by topping Don Mills, 6-4.

Ottawa Minto and Oshawa got the nod in the B series. Minto blanked Toronto Cubans, 2-0 while Oshawa tripped Whitby, 5-1.

In other action yesterday, a team lost a game it had won; two games were decided in overtime; one match was decided on a shot-on-goal basis in overtime and as a result, games were scheduled and rescheduled, last night.

Tournament officials had to rule on a protest filed following a Woodbridge-Windsor B series game. Woodbridge recorded a 5-4 win but officially, the game went down as a 1-0 win for Windsor. Woodbridge player John Little had not signed the game report card. The fact was not brought to light until Little had scored an assist on a goal late in the game. It was a disappointing turn of events for Woodbridge.

In the first overtime game of the tournament, Weston was bombed with three shots on goal to Windsor's one during the extra 10-minute period after the teams finished regulation time all even at 2-2.

Weston was also involved in the other overtime game. This time, the team came out on the short end of a 2-1 score as Trenton's Lions chalked up the A Group win.

Jim Sternberg fired the winning goal for Preston at 4:43 of the overtime. It was a scoreless game after one period then Harry Sturgeon clicked for Weston. Wayne DeMille forced the game into overtime when bombarded with Sternberg and Pete Walling for the only goal of the third period.

Twelve teams remained in the tournament after yesterday's games. Kingston, Richmond Hill, Overbrook Bruins, Toronto Marlboro, Trenton Lions and Brampton Legion were still in the hunt for the A series title and on the B side, it was Oshawa, Ottawa Minto, Windsor, Ottawa Nationals, Lindsay and Toronto Ted Reeves. Twenty-eight teams started the five-day double knockout tournament. Today, the field will be trimmed to four teams.

Tomorrow at 9 a.m., the A Group title will be decided and at 1 p.m., the B Group final will be played. The grand championship game goes at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Still as Beautiful as Ever Princess Grace Looks Back Over Ten Years of Marriage

Complete shows at 7:00 and 8:50 p.m.

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Princess Grace, still as beautiful as in the movie star she was 10 years ago, glanced out the window before setting into a chair in the cool, squamarine study of her Monaco Palace.

Below was a cobblestone courtyard, vacant except for a sentinel and a gleaming black-and-red 17th-century carriage, long minus its six white horses. And beyond the high walls of the medieval castle, with its portices and square towers, were winding roads, tumbling stone fences, flat, pink-tiled houses, flowering foliage and soaring cliffs. Cascading to the crystal blue sea were 330 acres of the rocky enclave on the Cote d'Azur—the small, charmingly anachronistic world which is Monaco.

And yet it really is hard to believe," she said.

The former Grace Kelly, now 36 years highness, was thinking serious over how much time had passed, 10 years of it, since her fairy-tale wedding on April 19, 1956, to Albert Rainier III, the sovereign prince.

MARRIAGE SURVIVES

Yet the long, thoughtful pause that followed suggested that her incredible life might, indeed, be the survival of the marriage itself, a union of two persons totally from diverse worlds.

"I think any couple who has been married 10 years deserves credit," she said with a rueful smile that dimpled her left cheek.

"All marriages require some adjustments. Especially ours. There were so many changes to make at all at once."

In an interview, she described how adjusting to her new role as princess has had not been a bed of posies. Occasionally tugging unconsciously at the wedding band she wore on her ring finger, she spoke candidly of the pressures and the loneliness.

Asked to give her opinion why she thought her marriage had survived, the princess thought for a considerable time, then came, and came up with three.

"We share the same religion (Roman Catholic). We are grateful for that. It has been a strong bond between us.

"And certainly our sweet and lovely children make our marriage more secure."

TIMING RIGHT

Once Prince Rainier had said that if they had met at an earlier time in life they might not have fallen in love and wed. But the timing had been right. Both had a flair for the life of the acting. She agreed that might do as another reason.

"We were both very ready for marriage at the time," she said.

The onetime Philadelphia debutante and Academy Award winning actress refused to come up with two more just for the sake of having five.

Her friends say that she is weary of many of her images, but surprised at some: That she is too impressed with playing princess in a petite principality, considering that she was born in an Irish bricklayer; or that such an intensely private and shy worker, such a devoted wife and mother, that she is just too perfect to be plausible.

DAUGHTER SENSIBLE

Yet she says her daughter Caroline, seven at age 9, is much more sensible than she is—anyway, about love and marriage.

"I'm sure she may have a lot to teach me about it sometime," said the princess.

It was difficult to adjust to her new life.

"I had to adapt to a pace of living which was so much slower and very much different than it was in the big cities I had lived in. Take the European custom of eating a big meal in the middle of the day. That didn't look getting used to."

At first, language stood between the actress and her new people. After taking French lessons for years, she now feels fairly adept, but "the jokelers speak better French than I do. They're marvelous. They think and speak in either of our languages."

Caroline, she says, has a "Mediterranean personality, exuberance and open. She plunged into everything with tremendous enthusiasm."

DESCRIBES CHILDREN

Stephanie, born 4 year ago in the palace library, is "terribly quick and full of herself."

Eight-year-old Albert, the future sovereign, she says is a keen observer of people.

"He watches everything they do and imitates their mannerisms. Yes, I suppose he may get a little of that ham from me."

Even so, neither he nor Caroline, says their mama the princess, whom they occasionally watch on the screen in the palace cinema, will be in show business. That is, if papa the prince, has anything to do with it.

"It's really not a very good life. I was very weary of it when I quit," she recalled.

CHECK FREE RECORDS

COLOGNE, Germany (AP)—West German border patrol officials estimate more than 4,000 East Germans tried to cross the zone border illegally in 1965. Of that number, 1,000 did it in the first 10 months of the year. Information from turncoat guards and refugees were highlighted in the three-mile restricted zone and about 800 in the 546-yard-wide "death strip."

Hope's "Comedy Special" Not One of His Best

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

"NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope's "comedy special" Wednesday night on NBC was not one of his most amusing. It apparently was tossed together as casually as a salad.

Hope, poking fun at Washington, Texas and the Oscar Award competition, also had some wisecracks about an attempt to rig the ratings of television shows—including one of his own.

There was also a comedy sequence based on a movie, The Magnificent Seven, called The World Six. It involved a big slapstick gun play between Hope, playing a Mexican bandit, and Lee Marvin as a bounty hunter. This may have been mighty funny to those who had seen the movie, but it was pretty well lost on those of us who had not.

What so often puts off the viewer during a Hope special is the sight of the star and one of his guests making jokes—by obviously looking over each other's shoulders as they read their off-camera cue cards. Lee Marvin was so concentrated on his reading he looked startled when the studio audience laughed.

Another Sketch, Pagoda Race, started off as a Japanese version of Peyton Place. But it soon got distracted as Hope played a soldier returning 20 years after the war to find his wife—Phyllis Diller—married to another man, Jonathan Winters played the second husband.

MANY SENT GREETINGS

More than 150,000 people sent cards and greetings to Bob Hope's mother, Avis Townes Hope, on her 100th birthday.

Riteways Take Galt Opener

Belleville Riteways will carry a three-goal lead into the second game of their series with Galt this afternoon after winning the opener this morning 5-4.

Play was in the annual Brampton Novice Hockey Tournament's "C" section. Galt and the Riteways meet in the second game of their total goal series at 5:00 p.m. today.

Wally Dalnard sparked this morning's shutout victory with two goals.

Belleville ousted Simcoe in club's opening round earlier this week. The tournament will run through until Saturday.

Angela Lansbury Prepares For Role of Plain Mame

By WILLIAM GLOVER

(NEW YORK (AP) — Angela Lansbury is limbering like an athlete for another—and, she hopes, more durable—stint in Broadway musical comedy.

"I just can't tell yet how much energy I'm going to need," she explains, "so I want to have plenty."

Miss Lansbury, who has romped quite a dramatic gamut over the years, reaches Broadway's Winter Garden in May in a show drived from the adventures of that incredible hoyden—Edna Everlow, Auntie Mame.

To avoid confusion with all earlier incarnations, the new exhibit is titled Plain Mame. And, the star vows, the portrayal is going to be "completely different"—if she survives.

"The whole thing is plotted very carefully—you don't have to keep running around out of breath," she says, "and that is a welcome assortment of chores. Besides taking part in 11 songs—I rare number her or even as Ethel Merman or Mary Martin—Miss Lansbury's assignment includes a dance variety from the Charleston and "about 40 costume changes."

Only once before has she essayed musical performance, in a fast flop two seasons back, Anyone Can Whistle.

TOOK TESTS

Although she emerged from the debacle with good reports, a lot of testing was done before she got the new role.

Oddly, Miss Lansbury never saw any of her famous predecessors in the straight stage comedy Auntie Mame. Rosalind Russell did it first on Broadway just 10 years ago, and the following parade there and in multiple touring troupes included Constance Bennett, Rita Lillie, Sylvia Sidney and Eve Arden.

Miss Lansbury, as a matter of record, did sing briefly in two films prior to Anyone Can Whistle—Harvey Fierstein Picture of Dorian Gray and Till the Clouds Roll By.

After Whistle, the energetic star "did a lot of-big, fat movie-flour or five"—so that she could clear her calendar for this stage excursion. The Lansbury career has spanned age 18 (Gaslight in 1944) and she didn't do her first Broadway show until 17 years later. She confesses one mild reservation.

"I'm an early person except when I'm in a stage role," says the lady who likes to rise by 7 a.m.

"The one thing I object to about being in a show is having to get up late a day. You get much more done in the morning."

HOSPITAL BUILT HIGH

CALCUTTA (AP) — Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest with Sherpa guide Tensing Norgay, has permission from Nepal to build a hospital for Sherpas at Khunde, 13,000 feet above sea level. The Sherpas retained either said goitre and child mortality rates among the mountain people are "pathetically high."

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. M. Reid was among those who attended the party at Wallbridge Hall when Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wilson and family of Brockville visited Mrs. F. Smith recently.

Those from the Junction appointment who attended Communion Service at West Huntingdon United Church on Sunday afternoon were: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wannamaker, Mr. Harlow, Mr. and Mrs. C. Pitcbett, Mrs. Bruce Stapley, Misses Isobelle and Dianne Frest, Mrs. M. Reid, Miss Marilyn Reid and Mrs. Raymond Chambers.

BRIAL SHOWER

On Monday night about 30 people at the home of Mrs. Warren Harlow, Stirling, where Miss Jung White was hostess for a bridal shower in honor of Miss Marilyn Reid — to be April 30th.

The room had been appropriately decorated for the occasion with pink and white bells and streamers.

The diningroom table with white cloth and pink rosettes at each corner was centred with a basket of pink and white stap dragons and carnations.

The bride arrived when corsage was pinned on the guest of honor by her mother, Mrs. Reid, and Mrs. Clayton Hall.

The evening passed quickly with several contests, a humorous reading given by Mrs. Clwire Knight, and pictures taking taken by Mrs. Donald Downs.

Miss Reid was asked to take a specific chair and an address on behalf of those present was read by Mrs. Maurice Clancy.

The gift of books, assisted by Mrs. Arnott, Miss Joyce Stapley and Miss Dianne Frest opened her gifts.

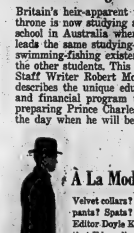
expo 67



"Tomorrow is next year and next year is April 28, 1967, the day Expo opens and it's going to be the biggest and best birthday bash this or any country has ever seen". Weekend Magazine's team of Writer James Quig and Photographer Bruce Moss made a recent survey of the World's Fair site and talked with top Expo officials. Everything they found pointed to writer Quig's prediction as coming fabulously true.

The Grooming of a Monarch

Britain's heir-apparent to the throne is now studying at a boys' school in Australia where he leads the same studying-swimming-fishing existence as the other students. This week Staff Writer Robert McKeown describes the unique educational and financial program that is preparing Prince Charles for the day when he will be king.

À La Mod

Velvet collars? Shantung pants? Spats? Women's Editor Doyle Klyn found that Edwardian elegance is "in" for young men.

Photos by Reed Debugnet in this week's Weekend Magazine show the latest in Mod fashions as adapted by two young Montreal designers, Douglas and Michael Mod.

Queen Under The Steps

Greg Clark called her the old lady. And a pretty raggedy old lady at that. This week in Weekend Magazine Greg tells the amusing story of a cat that didn't look like royalty and certainly not like a mother-to-be. But she did succeed in upsetting the whole neighborhood!

All from the Oven

The combinations of dishes that can be baked together are endless says Food Editor Margo Oliver, and this week she has 3 delicious menus that are completely oven-cooked. Whether you try the Salmon dinner, the Veal Bake or the Lamb Chop supper, your oven does most of the work for you!

A Thousand Days

The Cuban Missile crisis of 1962 saw the two most powerful countries on earth hover for two agonizing weeks on the brink of nuclear disaster. One of the men closest to President Kennedy during this terrible time was Arthur M. Schlesinger, jr. in the third of Weekend Magazine's four-part serialization of his book, "A Thousand Days". Schlesinger explains the background to each pressure point version in the face of a nuclear war.

Man with the Golden Pen

If you watched "Flight Into Danger" on TV or read "Hotel" from the best-seller list, the name Arthur Hailey is a familiar one. Weekend Magazine's Jock Carroll tells the phenomenal success story of his ex-Toronto neighbour who shot to fame and fortune as a writer.

Your best reading value is your weekend newspaper!

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For April 15

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): You may have to bide certain factors. Routine discretion certainly is better part of valor. Hold back — realize time is on your side. Cycle moving up. Get ready!

Taurus (Apr. 20 ? May 20): May be best to get clearance for special activities, projects. Otherwise there could be legal complications. Important to clarify aims through cautious, thorough approach.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20): Favorable lunar aspect points up journeys, correspondence, important communications. Emphasis on gaining knowledge in connection with work, projects.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22): Concentrate forces. Put forth best efforts. Avoid superficial statements, actions. Possible to go all the way now if you exhibit confidence.

Indonesian Chinese Raid Peking's Embassy To Protest Attitude Of Red Regime

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Machine-gun bullets flew around the Chinese Embassy in Jakarta today as 2,000 screaming Indonesian Chinese battled with embassy staff and intervening Indonesian troops fought for possession of the chancery.

The demonstration followed an anti-Peking rally.

An Indonesian Army officer told reporters a group of embassy staff fired on demonstrators with machine-guns. Two were wounded.

Two other demonstrators were wounded by tiles flung from roofs and there were reports of officials defending themselves with fusiles.

The sacking of the Peking Embassy, a whitewalled compound of buildings on the edge of Glodok, Jakarta's Chinatown, lasted about two hours.

Windows and doors were smashed in, and furniture and documents tossed into the grounds to make a chain of vast bonfires.

Demonstrators stormed in the heavy iron gates of the embassy with a truck, ripped the crest of the Chinese republic off the chancery, tore down the flag and replaced it with the Indonesian standard.

Troops of the Jakarta garrison fired shots in an unsuccessful attempt to halt the Hotera soon after their arrival.

The demonstrators finally dispersed and by late afternoon only a squad of soldiers were left on guard at the embassy.

Foreign Minister Adam Malik arrived at the embassy as the fighting was dying down.

He was met by a Chinese embassy official holding a bloodstained shirt and screaming at him: "You, see this bloodstained shirt? I protest this with all my heart."

Although some 2,000 entered the compound an estimated 20,000 or more milled around outside.

The demonstrators carried anti - Chinese banners and screamed "crush chicolim"—meaning Chinese colonialism and imperialism.

Several pistol shots rang out. The fortress - like embassy guarded by a huge patriot gates and an iron fence, was broken into with the aid of a truck.

The students puked down the Chinese flag and hoisted Indonesia's red-and-white flag in the hall staff position. They found hundreds of small Chinese flags and used them to wipe sweat from their faces.

More students moved into a provisions store room and began gunning Chinese wins.

Everything was smashed or burned. The Chinese embassy staffers, wearing open - necked white shirts, snapped scores of pictures of the ransacking students from their positions of safety.

The mob action followed a mass rally attended by some 40,000 Indonesians of Chinese descent.

The rally was aimed at countering rising anti-Communist in the country. Chinese schools have been closed and Chinese textile mills and shops in parts of Java and Sumatra have been taken over by students.

Following the rally one organizer shouted: "Let's march to the Chinese Embassy, and present our petition."

The chorus at the rally pledged loyalty to Indonesia, charged Peking with interfering in Indonesia's internal affairs and the Chinese government radio with insulting Indonesians, particularly those of Chinese origin.

They called for severance of diplomatic relations with Peking and the expulsion of the Chinese ambassador.

They declared that Indonesian Chinese were completely loyal to Indonesia and supported the government's action in closing down Chinese schools and organizations where there were indications these had been used for subversion.

North Ireland to Sever Rail Links With South

Huge Ice Jams on Assiniboine Bring New Worry to Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Huge ice jams on the Assiniboine River near downtown Winnipeg are being kept under close watch today while the Red River flood crest continues to roll towards Lake Winnipeg.

Flood control officials said the ice jam at the Osborne Street bridge "is not serious at the moment" but engineering crews have been ordered to stand by and patrol along the Assiniboine have been stepped up.

The rise on the Assiniboine, which flows in from the west to join the Red in downtown Winnipeg, has been attributed to a sudden flow from local drainage creeks. It was expected to be short-lived.

Heavy girders under the Osborne Street bridge, located 500 yards south of flood control headquarters, held the ice back. "The water is getting past the bridge and the backup is not serious," flood control officials said.

Attempts were made to clear the ice Thursday, but dynamiting is not possible because the blast would damage utility lines.

Elsewhere in southern Manitoba, dikes are holding steady and dike patrols have been reduced along the Red.

While high water will remain for two weeks or more, the feeling was growing that the Red has done its worst. The flood flight now becomes a holding action until the water retreats enough for the cleanup to begin.

Five towns—Emerson, Morris, St. Jean Baptiste, Dominion City and Rosenort—have been evacuated of almost everybody but dike workers. The towns remain dry behind their emergency dikes but are surrounded by huge lakes of flood waters.

The Red dropped slightly at Emerson, on the international border 60 miles south of Winnipeg, for the second successive day and the crest is expected to level off today at Morris at 8.8 feet above bank level.

Flood forecasters still expect the Red to peak Saturday at Winnipeg at 26.5 feet above average winter ice level and 3.5 feet below the top of the 1950 unbalanced primary dike system.

BELFAST (Reuters)—Northern Ireland today prepared to sever rail links with the Irish Republic this weekend in a bid to prevent feared violence timed to coincide with Sunday's 50th anniversary of the Irish Rebellion.

Emergency security measures for the weekend were announced by the Northern Ireland government Thursday night after a day of bomb attacks and threats of further violence in the Irish Republic.

Thousands of southern Irish were expected to swarm into Northern Ireland — self-governing but still part of Britain—for Sunday's memorial parades. But the government said it was taking steps to stop "provocative incursions of hostile elements from the south."

All train between Dublin, capital of the Irish Republic, and Belfast will be banned for 24 hours starting Saturday night. This covers a period when many anniversary observances are scheduled on both sides of the border.

GUARD THE BORDER

Tight security will prevent either the 192-mile border. Government officials here feared that members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army would be active in Belfast during the celebrations in pursuance of their pledge to reunite the divided country.

Closing the border in Tipperary County-night, extremists dynamited a 20-foot monument to Irish patriots of the Irish Republican Army who died in the uprising against British rule.

Round the city of Waterford, knot known as a centre of extremism, reinforced police patrols Thursday who blew up a telephone exchange and cut links with Dublin and Cork.

Villagers said they heard machine-gun fire after a second explosion four miles outside the city destroyed an underground cable.

The mayor of Waterford said he received a box containing two bullets and a threatening letter.

Que. Threatens Legal Action Over Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government has threatened legal action "against le Syndicat des professeurs de l'Etat du Quebec (CNTU) if it does not respect an interim injunction which prohibits it from striking.

However, the union's 2,300 teachers defied the order Thursday and remained off the job. The teachers went on strike Tuesday and the government obtained the injunction Wednesday.

Acting Premier Aicide Coursey said in Quebec Thursday that, to his knowledge, it would be the first time in the province's history that a union refused to acknowledge a court order forbidding a strike.

A teachers' spokesman said meetings throughout the province Thursday decided to remain on strike until a collective agreement is obtained. Pay and various work benefits are at issue.

The Quebec labor relations board has ruled that the teachers perform an "essential service."

Johnson Visits Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Johnson mixes private policy talks and more public appearances today after a thundering welcome to the Mexican capital.

The first event on Johnson's schedule was a meeting with Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz in the privacy of Los Pinos—the Mexican White House.

Johnson spent the night at Los Pinos with his wife and two daughters after being welcomed by a crowd that some police officials estimated at 2,000,000 plus. Others put the crowd at half that amount.

Unified Buddhist Church Accepts Junta Program

SAIGON (CP) — The Unified Buddhist Church of South Viet Nam today declared itself satisfied with the military government's promise of early elections and called off its campaign against the junta.

After six hours of talks here, the leading monks issued a statement saying the Buddhist objective of a constituent assembly within the shortest possible time now has been achieved.

The Buddhists indicated the present government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky would be allowed to remain in office until the general elections, due to be held within three to five months under a decree signed Thursday.

Announcing the suspension of their "struggle movement," the monks said the church would take action if the government tried to go back on its promises, if it tried to punish any of its agitators and if the organization of the elections was not fair.

They said future governments should be set up on a definite legal basis embodying "as much unity and balance as possible," they added.

In the north, however, a demand was made for the government to step down now. It was coupled with a threat of new demonstrations.

A call for an immediate change of leadership came from Ky's military rival, Lt. - Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, whose counter as 1st Corps commander a month ago set off the wave of unrest. Thi maintains the people lack confidence in Ky and his government.

The mayor of Da Nang threatened to call for new anti-government demonstrations unless the ruling military junta resigned immediately.

Nguyen Van Manh, who was threatened with execution by Ky, voiced the threat at a press conference. Only a few hours after some 20,000 Buddhists paraded through Saigon demanding a return to civilian government.

Chile Probes Charge Colony Run Like Camp

SANTIAGO (Reuters) — Chilean police today were reported moving in close contact with the international police organization Interpol to check the records of 300 members of a German colony here allegedly run on the lines of a concentration camp.

Reliable sources said the case has become a political matter for the Chilean government.

President Eduardo Frei Thursday received a report on the settler colony from the interior ministry. The settlement was believed to be an offshoot of an organization called the Private Sonlite Mission established in the Boun area of West Germany.

The colony, situated south of here at Parral, near the Argentine border, hit the headlines several days ago when two escaped members charged the director had turned it into "a concentration camp where immoral practices are carried on."

Doctors said one of the escapees, Mrs. Wilhelmine Schaefer, was suffering from malnutrition and doping.

Mrs. Lindeman and her fellow escapee, Wolfgang Muller, 19, said a former Luftwaffe officer, Paul Schaefer, was the "spiritual director" of the colony. A police source said Schaefer has not been located.

Rhodesian Governor Urges Talks

LONDON (AP) — Sir Humphrey Gibbs, Britain's top representative in Rhodesia, has called for talks between the British government and the colony's breakaway regime, political sources said today.

As governor of Rhodesia Gibbs is the Queen's personal representative in the colony and is recognized by the British and other Commonwealth governments as the only legitimate authority there. His advice inevitably would carry great weight with Prime Minister Wilson.

Lord Bolton, a Conservative peer who recently visited Rhodesia on business, said Gibbs told him in a two-hour talk "that the only sensible thing to do to solve the situation is for the two sides to get round a table and talk."

THE TEMPERATURES

Synopsis: The present situation is likely to continue for several more days. Skies are sunny in most areas and winds are light. Afternoon temperatures are in the 50s over southern Ontario and in the 40s further north but temperatures will drop below freezing in most areas overnight.

France Wants Europe Independent From U.S.

PARIS (Reuters) — The first phase of France's parliamentary debate on NATO ended early today with an emphatic government call for European "independence" from the United States.

Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville declared: "It is inevitable and beneficial for us concerned that Europe should regain its independence from the United States."

He made clear the French view that President de Gaulle's decision to withdraw from the integrated military command is essentially a political issue.

"Inevitably the United States will conduct its own policy all over the world," Couve de Murville said, "and increasingly his policy will be external to the European countries."

The foreign minister's remarks were seen by observers here as the most explicit statement of the French attitude on the NATO problem. They have been made yet by any French leader, including de Gaulle.

Couve de Murville declared that Paris-West relations could not remain frozen indefinitely where they were 15 years ago.

The French foreign minister said that as the rivalry between Russia and the United States progressively diminished, the distant realities of a lasting European settlement would appear.

"It is equally inevitable for the Atlantic Alliance to become modified as the newly independent countries and the enormous Chinese power make themselves felt more and more," he said.

White Man's Justice Comes To Nomadic Eskimo Band

SPENCE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — The white man's justice came to Spence Bay Thursday in the form of a capital murder trial of two young Eskimo men accused of shooting to death one man's mother.

Many of the 300 Eskimos in this remote community are among the last in the North to feel the impact of white society.

They know little or nothing about the Criminal Code of Canada and legal procedures.

Charged with capital murder in the mid-July shooting of Soosee, about 40, are Isoohee Shoopook, about 21, and Alyacot, also about 21, Soosee's son.

Soosee and the two accused were members of a nomadic Eskimo hunting band that lives the year round in the Fort Ross area 175 miles north of here, making one or two trips to Spence Bay each winter for supplies.

Testimony by some of the 30 members of the hunting band at a preliminary hearing here Feb. 16-17 of the charges against Shoopook was that Soosee was shot during an attempt to drive her away from the band by abandoning her on a small island off Fort Ross.

Members of the band claimed the woman, wife of the group's leader, had a history of mental illness. They said she began damaging tents, throwing rocks, shouting children and threatening the welfare of the band.

The band was unable to travel to Spence Bay because of the condition of the summer terrain and sea ice. Attempts to restrain Soosee proved unsuccessful. It was decided to drive her away.

Band members testified they believed Soosee's illness would be communicated to them if she was not driven off.

Constable John Avison of the Spence Bay RCMP detachment learned of the shooting July 18 when he flew into the Fort Ross area to pick up Eskimo children for transport to schools in Inuvik, 800 miles west.

Shoopook alone was charged following an investigation, but evidence on ballistics at the preliminary hearing led to the joint charge against Shoopook and Alyacot being laid by Crown agent David Searle of, Yellow-

Belleville Doctor Member Of TV Panel About Cancer

During April, the Kingston District Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society, of which Mr. McLean Haig of Belleville is president, has been presenting the program "Dress Circle" over CKWS TV at 5:30 on Sunday afternoons. On Sunday, April 20, Dr. E. M. Douglas of Belleville will be one of the panel of four doctors who try to answer questions sent in by area viewers concerning cancer.

"Cancer", says Dr. Douglas, "presents one of the greatest medical challenges of the twentieth century. It can strike anyone at any age. It can affect children as well as adults, but it strikes with increasing frequency with advancing age. In 1964 about 25,700 Canadians died of cancer; 380 were under 20 years of age. This year about 77,000 Canadians will be under medical care for cancer. Of every 4 deaths from all causes in Canada one is caused by cancer.

"The research attack on cancer is the greatest and costliest single undertaking in medical history," continued Dr. Douglas, "and the problem is so broad and profound that virtually every branch of modern science is engaged in cancer research. The Canadian Cancer Society is the only national voluntary health agency fighting cancer through research, education, and service. Its sole source of funds is voluntary gifts from the public collected during the annual April campaign."

Stressing the importance of even a small contribution, Dr. Douglas says that "nothing can be more worthwhile, since your money will not help only cancer sufferers, but go to help the great researches now being conducted, and people will help to give you effective treatment if you or your family should ever develop the disease in years to come."

339 Person Donate Blood At Clinic

The Belleville Red Cross blood donor service yesterday held the second largest blood donor clinic in its history as a total of 339 persons turned up at the Kinsmix Centre.

During the afternoon and evening 323 bottles of blood were donated. At the largest clinic held by the local Red Cross two years ago a total of 333 bottles of blood were donated.

Approximately one third of the people attending yesterday's clinic indicated they wanted to donate blood on behalf of Fred Wilkins, Moira Secondary School student now in hospital at Toronto. Of the more than 100 persons wishing to donate blood on behalf of the Wilkins boy, more than 30 were students from Moira Secondary School.

GETS BAIL

After he was charged, Shooyout was released on $100 bail and brought his family to Spence Bay to obtain employment and await the trial.

Alyaout was not told of the charge against him until Thursday, when defence counsel Howard Irving and William Morrow of Edmonton discussed the case with him just prior to the trial.

The trial is being conducted before Chief Justice Sissons of the Northwest Territories Territorial Court and a six-member jury of Eskimos and whites. Eskimos generally sit on juries in cases in the North involving their people.

Spence Bay itself is 1,500 miles north of Winnipeg on the Boothia Peninsula, which juts northward into the Arctic Ocean from the mainland coast.

There are about a dozen whites in Spence Bay. The community, established in 1955, consists of homes, in many cases with one room, plus a nursing station, a two-room primary school where the trial is being held, a Hudson's Bay Co. store, RCMP detachment, a non-denominational church and an Anglican mission, and northern affairs department branch.

International Club Will Exhibit Stamps

The twelfth stamp exhibition to be staged by the St. Lawrence International Stamp Club will take place on Sunday, April 24th at the House of Lords, 130 Sydney Street, in Centralia hall. The exhibition, an annual affair held alternately in Canada and the U.S., will be open to the public from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. with no admission charge. It is expected that a number of Belleville and district stamp collectors will attend the exhibition.

Special features of interest to collectors and non-collectors alike include a selection from Cardinal Spellman's stamp collection and displays on loan from the American and Canadian Postal Departments depicting the steps leading up to the selection of stamp designs.

Former Federal Cabinet Minister Denies Making Confession to Kierans

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Yvon Dupuis blamed a choice of words Thursday night for leading Eric Kierans, now Quebec health minister, to the conclusion he was acting as an intermediary in a bid to obtain a provincial permit.

Mr. Dupuis, a former federal minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet, is charged with accepting a $10,000 bribe from Roch Deslauriers, at St. Johns, Que., citizenship, in return for his influence to obtain the provincial permit for Mr. Desluriers.

The former cabinet minister denied that he had made a confession to Mr. Kierans, then economics minister, and that he forged letters to keep the confidence of Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Dupuis said he met Mr. Kierans in February, 1964, a few weeks after learning that Mr. Desluariers had put money in a brown envelope containing documents proving his solvency before giving the envelope to Mr. Dupuis in 1961 to give to a messenger of the late Paul Sauvé, then provincial minister of revenue.

Mr. Kierans, who appeared at the trial two weeks ago as a Crown witness, had testified then that when he had asked Mr. Dupuis during that February, 1964, meeting if there had been money in with the documents, Mr. Dupuis had replied with a smile: "Not for me."

Thursday, Mr. Dupuis said Mr. Kierans had misunderstood the meaning of his words "not for me." He said that what he meant by the reply was not that there was no money for a party but that there was no money at all as far as he was concerned at the time.

CLAIMS IGNORANCE

He said he may have smiled when asked about the nature of the documents but the smile had nothing to do with his being aware of any bank notes.

Mr. Dupuis said it would have been impossible for Mr. Desluariers to have offered investments May 9 concerning solvency without such a request from Mr. Earl did not return until 11 June 22. He also said it would have been impossible for Mr. Desluariers to have given him (Mr. Dupuis) $5,000 in St. Johns on May 8 because Mr. Dupuis had been in Ottawa on that date and had a record of making a bank deposit there at that time to prove it.

The witness said he had discussed the matter of the racetrack with Guy Favreau, then Justice minister, to learn whether changes in the Criminal Code were forth coming which would allow the federal government to issue the permit. He said he learned that this was not likely.

Mr. Dupuis said that when he returned from a trip to Asia and Africa on Dec. 3, 1964, he received a telephone call from Real Roussaen, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada Quebec committee, asking him about the $10,000. Mr. Roussaen had said there was a possibility of another scandal following the Dorion inquiry. Mr. Dupuis had said he was the victim of a plot and agreed to Mr. Roussaen's request for a meeting to clear up the matter.

ASKED ABOUT MONEY

On Dec. 9, he said Mr. Desjuriers went to his (Mr. Dupuis') office in Ottawa and Mr. Rousseau asked if it was true he had given Mr. Dupuis $10,000. At that time Mr. Desluariers had replied that he had slipped the money into an envelope destined for a messenger of Mr. Earl's but that Mr. Dupuis knew nothing about it.

Mr. Dupuis said that on Dec. 11 he was confronted by Mr. Favreau who appeared "overexcited, nervous, tense," and brandished documents connecting Mr. Dupuis with the $10,000.

Mr. Dupuis said the documents were false and Mr. Favreau replied and that Quebec Premier Jean Lesage had informed Mr. Pearson of the matter and that the matter could be the subject of a serious inquiry.

Mr. Dupuis testified that he then told Mr. Favreau of Mr. Desluariers statement that he had secretly slipped the money into an envelope.

The trial continues.

Two More Heavy Beer Drinkers Die

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec health department Thursday announced that two more persons who were heavy consumers of beer have died of cardio myopathy, raising the total dead to 18.

There have been 44 cases of the rare heart disease discovered since Aug. 28, 1965, all of them in the Quebec City region. Of the 44 persons, 18 have died.

A committee of medical specialists was set up to study the disease last month by the health department on the same day that the only beer producer in the city, Dow Brewries, stopped production, ordered its stocks destroyed and reclaimed all of its beer that was already on the market.

Although all the persons who contracted the illness were heavy beer drinkers, the committee has not been able to make any clinical link between this consumption and the illness. Analysis of the beer had not led to the discovery of any dangerous substances.

Quads Happy Lot of Individualists

STANDISH, Mo. (AP) — As teen-agers, the Pinkham quadruplets are a happy lot of individualists.

Their mother, Mrs. Silas E. Pinkham, says:

"Never, never call them identicals. They are four entirely separate and different individuals."

Now 13, William, Melissa, Jane and Rebecca are eighth graders at Rupert Johnson Junior High School.

Jane won this year's school science prize for an exhibit on insects. Melissa, who likes cucumber sandwiches and collecting rocks, wants to be a nurse. Rebecca, the only girl with bobbed hair, is the family's reader and record collector.

William is a baseball enthusiast accused by his sisters of "hogging the ball." His rejoinder is: "And they'll scratch and bite to get it away."

William's hobby is carpentry —his father is a skilled wood worker who built their home.

All four children resemble each other. But their mother says that's as far as it goes. They vary in height and the three girls dress and wear their hair differently.

Accused Spy Died of Natural Causes

VANCOUVER (CP)—Accused spy George Victor Spencer died of natural causes, the coroner's jury said Friday after hearing medical evidence.

The jury's verdict came after city pathologist Dr. T. R. Harrison said Spencer died a natural death when a bloodclot choked the main artery to his early recruiting. He said he believed the clot was the result of a major cancer operation in which Spencer's left lung was removed.

Spencer's body was found last Saturday night in his house four days before a judicial inquiry was to open into his dismissal from the post office job here.

Spencer, 61, had been accused of being involved in spying for Russia. He was dismissed from the government job but was never charged.

Following opposition demands in the Commons for a hearing of the case, Prime Minister Pearson telephoned Spencer at his Vancouver home and asked him whether he wanted a judicial inquiry. Spencer said he did, and Mr. Pearson then announced an inquiry would be held into the aspects surrounding his dismissal.

The jury at Thursday's inquest took only 15 minutes to reach its verdict: "We find he came to his death as the result of pulmonary thrombosis, secondary to resection of the left lung. We classify his death as natural."

Witnesses testified that Spencer apparently had died about four to six days before his body was found last Saturday night. They said no traces of poisons or barbiturates were found, but Spencer did have a blood alcohol of 34 parts per 1,000, well above the 15 usually considered the impairment level."

Dr. Harmon, quoting from letters written by Spencer's doctors and a psychiatrist who treated him, told of a "frightened little man" who apparently abandoned a pledge to stop drinking because of the pressure he was under.

Penal Reforms Needed Says NDP Speaker

TRENTON — A man who is confined to Canadian penal institutions soon becomes a "vegetable," Toronto lawyer Karl D. Jaffary told a joint meeting of the Northumberland and Quinte New Democratic Party Associations in Trenton last night. With his man to man son and unable to earn his living, he is a complete loss to the community, the family is often on welfare.

Mr. Jaffary said the fact that all decisions for the men were made for him inside the institutions made him unable to cope with our complex society upon his release. In the prison he has been taught "antiquated" trades, and is unable to find work when he comes out — even if an employer can be found to employ an "ex-con." More often than not he drifts back into a life of crime and returns to prison."

"Social pressures for penal reforms are building up in Canada," Mr. Jaffary said, and these are being accentuated by the province of Quebec. More and more emphasis is being placed on the need for a program of probation and parole for a great number of offenders.

Social reforms which society itself are being brought about and these will lead to bring about a decrease in the causes for crime.

Mr. Jaffary made it clear in his address that he was not for "for" the criminal and against the law abiding citizen. He said that punishment did not take place of punishment had their places in society . . . "but frequently they are not the correct ones.

"When a person commits a crime, something, somewhere has gone wrong with his person. Crime is a symptom."

Mr. Jaffary said Canada was far behind European countries in the approach to cures for crime. In England, Sweden and other overseas countries, more emphasis is placed on "cure" than punishment.

Even prison guards, in these countries do not carry out mere "custodial" jobs but are taught to be "amateur psychologists," their attitudes towards the men under their jurisdiction.

Last night's meeting was conducted by Ian Reilly, the Quinte association president. Mr. Reilly and other executive members present discussed plans for a conference on pollution which will be held in Belleville May 14.

Seven members reported the sales of tickets for Tommy Douglas Night at Club Canara, June 10, were going well.

District Grass Fires Keep Firemen Busy

TRENTON — Trenton firemen were more than a little busy yesterday fighting grass fires in the district.

Shortly before noon the men were out in Gardenville where a large swamp fire near property owned by Mrs. Rose Cooper was in progress. Two frame houses and a 2 bhl house on Weller's Bay were in danger but were saved by sustained efforts of the men.

Around 1 p.m., a fire was reported in a large field northwest of the Canada Metal plant. Plankings and timbers were saved from burning.

Another fire in the area of Thomas Goodwin at R.R. 4, Trenton, near the Smithfield Expressway was on the point of entering the woodlot when firemen arrived at 4.30 p.m. This fire was brought under control by firemen with extinguisher equipment strapped to their backs who walked along the line of fire, dousing it as they went.

Student Loses Licence and Fined $100

A 17-year-old B.C.I. student was fined $100 and prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for one year in City Court today by Magistrate A. T. Wills on a charge of dangerous driving.

William Foster Elcoy, Marysville, led police on a wild chase through city streets at speeds up to 105 miles per hour late Tuesday night.

Police testified they first observed the car, with three occupants, going south on South Front St. over the 401 overpass at a high rate of speed.

Police followed the car up George St. to Bridge, along Bridge to Ann to Queen to MacDonald and finally onto Dundas St. E.

Elcoy drove through seven stop signs at speeds between 70 and 80 miles per hour. He went 100 miles per hour east from MacDonald at the Dundas St. E.

He stopped his car about one mile east of the city and was apprehended by police.

Magistrate Wills commented, "This type of driving has to stop."

Elcoy is a grade 9 student at B.C.I.

He offered no defense.

Series of Minor Calls Keeps Firemen Busy

Firemen were kept busy last night by a series of minor calls throughout the city.

At 3:27 p.m. they put out a rubbish fire on Dundas Street East. There was no damage. Two hours later the service truck was called to Glen Road to help free a child who had his foot caught in a tree.

An overheated thermostat at the O.S.D. shortly after 7 p.m. rang the alarm in the fire hall. There was no fire and no damage.

At 7:30 firemen were called to a grass fire at the rear of St. Joseph's Church.

Two calls were answered about 3 a.m. today. One was just an investigation on Hunswood Dr. Nothing serious appeared about smelling gas. The other was an outhouse fire at 148 Wentworth.

Fulton Ready To Testify In Public

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and former justice minister Fulton have added to their legal representation at the Gerda Munsinger inquiry and Mr. Fulton says he is prepared to testify in public.

Charles L. Dubin, 45-year-old Toronto lawyer, has been retained as associate to C. F. H. Carson of Toronto counsel for the two Conservative leaders at the inquiry by Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Fulton said he has nothing to hide in the Munsinger case and is ready to give his testimony in public.

Mr. Justice Spence, appointed by the cabinet to investigate the Munsinger affair, involving allegations of sex and security, has indicated that most, if not all, hearings will be held in secret.

The justice is inquiring into allegations by Justice Minister Cardin who said Mrs. Munsinger, a 36-year-old German blonde, has been active in espionage work before coming to Canada in 1955 and that two or more Conservative ministers were involved with her before she returned to Germany in 1961.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson declined comment Thursday on a statement by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that the inquiry into the Gerda Munsinger affair was an act of political vengence.

"I have no comment to make on a statement like that," said the prime minister.

Police Hunt Three Gunmen After Attack

SUDBURY (CP)—Police are searching for three gunmen who attacked a 56-year-old man in his basement and escaped with a valuable coin collection and a loaded pistol.

Tony Hahn told police that the men, wearing nylon stockings over their heads and carrying guns, forced their way through the front door of his home Thursday night, shoved him and made him open a safe containing the coins.

The thieves left after tying Mr. Haller, who called police after freeing himself.

150 Years Ago

(Entries from the diary of S. Wilmot of the original survey of Belleville in 1816; notes by Tom Easton O.L.S.)

Monday 18th — Dispatched a man to York with the necessary papers in compliance to an order of the 8th inst. from the Surveyor General's Office.

Note: Although this is the last time Wilmot mentioned anything of the details over his survey of Belleville, for two more years reports, letters and plans were sent back and forth between York and Belleville.

The surveyor General sent Henry Smith, Deputy Surveyor, to Belleville to report on the situation, and Smith found Wilmot to be in error by 277 feet. He indicated in his report, quite politely, that Wilmot was possibly the worst surveyor in the Province: "... it should be remarked that Mr. Wilmot's Chainbearers (Indians) always in each and every lot of 19 chains extend from 18 to 20 links further than any other measurement I have observed in the Province and I hesitate not to say he must form a deficiency of more than 7 chains which would of Necessity involve the Inhabitants in Confusion and Ruin."

Despite this criticism, Wilmot maintained his position, and another deputy Surveyor, William Chewett, was sent to examine the situation. He could not reconcile Wilmot's and Smith's surveys, and he heard only conflicting stories from the inhabitants of Belleville.

Although John Taylor had fenced in over 600 feet of the Indian Reservation at one time, he had relinquished this claim, but actions were suspect. The accusation was made that John W. Meyers, when acting as surveyor for the early settlers, had shifted all the lot lines to the west in order to obtain a good mill rate for himself. Chewett felt that Wilmot had erred in not securing positive evidence no the disputed points.

However, with the inhabitants divided on the issue, Chewett shrewdly recommended that a third Deputy Surveyor be sent to Belleville to resurvey the entire area with great care.

Y's Activities

EASTER BUS TRIP

Approximately 100 boy and girl "Y" members boarded two Finnbors busses yesterday for a trip to Kingston. Supervision for this large crowd was handled by five teen-age leaders and two adult leaders. They were Jane Riley, Carol Nix, Judy Joblin, Linda Salisbury, Jim Wiggins, Sue Clarke and Mildred Gray.

The first stop was at the YM-YWCA to eat lunch and tour the "Y". The kids loved the huge gymnasium and were thrilled when Ralph Boomhower, formerly a leader of the Belleville "Y" and now a staff member of the Kingston "Y" performed a few skills on the trampoline.

At the Royal Military College, Flight Lieutenant J. L. Knias escorted the kids through the grounds and a film on the college was shown.

Later at the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals Museum at Vimy Barracks the boys were fascinated by the old switchboards and telephones and the girls seemed to be attracted to the armchair and old pictures of the first and second world wars.

Homeward bound, the busses drove by Sir John A. MacDonald's house. The children wondered why Sir John selected such a house to live in since it did not seem to fit in with their ideals of his house.

Arriving home about 8.00 p.m. all of the children indicated that they had a swell time and indications are that such trips might be included in future special programs.

Eight young speakers, two of them from the Immediate Belleville area, will compete, with the winners to go on to the provincial finals in Toronto.

Local speakers will be Sharon DaNos of Foxboro and Ann Sherd from Trenton. Both girls won in the district contest at Cobourg two weeks ago.

PUC Making Fast Work Of Street Light Program

The city public utilities commission is making excellent progress in its street lighting program this year.

Utilities manager E. L. Sorelson said today that so far this year the light installation crew had put up 182 lights, a big percentage of them west of the river.

Roadways with new lights installed in recent weeks include West Moira from Sidney street to the city limits, where nine 400 watt mercury vapor lights have been erected.

Leland Drive from Sidney street to Palmer Road has also been lighted with eleven 200 watt mercury vapor lamps.

In the east end 17 new lamps have been installed on Dundas Street, East, between MacDonald Ave. and Sixth Street, and the lighting program will be continued west along Dundas to Pinnacle with present low wattage lamps being replaced.

LIGHT PINNACLE ST.

Also scheduled for this year are new lights for Pinnacle and Sixth Front streets.

New lamps are also scheduled this year for Elgin street, Hubbell street, Kingsway court, and on Victoria Ave. and Bridge street in the Hay Road area east of Parrott Drive.

Local housing contractor Don Keller has recently closed the "gap" in Leland Drive between the Sir Mackenzie Public School and Nesbitt Drive.

This roadway across the top of the hydro corridor - division has been graded and gravelled and is scheduled for paving later.

Likely Award To Nixon Is Protested

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — More than 175 faculty members and some seniors at the University of Rochester are protesting the likely award of an honorary degree to former U.S. vice - president Richard Nixon, one professor said Thursday.

The university has chosen Nixon as its commencement speaker June 5 but has not said whether he will be awarded an honorary degree. It is customary for the commencement speaker to receive such an award.

Bernard Weisberger, a history professor, said 176 of the 250 faculty members in the college of arts and sciences had signed a resolution that claims Nixon opposes academic freedom.

The resolution, he said, also cites what Norma Nixon's advocacy last fall of the firing of Eugene Genovese, an associate professor of history at Rutgers University, for saying he would welcome a victory by the Viet Cong in Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, 215 of the 512 Rochester seniors have signed a petition protesting any honorary degree for Nixon.

The student cabinet said it will conduct a referendum next Wednesday and Thursday among the university's 2,700 undergraduate students to determine their feelings.

University officials declined to comment on the resolution or referendum.

Strikes and Singers

It would be a miracle, in this day and age of state pensions, job security and a "something-for-nothing" attitude toward life, if the Expo. 67 site at Montreal were to be completed without work stoppages and labor disputes of one kind of another.

Thus it is not surprising to learn of the strike by 10,000 construction workers belonging to the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions. And this despite the fact that unions are bound by a no-strike agreement with the Expo authorities.

There have been reports of union pickets and "goon squads" intimidating non-strikers and forcing them to stay off the job.

The stoppage inevitably involves wage demands, although the present rates seem reasonable, ranging from $2.41 an hour for laborers to $3.11 for carpenters and painters and $3.35 for millwrights, bricklayers, lathers and plasterers.

So much for labor problems in connection with Montreal's big exhibition. Now to turn to a very different source of unrest on the Expo scene — the lack of Canadian talent in cultural presentations scheduled in Montreal during the exhibition.

Colette Boky is a Canadian coloratura soprano who is currently singing the title role in a Montreal production of Offenbach's La Belle Helene. Writing to European opera audiences, Miss Boky feels the Expo management is not inviting enough Canadian talent to Montreal.

"Personally, I have not been invited, and I am very disappointed about this," Miss Boky told the Montreal Gazette's Joan Fraser. "It looks like Montreal's Edwards Europeanitis. It is very embarrassing when my colleagues at the Vienna State Opera say they are coming to Montreal for Expo, and what am I doing there.

"Canadian artists have made a big place for themselves in Europe and I think it's not see why they shouldn't have a big place at home."

Well said. Not only should Miss Boky be invited to perform in Montreal next year (she has appeared in all the big major European centres), but Canadians and visitors from abroad should also be afforded an opportunity of hearing such performers as Lois Marshall, Teresa Stratas and Jan Vickers. Even though they had to leave Canada to win their fame and fortune, our great artists would be the first to say that no honor would be more appreciated than that they be invited to sing before audiences in their native land during Centennial Year.

Teen Council

Before it got down to business the other day, Oshawa's Teen Council paid a courtesy call on Mayor Lyman Gifford that there were matters on its agenda "that have been on ours for weeks and months."

"I can tell you that we will welcome any suggestions you make."

With this approbation from the chief citizen the young people proceeded to take Mr. Gifford at his word.

One interesting suggestion was contained in a motion calling for the use of schools as community centres for after hours meetings and dances. "Schools are not getting the full value out of the equipment they buy," said Deana Pritchard.

Other student councillors felt this would also cut down on vandalism.

The city's parks were described as "nothing but duck bosses" by Jack Gillespie. He called for more park facilities with formal gardens, tennis and bowling areas.

All credit to Oshawa's teen council for showing that young people can be as civic minded as their elders, given opportunity. In Belleville and other communities had similar groups for the young people it would help bridge the gap between the rising generation and their parents, and at the same time forge a common interest in local affairs.

Intrepid Flier

When Mrs. Jerrie Mock, 40, landed at her home town airport at Columbus, Ohio, a couple of years ago, to become the first woman to fly solo around the world, she said: "This is the way I believe we were meant to live."

With that observation so brief and yet so eloquent, she stirred the Walter Mitty in all of us. But as ever, adventure of this magnitude is outside the ken of the majority of people. It is just as it was when Columbus published, Cleveland newsman Robert Manly last year showed what can be done when he left wife and family for a short time to sail the Atlantic alone in a small yacht. It is just that we are not all cast in such heroic mold.

Now Mrs. Mock has established another record. She flew from Honolulu to Kansas City, a distance of 3,857 miles, to set a world non-stop record for women. Flying a single-engine Cessna, she surpassed (by nearly 200 miles) the previous best distance set as long ago as 1938 by three Russian women. She spent 31 hours in the air.

However there is a price to pay for such achievements. Mrs. Mock, mother of four, said on her return: "It will take the Mock family about a year to pay for this trip."

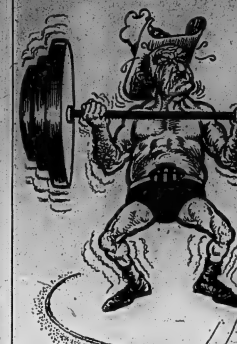
The British fleet at Spithead, near Portsmouth, mobilized 180 years ago today — in 1797—during war with France. The main complaints were issues of food, pay, and discipline aboard ships. As the government was ready to negotiate. Since the current admiral was not much of a sailor, Lord Howe came out of retirement to help get the men back to duty. A more serious mutiny at the Nore station broke out soon afterwards, which was put down by force. During this period the French could have raided or invaded England, with almost no naval opposition.

1638 — English colonists settled New Haven, Conn.



1858—San Francisco was incorporated.

First World War . . .

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—French attacks took German trenches between Douaumont and Vaux near Verdon; British units raided trenches south of the Ypres-La Bassee road; Germans also advanced near Vlna on the Eastern Front.

Second World War . . .

Twenty - five years ago today—in 1941—British and Axis troops fought at Sollum, on the Egyptian frontier; the British admiralty announced the sinking of three Italian destroyers and five freighters and the loss of the destroyer Mohawk and the cruiser Bonaventure; the Germans set up the state of Croatia.

To Your Good Health

Deformity of Chest Not Harmful Condition

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am worried about my younger brother who is 18. Besides being six feet tall and weighing only 130 he has a congenital chest deformity that I can describe only as "sunken." (A doctor once used a more technical term).

This has made my brother self-conscious and withdrawn. Is there anything that can be done: I was hoping that as he grew taller and develops his muscles it wouldn't be as noticeable but I don't want to give him any encouragement that would end in disappointment. — C. G.

The sunken or funnel chest is the commonest type of chest wall deformity. It is also called pectus excavatum, which may be the term the doctor used.

It is a depression of the breast bone that can happen in varying degrees, but the problem is principally one of appearance. Usually there is no decided effect on health. X-ray studies give a clue if the depression is severe enough to make correction mandatory for reasons of health.

The ideal time for surgical correction, it is now generally agreed, is between the ages of three and six years. Later the bones and cartilages become more rigidly fixed. Correction of severe cases has been done, however, in older children.

If the depression is mild, then nothing need be done, but your brother should be examined and reassured that there will be no ill effects.

It is true that muscle development plus adding some weight may make the deformity less conspicuous but it cannot alter the condition basically.

If correction is to be considered, consult a thoracic (chest) surgeon to determine whether it is necessary or feasible.

Dear Dr. Molner: What makes my hands turn black when I put them in cold water? I also encloses 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope for booklet, "Tips on How to Stop Smoking." — Mrs. E. R.

From your brief description, I suspect Raynaud's Disease, which is a disorder of the nervous system's control of the tone of small blood vessels — and hence impaired circulation in the extremities. Chilling puts further burden on circulation, hence the darkness of the skin.

Raynaud's Disease is common in women, premature, your request for the booklet, that you are a heavy smoker. Nicotine has a decidedly detrimental effect on Raynaud's Disease.

While you should see your physician for medical advice, quitting up tobacco affords marked relief. Your doctor can help you, but stopping the tobacco habit is in large part up to you.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son is 10 and his eyesight is blurred from cataracts. Would transplants of corneas help him? Doctors say there would be too much risk in removing his cataracts. Why would it be more risky for him than anyone else? I would a complete eye exchange help? — Mrs. M. C.

Replacing the corneas (covering of the eyeball) would not help, since the cataracts are cloudy lenses which are behind the corneas.

I cannot answer the second question: there evidently is some special condition involved. There might perhaps be some visual problem in addition to the cataracts, so that removing the cataracts still would not correct his eyesight. You will have to ask the doctors who have examined him.

Exchange of a complete eye cannot be performed. Although we have eye banks, only the corneas are used from these sources.

Locomotive Men's Wages Set Forth

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Through the use of your newspaper, may I comment on the misleading opinion pertaining to the wages of Engineers and Firemen - Helpers, by H. W. Pointer, as contained in his letter published in your paper April 8th.

Mr. Pointer stated: "The public seems to have the mistaken idea that railway workers are among the best-paid employees in Canada. This may be true so far as the operating workers (engineers and firemen) are concerned, but certainly - not for the many thousands of non - ops. These people have consistently lagged behind those paid in outside industry."

For the information of any interested readers and especially for the future guidance of Mr. Pointer, I relate the following facts and figures:

Firemen - Helpers assigned to yard service are paid $17.20 a day, 40 hours a week, an annual wage of $4,162. Firemen - Helpers assigned to road line freight service are paid on a mileage basis - $15.00 per 100 miles. They are permitted to make (but not guaranteed) between 2000 and 3000 miles per month. If a fireman averaged 3500 a month he would earn, calculated by hours, (40 hours a week) $17.50 day - $367.50 in a 21 . working day month - $4, 410 a year. As can be determined the average hourly wage of a fireman - helper is about comparable with a non - op worker, who, as revealed in Mr. Pointer's letter averages $4,300 yearly.

The R.L.F. & E., no doubt next year will be seeking a wage increase and I trust, the people of Belleville will not consider their demands exorbitant.

R. J. Dall,
Local Chairman Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineemen.

Few Remain In Highlands

Brantford Expositor

There is still much truth in the statement by Dr. Samuel Johnson nearly 200 years ago that the finest prospect a Scotsman ever sees is the high road that leads him to England. And he could have added to Canada and other places as well.

Compilation of the voters' list for the recent election revealed that Scotland's total of electors, all 21 or over, has dropped by some 31,000 since the poll, in 1950 and by over 30,000 in the 16 months since the 1904 poll. Counting children, the exodus from Scotland in these periods have been at least double the above figures. Most of the departees made for England, continuing the ancestral drift south in the last few years to greener pastures, better jobs and brighter prospects.

Two centuries ago it was the Highland clearances by heartless landowners that chiefly drove Scots, from their native heath, forced them to Nova Scotia and other parts of Canada. Now the ready availability of better jobs and more pleasant living, especially in England's mild southern areas, is speeding the depopulation of a Caledonia the young people find too stern and cold.

The road to the isles has become the road from the isles. There are few left and fewer Scots with their hearts in the Highlands. The cities and bright lights to the south beckon irresistably. And as the self - exiles strike new roots and reap the greater affluence of life outside Scotland, they are likely to do their roamin' in the gloamin' by car.

Camera Art In Ottawa

Ottawa Journal

The photographs of Mr. Roloff Beny on exhibition at the National Gallery until April 17 show, once again, that a camera in the hands of a master produces fine art. Mr. Beny uses lens instead of a brush. But he has what any true artist must have — the eye of a poet.

In that sense Mr. Beny resembles the writer who cannot help but see with modern art is that his work is not very modern indeed while remaining of all things, recognizable. Mr. Beny takes for many of his subjects things which are themselves works of art: architecture and statuary all over the world — a medieval wall in Italy, a Buddha, a detail from an Italian Renaissance tomb. In the lens they are placed before our own eyes, almost within our touch.

Modern painters and photographers seem to have disqualified anything inherently beautiful as legitimate subjects. Painting or photographing manmade assets is avoided as being easy. Let tourists take pictures of Italian buildings or statues; artists prefer their own private, and often unrecognizable, world.

No ordinary tourist with a camera has the imagination or the poetic insight to record a pattern on marble screens or fretted medallions with the sensitivity of Roloff Beny. But an ordinary tourist — or viewer — can appreciate his photos.

We can have gratitude not only to Mr. Beny but to art galleries which recognize photography as a genuine art form even photographs of beautiful objects in other galleries.

Pollution Situation Worsens

Ottawa Journal

The problem of pollution has probably never been spoken of more urgent words than in the report to the White House of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences.

The time has come, the report says, when man can no longer continue to throw away his refuse into land, sea and air as though these were bottomless pits. "As the earth becomes more crowded, it is easy for one person's trash basket to be another's living space."

By 1980 it is calculated that the discharge of sewage and other wastes will be sufficient to consume all the oxygen in the 22 major rivers flowing in the United States during their dry season alone.

The situation is unprecedented and becoming desperate," the report says in language for restrained that is uncharacteristic cold neutralism of scientists.

The Academy of Sciences offers these American statistics on waste-creating:

Each person in 1965 threw away almost twice as much trash daily as in 1920 — 4.5 pounds.

Pollutants are being discharged into the air at the rate of 143,000,000 tons a year, a figure expected to double by 1980 and redouble by 2000.

They Call The Newspaper

Corner Brook Western Star

Hardly had the news got out that there was a lull in the House of Assembly dealing with the possibility of a plebiscite on an election in Corner Brook this year, than the telephone started ringing.

Believe it or not, people started calling asking when the election would be held. They were actually calling with the inquiries in most cases, were based on what the callers had heard on the radio, and as is usually the case, they weren't quite certain what they had heard. So they called to confirm the thing: they called the newspaper to find out for sure.

Probably nothing is a reassurance of interest in civic matters, the calls illustrate the unique appeal of newspapers. Something announced on the radio, or flashed on the television screen is a fleeting announcement, before something else comes on to draw his mind from it, either another item, another commercial, or a new program.

But the printed word. As one newspaper points out, "Some commercials last 24 hours" — and often very much longer. The reader has a chance to read and digest at his leisure. Miss the opening seconds of a news broadcast, or a commercial announcement, and it's gone forever. You never know what you missed. Newspapers seem, advertisements, features, but also the items of interest packed into the printed publ ication. Former Mayor Collapses At Car Wheel

OTTAWA (CP) — Charlotte Whitton, 70, former mayor of Ottawa, collapsed at the wheel of her car Thursday night after spending most of the day taping three 15-minute shows for a local television station.

A hospital spokesman said her condition was "not serious . . . and not her heart." She would be kept at least overnight "for a short time" for observation and rest.

Miss Whitton was driving her car about 9 p.m. in the Sandy Hill section of the city when she slumped over the wheel. She managed to stop the car and call out to several children playing on the sidewalk. The children ran into a nearby drug store where an employee called police.

A spokesman at television station CJOH said Miss Whitton had left the studio about 6:30 p.m. Miss Whitton's five-a-week television show, Dear Charlotte, is a question and answer session by former mayor — defeated in the 1956 civic election — had been working hard on three shows throughout the day.

Judge Hears Many Witnesses In Spencer Case

OTTAWA (CP)—A string of witnesses filed into a sealed-off Supreme Court courtroom in West Block Thursday as Mr. Justice Dalton Wells continued his closed investigation of the George Victor Spencer case.

The Ontario Appeal Court justice moved quickly in the affair of the alleged spy who was fired from his Vancouver postal job more than a year ago. Spencer saw his case blossom into a Commons storm and died just before the inquiry started.

Testimony was taken from about 10 officials of the RCMP and government service during Thursday's session and Mr. Justice Wells said afterward that he considered the most involved parts of the case.

He expected to close up the Ottawa portion of the hearing today with testimony from four or five civil service officials who would outline the steps taken in Spencer's firing.

A transcript of all aspects of the case that would not expose government security practices also will be sent to Spencer's lawyer Harry Rankin, acting for Spencer.

Mr. Justice Wells said the lawyer would need about 48 days to go over the evidence. The next step would be a Vancouver hearing at which Mr. Rankin could cross - examine witnesses. This probably could start early in May.

The basic aim of the inquiry is to determine whether Spencer was justly dismissed and whether he was unfairly deprived of any pension or insurance benefits.

Topless Blackjack Dealers May Be Seen in Las Vegas

By RICHARD F. MEYER

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)— The odds on blackjack might be getting worse around here.

Attorney - General Harvey Dickerson of Nevada says at least one casino in planning a new distraction—topless dealers.

As eager as visiting card players might be to see "the pretty women" at the tables, Dickerson said Thursday he'd move promptly to suppress any lotteries or games of chance.

"I think its indecent exposure," said Pete Bommarito, manager of another casino.

"No comment," said Robert Miller, assistant general manager of the Sands Hotel, where Dickerson said the women dealers, stripped to the waist, would begin work next Tuesday.

Topless chorus girls are old hat in Las Vegas. They made their debut in 1958.

WOMEN ARE WILLING

Dickerson said Thursday he learned that the Silver Nugget, in suburban north Las Vegas, has hired new women dealers who are willing to work so dressed.

Women dealers at present employed by the casino have complained that unless they shed their top garments, they would lose their jobs, he said.

"If the Nugget carries out this plan, I'll seek a court injunction to halt this affront to the decent and law-abiding citizens of Nevada.

"If this course is taken by the casino involved or by any other casino, my office will request in the strongest language that a license be taken by the gaming control board at the licensing authorizing (5) (blackjack) games in that place of business."

In downtown Las Vegas and along the Strip, Casino spokesmen indicated topless dancers were in—but topless dealers were out.

CHARLES CITY, Va. (AP) Pokey the whale is alive!

The whale was tied to a tree, shot a dozen times Wednesday night with a rifle and left for dead.

Thursday, commercial fisherman Norman Haynes went to tow the 30-pound whale from the James River shore to his home, nearby. But as the small motorboat started towing, Pokey came to life, broke the nylon tow rope and swam into deep water.

"He is very much alive," said Haynes' wife.

It was the second time Pokey has outlived predictions of his death.

Pokey was first observed Monday by Haynes, some 70 miles up river from its natural or at least normal habitat. The whale appeared reef death from countless lacerations and 25 to 30 mysterious bullet holes visible along one side.

The whale headed downstream Tuesday night, apparently tickled on the stomach with a pole. But about noon Wednesday, Pokey reappeared near Haynes' home.

Haynes' son decided, after quiet deliberation, there is no law in Virginia which prohibits killing a beached whale. Pokey would have to be done away with.

"Sooner or later someone was bound to get hurt," he said. "Just one swipe of his tail could overturn a good-size boat."

The younger Haynes used a rifle to riddle the whale's body.

Labor Reporter Of Telegram Freed of Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Damage suits brought against the International Typographical Workers (Intl.) and Frank Drea, labor reporter for The Telegram, by former Toronto Teamster leader were dismissed Thursday in a judgment by Ontario Supreme Court Justice William Mills, president of Local 938 from 1948 to 1954.

Mr. Justice Mills ruled that International President James Hoffa, Local 938 President Ken MacDougall and 15 other union officials in the suit alleging conspiracy to remove Mills from office while he was secretary-treasurer at the time of his dismissal from the union executive.

In a letter of dismissal after a nine-man union investigation of Mills' activities in mid-July, 1956 on misconduct charges, Mr. Hoffa said Mills was "not the type of person we want to dust the affairs of the local."

Mills charged that stories by Drea in the Telegram and Spotlight in Miami Beach, Fla., during a 1957 Teamster leadership convention, discredited him and caused unrest among the local membership.

Mr. Justice John King said in his judgment that he did not agree with the inferences Mills drew from many facts he related in his testimony.

Car Defects Concealed Behind Chrome Curtain Critic Tells Committee

WASHINGTON (CP — AP)—A leading critic of the auto industry charged Thursday that automotive manufacturers have concealed car defects behind a chrome curtain, and he attacked foreign as well as domestic car-makers.

Ralph Nader, author of the book Unsafe at Any Speed, was testifying before the Senate auto safety hearings for the fourth time this year.

Nader said the chrome curtain hid from the Senate commerce committee last year the purchase by General Motors of tires "for an f.o.b. price of about $2."

The committee at that time was studying the problem of setting tire standards.

"It would have been instructive to know . . . that Chevrolet division purchases its tires from the tire companies for an f.o.b. price of about $2."

The knowledge might have led to a greater understanding of the tire companies' predicament in having to sell unsatisfactory tires to their giant and uncompromising buyers."

RAPS FOREIGN CARS

Nader charged that, in regard to safety features, foreign car-makers are no better than American manufacturers.

"Any impression that only domestic car manufacturers inflict such uncertainty (in car safety) on their purchasers should be promptly avoided.

"Foreign car manufacturers who sell their cars in this country are not known to distinguish themselves in this area from their domestic counterparts."

"It's hard to find a more dangerous car than the Volkswagen," he said. The 32-year-old lawyer also was critical of a car made in the Soviet Union and one made in Czechoslovakia.

Nader urged that Congress require not only U.S. car manufacturers disclose safety defects in their products, but foreign car producers as well, if they are to sell their vehicles in the United States. He also contended that insurance companies have "received information from auto companies for claims paid when vehicle defects were clearly known to be culpable cause of accident."

MAINTAIN SECRECY

"Due to their unwillingness to publicize their mistakes and also due to the ease of obtaining higher rates and their unease at the prospect of seeking rates that could overflow into reserves for increased regulation, insurance companies have maintained, under the soothing mantle of actuarial secrecy and license, a strict lid of secrecy—even withholding notice of defects from their own policyholders.

In Detroit, GM's Chevrolet division announced it was asking dealers last summer to correct faulty front door latches on what it said were 16,000 cars. A spokesman said the action was taken after GM was notified it had violated the Canadian safety standards act.

But the spokesman said he did not know whether all the cars in question — Chevelles, Chevrolets and Corvairs — had been called back. He did say he knew of no doors actually flying open because of the faulty latch. He refused to identify the supplier of the latches.

Two committee bills to have highway safety legislation ready for Senate action early next month. They are the Senate public works and the commerce committees that are handling separate parts of President Johnson's highway safety programs.

The administration program would authorize federal expenditures of about $600,000,000 over the next six years in an effort to reduce highway accidents that take about 39,000 U.S. lives a year.

John Bugas, Ford Motor Co. vice-president, told the public works committee Thursday the auto makers would move ahead promptly to improve car safety but needed an anti-trust exemption for a joint effort. He emphasized that the industry was proposing a federal-state consultative service to relate safety standards drawn up by the auto companies.

Talked Way From Front of Firing Squad

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Photographer Perry Fowler, 56, a decorated World War ace, pilots read like a spy thriller, died Wednesday night of cancer.

Fowler was director of photography for the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner.

On an assignment for the Office of Strategic Services, the U.S. spy agency during the Second World War, Fowler dropped by parachute behind the Nazi lines and joined partisan forces led by Joseph Broz — better known now as Marshal Tito, Yugoslavia's head of state.

Tito was having a tough time there maintaining liaison with the Allies. Randolph Churchill was also there to help solve those problems.

Fowler's jobs was to make a motion-picture record of the Yugoslav guerrilla war and get it out to the free world. Fowler made the film and got it aboard a courier plane, giving the first films of Tito to the world.

Then, caught by the Germans, Fowler talked his way out—from in front of a firing squad.

Fowler shouted down the officer in charge of executions, claiming that he was not a spy. He had the foresight to destroy all OSS credentials before being captured.

He demanded treatment as a prisoner of war and finally got it after months of questioning by the Gestapo.

Liberated, he got home in time for VE-Day.

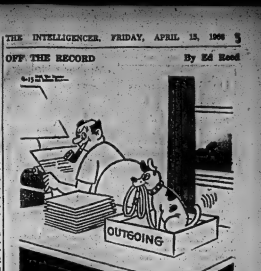
Six Rescue Submersibles Being Ordered



WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Navy has ordered six rescue submersibles to be carried by plane to a disaster site and then attach themselves like leeches to a sunken submarine and take out crew members.

Even if the craft is designed to rescue a dozen men at a time in the event of a sudden disaster sending a submarine to the bottom... They are being designed for a maximum working depth of 3,000 feet. The nuclear-powered submarine Thresher which sank off Cape Cod three years ago went down in water 8,400 feet deep.

The navy announced Thursday the first prototype model will be designed and built—by early 1962, it hopes—by the Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., Sunnyvale, Calif. Six more would be completed by 1970 at a cost estimated now only in millions of dollars.

The 25-ton craft will be 44 feet long and eight feet in diameter.

Clear Plastic Dresses Now On Market

PARIS (AP) — Daniel Hechter, a Paris dress designer, has come up with a line of clear plastic dresses — a joke, he says.

"Call it what you want," said a male spectator at Hechter's preview show Thursday night, "I think it's terrific."

Hechter plans to sell the dresses for 58 apiece and already has some takers.

In a tiny concession to modesty, the dresses have two horizontal bands of darker colored clear plastic above and below the midriff.

Church Groups

ST. COLUMBA WOMEN

The monthly meeting of the St. Columba Presbyterian Church was held recently with Mrs. John Kidd presiding.

Mrs. K. D. Taylor conducted the worship service. Mrs. R. Ashley, Mrs. R. Munroe, Mrs. J. Richie, Mrs. A. Dunsmore and Mrs. F. J. McLaughlin assisted in demonstrating and describing the work of the women of the Indian Missions which the Presbyterian Church in Canada works. The countries about which they talked were India, Formosa, Nigeria, British Guinea and Japan.

There was a discussion, Christian women, in all of these countries endeavor to serve within their respective churches in similar ways. They all have similar problems and above all the same Lord.

Final preparations were discussed for the dinner to be held soon.

On May 18 is the VON bazaar and St. Columba is in charge of the bake table.

Mrs. MacLaughlin announced that a rummage sale of seasonal clothes will be held late in May.

Mrs. Taylor is starting a Bible Study beginning April 21st.

Mrs. Kidd closed the meeting with prayer. Lunch was served by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Bartlett.

Ann Landers

Man Acted Unwisely In Washroom Incident

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last Sunday, just before church services began, I stopped in the men's room. Three other men were in there. Out of the blue I heard a small voice and looked down to see a little girl about 4 years old standing next to me. She tugged at my sleeve with an air of urgency and said, "I have to go to the bathroom. Will you help me, mister?"

I did help her and then I opened the door for her when she left. One of the men gave me a grave look and said, "You did a very foolish thing. If some trouble-maker wanted to make something out of it, you could have been ARRESTED arrested on a phony molesting charge. Furthermore you could have gotten all of us in trouble."

I replied, "You're out of your mind. That little girl came in here by herself. I did what any decent man would do, I helped her."

When I told my wife about the incident she said I was right. But now I'm having second thoughts. We'd like your opinion in case the occasion arises again, which it probably won't in 100 years. — WHITTIER.

DEAR WHITTIER: The man was right. If the occasion does arise again within the next 100 years, I suggest that you take the little girl by the hand, lead her out of the room's room and put her into the hands of the first woman you see and ask her to help the child.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I must write this letter or I won't be able to sleep tonight. Again this evening I picked up the newspaper and read that two small children burned to death while their mother left them to do some shopping.

Ann, how can excuses ever always the same? Was only gone a few minutes." What kind of shopping can be so important that a mother would leave small children alone in the house? I can't understand it.

Please, please, use your widely read column to remind parents everywhere that small children must never be left alone under any excuse. It takes only a few seconds for an electrical wire to shoot out or for a youngster to catch fire from the kitchen stove. And don't forget that children play with matches.

I'll feel better when I see this in print because I'll know that millions of others are seeing it, too. — ON RECORD.

DEAR ON: Here's your letter and I hope it reminds our readers that tragedies don't always happen to other people's children.

DEAR ANN: A friend has attached herself to me and I can't shake her. She phones every morning and asks what I'm doing. If I say, "I'm staying home," she says, "I'll come over." If I say, "I'm going shopping," she says, "I'll go with you."

I have to include her in every card game and party. I like the woman and she has done me many favors — like keeping my kids when I've gone on trips — but I feel as if she owns me. How can I free myself from her? — SUFFOCATING.

DEAR SUFF: By getting out of her debt. Don't let her keep your kids or do anything else for you. When you no longer feel obligated you'll be able to say "no" to her and live your own life.

Hobby Is The Study Of Herbs

TORONTO (CP) — Babies aren't brought by the stork — they're found in the parsley patch.

The authority for this little bit of intelligence is a book written by John Wesley, founder of the Methodist Church.

The book is one of 300 in a library built up by Mrs. John Langdon, whose hobby is the study of herbs.

The John Wesley book is called Primitive Physics and, in addition to explaining where babies come from, it offers a cure for baldness:

Take one onion and rub it on your head morning and night until your head is scarlet red. Then cover the shiny dome with honey.

Mrs. Langdon, who calls herself an armchair gardener, also has books with recipes for witch's brew. And she can trace the history of herbs in Canada.

In 1375 Louis Hibbert, son of the apothecary to Catherine of Medici, landed in Canada with a handful of herbs and taught the Indians how to make some of his potions.

This is apparently how many plants were introduced to this country and the hardy plants have been growing ever since.

Mrs. Langdon has a recipe for rose jam which calls for a pound of Elizabethan-type rose petals, one quart of water, seven pounds of white sugar and a tablespoon of lemon juice.

The recipe, which she doesn't guarantee, requires that you soak the petals in water for half an hour and cover with damp cloth; strain and set aside one-third of the water. Place the sugar and petals in a bowl and add half to the two-thirds water that remains. Press carefully with your hands, trying not to damage the petals.

Leave for 24 hours. Add the other one-third of the water and boil until half cooked. Then add the reserve third of water a little at a time and boil until the mixture is as thick as cream. Stir in the lemon juice and put in a fancy jam pot.

Jealous Husband Will Drive Love Away

DEAR DORIS: A miserable argument has turned into a chronic disagreement between my husband of six years and myself, although we usually get along quite well. It concerns a business friend I had who became a friend of both of us when we got married.

DORIS CLARK

He drops in to see us. The first time, I knew he was coming, I cleared with my husband and he was grand to him. Then the friend turned up before Jim came home one night and I served him coffee. Jim was nice, again, but when the man left, did I ever get it!

He said he was ready to kick me out, and that no decent woman would have a man in when her husband wasn't there. And forbade me to ever do it again.

I was mortified, and indignant, and hurt. What do you think? — BAFFLED.

DEAR BAFFLED: Jim is jealous, and childish — and in love!

If you were to bend over backward to close the door on any male callers — explaining that "My husband is very, very jealous!" you'd qualify as a star in your favorite Western, and hold Jim up, not to respect, but to ridicule!

It hasn't occurred to him that if you had anything to hide, your friend would have ducked out the door before Jim turned up.

To Jim I'd say: Call off the nagging, or the love you are guarding will fade away. And to you? Call off this caller. Love deserves some give and take both ways.

DEAR DORIS: We have a problem child five years old. The three other children were never the trouble this boy is.

When we take him out he's picking for a fight right away or talking naughty. I feel just terrible when he is rude to people. I've tried to punish him and reason with him but it just doesn't sink in.

His dad realizes he is a problem but doesn't do much about it. A lot of this rough stuff has begun from the men teasing him. The older children haven't a game or toy left he hasn't broken up and he won't leave them alone for a second.

Could you offer any suggestions? He's anything but nice! — NERVOUS WRECK.

DEAR NERVOUS WRECK: Your little monster wasn't born rude, and that's for sure! I'd guess there was some pretty merciless teasing handed out before he built up such an alarming defence.

Mischief is the reaction of a person who is not serene.

Better get on his side, in no uncertain way. Respect for his thoughts, encouragement, rewards for good deeds — keep believing they'll work; especially if failure is not tearing down every kind expectation you build up. How about that?

DEAR DORIS: This letter is for Bewildered (about her religion being different from the boy friend's.)

My boy friend and I have been going together for almost four years. He is Roman Catholic and I am Protestant. He won't change religion and neither will I, so we have decided that when we get married and have children, we will let them choose their own religion. We love each other too much to separate and this is the only solution we can find. I am 19 and he is 24. — TRYING TO HELP.

DEAR TRYING: The idea sounds good, except that a practising Roman Catholic is required to promise that any children he may have will be raised as Roman Catholics.

(Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!)

Group Hopes To Form United Front

MONTREAL (CP)— More than 1,000 municipal civil service groups, formed last month to work for benefits for federal government employees, was invited some 30,000 civil servants to a mass meeting here next Monday.

The Federal Employees Vigilance Committee is calling for the right to strike for government employees.

It hopes to form a united front of civil service employees before the history report on pay and conditions in the Canadian civil service is presented to the House of Commons by Committee Secretary Roger Decarie Thursday.

Committee President Fred Rand Pare said: "Last summer the postal workers of this city were the only ones prepared to accept this right (to strike).

"If we cannot obtain justice, we are prepared to march on the federal House of Parliament and we invite all our colleagues in all other provinces to join us."

Bullfight Will Be Opposed By Society

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Humane Society said Thursday it will lay a criminal charge against a Portuguese-Canadian construction foreman if a bullfight is proposed to promote here takes place.

Thomas Hughes, general manager of the society, said Antonio Macahado will violate the Criminal Code if he stages a Portuguese style bullfight at Maple Leaf Stadium.

Mr. Hughes said the Portuguese fight, in which the bull is not killed but is stuck with barbed darts, would be a breach of section 387 of the code which says that, "anyone commits an offence who in any manner encourages, aids or assists at the fighting or baiting of animals or birds."

The Metropolitan Toronto licensing commission decided it has no regulation to prohibit a bullfight.

"We wouldn't merely wait for them to stage the bullfight either," Mr. Hughes said. "We would promptly ask for an injunction in advance to stop it."

Gold-painted Bolt Pins Final Beam

TORONTO (CP) — A gold-painted bolt Thursday pinned the final steel beam in the completed framework of the 740-foot Toronto-Dominion Bank Tower, tallest building in the Commonwealth.

The 2,500-pound beam, also painted gold, bore a Canadian flag on a welded flagpole as it came over the side of the roof of the 56-storey tower.

Fireworks went off when it passed about four storeys on the way up. From below, dwindled by distance, came faint strains from a band that played for a "topping off" ceremony arranged by officials.

Willis (Sparky) Sparks, 65, of Toronto, popped in the gold bolt. The action marked Sparky's retirement. He was immediately presented with his first pension cheque and also with the gold bolt as a souvenir. He had been a bolt feeder, passing some of the 667,000 bolts used on this job to other workers.

The building was started April 1, 1964. On completion it is to be the hub of the $125,000,000 Toronto-Dominion Centre between Bay and York streets at King St. Flanking it will be a 44-storey office building and a single-storey banking hall.

ice." Under the Quebec Labor Code this forbids them to strike.

Meanwhile, about 30,000 technical students are getting an unscheduled holiday.

The strike of 19,000 construction employees, members of the Montreal Construction Workers Union (CNTU); continued Thursday amid reports of violence between union and non-union workers.

About 70 per cent of the affected projects were still in operation Thursday, a spokesman for the Montreal Construction Association said. Hardest hit by the strike is the Montreal subway system where work all but stopped.

The union sent a telegram to the association Thursday seeking for a resumption of negotiations on a new working agreement but the association refused to put on its previous proposals.

QFL ISSUES WARNING

Members of Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) have been warned by the QFL they will lose their union benefits if they do not show up. About 4,000 employed on construction jobs on Montreal island belong to QFL affiliates.

Both the CNTU and QFL promised Thursday to continue to honor their no-strike pledges at the site of the 1967 Montreal world's fair.

Quebec Labor Minister Carrier Forth met Thursday with representatives of Hydro - Quebec and the National Construction Union (CNTU) in an attempt to end a strike of 2,000 construction workers at hydro-electric projects in northern Quebec over dismissals. However, talks broke down again and it was not known if they would resume.

A strike by 250 Hydro-Quebec engineers who are seeking pay increases went into light its day today with no sign of any change.

There was also no change in the strike of more than 3,000 textile workers who have tied up 20 plants in Hamilton Textile Co. and Domil, an affiliated company, in various centres in Quebec over up to six weeks. Wage and seniority clauses in a new working agreement are at issue.

Dept. Approves Large Schools For Townships

PICTON (Staff) — The Ontario Department of Education has given its approval to three municipalities which want to build their own central public schools — namely Hallowell, North Marysburgh and Athol Townships.

The department has received a letter from the department acknowledging receipt of the request to reject the consultative committee's report March 14.

It says: "The Consultative Committee presented excellent reports to County Council and its recommendations were forward-looking and educationally sound. The small school cannot begin to offer the advantages of a larger school and in a few years this will become apparent to the ratepayers of the area.

"Since the County Council has rejected the Consultative Committee's report, requests for building approvals in Prince Edward County will now be processed."

Council Budget Meet Delayed; School Levy Cut

PICTON (STAFF) — Town Council did not resume its budget meeting Wednesday night because Mayor H. J. McFarland had an appointment in Toronto and Deputy - Reeve Don Thompson had the flu. A new date will be announced later.

The meeting was scheduled when members agreed to adjourn the regular meeting April 6 in the hope that the collegiate would be able to reduce its $191,702 requisition.

The news now is that the town will be able to keep the mill rate down by at least another mill as a result of a further revision in the high school requisition.

Meeting Tuesday night, the collegiate board voted to reduce its $302,000 requisition from the nine member municipalities by $20,000.

This means that the town's share of the decrease will be $5,500, or 27 per cent. A mill raises $3,711 in Picton.

The board's finance committee, chairman J. Plomer, originally recommended a $15,000 reduction, saying any more would result in a deficit at the end of the year.

Guards Will Show Militia Various Skills

PICTON (Staff) — Camp Picton will again this weekend be the scene of much activity, when Ontario militia units will carry on the camp none the less strong. They will be at the camp for two days of intensified training and demonstrations by the 1st Battalion Canadian Guards. They will come from the Prince of Wales Own Regiment, Kingston; The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Belleville; The Lorne Scots, Oakville; The Lake Superior Rifles, Fort William; The 56th Regiment of Sudbury and the Algonquin Regiment.

Demonstrations are slated to begin at 8:50 a.m. Saturday with a full-strength rifle company parading in full equipment and weapons. At 11 a.m. there will be an advance and contact demonstration, showing the militiamen in actual field formation and advanced contact. The groups will be moved up into companies to try and duplicate the exercises this will take place about 2:30 p.m. The officers will receive signals training while the men are given lectures on night patrolling.

The exercises will continue Sunday morning when militiamen will see a demonstration of fighting patrols and attack with a full complement of arms. The militiamen will leave Sunday afternoon, by bus, for their home units.

Pupils to Get Extra Holiday This Summer

TORONTO (CP) — Grades 9 and 10 separate-school students will get an extra three weeks in their summer holiday, the Ontario Separate School Trustees' Association was told Thursday.

J. W. Fyfe, president of the association, said the students will be dismissed early in June, the same as children in public schools.

Previously, they had to stay in school until the end of June or their boards could lose provincial grants, he said.

Susan Alyea Chosen to Take Manitoba Trip

PICTON — Miss Susan Alyea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Alyea, R.R. 2, Hillier, has been chosen as one of the four 4-H Homemaking Club members in Ontario to represent Ontario at the 1966 inter-provincial exchange.

It is basically a farm to farm exchange in which each province will send one delegate to each of the other provinces. Susan will go to Manitoba.

Susan has completed 11 4-H homemaking projects and hopes to receive provincial honors in the spring Achievement Day, April 23rd, at the Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Picton. She has been a member of the Hillier club for seven years and Collegiate Institute, Picton. Susan hopes to attend Peterborough Teachers' College this fall. She has been active in church, school, 4-H Farmer and Junior Institute activities. She has been director of the school variety night for the past two years and has held several executive positions as a member of the H. and A. Junior Institute.

County Seeks Cost of Lights At Crossings

PICTON (Staff) — County Council has agreed to obtain estimates on the cost of installing warning lights on three level crossings in the Picton municipality, following fatal accidents with the CNR ore train within the past 18 months. The most recent accident, when Carl Simpson, who collided with the train two weeks ago, Reeve Bernard Hepburn, in calling the accident, said warning signals should be installed at railway crossings before someone else is killed. Mr. Hepburn said: "It's a crime that the federal government which controls the railroad, puts in the crossings but does not put on any protect the public." He said its all very well to keep an eye on costs which are rising, but what costs are at stake, the money might be well spent."

Council agrees to obtain estimates on the cost of installing warning lights on the crossings at Johnson street, and White Chapel. It is understood that the county would be expected to pay 10% percent of the cost of installation and 50% of the cost of upkeep for the signals if they were accepted.

100 Vegetable Growers Told Of History of Canning Business

NAPANEE — The return to Eastern Ontario as the major source of canned vegetables for Ontario is heralded by Canner Baxter prophesied. Mr. Baxter is the general manager of the Baxter Canning Co. of Bloomfield and president of the Ontario Food Processors' Association. He was speaking to the over 100 members and guests of the Lennox and Addington Vegetable Growers' Association at their annual banquet in the Memorial building Wednesday night.

Mr. Baxter outlined the history of the canning business in Ontario, beginning with the days when food was processed in many small independent factories. Beginning in the east, many of these small factories have disappeared, as they were purchased by the larger canning companies and then closed. At one time there were over 50 factories operating in Ontario and Prince Edward, Mr. Baxter said.

Now Western Ontario is known as "the garden of Ontario" especially for canning peas, but Mr. Baxter foresees a decline in the industry there, and its return to the east. This is attributed to the migration among them the growing value of land in Western Ontario, the fact that much of it is being taken over for industry and as a residential area, and the consequent increase in cost to the farmer who must compete with industry. In addition, farmers in that part of the province are turning to more profitable crops, such as grain, tobacco, and sugar beets.

YIELD IS HIGHER

"Today although the acreage devoted to canning crops is smaller than in the earlier days, the yield is higher because of better varieties and better farming methods." Mr. Baxter pointed out.

Mr. Baxter was introduced by Percy VanHack, past-chairman of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, and was thanked by William Elliot, president of the local association.

The banquet was prepared and served by the U.C.W. of Anderson Church, and local products were featured during the evening. The cheese was from Gilbert's factory, Tamworth; tomato juice from Metcalfe Foods in Deseronto, and the gift to the guests was a product from the Gibbard Furniture Shops in Napanee.

HEAD TABLE GUESTS

At the head table were: William Clalby, vice - president of the association; Lennox and Addington, Robert Burket, president of the Hastings association, and Mrs. Burket; Mr. and Mrs. Percy VanHack; Norris Whitney, M.L.A. for Prince Edward - Lennox and Mrs. Whitney; Mrs. Silks, local district director and Mrs. Silks; Donald Baxter and Mrs. Baxter; Mrs. Elizabeth Elliott, Gordon Plotz, warden of Lennox and Addington, and Mrs. Plotz; Mayor Lorne Smart and Mrs. Smart; A. Douglas Hall, M.P., and Mrs. Hall; Alex Alkenbrack; Roy Abrams, district president, and Mrs. Abrams; Frank Perry, of Lennox County, chairman of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, and Mrs. Perry, and Mrs. Elliott, immediate past - president of the Ontario Association and Mrs. Dick; and Gordon Dick, agricultural representative and secretary - treasurer of the local association.

Junior Farmers Alarmed About Poor Response

NAPANEE — The Junior Farmers are concerned because applications from owners of Century farms are not coming in fast enough. "All must be in by May 1, and no farm will be marked unless application has been made," president Wayne Parks said.

The hope is given only to those farms which have been in the family of the present owner-operator for 100 years or more. A nominal entry fee of $1 must accompany the application. The plaque which will be erected at the farms probably in October, cost much more than that.

Application forms were published in the local paper last week, or may be obtained at the Agricultural office. Each application must be investigated before it goes to Guelph, where arrangements for the unveiling ceremonies of the plaques will be made, provincial director Barton MacLean explained.

At their meeting Tuesday night the young people completed their plans for the Evergreen folk dances which they are presenting next week in Spring Flaw, the variety program sponsored by the Jaycees.

At a special meeting Wednesday evening, the Junior Farmers made final arrangements for canvassing North and South Fredericksburg and Ernestown for the Canadian Cancer Society campaign.

Rotary Club Hears Talk On Alcoholism

NAPANEE — "You cannot help an alcoholic until he decides to help himself," Mr. Ned Trafford told the Rotarians at their weekly luncheon meeting. Through medical help, such as shock treatments and the use of antabuse, "But medical help can only be found in hand with building up the patient's confidence in himself," he said. "The most essential is the patient must be taught new skills so that when he goes out into the world he can make a new life away from his former environment," he added. No matter how much help members can give, they cannot help them to stay back to the old life. The final step is to secure employment for them," he went on. "We can cure a lot of them, but not all." Mr. Trafford referred to Alcoholics Anonymous during his address, and had high praise for their work.

He also gave credit to the Rotarians for their support of the local hospital.

Mr. Trafford was introduced by Kenneth Christian and was thanked by Carmel Mills.

SECESSION THREATENS NIGERIAN EXISTENCE

Tribal loyalties run strongly in the politics of Nigeria, a giant among the emergent African countries but also one beset by regionalism and violent ethnic differences among its 55,000,000 people. Secession has been a constant threat in its 5½ years of independence.

More than half the population — Fulani and Hausa tribes — live in the north under powerful Moslem emirs of the Northern People's Congress, the dominant party in the governing coalitions since independence. The north comprises more than half Nigeria's territory. Southern political opponents have often accused its conservative northern leaders of feudal mentality.

The three southern regions — western, mid-west and east-ern — are moderate in political outlook and Christian or pagan in religion. They are inhabited mostly by aggressive Ibos in the east and politically-active Yorubas in the west.

While Nigeria has retained the multi-party system, parties are organized on an ethnic or tribal basis and tend to exercise rule in each of the regions, which have individual governments.

The first general election since independence ended in chaos in December, 1964. A new election in the following March brought a coalition in which the Northern group remains dominant. Because of tribal and regional touchiness, this may be the permanent pattern. But Nigerian politics can be expected to stay lively.

God's New Mathematics

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

As a person looks at the world today, he gets the impression that man's favorite line of arithmetic is division. Korea, Vietnam, Palestine, Germany were tragically divided nations. And the world itself is divided between the nations making up the free world and those in the iron-ing embrace of communism. Even the church is divided, and subdivided. Thousands of children face the tragedy of a family divided by divorce. Many people live the psychological problem of a divided personality. This is truly a divided world. (Text: S.S Moffatt)

Often divisions are brought about by man's craving for self-ish-ness of power. A man's house-splitter, moved by hate and revenge, and obsessed by thousands of youth who saw in his movement a chance to dominate the world, gathered the ar-mies of power, and plunged his nation into a war that led to its defeat and tragic division.

SIGN POINTS TO DIVISION

For 40 years, Solomon ruled over a united people. During his reign, the tribes of Israel were united into one nation. But even in his time, the unity achieved by his father was about to crack. He stirred up unrest by imposing power through conscription and increased labor, and encouraging false religion. As a director of his enterprises, he put people to these un-pleasant tasks, and encouraging false religion. As a director of his enterprises, he put people to these un-pleasant labor, but chose an able young man named Jeroboam, over whom Solomon set authority, sought power for himself, Solomon sought to kill him. Jeroboam escaped by fleeing to Egypt.

There were those who looked for Solomon's successor with new day. When Solomon died, and his son Rhoboam was crowned in the ancient royal capital of Shechem, those who had suffered under Solom on's oppressions went to see him and to plead for relief.

Rhoboam had the chance to profit from his father's mistakes. Had he listened to more mature advisors, he might have done so. But he listened instead to his hot-headed young friends who came to change the face of Rhoboam's authority and power. His little finger, they urged Rhoboam to tell the people would be heavier than his father's thigh. Instead of less taxation and reduced labor, he promised more, and sent Adoram, the man in charge of enforced labor, to enforce the order. The people rebelled and jailed his messenger. When Jeroboam returned from Egypt they welcomed him as the head of the state, and Rhoboam had to go to Jerusalem. He was dis-suaded from attacking Jeroboam and plunging people into a civil war, but the dam a-gainst was done. The nation was divided, Judah remaining true to Rhoboam, and Israel accepting Jeroboam as its king.

(Some modern philosopher has said that a man's worst difficulties begin when he is able to do what he pleases. This doesn't always be the case with the Bible says so often as it looks at life through the eyes of God's moral order. Speaking of King Uzziah, an ancient writer commented, "His fame spread far; for he was marvelously helped, till he was strong. But when he was strong he grew proud to his destruction." (II Chron. 26:15-16) And the author of Ecclesiastes gives a clear view of what goes on in this world whenever men have power over their fellows." (Eccl. 8:9 Moffatt) —

The Un iform Sunday School lesson for April 17 is "The Kingdom Divided." I Kings 11:1 through 3:34; II Chronicles 36.

Dr. Ralph Sockman comments that "in governmental affairs, the badge of authority often makes petty tyrants out of little people." And he goes on to say that "power is safe only when held in humble hands for the purpose of service." (The Interpreter's Bible, Abingdon Press) Rhoboam's tragic inheritance is a lesson early, he might have enjoyed a happy reign. But because he chose to use power and wealth turn him into a petty tyrant, he ended up ruling only half of a divided nation.

GOD'S NEW MATHEMATICS

God, says the New Testament, is not pleased with man's petty divisions and power plays. He sent and the craving for and misery of divided nations.

Of the great powers involved, however, Russia was —and still is—in the best position to make its influence felt directly.

GENEROUSLY TREATED

As part of Bucharest's campaign to strengthen national unity, Hungarians of late have been pushed into key positions in many branches of the government's service.

One-third of the members of high government councils are now Hungarians—a ratio of proportion to their actual numerical position in the country. One-third of the chief presidents of such powerful organizations as the writers' union are Hungarians.

In Transylvania itself, Hungarians have received a series of promotions in industry and the professions.

While taking every opportunity to em-phasize the equality and rights of Hungarians, the government has hinted that it would take a dim view of any noisy demonstrations of ethnic dissatisfaction.

Speaking last year Ceausescu said the government "does not admit nationalist-chauvinist propa-ganda, incitement to race hatred—which run utterly counter to the interests of the working people of our homeland."

In another statement last year Ceausescu claimed that "one of the great political victories of the socialist system" was the achievement of "fraternal friendship between the Romanian people and the co-habiting nationalities in our homeland."

END OF DISCONTENT

Reports from independent observers indicate that age-old animosities don't just melt away because a Communist regime is in power.

While relations between Hungarians and Romanians may be slightly improved in recent years, discontent still is apparent—most manifest among the Transylvanian minority, they suggest.

Foreign observers give the Romanian government full marks for being fair and even generous toward the Hungarians.

Under the constitution Hungarians have the free use of their own language and their own schools and may read Hungarian books, newspapers and magazines, as well as enjoy their own cultural theatre.

The Roman Catholic Church, to which most Hungarians belong, is permitted to operate without undue restrictions.

Many observers have noted a definite tendency on the part of Hungarians to interpret government measures bleding on the whole population as prejudicial to them alone. This would be an indication of their deep-rooted ethnic consciousness.

The Hungarians in Transylvania are among the proudest race in Europe, and among the most tenacious in clinging to their cultural ideals.

SEE SINISTER PLOT

Most belong to a group called Szeklers, said to be the purest ancient of all Magyars and to speak the purest Hungarian language. They are said to be direct descendants of the tribes of Attilla the Hun.

Given their background it would seem preposterous to think that they would easily let easily lose their ethnic identity.

On the Hungarian side of the border, there is a certain amount of popular disfavor directed at the present situation regarding Transylvania.

Some Hungarians complain that their separated kinsmen are discriminated against. Others fear that the long-term Romanian policy to erode and finally wipe out their ethnic identity.

Transylvania is an area rich in minerals, and is looked upon by Hungary as a big domestic source of raw materials for building up industry.

To add insult to injury, Bucharest has, in modern border say, Romania has intentionally refrained from developing Transylvania's rich mineral deposits in order to keep its Hungarian population a subject state economically.

Such charges seem clearly based on a emotional prejudice than reason. It is impossible to state how widely they reflect popular feeling in Hungary.

At any rate Hungarian government officials obligingly confirm what their counterparts in Bucharest say—that Transylvania is not an issue in official relations between the two countries. They also deny that Hungarians in Transylvania are discriminated against.

Tomorrow: Romania seeks closer cultural ties with West.

Dave's Hideaway

By

Dave Charles

Finally spring has sprung . . . Bong . . . Bong. I am looking forward to a warm and wonderful summer. This summer I plan to hold beach dances on East Lake at Cove Beach Park. This park is on a beautiful lake and this spot has a great dance hall for the Movers and Groovers . . . Along with "Sounds Incorp." we would like very much to bring top Canadian bands along to liven up the scene. If all of this is possible, you're in for a swing'n summer.

"Dee and Yeomen" are about the hottest group ever to appear in the Quinte district, other than "J. B. and the Playboys" and the "Big Town Boys." This trio of harmony, mod music and fab personalities has won the hearts of mod music makers in Belleville and Trenton. Their sound is unbelievably tight and their original songs are just as good as the ones now out by any name groups. The boys received a well earned break a few weeks ago.

The famed Beatle manager, Brian Epstine has picked the group up and signed them for a two month engagement playing various gigs in land of Liverpool. This could be the big break for the boys. The Hideaway will keep you posted on their progress. Another one of my very favorite groups, "J. B. and the Playboys" is ready to release their first "National release."

Watch for it on R.C.A. . . . They are currently playing in Cleveland at the Statler Hilton, no less. This is another group that has won the hearts of mods in the Quinte district and will wear success nicely. On March 30 another fab group, the "Big Town Boys," will stop in Belleville for a gig. This one is sponsored by B.O.T.C.H. The "Big Town Boys" will be going from one end of Canada to the other after their smash engagement in New York. Their hit single "Hey" is Number four on the new "008 Twin Twenty" for next week.

I hope that you will listen to "Action Set" this week. This delightful Canadian teen show from the CBC in Toronto is an hour worth listening to. It not only features Canadian music but expresses the news and views on the current teen scene. This program is on CJBQ Radio each Saturday at 1 p.m. I will be on "Action Set" this week with news from the Quinte district and my picks in music land.

B.O.T.C.H. is presently collecting funds to complete the coffee house before it's back to school time. This place looks like a real charmer and should be a real spot for shooting the gab after hours. Again the atmosphere will be ideal for informal chatter on things that matter to mods. A bar, with (soft drinks only please) will be in operation.

The "Easter Bunny Hop" was a big success. Both the "King - Bees" and "Secrets" put on a great show. I have finally realized that concerts in this area are out to lunch and that the good old every day run of the mill gigs are in. I thought maybe that variety is the spice of life for mods, but I guess I was wrong. No more concerts will be organized by Yours Truly in Belleville. However, Trenton is a different matter. The mods there appreciate something special such as a "mod concert," and support it. I have also realized the Belleville teens are spoiled and don't care less, or appreciate the effort in operating a big dance or organizing a concert. If you don't go, then I don't either. You're spoiled ! spoiled ! spoiled ! ! ! Your attitude at dances is rotten. When a band works out and sounds great they deserve a hand. All you do is sit there and look bored. Then groan. The groups that I have talked to are knocked out by the size of the crowd which attends dances, but remark about how unresponsive they are, and as a result wonder if they should come back. I think maybe mods should be within the Belleville area more for awhile and then realize what you're getting. You don't appreciate something until you don't have it. Maybe this is the answer . . . I don't like standing up on a stage and screaming until the end of the day for you to show your appreciation.

The high school radio clubs are no longer on the air until next season. I will miss their usual fine show on Saturday afternoon. CJBQ Radio will be starting their "On the Go" programing for the summer months ahead.

Wally West and myself are looking forward to meeting as many mods in the Quinte district as possible this summer. If your club or organization is planning on a special social occasion contact me at CJBQ and let us help you. Remember entertainment is my business and my business is a pleasure.

Gramma Quinte is causing quite a stir in the Quinte district. This lovable "Old Bat" has become a regular on the "At The Top" show. Her dire and spunk give people over 50 years of age new life and zip. Come alive Mom and Dad you're in the mod generation . . . "Batman" is still going strong on TV and to follow this new trend more comic book heroes are on their way for the new season. Batman . . . Superman . . . Wonderman . . . Man-Man . . . Crazy-Man . . . Will it ever end? When they bring back the Mickey House Club that's when I will trade my "tube" for my Monopoly game. Radio captures the imagination, and TV destroys it . . .

"Camp," is still the most "in" word to use . . . So you had better watch it in the summer when you go camping. They might think you're crazy.

Into my music cave we venture for another week . . . We find a great new sound for the "Hollies," singing and saying, "I Can't Let Go." The "Mindbenders" have found a "Groovey Kind of Love." Remember the "Undertakers" in Belleville last September? They have a spy in the sky record up and are coming on strong . . . "I Fell in Love for the Very First Time." My personal pick this week is by sassy "Sarah Vaughan," having back the not too old "Lovers Concerto." Too much, really.

"Big Pat Irving" has arrived on the "008 Twin Twenty" with the Ballad of Short Pat Irving . . . Robbie Lane has a new Canadian sound called "I'll Get By." Watch it go on Eighty-O Radio.

Professor Forms Youth Orchestra

By DON LABLANC

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)— Dozens of budding young musicians are being auditioned into a New Brunswick youth orchestra by one of the founding members of the Toronto Youth Orchestra of Wales.

Prof. Stanley Saunders, assistant professor of Mount Allison University's faculty of music in Sackville, N.B., was appointed conductor of the orchestra by New Brunswick Symphony Orchestra, Inc., late last year as it launched a plan to foster home-grown talent.

Going outside the province for musicians needed to fill special places has proven costly for the New Brunswick Symphony since its inception as Canada's first provincial orchestra in the fall of 1962. The new youth orchestra will provide a training ground for the symphony and is expected to increase the province's representation on the National Youth Orchestra of Canada.

Seventy - five enthusiasts between the ages of 14 and 24 gathered in neighboring Lancaster March 5 for the first rehearsal — regional rehearsals are held weekly in Moncton, Fredericton, and Saint John and the next group session is scheduled for April 2 in Lancaster.

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW

"It is encouraging," says Prof. Saunders, a native of Newport in Monmouthshire, who toured France and Switzerland in 1960 with the Franco-Gallois Symphony as soloist and assistant conductor. He says other provinces are watching New Brunswick's project with interest and some may follow with youth orchestras of their own.

Philip W. Oland, chairman of the executive committee for the New Brunswick Symphony, said the initial rehearsal went "extremely well."

A mainspring behind both the New Brunswick Symphony and its pet project, Mr. Oland is also a director of the National Youth Orchestra on which the New Brunswick orchestra is being patterned. He says the young instrumentalist displayed excellent co-ordination in playing together for the first time.

Expected to make its debut in October, the youth orchestra will eventually grow to about 100 members. But it will take several years, Prof. Saunders says.

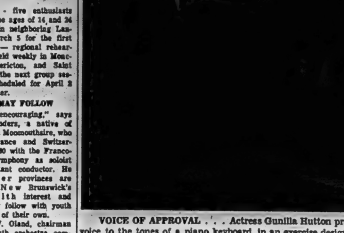
Youth in Revolt

By BRIAN YEALLAND (M.S.S.)

The youth of today are revolting. This statement can imply two ideas. Both need to be investigated.

Certainly youth is in revolt. But would adults be happy if they were not? Would people be happy to see their accept the fact that there will always be wars so forget about trying to avoid them. Accept that one of twenty marriages in Canada ends in divorce, accept old customs in a modern changing society.

Teenagers in revolt are trying to say something. Older people may be used to scandals in government, but young people are not because they have not been in the world long enough to find out what it is really like. Most are born with an infinite capacity for love, but his mind must be conditioned to accept fear, anger, and hate if he is to accept the world as it is today.



Many methods used by teenagers to escape from the realities of a repressing environment are bad. It is partly that adults have failed to show teenagers how and where to release their emotions constructively. The unfriendliness of school only adds to the dilemma.

Few students could refer to any of their teachers as friends. Youngsters searching for meaning are helped little by the curriculum of education. This is not the teachers' fault. Most of them would like there to be a more friendly and personal relationship between students and teachers, but the nature of formal education makes friendliness difficult. Compatibility between discipline and friendliness is hard to attain.

The advertising medium is geared to lead teenagers to want the wrong things, or to want the right things for the wrong reason or in a wrong way. Teenagers resort to wickedness without their little world. They know little and they seem to be content to satisfy the feelings they do know. Not all the blame should be placed upon the adults.

Teens realize that the world today is one of action and "go-go". But they want to know where and why. Just like "go-go" circles! Many teenagers feel that the world will destroy itself soon and will be remembered by eternity only as a dark, hateful shadow.

We should challenge those of you who are adults to teach your teenagers how to live. Give them grounds for clean, balanced living. Discuss their doubts with them and help them to have faith. Then prove what you say by setting an enviable example. Only then will you find that youth will stop revolting and stop being revolting.

Voice Vital To Beauty

By REBA AND BONNIE CHURCHILL

A vital part of any girl's beauty rating is her voice. A low, warm delivery — mellow rather than monotone - is the ideal. To determine your ideal speaking level, try matching your voice to the tones from a piano keyboard. Recent several sentencer aloud, practicing raising or lowering your voice to duplicate the scale. Once your range is discovered, select the tone a third below the middle pitch of the scale. Actress Gunilla Hutton, seen in the CBS - TV series, "Petticoat Junction," learned this level is usually the best and most restful, for everyday conversation.

To improve your personal communication, practice enunciating the vowels. Hollywood drama coaches interviewed stressed vowels should be pronounced in the larynx, while the consonants are formed in the mouth. Repeat: "Ah, A, E, O, OO," if possible, into a tape recorder. Groove the tongue behind the lower teeth and pronounce "Ah." Continue with "A," and notice how it seems to come from the throat. Say "E" with the teeth together; make "I" sound like "Ah" and "E" spoken, and pronounce "O" and "OO" initially in the back of the throat. Now, play back the drill, and let your carry - corder reveal the vocal improvement.

Breathiness is a sure giveaway that you're ill at ease. If you find your chest heaving and your breath exhausted before you end a sentence, reread the same paragraph, only place hands on rib cage and make the ribs contract and expand as you speak. This is known as "intercostal diaphragmatic breathing," which means breathing where the ribs are — the way you naturally breathe when you're asleep. Also, to add rhythm to your delivery, try reading to a metronome, quickening or slowing tempo as required.

DAWN

By PAUL HUNTER (M.S.S.)

Day - break;
Ripples in the pond
That newly roused fish make.

The Sun
Waking down upon
The Earth, now in action.

Faintly,
Seeing night is gone,
Birds warble dulcetly

And soon,
Alighting on the ground,
Reject the night's excesses

And feast;
While man looks all around,
And admires down the least.

HOME

By MICHELE COATES
(St. Michael's)

One fine day,
When you're old and gray
And your children have all left home,
You'll realize,
With a sparkle in your eyes,
That it's time for you the world to roam.

You'll pack your bags,
And the case that says,
Happy' till you're about to leave,
Then suddenly,
You happen to see,
A carpet you once did weave.

A picture of your daughter,
Marie,
Two years of age, up in a tree,
Come your eyes to spring forth a tear.
Just two well - loved things,
Sadness brings,
Because they seem so dear.

The tears in your warm blue eyes,
Spring forth again, as you realize,
That your home's too dear to leave behind,
And though you'd travel near and far,
'Neath blazing sun and shining star,
Not another house like yours
you'd find.

Hyprochondriac Entomologists ...And They Play Music Too

The. T-N-E.

THE is the name is a local rock and roll group. "Strictly mod. Quite."

The gentlemanly six are, Glenn "Hale" Haley, 15, grade 10, Trenton H.S., vocalist; Keith "Root" Holmes, 17, grade 11, Trenton H.S., bass guitar; Chris "Mouth" Haley, 17, grade 11, Trenton H.S., rhythm guitar; Wayne "Hair" Beeman, 20, manager; Paul "Bedlad" Carpenter, 15, grade 9, Quinte S.S., drums; and Dave "Dewey" Vidal, 15, grade 9, Trenton H.S.

Sort of scamp name. But then, it's a camp group.

They got together by accident — wouldn't you know it — over three months ago. They al have much experience in various bands in the area and one Saturday afternoon they just got together and started playing.

"We thought we sounded pretty good," said Paul Carpenter. "But right two bands were scheduled to play at a dance and one didn't show up, so we fitted in".

"Quite." Ah agreed.

"Tricky." All chorused.

THE is a significant name. "T" stands simply for: The; "H" for hypochondriac, and "E" stands for entomologists. What else?

THE is a wild assortment of fellows dressed in loose-fitting tats, one with top hats, one with a hobby hat and another with a Captain Kidd hat.

FOLITE GROUP

They tip their hats to the ladies and form an avenue, three on each side, for them to walk through.

"We're a gentleman band," "Quite."

The group practices every night, during the week and at least bce day on the weekends. They've played for dances at the Teen Club 106 in Trenton, at the SRD Recreation Centre and last week they played for a dance at Quinte Secondary School.

They plan to cit a record on the Capital label, called "Hearts on Fire." The flip side is "About You." Glenn Haley wrote both songs.

Any problems?

"I'm expecting to get the axe any day now at Quinte," Paul Carpenter said.

"We've been asked to get our haircut by Principal Hugh Scholl of Belleville," Glenn Haley said. "Mr. Ellis told us to."

"He's a good guy," someone offered.

"Needs his pants tapered though."

"Tricky."

THE compose many of their own arrangements. They want to promote Canadian music and bring it on par with British and U.S. groups.

As they walk down the street in They say people stare at them their working clothes.

"Many people driving by beep their car horns."

A group of small children, playing in the street, saw THE coming down the street.

"There's the Beatles! There's the Beatles!" they hollered.

Negative.

IT'S FOR REAL . . . It's THE, a real rock and roll group of gentlemen who play strictly British Rock . . . quite. From left, Glenn Haley, vocalist, Keith Holmes, bass guitar, Chris Haley, rhythm guitar, Wayne Beaman, manager, Paul Carpenter, drums, and Dave Vidal, lead guitar.

MOUNTAIN HUTS WOULD ENCOURAGE HIKERS—High-altitude lodges in Canada's mountain parks would encourage more people to visit them say Elfride and Hans Grillmair who have a guiding business in Calgary. A system of public huts or lodges has been rejected by the department of northern affairs. (CP Photo)

Urges Government Build Huts In Rockies Parks for Hikers

By DAN POWERS

CALGARY (CP)—The wife of an Austrian mountaineer says the federal government should build high - altitude lodges and huts in Canada's mountain parks for hikers.

"North American people are an automobile people and these facilities might succeed in bringing them closer to nature," says Elfriede Grillmair, 34, whose husband Leo is a partner with Alpine guide Hans Gmoser of Calgary in Rocky Mountain Guides Ltd.

There are only about 12 high altitude lodges or huts in Banff, Jasper and Yoho national parks in the Rockies but since most of them belong to the private Alpine Club of Canada, the summer hiker or winter skier would find them "blocked and barred" to him, Mrs. Grillmair says.

A mountaineer, author and sportswoman, the mother of three says the northern affairs department was approached with a suggestion for a system of public lodges and huts but said the idea wasn't worthwhile.

"When people are up in the mountains and it's raining and the hut is locked and they can't get in, it's silly. There are beautiful networks of trails in some areas but no shelter at the top of the trails."

WOULD SLEEP 20

Mrs. Grillmair suggests that the northern affairs department could take a lesson from her native Austria by leasing small lodges and huts to hut-keepers — elderly couples or students—who would operate the lodgings, collect fees for accommodation, and serve simple meals, or just soup and tea.

A typical lodge would have sleeping and dining accommodation for 20 persons. It would have a kitchen and dining room on one floor and dormitory space on a floor above. Fees would be $1 for each adult and 50 cents for children.

These lodges, as well as smaller huts for skiers and mountain climbers, would not disturb the wilderness concept that the department so strongly advocates for the national parks, she says, adding that more well-marked footpaths and trails would also cause little harm to the natural beauty of the mountains.

Signs and pamphlets would instruct the hiker on what areas he could safely venture into, according to his mountaineering experience.

"Some people in the Alpine Club don't want the Rockies to become over-used as they say the Alps have been, but there is so much virgin country here, they couldn't crowd those mountains."

The government has already done a good job with roads and campgrounds in the valleys, but now must go up into the mountains themselves to complete this work, says Mrs. Grillmair. The Canadian mountaineering clubs could make this their responsibility and the concept could be made a part of the national fitness program.

CRITICIZES OTTAWA

Government bullheadedness, she says, was illustrated in one incident when Gmoser asked the department if he could build a ski lodge with dormitory accommodation at one site but was told this was "against the wilderness concept."

Later, Gmoser found the government was planning to move some "old barracks" to the site instead. "Now, how does this fit into the wilderness concept?"

Gmoser, a native of Linz, Austria, came to Canada in 1951, "saw the mountains were so beautiful and unused and stopped work as an electrician to become a professional guide."

In 1956-57 he started producing mountain climbing and skiing films—now shown all over North America — and later, when he wanted to promote mountaineering in Canada, formed Rocky Mountain Guides Ltd.

The company conducts ski tours, by helicopter as well as by conventional methods, and holds mountain climbing seminars.

Leo Grillmair, also a native of Linz and a long-time friend of Gmoser, had helped Gmoser with the company "for many years" whenever he could get away from his job as a plumber, but in October, 1965, bought into the firm and became a full partner.

Elfriede, a geology graduate of the University of Alberta, is the author of A Girl Sees Europe, a paperback account of her seven - month tour of Europe on a motor bicycle, printed by an Austrian publisher.

Manager of United Appeal Retires, Tendered Luncheon

Executive members of the Belleville United Appeal paid tribute to A. L. "Les" Gnaedinger today with a luncheon at the Belleville club.

Mr. Gnaedinger is retiring from his position as executive manager of the United Appeal, effective today. He has held that position since 1961.

He will remain active in United Appeal work as a director.

Mr. Gnaedinger and his wife came to Belleville from Toronto in 1956 and bought a 30-acre farm at Melrose.

"I like rural life," he said. "I'm fond of the open air. I was born in the country near Montreal and I'll probably die in the country."

He was active in church work in Toronto and is a member of St. Thomas' Church. He was a Rector's Warden in Toronto and at one time was a Rural Dean.

He was here he first got interested in campaign work.

"I worked on various church campaigns and developed a keen interest in it.

"It takes a lot of planning and organizing, I like that."

Mr. Gnaedinger said he expressed interest in United Appeal work as soon as he moved into the area. "It was strictly volunteer at that time and the executive found it was becoming too much of a chore. They decided they needed a full-time staff man and I was subsequently hired.

JUST PART OF LIVING

"You know," Les said in his usual matter-of-fact way, "one of the basic commandments in our church is 'Love Thy Neighbor.' To me that's the duty of our civilization.

"Helping humanity is part of my everyday living. It should be everyone's concern.

"In the early days, welfare work was given people by their neighbors when it was needed. Then with community development, the neighborly assistance program was outgrown.

"Individuals began to become specialized in certain phases of assistance. Soon they needed public support for their work and started to hold campaigns. Thus, there was a multiplicity of campaigns.

"The united approach then developed in an attempt to cut down the multiplicity of appeals. Because it was so successful, it immediately caught fire and spread all over the continent.

"A community, to be progressive and keep pace with the development of our society today, has to give a lot of thought to unification of its various enterprises, particularly in the fields of health, welfare and recreation. These are all important phases of community life."

Les Gnaedinger leaves behind him an amazing record of successful leadership. In 1961, his first year as executive manager, the Belleville United Appeal collected $87,000. In five years the total was almost doubled to $168,200 in 1965.

He thinks the future looks even brighter, largely because of the development of the Belleville Social Services Planning Council or, if you will, the United Community Services.

WORK STREAMLINED

"The united community services idea is a big thing today because the average citizen is faced with increased costs of living yet still asked to help with the various community services.

"A united effort streamlines the work and the community benefits because of it. Thus Mr. Citizen receives full value for the dollar he spends in that respect.

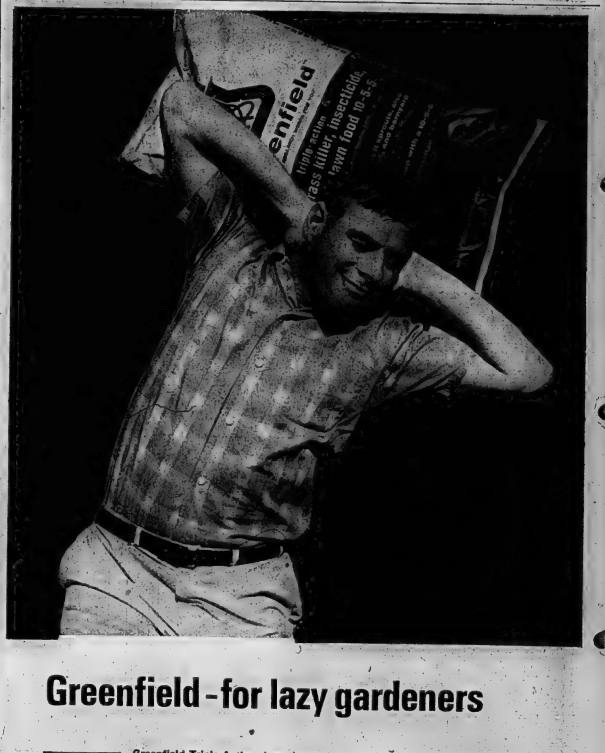
"A community which meets its responsibilities in the social service field has a great deal more to offer prospective industries. After all, industry takes all things into account when assessing the advantages of a community and the social services rate high on that assessment list."

Mr. Gnaedinger said he has noticed a lot of skepticism and doubt about the purpose of United Appeal. "Many people think it is just a game played by a select few in the city. No matter how often you told people it was benefiting them by cutting down the multiplicity of appeals, they still wouldn't listen.

THINKING CHANGES

"In recent years this has changed. People are beginning to realize the United Appeal is working for the whole community.

"Younger blood coming into the United Appeal has been greatly responsible for its recent success. This broadens the interest out and gets more areas of the city represented."



Mr. Gnaedinger also praised Mayor Jack Ellis and city council for the interest shown in the success of the United Appeal and the formation of the Social Services Planning Council. "It's been most gratifying. In any united fund it is most essential to have the backing of civic administration. In the last few years we have had this and it has helped considerably."

Battles All Even But Habs Win War

The Intelligencer
FRIDAY, APRIL 15, 1966

By BOB TREBERT

TORONTO (CP) — Montreal Canadiens won the war Thursday night in Maple Leaf Gardens.

What the defending Stanley Cup champions gave way to Toronto in over-all muscle they made up in speed and agility.

The result was a 4-1 victory for the Habs that sidelined the Maple Leafs in straight games in the best-of-seven semi-final.

Canadiens hurried home after the game and have at least a week to prepare for the final against either Detroit or Chicago, now tied 3-3 in their semi-final.

The game lasted three hours, one of the longest non-overtime games in Cup history, and in the process established eight Cup records for penalties and tied another.

WAGE WILD BATTLE

The focal point of the extended action was a wild donnybrook at 2:37 of the opening period involving seven Montrealers and six Leafs. It took almost half an hour to restore peace.

All the scoring involved penalties—Canadiens scoring three power play goals and getting one while shorthanded and Toronto its counter with both clubs short.

Gilles Tremblay, Bobby Rousseau, Yvan Cournoyer and Dick Duff, four of Montreal's mighty shiver, along with rugged Jim Roberts, looked after the offence. Tremblay scored two power play goals and Duff another while Roberts scored with his first Stanley Cup goal in 31 playoff games—counted for Toronto, a goal that gave Leafs an early 1-0 margin.

Cournoyer and Rousseau helped set up Tremblay for his goals.

These were the records shattered in the game:

1. Most Penalties, one team, one period, — 12 to Montreal, breaking a mark of eight established by Boston Bruins in 1927 and tied five times since, on three occasions by Toronto and twice by Montreal.

2. Most penalty minutes, both teams, one period—26 against Montreal, breaking a mark of 24 set by Boston in 1954. Toronto also broke the old mark with 24 minutes.

3. Most penalties, both teams, one period—20, breaking a record of 18 set by Boston and Toronto in 1954.

SPORT SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Whenever and wherever two or more are gathered together in the name of sport, the worn-thin arguments crop up as to whether the champions of old are better than the present day crop. The belief is no one can supply the answers.

Could Dempsey beat Louis? Was Ty Cobb a better base pilferer than Maury Wills? Is Roger Maris a bigger and better home-run slugger than Babe Ruth? Were famous 1927 Giants a better club than any of the vaunted Yankee pennant and series champions. And so on into the night.

One of the saner-thinking sportsmen I met at a ball-session a short while ago said the big difference between modern sport and that of yesteryear is the current edition is beginning to price itself out of existence.

"Johnny Nmmth signs for $400,000 and comes up with a bad knee. Dan Anderson another grid rah-rah boy turns down $500,000. Koufax and Drysdale hold out for a million for three years. Golf is going nuts with new tournaments coming up and older ones raising the ante to the hundreds of thousands."

"Speaking of golf" he said, "I doubt that within ten or fifteen years there will be such a thing as the 'tournament trail'. Nothing but old age can tear the current links heroes away from the golden road and the younger fellows can't stand the financial pace unless they grab some tournament money or a wealthy sponsor."

"Boxing is my sport" said another, "and what do I see. Such clowns as Clay, Terrell and Chuvalo and I should be watching types like Dempsey, Louis and Marciano."

"Clay claims he's so handsome he cannot be hurt. Andy Bowyen and Jack Burke fought 110 rounds in New Orleans and the referee called it no contest."

The baseball guy, of the session said "It's treason to mention Babe Ruth's name with those of Ruth and Ty Cobb. Cy Young pitched 900 games and never knew what a bone splinter was. Grover Cleveland Alexander drank his much but he pitched 16 shutouts in one season. Who is this guy Bo Belinski, a night-club outfielder?

"The Yankees rave about the popularity of bowling in their country claiming some seven million trundle the lanes. The biggest bowling centre in the world is in Japan, 130 lanes."

The cockerel-crowing, guitar-twanging, nothing upstairs so-called heavyweights of today cannot be compared to the like of Henry Armstrong who were three world titles at one time; or Sugar Ray Robinson who lost and won the middleweight crown five times, said another.

Bobby Hull holds the National Hockey League record of 39 goals in 65 games. But Joe Malone scored 44 goals in 22 games.

In argumentative mood another bull-sessions member said he believed that while Bobby Jones, Francis Ouimet and Gene Sarazen were greats in the realm of golf, the present-day Palmers, Nicklaus and Player could top them at their best.

"And speaking of golf", he added, "the lowest score ever carded was a 55 by A. E. Smith of England. He had four deuces, a hole-in-one and did the back nine in 26 strokes. The date was January 1st, 1936."

Looking over the records, said a grey-thatched old-timer, "I see where the longest football field goal is 65 yards done by James Hazall in 1953. The longest run from scrimmage in a college game started behind the goal-line by Willie Terry of Yale in 1924. He ran 115 yards.

And British race-horse owners, bowing to the American boast of breeding the "speediest and fastest" thoroughbreds, can take consolation in the fact that back in 1879 an unknown horse caller "Champion Crebold" ran in Europe in 1926 and covered 200 miles in 53 hours, 23 minutes carrying 246 pounds. The cream of American and Canadian thoroughbreds today would have dropped dead after the third mile.

Hawks Win Novice Crown By One Shot

A two - one shots on goal margin in overtime decided the B.M.H.A. novice "A" championship last night.

Hawks won the title on the shots-on-goal system after playing to a 3-3 deadlock with the Bellewood Barons.

All B.M.H.A. titles have now been decided and the annual "Awards Night" is scheduled from 6.00 to 8.00 tonight.

Pat Calnan and Dean MacCormack scored the Hawks' goals with Kevin McKeown and Donald Thompson gaining assists.

Paul Prudhomme and David Powell triggered the Barons' goals, unassisted.

Earl Rivers is the Hawk coach and Larry Hodge is the assistant coach.

"May Be Last . . ." Kelly

TORONTO (CP) — Leonard (Red) Kelly said Thursday night he may have played his last game in the National Hockey League.

In the dressing room after his Toronto Maple Leafs had dropped their fourth straight Stanley Cup semi-final decision to Montreal Canadiens, 4 to 1, classy right winger said:

"I think that may have been my last game. It's not because of how I feel now . . . I've been thinking about it for some time."

He has played 1,407 NHL games, a record 128 of them in 14 playoffs over 18 of the 19 seasons he's been in the league. Should he retire it would leave Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings the playoff veteran of the circuit.

Howe, a former team-mate of Kelly's when he was with the Wings, now is playing in his 18th playoff over a 20 - year span. Thursday night was his 162nd playoff game.

Kelly missed only the 1950 season while Howe missed the playoffs in 1959 and 1952.

Kelly said he had in mind converting next year's NHL expansion to some personal profit, adding he hoped to remain in hockey—perhaps in a coaching capacity.

Delvecchio Goofs, Pops Up As Hero

Sets Up Three

By STERLING TAYLOR

DETROIT (CP) — Although Alex Delvecchio committed an error that could have cost Detroit Red Wings the fourth game of the Stanley Cup hockey semi-finals Thursday night, he came through as one of the game's heroes.

Delvecchio missed the open net with the game less than three minutes old but set up two goals as the Red Wings defeated Chicago Black Hawks 5-1 and tied the best-of-seven series at 2-2.

The Wings strategy to date has been to come out of the gate fast, force the Hawks into their own end and score early. Thursday night's game was no exception as they scored before the four minute mark of each period.

In the first period, Detroit drove Chicago into their own end, swarmed the goal and after missing several near chances, got the puck to Delvecchio.

The Detroit forward, alone 10 feet in front of the net with Chicago goalminder Glen Hall no where near the goal, shot almost straight up, over the net into the end seats.

That was the story of the Red Wings for two periods.

WINGS BOOST LEAD

Although they kept the puck almost consistently in the Chicago end, the Wings only led 2-1 after 40 minutes of play until Delvecchio set up the three third period goals.

Paul Henderson's success story of the night was almost identical. He also missed a good scoring opportunity during the first two minutes but got the first goal at 3:15 and scored the winner in the second period.

Veteran Andy Bathgate with his third goal of the series, Gordie Howe with his second, and Bryan Watson with his second, were the Detroit marksmen.

Conire Stan Mikita scored the only Chicago goal on a 40-foot shot that Detroit goaltender Roger Crozier attempted to knock down with his stick but misjudged.

The Red Wings have out-scored the Hawks 16-8 in the four games.

"I hope we break out soon, before it's too late. . . . At least I would like to think we are going to break into a scoring spree," Bobby Hull said after the game.

Chicago coach Billy Reay had nothing to say about the defeat.

VASKO, HORNUNG REJOINING

Defencemen Elmer Vasko and forward Doug Mohns were expected to be in the lineup for Sunday's fifth game in Chicago. The veteran Hawks were injured in the third games here Tuesday.

ALEX DELVECCHIO

Watson was another Detroit hero. The 170 - pound former Montreal Canadien and Black Hawk who has been shadowing Bobby Hull during the last three games, has scored two goals during that time while limiting Hull to no less assist. Hull scored his only goal of the series in Chicago's 2-1 first-game win.

The Red Wings, who scored only six power play goals against the Hawks in their regular 14 season meetings this year, scored three Thursday night, giving them a total of eight in the four playoff games.

Hall kept the Hawks in the game during the first two periods, stopping 20 shots. The Hawks were outshot 32-21 by the high-flying Wings.

Henderson, 22, playing his third season with Detroit, beat Hall with a knee-high drive while Chicago's Eric Nesterenko was sitting out a tripping penalty.

MIKITA TIES GAME

Mikita tied the game less than five minutes later with another power play goal while the Red Wings were two men short and the Hawks one.

The Wings took a 2-1 lead on Henderson's second goal at 3:39 of the second period.

He was on Hall's right side when he caught a pass and the Chicago netminder appeared to have the angle cut off, but the puck struck the goalie and drifted over the goal line.

Bathgate followed suit, shooting the Wings into a 3-1 lead at 1:06 of the third period, and 49 seconds later Watson put it out of the Hawks reach by beating Hall cleanly after taking a pass from Delvecchio.

Sunday's fifth game will be broadcast by the CBC national radio network and telecast by the CBC's national network. The game will also be telecast in color by the NBC national network, beginning at the 2:30 p.m.-EST starting time.

The sixth game of the series is scheduled for here Tuesday with the seventh, if necessary, set for Chicago next Thursday.

Commissioner Disapproves

Baseball To Appeal Court Edict

MILWAUKEE (AP) — One battle over, baseball is apparently moving toward an appeals court clash with Wisconsin in its continuing legal tug-of-war over the Braves.

Wisconsin not only expects another fight but says it will help get the case priority slots before the State Supreme Court "to take up the case right away," Attorney-General Bronson La Follette said Thursday.

"We have a state statute that gives priority to cases like this. Any move we would be extremely fortunate if we had a Supreme Court decision by the end of May."

Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller Wednesday found baseball in violation of Wisconsin anti-trust law for allowing the transfer of the Braves to Atlanta and issued an injunction against selling Milwaukee with a replacement team.

Baseball entered the National League to agree by May 15 to add an expansion team in Milwaukee this season, the judge said.

Warren Giles, league president, and William Bartholomay, Braves' board chairman, both said Thursday that baseball would immediately appeal the decision.

Baseball commissioner William D. Eckerts has voiced disapproval with the ruling but has made no plans of action.

HAVE 20 DAYS

La Follette said any appeal must be made no later than 20 days after the judgment.

Rollins Drop Peewee Game To Ottawa

Belleville 'Rollins' comeback bid fell a goal short as they dropped a 5-4 decision to Ottawa in the peewee section of the North Bay "Little NHL" tournament yesterday.

The loss drops Rollins into the "B" division. They were to meet St. Catharines at 10:30 today and should they win, will play again tonight at 9:45.

Ottawa jumped ahead of Belleville 4-0 in the first five minutes of the game. Rollins fought back and got within a single goal, pulling their game for an extra attacker in the dying seconds, but without success.

Rick Meagher sparked Belleville's attack with a brace of goals and one assist. David Smith and Denny Lupenette were the other marksmen. Jim Richardson and Dennis Cone had single assists.

Top Sports Broadcaster

TORONTO (CP) — Rene Lecuyer of Montreal, French broadcaster on the CBC French radio and television networks, Thursday became first winner of the Foster Hewitt Award for excellence in sports broadcasting.

Hewitt, who in 1923 was the first man to broadcast a hockey game and has since broadcast more than 2,500 NHL games, presented the award.

Riteways Still Winning At Brampton

Belleville Riteways advanced into the semi-final round of the annual Brampton Novice tournament last night without scoring.

The Riteways tied Oak 0-0 but won the two - game series by virtue of their 3-0 victory earlier in the day.

Belleville meet Dunbar Oak Ridges or Georgetown today. The first game was slated for 1:30 p.m. and the second at 6:30 p.m. tonight. Oak Ridges had won the first game of their series with Georgetown 6-0.

Should Riteways win today's round, they will play a sudden-death game against another "B" opponent Saturday morning, with the winner of that continuing on against other classification winners.

Finals Today In Trenton Tournament

TRENTON (Staff) — Toronto Marlboros and Kingston yesterday advanced to the Group final of the Lions Ad-Star Midget Tournament at the Community Gardens here and in the B Group, Ottawa National and Oshawa made it.

Marlboros got a stiff battle from a stubborn Trenton Lions team before reaching the semi-final. The Trenton squad urged on by the largest crowd of the five-day tournament, gave Several Marlies an argument before losing 4-3. In the two previous starts, the Toronto team recorded shutout wins, blanking Ottawa Nationals, 7-0 and Kingston, 3-0. Last night, Marlies crushed Brampton Legion 9-1 to make the final.

In their game with Trenton, Marlies led 1-0 after one period and took a commanding 4-0 lead on three rapid-fire goals early in the second period before the home team bounced back with a pair to make it 4-2 heading for the third. Each team scored twice in the third period.

Those three fast second period counters were within the space of one minute and 46 seconds, instead of folding after that outburst, Trenton battled back gamely.

Carlo Upsidal had two goals for Marlies. The others went to Brent Swanick, Keith Carrigan and Harry Sema.

Lions were sparked by Neil Waunemaker's two-goal effort. Pete Walking counted Trenton's first goal, Waunemaker and Terconic team's shutout string.

Kingston tripped Overbrook Rockets 3-2 to earn the right to play for the A title. In the B semi-finals, Oshawa downed Toronto Del Rocca, 7-3 and Ottawa Nationals trimmed Ottawa Minto, 7-1.

The Kingston-Marlboro A final was played this morning. Oshawa and Ottawa Nationals play for the B title that afternoon at 1 o'clock. The winners meet in the grand - championship game tonight at 7 o'clock.

Carleton Aids Tulsa To Finals

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Wayne Carleton, a junior called up at the end of the season, scored three goals to propel Tulsa Oilers past Minnesota Rangers 5-2 in the seventh and deciding game of their semi-final series in the Central professional Hockey League.

Tulsa now meets Oklahoma City in the best-of-seven series for the league championship.

Carleton joined Tulsa after Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series were eliminated from the junior playoffs by Kitchener Rangers.

Ter-Haars Force 7th Game

A pair of goals in the dying minutes decided another Ontario Hockey League clash — hanger last night.

Ter - Haar Dairybees got their victory, 3-2 over SACO, to force a seventh and deciding game for the championship.

The big game has been scheduled for 7.30 Saturday night. Each club has two victories and two other games have ended in overtime ties. Saturday's game will be played to a finish.

It was an uphill battle for the Dairybees all night.

SACO opened the scoring on a goal by Doug Hallam from Gary Dorrington and Don Forsythe at 12.15 of the first.

Jim Muir tied it at 19.56 of the period on a play with Jack Dorrington and the clubs battled through a scoreless middle session.

It was Hallam again for SACO at 13.03 of the third. Forsythe also assisted on this one.

SACO held a 3-1 lead until 15.50 when Jack Calnan connected. Mr. Uncle's pass to tie it for Ter - Haar.

Lucian Hamelin was Ter - Haar's hero, netting the winner at 18.17 to prevent overtime. Calnan and Frank Cris assisted on the goal.

With the importance of the game, both clubs steered away from penalties. There was only one minor over the route, that SACO picked at 2.45 of the opening heat.

The largest crowd of the season is expected for tomorrow night's final game.

ord of 18 set two-years ago by the same clubs in a wild game at Montreal.

5. Most penalty minutes, both clubs, one game—154, easily surpassing a mark of 102 set by Toronto and Detroit in 1952.

6. Most penalty minutes, one team, one game—30 to Toronto, breaking a mark of 25 set by Montreal in 1956. Canadiens also broke this mark with 24 minutes in penalties in the game.

7. Most penalties, one team, one game—19 against Toronto, breaking a mark of 18 set by Boston in 1927.

8. Most penalties, both teams, one game—35, breaking a mark of 31 set by the same clubs in 1952.

EQUAL SHORE'S MARK

Ted Harris and Claude Laforce of Montreal equalled an individual record set by Eddie Shore, the old Boston great in 1927, by each getting four penalties in one period. John Ferguson, the hard-rock Montreal belter, just missed another when he got six penalties in the game. The record is seven, also set by Shore in 1927.

The battle royal that refereed Art Skov and linesmen Neil Armstrong and Brian Sopp all they could handle. Two main bouts saw Harris tangle with Orland Kurtenbach, Ferguson mix it with Pete Stemkowski and Larose clash with Eddie Shack.

A looping left by Harris flattened Kurtenbach after the powerful Leaf winger had much the best of the tugging and mauling.

Late in the game Ferguson collided with Bobby Baun, the solid Toronto defenceman, and managed to lift home with three lightning rights. Baun's roundhouse reply didn't reach Ferguson but dropped to Montreal on the bench who had leaned over the boards for a closer look.

The first-period battles resulted in 30 minutes in penalties being handed out. Referee Skov was fast enough to surprise the previous-game mark. Harris, Ferguson, Larose, Ferguson, Shack, Kurtenbach and Stemkowski all drew minutes in penalties. Other majors for their part in the big, great brawl of the game. Larose and Harris also spent time in a minor each.

The pig conducts cost a playoff-game suspension for Boston league president Clarence Campbell may add to at this writing. Campbell has called for the suspension of Ted Green and several players who left the bench to join the fray.

Hillman's opening goal came on a 25-foot slapshot from the left-wing circle after he was first set up by Baun and Dave Keon with both clubs reduced to four players each.

It stood up until Tremblay fired home a neat pass from Gosselin make-way through the second and four minutes later added his second power play goal from inside the crease as he moyer kicked the puck to him from behind the net.

Roberts from the Toronto sprint when he broke away from a Toronto power play early in the third and beat Gilles Bower from 10 feet out. Duff completed the scoring, tipping Jean Beliveau's shot from the corner into the goal.

GEESE COST MUCH

Federal and state authorities in Hawaii have spent more than $60,000 over five years to keep a flock of 186 nene geese from dying out.

Sail Program Under Way To Good Start

Fifteen persons turned out last night for registration and the first lesson in the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's Adult Sailing Program.

Instructress Shawn Doyle, who will be taking the next lesson on Basic Sailing, began by outlining the various parts of the common centreboard sailboat and explained the role played in the function of the craft.

Fleet Captain Ben Guyer, under whose guidance the Adult Sailing Lessons are held, expressed satisfaction at the first turnout.

"There's still room for more adults in the course this year. We expect a further enrollment at our next lesson next Thursday night at 8.

"The 10 lesson series is only part of the course. By June, we hope to have the Club's sail boats in the water, and then those taking part will be able to sail them.

"I feel it's a great chance for those interested to get a more formal start at sailing, in this way."

The lessons will be given every Thursday night at 8 at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club in Victoria Park. Those who missed the first session, are invited to come down and register next week.

Barbara Walters Receives Accolades for Her Dresses

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's effect is one area it has been almost imperceptible — fashion.

A few women stars in other seasons including Dinah Shore, Arlene Francis and Loretta Young, build a reputation around their high-style gowns.

Miss Young, in fact, is involved in a law suit in which she alleges she was injured because syndicators of her old dramatic series failed to delete those opening shots showing her whirling out of the door-in outmoded gowns of several years back.

Dinah, also, was wearing gossamer Paris creations at a time when few families had color sets. And color, let's face it makes a lot of difference.

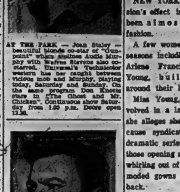
Barbara Walters, who most mornings shares the entertainment and informational chores of NBC's Today Show is one of this reporter's list of best-dressed women. She has one of the most difficult television wardrobe problems — to dress appropriately for a show seen at a time when most of the audience is in dressing gowns and slippers.

LIKES BASIC BLACK

"At first I was particularly fond of the Empire look," she said. "By just changing costume jewelry or adding something else, you can get a number of changes. When we went to color last September, I didn't make much difference to the men because they dress in basic colors anyway. But it was a big problem for me. Audiences are fantastically observant to what's in the first place. In the second, you want variety but you don't want people to look at your clothes instead of the program."

That was when Barbara, a good shopper, first resorted to the usual practice of wearing model clothes borrowed from designers who will give a credit line at the end of the show.

At the moment it is not the variety of clothes that is a worry. It is the over-the-knee length of them.



"These terrible short skirts," she complained. "I am always behind a desk, it's all right. But it is not all right if you move away to do a close-up for an interview. I wear full skirts on those occasions and of course I know you want me to wear what's in camera."

Her worst clothing experience came from an effort to dress simply.

"It was my own dress—a cute yellow dotted Swiss with spaghetti straps," she recalled. "It was warm so with a fur and I thought it was just right, until I started getting mail criticizing me for appearing in public in my slip."

Trappers Ready For Generals

OSHAWA (CP)—A reinforced North Bay Trapper lineup will spot four players tonight as the Oshawa Generals tonight in a bid to win the Ontario Hockey Association junior championship and avenge a 17-year-old loss.

It was in 1939 that the two teams met last for the Ontario title.

The Trappers of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association series lost in two overtime games.

This year, coach Wally Hergesheimer, who has won two NOHA titles in his four years with the team, has gone to other teams and reshuffled his own lines in preparation for the best-of-seven series.

He picked up Ike Piche of Ex Canadiens Bryan Berger, Wilson and Mike Buba of Sudbury Wolves and Jim Fuller, Bob Smith, Bob Tombard and Matt Thorp of Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

The Trappers line of Marty Reynolds, Randy Prior and Len Burrows will be unchanged for the first time since the NOHA playoffs.

Reynolds was the league's leading scorer with 51 goals and 47 assists. Prior had 44 goals and 38 assists.

On another line centre Ron Ringler will work with Roger Marker and Buba. The third line will consist of Bob Cole, Greg Lewis and Sean Leahy and the fourth will combine Tombard, Fuller and Piche.

States Tap Rich Lode

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Twenty-eight states were paid more than $200,000 in state taxes related to horse racing in 1959, an increase of nearly six per cent from the previous year, figures released Thursday showed.

The National Association of State Racing Commissioners said the bulk of the state revenue came in New York, where $140,460,000 was paid by thoroughbred and harness racing interests.

California was a distant second with $47,500,000 with Illinois third at $30,500,000 and New Jersey fourth at $28,800,000.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Dell Hunter, a brown pacing mare, won the Scarlet Race at Greenwood Raceway Thursday night when she completed the mile pace in 2:09 3-5.

Dell Hunter, owned by Bob and Marg Livesay of Woodstock, paid $6.60, $4.80 and $3.40.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Easter Guy, owned by Peter Calamoni Farms, Ripedale, Ohio, won the $1,500 featured pace at Batavia Downs Thursday night.

Twins Sweep Three

Yankees Fail To Hold Those Tigers

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tony Oliva, who was batting championships in each of his first two American League seasons swinging from the bunk, has both to work with now so it figures he'll do twice the damage.

Oliva, 24, walloped his second homer in as many days Thursday as Minnesota's Twins completed a three-game sweep of Kansas City Athletics with a 4-3 victory.

His homer gave the Cuban outfielder four hits and five runs batted in for his first 10 at bats this season.

Oliva underwent surgery at the Mayo Clinic last fall to remove bone chips from the middle finger of his right hand. The chips had prevented him from gripping the bat tightly last year and caused him to lose control of it many times.

In the only other American League game played Thursday, California Angels shaded Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers swept a doubleheader from New York Yankees 3-2 and 8-2.

HURLS SIX-HITTER

Jim Kaat hurled a six-hitter for Minnesota and got all the batting help from Jim Merritt, who came on with two out, and pinch runner Jim Campanis on first base. Merritt promptly picked Campanis off, ending the game.

Rookie Jack Warner broke up pitcher's duel between Bob Shaw of the White Sox with his first major league home run in the ninth inning.

Chicago had scored in the first when Lopes forced across a run with three straight walks. Bobby Knoop tied it for California with a homer in the third and it stayed that way until Warner connected in the ninth.

Ninth inning errors by Elston Howard and Horace Clarke led to Detroit's winning run as the Yankees in the first game of their doubleheader. Clarke booted Norm Cash's bouncer and Gates Brown scored the winning run. Cleto Boyer had tied it with an eighth inning homer against winning pitcher Denny McLain.

In the second game, Bill Monbouquette, making his debut for the Tigers, batted a six-hitter and Orlando MacFarlane hammered a home run as the Tigers beat ex-National Leaguer Bob Friend.

Athletic Scholarships

College Plans Extension

VANCOUVER (CP) — Simon Fraser University plans to extend its athletic scholarship program—the only one in Canada—to cover other sports next year.

Athletic director Lorne Davies said in an interview Thursday the scholarship program has worked "extremely well" in this year's trial run.

The university accepted 40 students on football, basketball and swimming scholarships this year. The scholarships, some of them donated by private individuals and companies, cover tuition fees and other academic expenses.

"Track and field is high on our list for expanding the program next year," he said. "We are also considering several other sports."

He criticized a recent decision by Ontario universities that did not authorize athletic scholarships.

"I think it is a shortsighted outlook on athletics. This means that many young Canadians with good leadership and scholastic potential will now have to look south of the border."

He estimated that more than 200 Canadians with athletic and academic ability were forced to accept U.S. offers because Canadian universities have refused to recognize athletic scholarships.

Pitcher Billy Monbouquette, Detroit, scattered six hits as the Tigers defeated New York Yankees 8-2, completing a sweep of the season's first doubleheader.

Astros' Fielder Double-Dunks Dodgers

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rusty Staub, 32, has two hits in his fourth season in the majors and both have beaten Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Houston Astros right fielder smashed a three - run homer against Ron Perranoski Thursday night, climaxing a three-run, eighth - inning rally that carried the Astros past the Dodgers 4-2. His run - scoring single off Perranoski in the fourth inning the night before gave Houston a 7-6 victory).

He came to bat Thursday night after Houston had tied the game 3-2 and Perranoski had relieved starter Don Nelson. He connected and the ball sailed into the right field bleachers.

SPOILS DEBUT

The Dodgers' Jim Lefebvre hit two home runs for a season total of three, and helped spoil the major league debut of Staub.

Rich Allen's three-run homer capped a four-run first inning that powered Philadelphia past St. Louis. The Phillies, scored what proved to be the winning run in the third when Johnny Callison singled, moved second to third on an infield out and a wild pitch and raced across as Bill White grounded out.

Ty Cline rapped five hits and drove in two runs in leading a Chicago attack that gave Leo Durocher his first victory in his new managerial job. Tight relief pitching by Bill Hands and Don Abernathy stymied the Giants.

No Blood-Lots of Bull

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bloodless bullfighting made its much-debated debut Thursday night.

Whether the daring matadors, twirling capes, and 700-pound black bulls would be seen here again, however, depended on the outcome of a judicial hearing today.

The Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is still seeking to block the bullfights.

The society had asked for a preliminary injunction, which was refused earlier this week by Judge Edward Griffiths. He left the door open to further action, however, by scheduling the second hearing.

Griffiths was among the 1,500 spectators at Thursday night's first of a six performances scheduled by Bruce Enterprises Inc.

Griffiths, who said he had read two books on bullfighting in preparation for the show, was driven by the light of a flashlight.

TAKE NOTES

Also taking notes were members of the society who had been authorized by Griffiths to attend the matinee and evening bulls before and after the fights, for "scientific study."

Robert Hodson, director of operations for the society, after jury.

Tournament Of Champions

Opener In Name Only

LAS VEGAS (AP) — It's called the Tournament of Champions, but it is to boast, very few played like one.

That was the picture today as the 32 professional golfers in the Las Vegas springtime classic teed off in the second tournament of the $100,000 tournament.

In the first round Thursday, only four players broke par on the Desert Inn Country Club. Eighteen did it in the same round a year ago. And for the first time in the 14-year history of the event, no one penetrated the 60s.

Bill Casper Jr. and Gay Brewer were the co-leaders Thursday after both fired-round 70s and one shot back were PGA champion Dave Marr and Dudley Wysard.

Bruce Crampton of Australia had a lone bum rap even with par and fans had to look further than the list for the other four at 71.

Doug Sanders and ex - PGA champion Bobby Nichols were tied at 72 and Arnold Palmer was in a group of seven deadlocked at 73. Masters king Jack Nicklaus, Tony Lema and Ken Venturi were in the 75s, and Tony Lema reposed at 77.

The consensus this year was that something more than 277 would win the $20,000 first prize.

SPONSORS CARS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Anthony Granatelli, president of the Studebaker Corp.'s STP division, entered three cars Thursday in the 500-mile Memorial Day race and also announced his firm will sponsor three Lotus powered cars entered by Colin Chapman of London.

Suspend Halifax Coach

HALIFAX (CP) — Shawinigan Bruins will attempt to make it three in a row when they meet Halifax Canadiens in the third game of the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-finals here tonight.

Canadiens, down 5-0 in games, won their second with a 6-3 decision following Thursday's suspension of Leo Boivy, a Montrealer who formed the Halifax team last fall.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association suspended Boivy indefinitely for attempting to bribe Shawinigan defenceman Jean-Claude Marcotte in Wednesday night's game here, won by the Bruins 8-1.

The incident developed late in the game. Boivy appeared to be trying to hit the Shawinigan assistant captain but he was restrained. The Halifax coach admitted Thursday night that "my intentions were wrong."

It was the second suspension suffered recently by the Canadiens.

Centreman Paul MacWilliams was the team's top scorer, set out three games for a stick-swinging incident in the eastern semi-final series with Cornwall Royals. Halifax won that series in seven games.

When Natives Become Restless Harriman Quickly Packs Bags

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — When natives become restless in London, Saigon, Cairo or Rio de Janeiro, President Johnson usually says: "Send Averell."

And Averell Harriman, his trouble - shooting credentials unmatched for access in world affairs, briskly boards another jet.

Mr. Harriman is the United States ambassador at large. At age 74, and with no sign he plans to retire, he is a Washington phenomenon on more counts than simple durability.

He has held more senior jobs in business, politics and government than anybody else still active here. State Secretary Dean Rusk says that "makes him Mr. America in dealing with the rest of the world."

In those dealings, Harriman is of course a firm champion of American foreign policy—a man who states the case and takes back the response, usually with his own considerable evaluation.

The New York - born scion of railway millions, educated at Yale, arrived here in 1933 after making his own mark in business and finance. He came to help boyhood friend Franklin Delano Roosevelt launch the New Deal.

Today, he is regarded as possessing more first - hand information about major events of the last 30 years than any other single individual—from the wartime consequences of Quebec, Yalta and Potsdam he attended, through harsh dealings with Joseph Stalin, to the latest American views of feelers in the war in Viet Nam.

HAS BLUNT STYLE

In those years, Harriman has acquired a fondness of approach in diplomatic dealings—somewhat unusual—that despite his capital Hello background, seems to pay off with communists.

Harriman probably will be remembered best by history for negotiating with Moscow and London the 1963 partial test-ban treaty on nuclear weapons. Nobody else in the state department of that day is felt to have been anxious to risk seemingly certain defeat on the issue but Harriman pressed ahead, and it paid off.

This summer, acting perhaps on his own initiative, he took a "vacation" trip to Moscow which, when found later, was paid for by the government anyway. Harriman had the first senior American contact with new Premier Alexei Kosygin and apparently helped smooth out a crisis when Russia was caught in a bind between China and the Viet Nam war, that neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union would stumble into a crisis over Viet Nam.

"In dealing with the Russians, I stick to the facts," Harriman has said.

He can be brusque elsewhere too. One former colleague has affectionately called him "The Crocodile" because, he says, Harriman prefers to demolish an argument in one bite.

TO ADDRESS CP

Harriman's foreign schedule is relatively quiet right now.

AMBASSADOR TO THE WORLD — W. Averell Harriman, United States ambassador-at-large, walks through Red Square in Moscow last summer where he met the new Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin. Harriman's visit helped insure, at the time, that neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union would stumble into a crisis over Viet Nam. Harriman, who has been aide and adviser to U.S. presidents since the 1930s, will be the speaker at The Canadian Press annual dinner in Toronto April 19. (CP Photo from AP)

His next scheduled trip is to Toronto April 19 to address the annual dinner of the Canadian press.

He was on the road as 1966 dawned — carrying Johnson's Christmas peace offensive on Viet Nam from Poland to Yugoslavia, Pakistan, India, Iran, the United Arab Republic, Japan, Laos and Thailand.

That took more than two weeks. Less than a month later, he was off again with Vice-President Robert Humphrey on another nine - country, 43,000-mile, two - week tour dealing with Viet Nam.

"It is as indefensible for a man who has capital not to apply himself to using it the way that will be of the most benefit to the country, as it is for a laborer to refuse to work," Harriman has said in spurning any idea of retiring.

"It is the duty of everyone, rich or poor, to work. I love work. I cannot see how anyone can prefer to be idle."

Harriman still stands tall despite a long-established stoop. His features remain handsome and he has a full head of iron-grey hair, plus a friendly air which hides some basic shyness. For all his exposure and experience, Harriman still lacks some of the platform polish once might otherwise expect.

After government work for Roosevelt here before the Second World War, Harriman served as a foreign-affairs adviser to Roosevelt and then to Truman. He accompanied the late Lord Beaverbrook to Moscow in 1941 to gauge the Russian need for air aid. He became ambassador there in 1943, and moved to London as ambassador in 1946.

Harriman has said one of his unquenchable memories is of London when Britain stood alone. He has credited Sir Winston Churchill and Truman with some of his bluntness of phrase on occasion — and perhaps Hello, too.

Harriman likes Churchill, says he found dealing with Stalin the toughest job he ever had. He has recalled a U.S. delegation breaking up one session because he felt Harriman and Stalin were coming to blows.

"I told him that was just the usual way we always talked," Harriman recalls.

He became U.S. commerce secretary in 1946 when Truman split with Henry Wallace.

There was a series of senior positions in foreign aid, and Harriman tentatively sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952, bowing out to Adlai Stevenson.

He was elected governor of New York state in 1954, nibbled again at the presidential nomination in 1956, and was defeated for the governorship in 1958.

In 1960, as a solid supporter of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, he came back to the state department and President Johnson has kept him there in a variety of roles from specialist on Asia, then Africa, then at large.

Reporters on his last big trip with Humphrey through Asia recall Harriman as an old-pro jet traveller quick to don baggy old clothes, relax and take 40 winks between capitals.

He stuck right with the fast-moving Humphrey through Punjab grain fields to Saigon's humidity and the near-zero temperatures of Seoul. In South Korea he

"He usually stayed in the background," one reporter recalls. "But if Humphrey or anybody else said something that Harriman felt was incorrect or needed elaboration, he grabbed the mike."

He had fast recuperative powers, too. Harriman, who likes an occasional scotch and smokes cigarettes, follows with his wife a busy life in the Washington cocktail - party circuit. One relaxation for a man who once rowed and played a good game of polo: Watching football on television.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Many inquiries come from readers asking if they can gain financially by handling the sale of their own house. Broker's commissions are substantial, and eliminating this cost appears attractive. This reply to one such reader, it is hoped, answers this perennial question.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Do I need a real estate broker to sell my house, or can I do it myself? the brokers in my area charge six percent commission. The house is worth about $15,000, and therefore the selling commission would be $900 — a lot of money.

As a long time reader of your column, I know you are not afraid to tell the truth. What is your frank opinion? — A Properly Owner

ANSWER: Legally, you can sell your house you don't need a real estate broker. You can do it yourself. After observing homeowners for more than 25 years trying to do just that, I don't recommend it.

Generally, there is no net cost to the home-owner when a broker sells the house. In fact, there is a net gain as a rule. Data I have assembled for the city of Philadelphia over a ten year period shows that broker-sold houses brought a $1,5 per cent higher price. This has similar owner-sold houses. The same pattern holds for other cities. The one case where it isn't true, is for small towns where everybody knows one another.

There are three main reasons that a broker can get a higher price:

(1) He usually can get a higher mortgage from the lender, often on better terms, than an individual acting on his own efforts.

(2) He knows markets and therefore knows how high the price can be forced and still make a deal.

(3) as a third party, psychologically, he has an easier job bringing the principals together.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: All the news media are full of stories about the coming inflation. I'm getting worried because I have large amounts of money in the form of cash (savings accounts) and in bonds. Is real estate a good hedge against inflation? — Non-Sophisticated Investor

ANSWER: Well-selected real estate is an excellent hedge against inflation. For the past two decades the rise in real estate prices has outrun the falling purchasing power of a dollar. The best hedge of all appears to be investment in undeveloped land.

However, investment in real estate is much more complex than stocks or bonds. Make sure you have competent counsel, and don't act on hunches or be swayed by over enthusiastic salesmen.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My husband loves a cocktail before dinner. I don't mind his drinking but I am severely disturbed by the rings left on the furniture where he carelessly puts down his glass. After 20 years I know I can't change my husband's sloppy habits, therefore, could you tell me how I could eliminate these alcoholic rings? — Frantic

ANSWER: One way to eliminate alcoholic stains would be to follow your husband around wiping up the spills immediately and rubbing the fresh spots with your fingers. For old stains it is best to treat with a paste made of rotenstones (available at hardware stores) and lemon oil. Rub the paste into the stain, and then wipe clean with a polishing cloth.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: After many years I am about to get my dream house. The plans are finalized, I have the lot and I have just signed a contract with a builder. The price is $26,000, of which I am depositing $6,000 with a bank, and the balance is in the form of a mortgage.

The question has now arisen whether the bank will make the payments direct to the builder as work progresses or whether the bank will pay me and I in turn will pay the builder. My attorney says it makes no difference. I've heard so many stories about owners getting in trouble so I want to make sure. — Still in the Dreamy Stage

ANSWER: From the legal standpoint your attorney is giving you sound advice. But from the practical standpoint, it is important who pays the builder. There is an ancient saying, "I will serve the hand that feeds me." It applies in situations of this type.

Differences of opinion and disputes over specifications are normal in the building process. If the owner pays the builder he has great bargaining power because he controls the flow of funds. It has been my experience that this procedure often avoids claims for extras and that the work is better and proceeds faster.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Hard, Delicate Test for Canada In NATO Crisis

OTTAWA (CP)—In the current NATO crisis, a hard and delicate test may be shaping up for Canada's apparently developing role as a moderator within NATO between the French and American positions.

Informants say Canada adopts firmly the U.S. and NATO policy of military integration. But at the same time, External Affairs Minister Martin has said Canada wants to encourage French participation in Western defence to the greatest extent feasible.

He is expected to expand on this theme tonight in a speech at a National Newspaper Awards dinner in Toronto and again Thursday before the Commons external affairs committee.

Canadian officials are upset, but less so than their American counterparts, about France's announced withdrawal from NATO's integrated military command and its request that NATO bases on her territory—they are all Canadian or Americans—be vacated.

Informants said Canada wants to maintain and develop good relations with France without at the same time alienating the U.S. A test of this policy may come in the vacating of bases.

NOTE ON DEADLINE

Canada is expected to accept, after further consultation with its allies, the French deadline of April 1, 1967, for withdrawal from its two military installations in France: the RCAF air division headquarters at Metz and the bomber and transport base at Marville.

The U.S. already has told France it doesn't want to but can meet this deadline. It has some 32,000 military personnel in France compared with Canada's 2,000.

Mr. Martin has told Canada he will be visiting Paris when he come in France. But, informants said, he doesn't want to put the U.S. in the position of "if Canada can get out on time, why can't we?"

Canada has not yet replied to the March 29 note from France setting the April 1, 1967, date. But it is expected to do so "fairly soon," officials said.

The problem of relocating the two CF-104 Starfighter squadrons at Marville is being studied. Officials said consideration will be considered in the shift from Metz and Marville, but without any impairment of this country's contribution to NATO.

There is no intention here that Canada act as a mediator between France and the U.S., one official reasoning that it hasn't been asked. Rather, Canada will try to play the role of interpreter as it did for many years between Britain and the U.S.

Young Liberals Critical

OTTAWA (CP) — This week-end's convention of the Young Liberal Federation of Canada is welcome to use the needle on the Liberal party, Prime Minister Pearson said Friday night.

He asked only that the federation remember needles are for mending ears as well as puncturing skin.

The convention appeared well-launched in both uses of the needle even before Mr. Pearson spoke.

Trade Minister Winters was treated easily in "hot - seat" questioning, but the first stirrings of nine Yolng Liberal policy commissions sphied brass tacks to some party makers.

About a dozen delegates discussing party structure considered a proposal to establish control of money and policy in regional "councils" and overwriting power from "an appointive or ruling elite" of Liberals in Ottawa. Another group, tackling the question of political morality, heard some eyebrow-raising figures on party spending.

About 300 of an expected 400 delegates heard Mr. Pearson voice extreme concern for the conduct of parliamentary business. An all-party agreement to allot time for debates was of "utmost importance."

HAS ONLY 29 DAYS

The prime minister said that after the Commons resumed Tuesday, supply, budget and redistribution debates will leave a maximum of only 29 days for 15 pieces of high-priority "social, financial, labor and economic" legislation left on the list. The Commons might have to extend sittings into July and August.

He said Commons sessions in the 11 weeks before the Easter recess had reached the "lowest point of my official and political career." But in the debate on capital punishment it had reached "almost the top point."

He was staying in political life "as long as health and strength allow" because of his desire to work for national unity.

During his hour in the "hot seat" Mr. Winters was asked about his aspirations to Mr. Pearson's job.

"There's no leadership contest so I'm not a candidate," he replied.

The trade minister had little enthusiasm for the Canada Development Corporation as a government project. He acknowledged a feeling "quite deep" among Western Canada ans that they were being neglected by the Liberal party, but the feeling had "no real basis in fact."

New Car-Safety Features May Cut Deaths in Half

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Recent inquiries into car - safety features have thrown a spotlight on New York State's "go-it-alone" project to design a car aimed at cutting in half accidental highway deaths.

The first step, a $100,000 feasibility study, has been completed.

Engineers with the Republic Aviation division of Fairchild Hiller Corp. concluded it would be possible to build a car that would cut by at least 50 per cent the chances of death or injury in a 50-mile-an-hour collision.

They advanced 134 proposed changes, ranging from rewriting owners' manuals to new braking systems.

Among the features the engineers suggested:

—A rooftop periscope that would give drivers a clear view of traffic in front and back.

—A buzzer system that would alert other drivers when the car was backing up.

—Padded bucket seats, with belts and shoulder harness, and cushioned head rests designed to prevent "whiplash" injuries.

—A plastic "bladder" gasoline tank that would not rupture in a collision.

—A "swinging-gate" bumper designed to deflect other vehicles or objects on impact.

—Collapse structuring of the engine and truck compartments, to absorb shock before it reached the passenger compartment.

—Roll - bar framing around the passenger compartment, to keep the area intact if the car should roll over.

—Windshield wipers for the rear window, and a defrosting system that would keep all windows clear of ice.

The state is in the process of allocating another $300,000 to design the car. That phase is to be completed by next year.

Plans call for an expenditure of $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 to build eight to 10 prototypes and that could be crash-tested at various speeds to determine whether a safety performance equals engineering promise.

State officials hope the federal government will pay about 90 per cent of the cost.

Flood Power Down But "Not Yet Over"

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Red River apparently has exhausted its power but the flood water it spewed into southern Manitoba will keep some 3,000 people away from their homes for some time yet.

The flood is not over," Agriculture Minister George Hutton Friday.

Earlier he reported that in all probability the Red reached its 1966 peak in Winnipeg Thursday—at 26.3 feet above winter average lee level.

Dikes will be patrolled around the clock, Mr. Hutton said, because the metropolitan area of 350,000 can withstand forward to about a week of water levels in the 25-26-foot range before the Red starts to subside.

The situation could still turn dangerous if heavy rains come before the flood recedes, he said.

Winnipeg got a break Friday when the Assiniboine River shot its bolt before the Red's higher water crest arrived from the south.

Counting on the heels of good weather conditions, the development indicated the Red's crest, now at Friday at Morris 35 miles to the south, was not expected to have enough punch left to surpass the Thursday level by the time it reaches Winnipeg.

The Red rose slightly at Morris Friday and held steady at St. Jean Baptiste, six miles to the south.

Flood co-ordinator Bob Wallace said it will be some time before an orderly and safe return to Morris can be carried out — possibly not until the water level drops some four feet, the level at which all but essential personnel were evacuated.

Wallace said re-entry will not be permitted until all danger has passed from water behind the dikes, which now are holding back about 20 feet of water in Emerson, a border town 65 miles south of Winnipeg, the FLOOD

China Denounces Embassy Sacking By Indonesians

JAKARTA (CP) — China today angrily denounced the sacking of its Jakarta embassy and likened the 2,000 Indonesian Chinese rioters to "Hitlerite hordes."

China handed a protest note to Indonesian Ambassador Djiwonio in Peking, the official New China news agency said in Tokyo. The note said that Chinese embassy staff member Chao Hsiao-shou was shot in the chest and seriously wounded during the attack Friday, the agency said.

The protest also charged that the embassy's first secretary, Liu Tzu-pe, and four other Chinese officials were beaten up and injured in the attack, rampaged through the embassy compound, smashing windows and burning furniture and papers.

More than a dozen embassy staff members were reported seen early today in Jakarta International Airport as their way to Bangkok, Thailand.

Djiwoto announced his resignation Friday to protest against his government's recent policy toward Peking.

An editorial in the official Peking People's Daily described Indonesian military leaders as "agents of imperialism and Indian reactionaries," it says, "that no one can provoke the Chinese people with impunity. The U.S. imperialists confront China with economic blockade, political isolation and military encirclement; and yet we do not care a straw about them, let alone a few lackeys of imperialism."

During the raid on the embassy, 60 armed Indonesian troops protected about 30 embassy staff members from the mob, but otherwise the troops made little effort to stop the attack.

Reuters news agency quoted an Indonesian army officer as saying a group of embassy staff fired on the demonstrators with machine-guns, wounding three of them. The soldiers were reported injured by tiles flung from roofs.

Indonesia said Jakarta garrison troops fired shots to halt the demonstrators.

Two Women Prisoners Now In Hospital

KINGSTON (CP) — Two women members of the radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect who went on a hunger strike at a federal prison here a week ago have been placed in the Canadian Forces Hospital at nearby Barriefield for treatment.

The women, both in their 50s, were identified as Mary Makaroff and Mary Astaforoff, both of Kamloops, B.C. They are believed to be protesting their imprisonment on five-year terms for arson in British Columbia.

Mildred Pindered, acting superintendent of the prison for women, said their condition was not serious.

News of Trial To Be Carried By Dog Team

SPENCE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Six Eskimos driving a dog team over 60 miles of frozen tundra will be the first link in a communications system carrying some news reports from the murder trial of two Eskimos.

The Eskimos was hired by reporters to carry daily reports to a DEW line station for phoning through Quebec City to their papers and to The Canadian Press, Toronto, to amplify coverage. Radio reports were overlimited radio-telephone service at the remote settlement.

Spence Bay is on Boothia Peninsula, 1,225 miles northeast of Edmonton. First reports of the trial were handled by Hudson's Bay Co. radio-telephone from Spence Bay to Canadian National Telecommunications at Cambridge Bay on Victoria Island for radio relay to Edmonton.

CP staff writer Ron Macdonald of Edmonton, a reporter on the trial, soon worked as a summer employee on the DEW line and remembered one station is relatively near Spence Bay.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

After an extensive check, cooperative arrangements were made for the dog-team radiostation hookup.

On trial are Joachee Shooyook and Aiyaoot, both about 21, charged with capital murder in the slaying of Aiyaoot's mother, Sooeee, about 40. Sooeee is alleged to have been fatally injured in an attempt to drive her away from the band last summer. The woman had been mentally ill and members of the band feared hen actions threatened their welfare.

Originally the trial was scheduled to open Thursday but now it is scheduled to begin today.

A storm hit the area Thursday delaying an aircraft that had left to pick up jury panel members.

Weekend Activity Expected

MONTREAL (CP)—A weekend of activity was expected in Montreal's construction strike, the largest and potentially most explosive of a series of labor disputes which have left more than 18,000 Quebec province workers idle.

Representatives of the Confederation of National Trade Unions and the Quebec Federation of Labor, whose member unions work on the construction projects, were called by the provincial labor department to a meeting today.

An estimated 10,000 CNTU members are on strike. The approximately 20,000 QFL construction workers are not on strike but large numbers have not crossed CNTU picket lines.

A mass meeting of CNTU members Sunday night will bear a report from their leaders.

The strike has hit tens of millions of dollars worth of construction projects in Montreal, although work on Expo 67 is unaffected because of a no-strike agreement signed two years ago.

In other strikes:

—Leaders of some 2,200 technical school teachers, facing legal action said they are willing to negotiate. The provincial government replied it is willing to negotiate, but only if the teachers return to work as ordered by a court injunction.

—Some 3,000 construction workers at Hydro - Quebec's mammoth Manicouagan - Outardes construction project remained off the job. Le Devoir says unionized engineers estimate the company has lost $130,0.. a day in interest on loans and wasted salaries since the strike started March 15 over a dispute involving men on the job.

—About 300 Bell Telephone engineers remained off the job. They went on strike Wednesday.

—Some 3,000 workers at Dominion Textile's plastic container a strike that started six weeks ago. Wages and other contract benefits are the main issues at stake in the strikes.

There will be no strike for at least three weeks for workers in Quebec hospitals. The unions Friday gave up their right to strike until then, and together with the hospitals and provincial government, agreed to negotiate.

The 2,300 teachers struck Tuesday and the court injunction ordering them back to work was issued Wednesday. They returned Friday.

The government Friday announced it will take legal action against the 12 members of the union executive, the two executive secretaries and the union itself. Under Quebec's Civil Code, the maximum penalty for refusing to recognize an injunction is a $2,000 fine and-or 60 days in jail.

Tanker Won't Pump Oil Into Rhodesia

Cut All Diplomatic Ties With Britain - - Smith

SALISBURY (CP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today the tanker Ioanna V's 18,000 tons of oil cargo will not be pumped into Rhodesia because he does not want to jeopardize the difficulties of Portugal and the ship's Greek crew.

In a broadcast, Smith also said Rhodesia will cut all its remaining diplomatic ties with Britain.

The Ioanna V is anchored at Beira in Portuguese Mozambique and the British government has been putting pressure on the Portuguese government to prevent movement of oil through the pipeline to Rhodesia.

The Beira port authorities put her under the control of Portugal last Thursday after both the Portuguese and British governments revoked her registration.

The broadcast was Smith's first formal comment since the arrival of the Ioanna V at Beira 11 days ago raised the Rhodesian independence crisis to a new peak.

Smith admitted that oil aboard the tanker was meant for Rhodesia.

Smith said last week's United Nations Security Council resolution authorizing Britain to use force to halt tankers believed carrying oil for Rhodesia is not valid because two permanent council members—France and the Soviet Union — had abstained from voting.

Before the resolution, a Royal Navy boarding party had tried unsuccessfully to persuade the Ioanna V's captain from docking at Beira.

By referring the oil embargo to the United Nations, Britain had unwittingly in the process acknowledged Rhodesia's independence," Smith said, adding that Britain's behavior at the United Nations and a "blatant case of espionage" by a member of the British mission in Salisbury had forced his government to cut remaining diplomatic ties with Britain.

The staff of Rhodesia House in London will be recalled and the British mission in Salisbury will be closed, he said. The decision had been taken reluctantly because the two missions could have led to something constructive in the future, he added, not elaborating.

Smith's mention of espionage apparently was a reference to the expulsion from Rhodesia last month of Neville French, the British mission's first secretary, who was accused of spying.

Some of the Ioanna V's crew quit at Beira and headed home to Greece. She is owned by the Varnikos Corporation, which has its headquarters in Athens and is controlled by Greeks.

Meanwhile, the captain of another Varnikos tanker, the Manuela, said he would sail today from Durban, South Africa, and await further orders on the high seas.

The Manuela was diverted from Beira by a Royal Navy boarding party six days ago and anchored in Durban with a cargo of 15,000 tons of oil.

Reliable sources in Durban said the South African cabinet had decided not to allow her to discharge her cargo at Durban.

In London, British Ambassador Sir Hugh Stephenson told Prime Minister Wilson Friday night that South Africa will ban the passage of all shipments of consignments to landlocked Rhodesia but is unlikely to cut off all trade with the break away colony.

South Africa has permitted private companies to ship sufficient oil overland to Rhodesia to meet the rebellious colony's minimum needs.

Northern Ireland Braces Self For an Explosive Weekend

BELFAST (Reuters) — Extremists fired bullets into a home of Parliament's home here early today as Northern Ireland braced itself for an explosive weekend during celebrations of the 50th anniversary of the Irish Rebellion.

Armed police patrols launched a massive security clampdown to stop members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army crossing from the Irish Republic into Northern Ireland, part of the United Kingdom.

Police feared reprisal violence from IRA forces—pledged to uniting divided Ireland—during a big republican parade here Sunday commemorating the rebellion, which led to southern independence from Britain.

South of the border, Irish Republican police investigated a mysterious fire in a house that rocked the village of Inistioge in south Kilkenny.

The explosion and five shots were heard while a dance was being held in the town hall following an Easter Rising commemoration parade.

Two bullets shattered windows in the Belfast home of John M'Quade, a member of Northern Ireland's ruling Unionist party whose policy it is to keep the province under British rule. M'Quade and his wife were not injured.

Thousands of southern Irishmen expected to flood across the 180-mile border today and packed the village of Inistioge in south Kilkenny.

Expert in Medical Care Of Aged Claims Polygamy Should Be Made Legal

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—An expert in medical care of the aged said Friday polygamy, marriage to two or more mates at the same time, should be made legal after the age of 60.

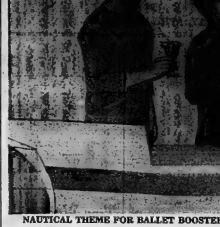
Dr. Victor Kassel said legalized plural marriage would be a special boon to elderly widows, many of whom subsist on inadequate diets and in a state of sexual frustration because partners of their own age are hard to find.

This was because widows of 60 or more far outnumbered men in that age bracket.

However, Dr. Kassel recommended the legalization of both polygamy, marriages to more than one wife, and polyandry, marriages to more than one husband.

The Salt Lake City physician has specialized in geriatrics, the treatment of the problems and ailments of the aged, for 15 years.

He set forth his views on the benefits of polygamy for the elderly in an article in the medical magazine Geriatrics.



"Studies at various geriatric centres have disproved the misconception that older people are not interested in sexual activity.

"Studies have demonstrated that women have an increase in libido after the menopause, simply because they lose fear of pregnancy.

"A polygamous marriage enables them to express this desire, instead of remaining repressed through a continued widowhood."

As for men, Dr. Kassel said, they seem to have a natural desire to diversify their sexual partnerships.

"It seems that most impotency in the male represents boredom and, many times, an unattractive and unstimulating partner. With variety, greater interest is sparked and many men can come back to life sexually."

NAUTICAL THEME FOR BALLET BOOSTERS — A wine and cheese tasting party will be held at Club Canara Friday, April 22nd, starting at 8 p.m., with proceeds being used by the National Ballet Guild to help bring the National Ballet Company to the city. Hospital Addition Fill Used to Build Park Site

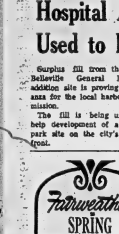
Surplus fill from the new Belleville General Hospital addition site is proving a bonanza for the local harbor commission.

The fill is being used to help development of a public park site on the city's waterfront.



All winter long heavy trucks have been hauling surplus fill from the hospital and dumping it on the bay area east of George Street and south of the former Houston Lumber Company premises.

A bulldozer and power grader are in use levelling off the fill, giving further development to an already existing small waterfront park. Close to 30,000 loads of fill have been dumped in the area and more is to come.

"The area has tremendous possibilities as a waterfront park," noted Harbor Commissioner Donald Barrett.

Mr. Barrett says the waterfront roadway along the bay between George Street and South Foster Ave. has been graded and will be gravelled later.

When this is done motorists will be able to enjoy a short drive along the waterfront and see the city from a new viewpoint.

150 Years Ago

(Entries from the diary-ed "E. Wilson of the original survey of Belleville in 1816; notes by Tom Ransom O.L.S.)

Tuesday 18th — Raining all day

Wednesday 19th — Employed in taking the courses and distances north and West Street and laying off the Water lots.

Note: Thomas Ridout, Surveyor General was equal to the problem of Belleville's disputed survey, and solved it to everyone's satisfaction.

On April 8th, 1958, he had written John W. "Meyers ", . . no injury will happen to any individual from the above improvements and settled themselves, according to the original Survey."

The lands on the north side of the Moira River, which Meyers was in danger of losing, together with his buildings and part of his dam, were granted to him, thus satisfying J. W. Meyers.

The lands laid out into lots in the first survey, which are now in the city, and the lots were never granted. In time the Taylor farm was subdivided into lots and streets, George, William and Ann Streets, thus satisfying John Taylor, although he had much trouble to prove his title good in later years.

Samuel Wilmot must have been satisfied for his survey of Belleville was not changed, and the Surveyor General appointed him with many other surveys in the province. To show his confidence in Wilmot's work, the Surveyor General sent him back to Belleville in the fall of 1817, to lay out 46 lots of five acres each in lot 4, Concession 2 of Thurlow, the north half of the Indian Reserved Lands, which are east and west of North Park Street and include all of the east side of North Front Street from College Street to Highway No. 401. Unfortunately the reception that Wilmot received on his return to Belleville is not recorded.

41 City and District Residents Become New Citizens of Canada

Judge J. C. Anderson presided over a special court yesterday and officially welcomed 41 Belleville and area residents as citizens of Canada.

It was an inspiring scene.

One husky man who had come here from Holland had a tear in his eye as his name was called and he took the long walk to the floor of the court.

Many others, both men and women, had to gulp to hold back their emotion.

An R.C.M.P. constable stood straight and still, in his ceremonial uniform, surveying the gathering and representing one of the greatest traditions of this country.

But if it was an emotion-packed time for those receiving their citizenship papers, it was perhaps even more so for the guests in attendance . . . those who are already citizens.

Rev. Gordon Woodcock said, "Some of us are citizens because we were born here and I'm afraid we often take our citizenship too casually."

There was no casualness in the speech of the 41 new Canadians towards citizenship. There was determination and pride.

Each new Canadian was called by name by citizenship clerk Miss M. McCabe. Each renounced all former allegiance to his former land and swore allegiance to the Queen and to Canada.

FROM MANY LANDS

They had come from Germany, Poland, Hungary, France, Holland, Greece, China and Norway to Canada and had come by choice, to become permanent citizens here.

The new citizens live in Belleville, Foxboro, Trenton, Tweed, Bancroft, Madoc, Frankford and Plainfield.

Mr. Woodcock said, "We trust that as new Canadians, will come to appreciate the land in which we live and to which we belong." He also expressed hopes they would find a home in the church of their choice.

Rev. Patrick Kelly, St. Michael's Parish, said, "I couldn't help but notice most of the people receiving their citizenship papers today were giving up allegiance to countries with a much longer history than ours.

"Without these countries we wouldn't be Canada. By receiving new Canadians we are receiving new blood, new ideas, new systems."

Mayor Jack Ellis said, "It is an uplifting experience to come here and see people with the desire to take a part in this wonderful country of ours. It's an experience that does more for me and for other guests here than these people will ever know."

Hastings County Clerk, Carl Bateman, welcomed the new Canadians on behalf of warden Clayton Dafoe. "I'm sure my best congratulations" on becoming Canadian citizens. We in the county are proud of the services provided, in co-operation with the city of Belleville, in the fields of medicine, welfare, education and so on. We trust you will use these services as your own, just as Canada is now yours."

SHARE IN HERITAGE

Former Hastings South M.P., Robert Temple said, "There have been remarks that we're all gathering here in Canada because we want to be Canadians. This is all to the good.

"We can share in the diversity of the heritage you bring to Canada with you and this will only help to enrich our country."

He said his first experience with citizenship court was when his wife received her citizenship and said he well knows the pride the new citizens now feel.

Art Duncan of Bayswa said, "Over the past quarter century some of the most staunch friendships I now cherish were made right here in this court. My interest in attending this court is to have a part in the adoption of Canada by you new Canadians.

"The amalgamation of all skills and cultures you bring from abroad strengthen our country and help make it better.

"May I never again see you in court," he added with a smile.

Judge Anderson called on the new Canadians to say something in return.

One Canadian said, "When I came to Canada in 1950 I thought I wanted to stay here and after seven years now I'm glad to have this citizenship. For all of us new Canadians, I would like to thank you and Canada for accepting us."

A woman who came to Canada in 1956 said, "I'm a citizen now by choice and I'm very glad to be a Canadian."

Canada can be glad that she is too.

The new Canadians were entertained at the Armories by the members of St. Julien and Argyll Chapters of the Daughters of the Empire.

Three former Hungarians participated in the Canadian court yesterday. They are, Mrs. Eva Szerb, 568 Victoria Ave., Belleville, Lajlie Vargo, Bancroft, and Janos Turi, 42½ Bridge St. E., Belleville.

Saltless Sub Gets Fresh With Liner

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Military Journal this week reports a salty submarine saga.

A Soviet passenger liner received a radio order to halt, sent by an approaching, unidentified submarine.

"What the devil!" said the liner's captain. "We are in Soviet waters."

The submarine had run short of salt on a cruise and stopped the passenger liner to get some.

The journal Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star) cites this incident in an article complaining of supply inefficiencies in the Soviet Navy.

AFTER HOOLIGANS

MOSCOW (AP) — Law enforcement officials from throughout the Soviet Union met Friday to chart a long-term crackdown on hooliganism. There were calls for terms at hard labor for those convicted of drunkenness, swearing and brawling in public. The crackdown appeared aimed at wayward youth. Hooliganism causes involve mainly youths.

Laboratory Technologist Graduation Held at B.G.H.

"Unto thine own self be true" were the concluding words of advice given by Dr. E. H. Botterell to the sixth class of medical laboratory technologists to graduate from the Belleville General Hospital School of Medical Laboratory Technology. The ceremony took place in Education Hall last evening.

Dr. Botterell, distinguished Canadian neurosurgeon, and now Dean Emeritus of Medicine, Queen's University, told the class of seven girls "and one boy, that only through scientific research could modern medicine advance. Today's doctors work with a health science team to determine how effective prescribed treatments really are; a doctor treating a patient unaided is a thing of the past.

Dr. Botterell was introduced by Dr. L. B. Crook.

The warm and sincere gratitude of the graduating class was expressed by Miss Arlene MacIntyre, valedictorian. The group now making its debut as medical laboratory technologists had benefited both practically and morally at the lab school Miss MacIntyre said. They are well prepared to face the future and with a deeper understanding of co-operation and obedience. They have discovered the advantages of initiative, persistence and concentration.

The diplomas were presented by Dr. A. N. Rota and Mr. C. V. Pettey, chairman of the graduation program. Mr. A. M. Haig, chairman, Board of Governors, B.G.H., was master of ceremonies for the ceremony attended by a large audience.

Graduates of the class of 1964 are Dennis Benson of Belleville, Margaret Conley of Frankford, Diane Cornthwaite of Hamilton, Sharon Locke of Belleville, Arlene MacIntyre of Frankford, Gail Oliver of Trenton, Valerie Weiss of Trenton, and Ardel Sunderland of Belleville.

Dig Trench Around Tanks To Keep Oil From Harbor

Workmen are still looking for the source of the smelly furnace oil which during the past week was discovered in the Belleville harbor.

Oil companies having bulk storage tanks in the area are co - operating in the search.

Tanks and oil lines have been checked, but so far there has been little success in tracing the source.

"We've found oil, but it's not crude, and we don't know the submarine coming from," said Harbor Master Don Barrett.

An Imperial Oil Company expert has been brought here in the city and the Ontario Water Resources Commission is also expected to assist in the hunt if the oil source is not located within the next few days.

In the meantime a trench has been dug between the tanks and the water in an effort to catch oil seepage before it reaches the harbor.

Oil is seeping into the trench and is being pumped into a portable tank.

Realtors Hear City Director Of Planning

Mr. John Brawls, Planning Director of the City of Belleville, was guest speaker at the Belleville and District Real Estate Board General Meeting. Mr. Brawls' subject was of great interest to the Board members and an excellent question and answer period followed.

Mr. Lloyd Metcalfe, regional vice president of District No. 1 of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards was also a guest of the Belleville Board. He brought with him information concerning the real estate industry in general. Mr. Metcalfe mentioned that many cities do have a Realtor sit on the Planning Board as their interests are closely related and he felt that a Realtor would be an asset to any Planning Board.

Iraqui President's Death Causes Deterioration in Middle East Power Balance

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The death of President Abdul Salam Aref of Iraq and the selection of a successor could drastically shake up power alignments throughout the unsettled Middle East and beyond.

Aref's death in a helicopter crash Wednesday night removed a leader who had been maintaining precarious stability in the face of political enemies at home and rival bids for Iraqi support in foreign alliances.

Without Aref, Iraq could fall prey to intensified domestic power struggles and increased strains on relations with such countries as Egypt.

At the same time, a new man in the presidency should have a chance to smooth out troubles that some reports have indicated were made worse by Aref himself. Among these are the problem of Iraq's restless Kurd people and hostile relations with neighboring Iran.

MADE ENEMIES

Aref made and unmade friends rapidly at home and abroad during a decade of political upheaval in the Political scenes swalling settlement were bringing an end to controversy at the time of his death.

Aref, a career army officer and devout Moslem, began his radical political views, helped overthrow the monarchy in 1958. He succeeded Gen. Abdul Karim Kassem. But he broke with Kassem soon after, was jailed and then tried for a plot that ousted Kassem in 1963.

At first a prominent figure in the Arab Socialist Resurrection of Iraq and Syria, Aref later forced a showdown with the party by firing from the government Baathists who opposed close links with Gamal Abdel Nasser's Egypt.

He was considered a pro-Nasser and nationalist, though an Iraq-Egypt unity pact in 1964 was never implemented. But he broke with Iraqi Nasserites last year and made the moderate civilian Abdel Rahman al Bazzaz prime minister.

BOUGHT ARMS

Internal and foreign communists, once tolerated if not encouraged, opposed Aref. Radio broadcasts beamed to Iraq from Communist Bulgaria supported the Kurdish revolution. But Aref's brother and possible successor, Gen. Abdul Rahman Aref, was in Moscow negotiating for arms on behalf of the government to use against the Kurds at the time of the president's death.

Communists, Nasserites, Baathists and other nationalists are among the groups that would view Salam Aref's death as a signal to press for power. The outcome will be watched closely—if not actually influenced—by Iraq's neighbors and the great powers.

Middle East rivalries have been developing towards the opposing poles of radical, nonaligned Nasserism and the conservative, pro-Western line of Saudi Arabia's King Faisal.

Religion and geography tend to pull Iraq towards its neighbor monarchists—Iran, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. But the precedents of the Salam Aref regime point the opposite way and thus towards friction.

An Intolerant Creed

One of the worst features of the communist system is its intolerance of other political creeds and of individuals who oppose the creaky concepts of Marxism. Ever since the Russian revolution in 1917 communism has been built up and held together only by means of a tidal wave of repression, brutality, imprisonment, barbed wire and political murder.

The Stalinist era of the recent past was typical of the lengths the Soviets were prepared to go to ensure that opposition to the regime was effectively nullified. One of the prime targets was the church, both in Russia and in the satellite nations of eastern Europe. Even after Stalin's death, and during the comparatively liberal period of Premier Khrushchev's administration, prominent members of the church remained behind bars in the communist world.

Some are prisoners to this day. There is no knowing how many people are imprisoned for political reasons in the communist world, but they must be many and they include members of the clergy, intellectuals and private citizens.

Had it not been for the uprising in Budapest in 1956, Cardinal Mindszenty might still be languishing in a Hungarian prison cell. As it is he is a virtual prisoner in the United States embassy, unable to leave for fear of being re-arrested.

Last year the Archbishop of Prague, Joseph Cardinal Beran, who is 77, was released by the Communists after he had spent almost 19 continuous years in prison under both the Nazis and communists.

It is easy to forget that Russia remains essentially a closed society, where freedom is not the kind of freedom we know in the west, and where there is a system that dominates once proud and independent nations from the Baltic to the Mediterranean, and holds them in virtual subjugation.

We might remember that while weighing the whys and wherefores of the war in Viet Nam, to give only one example, the declared aims of international communism (whether it is directed from Moscow or Peking is of little consequence) is to expand its influence around the globe by any means at its disposal, political or military.

In this part of the world democracy means freedom of speech, for one thing. And that is why our system can afford to tolerate almost any form of political opposition so long as it does not lead to breaches of law and order. If the day ever comes that we lose up citizens' right to oppose using their democratic prerogative, we may conclude that communism is well on the road to success.

Girls Sell Gas

British service stations have been employing girls for some years now. And just as the long, hot summer days bring the birds to houses over there (and new bars in Canada too) has been improved by the introduction of members of the fair sex, service stations here are anticipating similar results.

Ottawa of all places — that quiet, sedate capital — is where the girls are at the moment, and it should not be long before other centres get the message. Significantly, the two operators who started it all have French names. "Ah, c'est la guerre!"

"It is becoming more and more a woman's world," mused Roger Lefebvre, who said he received more than 200 phone calls from applicants. Another 75 went to his station to apply.

Roger Lachance, operator of the other station, says it is courtesy that counts, and the girls have it. Which is not to say the men are not kindly disposed, for most of them are. But then, girls are girls.

Both places hire girls for their looks and both say they will outfit them in shorts or short skirts for the warm days to come. All in all, it is a formidable sales coup these Ottawa gas stations have pulled off.

Spring Thoughts

Spring is gradually warming up, the Moira is flowing swiftly toward the bay and the countryside is beginning to look more inviting.

The latter, of course, viewed from the farthest extremities of the golf course, through the still bare trees flanking its shores, is a delicate shade of light blue these spring days.

But thus far, spring growth is nowhere much in evidence. The gardens with their profusion of summer flowers are still weeks away. Which brings us to a suggestion that has often been made, but like many others, seems to have gone on deaf ears.

And that is the matter of cleaning up and beautifying the river bank. Admittedly, the bank in the immediate area of the city, is largely of stone and concrete where commercial interests predominate. On the other hand there are areas of the bank on the river's edge which might be cleared and the soil, such as it is, used to plant something more attractive to the eye.

Belleville is fortunate to have the Moira, not to mention the Bay of Quinte, on its doorstep. But we should view both with greater regard in relation to community improvement, in the manner suggested above.

Life Was Their Guide

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A listing in Who's Who is one sign of success in life. Surprisingly, though, many of those who have achieved membership in this pedestalled circle would never have been voted "Most Likely to Succeed."

A study of 1,072 leaders in American business, education and government, made for Mayron S. Olson, professor of education at the University of Florida, turned up the fact that the majority of these persons had voted in Who's Who in America averaged only C plus to B grades. Four per cent were D-and-below students.

Citing the study, another educator, Ronald C. Doll of Hunter College, notes that these leaders did only moderately well in the "academic" hand of the traditional school and college curriculum. But later, "in the wider spectrum of life experience," they blossomed.

"One wonders," he says, "what their schools might have done for them if they had provided more opportunities for individual interest-finding and exploration of interests."

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that there are three kinds of saliva in the mouth and each works on a different kind of food. Is this true? Words? — R. S.

* * *

Not exactly right. Rather than three kinds of saliva, there are three troops of saliva glands: a pair under the tongue (sublingual); two under the cheekbones (submaxillary); and two farther back (the parotids), those affected by mumps.

The parotids give off a watery material, the sublingual a more mucous type, and the submaxillaries a mixture.

The only ingredient that helps digestion in the mouth is ptyalin, an enzyme which starts the breakdown of carbohydrates and starches. However, most of the digestion of starch takes place in the small intestine.

This enzyme in the saliva does not take part in digestion of protein and fats. That begins in the stomach and intestine.

Saliva has other functions: to moisten food, lubricate the membranes of the mouth, and to cleanse the membranes.

Dear Dr. Molner: Mrs. V.B.'s letter about her wakeful baby prompts this letter. We, too, dislike that we were reared a tyrant at the expense of my health.

Due to a severe illness when she was two weeks old, I hovered over her crib night and day, soothing her at the first sign of crying.

This pattern continued long after she was well and past two years old. I then announced to her and the family that I had to have some unbroken sleep and told them not to call me.

For a while all was quiet. Then began the usual pleas for a drink, for potty, and finally the wailing began, increasing in volume, then pausing to listen for my response, then more wailing.

My husband and I sat through five solid hours of sound that night, three hours the second night, 15 minutes the third.

We were exhausted but the habit was broken. She is a fine, adjusted young woman today. Parents don't have to be martyrs. The right type of firmness can mean a better adjusted child later. — Mrs. H.S.C.

Dear Dr. Molner: What if a cooked turkey is refrigerated at night, and taken from the refrigerator later and left out for 24 hours? Would it be safe to eat? Also what about removing the stuffing after the bird is cooked? — M. M.

The meat of the turkey probably would be safe to eat after 24 hours, except under unusual circumstances, but personally I would prefer not to take a chance.

Stuffing is another matter, particularly if it contains egg, which is an ideal medium for bacterial growth, and after 24 hours at room temperature you certainly could not be sure it was safe.

Stuffing can be removed and refrigerated, but getting all of it out, without leaving some traces, is problematical.

Thus for safety, it is best to keep bird and stuffing refrigerated rather than taking a chance. There is no rule better than "keep it hot, keep it cold, or don't keep it."

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been plagued with red, inflamed granular eyelids for years. Doctors seem to consider this a minor discomfort and say that nothing can be done. — E. T. W.

Allergies, chronic infection, (including trachoma) and nutritional deficiencies are all possible factors. You should go to an ophthalmologist (eye specialist) to determine the exact cause. I doubt that "nothing can be done."

America's Untamed Waters

Washington Post

As if moved by the music of rushing waters, the Senate voted 71 to 1 for the "wild rivers" bill. The debate almost purged with the "ramsaging torrents" of the Salmon, the white water cataracts of the Rogue and the colorful swirls of the Rio Grande in a few hours of noble appreciation for untamed streams and unspoiled woods, the Senate committed itself to a national policy of preserving these rivers for which we, the non-oriented society continues to thirst.

We surmise that the almost unanimous vote reflects the feeling in the country for the preservation of these singing rivers. Most of the nation's streams have been betouled by silt, commerce and sewage. No doubt the general sense of guilt for this desecration contributed much to the demand that at least a few "wild rivers" should remain their original charm.

The Washington area will be especially delighted that the 140-mile Cacapon in West Virginia and a 76-mile stretch of the Shenandoah were added to the list of streams that must continue to flow freely. We have no doubt that many other rivers should be included. The wild river study team which began its work three years ago surveyed 22 rivers and gave some attention to 31 others that merit preservation in an unspoiled state. Fortunately, the bill provides for a continuing study so that other spectacular streams may be added to this heritage of unique recreational areas.

It is impossible to understand the indifference that has been expressed by Chairman Aspinall of the House Interior Committee and his committee toward the bill. These picturesque rivers are no less worthy of preservation than wilderness areas and the national parks which Congress has brought under its special protection. Even a legislator who is deaf to the singing wilderness should be able to see the great national interest in safeguarding natural retreats for a rapidly-expanding population. We think the people as well as the President should let Mr. Aspinall know in no uncertain terms that they want the "wild rivers" saved.

Some Cheese Is Suspect

Kingston Whig-Standard

The other day at a meeting of Eastern Ontario cheesemakers, Mr. H. Willis, chief of grading and inspection for the Dominion Department of Agriculture, said that Canada's excellent cheese market in Britain is being hurt by the carelessness of some producers. There have been complaints of finding such foreign objects as nuts and bolts, hairs, buttons and band-aids in some "top-quality" Canadian cheese.

It doesn't take long for this sort of thing to get around and unless steps are taken to clean house, that important industry could find itself damaged beyond repair. Certainly with the reputation that Canadian cheese has enjoyed abroad over the years, and with competition being what it is, the industry cannot afford to dismiss lightly complaints such as these emanating from Britain.

Three Kinds of Glands Produce Our Saliva

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Evelyn Waugh Dies at 62

Windsor Star

Evelyn Waugh the British writer who died last weekend at 62, presented the world with the apparent paradox of a great writer who was also a devoted Christian.

Mr. Waugh was all his life a Catholic. He gained a reputation as a satirist. He jabbed at teachers, at journalists, at the army, at undertakers, and at society with a wit that was painful to those under attack but unfailingly funny to others. At the same time, he was a devoted Roman Catholic who wrote serious biographies of great church figures and devoted large sections of his novels to the trials of following religious principles.

He confessed late in his life that he had developed a passion for what was old, to the rejection of what is new. How far he had followed this love for the past we shall never know, since death found him with only a part of his autobiography completed. Still he has left his mark as a perceptive and amusing critic of his own times.

Being a Gentleman Was Not Such a Bad Thing After All

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Now Democratic MP Murdo Martin of Timmins, one of the real characters of the Commons, has changed his mind. Again.

Just a few weeks ago, he proclaimed, proudly, that he was no gentleman — at least for the purposes of his political pedigree as to be set out officially in the Parliamentary Guide.

Ever since 1957 when he first came to the Capital he has listed himself through five Federal elections and four Parliamentary Guides as a "farmer — the kind that plants fires, not the variety that backstops the engineer in the Diesel cab.

And then, in last Fall's election, to his great surprise and perhaps small embarrassment, he found himself billed in the ballots as a gentleman.

And he a militant Socialist!

It was the work, he said, of the District Returning Officer, and he discovered it too late to do anything about it — too late certainly to do much more than sit there and take the kidding as best he could.

And the kidding was something fierce, he says, for he always liked to think he did his best campaigning when plunking himself down at a big corner table in one of the many Timmins beverage rooms and trading jokes and rounds of bubbly with the miners.

Imagine, he recalled with a shudder, what the boys, underground at Hollinger and Macintyre-Porcupine and the other gold properties — not to mention the lads at the Iron Hall — said when they discovered that their old buddy-buddy, a Socialist to less, was, in fact, a gentleman.

Later, Murdo Martin was to determine to his surprised delight the reaction was no hilarious that quite a few — certainly more than enough to make him a good deal more than the set of the voters in that section of Northern Ontario who might have been in the mood to mark their ballots for the Grits or the Tories ended up voting for him out of sheer sympathy. They confided, for the laughs he had headed them.

So for a gentleman, to read the dictionary, is, among other things . . . "a markedly refined man of good breeding and birth . . . of chivalrous instincts and an involuntary preference for the finer things of life . . . with exquisitely cultivated tastes . . . but no gainful occupation."

Compounding Murdo Martin's early embarrassment was his astounded finishing third in the election returns were all in and the successful candidates listed. But he was the only gentleman in the House of Commons.

It was a rare distinction.

In all but a few cases it is numerical rank, with such others as the Prime Minister, a master baker, a newspaper editor and a writer, of which there was only one each.

So there was Murdo Martin, the one Gentleman of Parliament, distinguished and distinctive in his individuality, in the glory of his eminence over 264 others.

Among them . . . 66 lawyers . . . 31 farmers and assorted agriculturists . . . 13 merchants . . . 12 businessmen . . . nine insurance men . . . eight managers . . . seven medical men . . . six accountants . . . five executives . . . five industrialists . . . four newspapermen . . . four "Ministers of the Crown," (not including Newfoundland's Smallwood who might have listed himself among them, but prefers to be known as a Newfoundlander as the past has liked to call himself a "writer") . . . two newspapermen . . . two real estate salesmen . . . two "communicators," one of them announcer, . . . two insurance salesmen . . . two "communicators," one of them announcer, . . . two public relations advisers . . . two "communicators," one of them announcer, . . . two public relations advisers . . . two "communicators," one of them announcer, . . . two public relations advisers

Ann Landers

Thrice Married Mother Makes Poor Advisor

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 30, attractive (but not beautiful) and I have a fairly good job in an office.

My mother has had three disastrous marriages so I can't blame her for being bitter about men. But I do wish she would stop lecturing me about how stupid it is to marry for love. According to her, love is nothing but sex with a fancy name. She says love wears off after it's legal and that if a girl is smart she will marry for security.

Mother keeps urging me to go with older men who "can offer me something." She picks apart every fellow I go with and says I am a fool to waste my time on young punks who have at least 30 years of hard work ahead of them before they make anything out of themselves.

It frightens me when I see how rough my mother's life has been. She says I will wind up in the same boat if I don't learn from her mistakes.

I am so confused right now I don't know which way to turn. Please help me. — TENSION.

DEAR TENSION: If you wanted to learn how to drive a car would you take lessons from someone who had had three horrible smashups? Well, neither would I.

A good marriage is not a gift. It is an achievement. And an achievement takes work. But the selection is of the utmost importance. The smart girl looks for kindness and integrity. She chooses someone she can respect and believe in, someone she can talk to and someone she can count on for emotional support — and someone to whom she can give emotional support when the situation requires it.

The girl who married for money will find it is the hardest work there is.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have read, with interest, your definitions from time to time. I like your definition of charm best. But what is your definition of success and maturity?

And now, will you give us a definition for success? We are in our late 20's — not so young that we haven't formed some concepts that will last throughout our lives and not so old that we can't accept some new ones. Thank you. — THE 20-NINESES THAT NO ONE IS TRYING TO KEEP UP WITH.

DEAR 20NINESES: Many years ago I ran across a definition of success that so closely reflected my thinking I have made it my own with appropriate credit, of course.

Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote it and here it is:

"To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty, to find the best in others; to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you lived. This is to have succeeded."

Readers' Saturday Column

Question: Would appreciate recipe for a very good white Christmas cake. Some, I believe some have only whites of eggs instead of whole eggs . . . Edith N.

Answer: Yes they do Edith but I have not felt they are a success. What follows is my best White Fruit Cake.

Add eggs, one at a time, beating well between additions. Mix the all - purpose flour through all of the fruits and nuts. Sift together the pastry flour, salt, nutmeg and baking powder, then add to the batter alternately with the orange juice (or sherry) and vanilla. Stir in floured fruits very well. Turn into 2 standard loaf pans or 1 large square pan 8" x 8" x 2½" lined with foil and well greased. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 2 hour, then raise temperature to 275 deg. Fahr. for 2 to 2½ hours longer or until cake tests done. Have water pan in broiler pan is excellent) in bottom of oven throughout baking period, replenishing water as it evaporates. Cool in or out of pans, leaving foil wrap on. Wrap in additional foil to store. Wrap in heavy towel and store in covered crock in cool place, or in refrigerator.

This cake took me 1 hour to mix and have ready for pans.

EVACUATE VILLAGERS

MANILA (Reuters) —Villagers living near the Taal volcano in the Philippines were ordered to evacuate their homes Saturday as the volcano showed signs of erupting again. Between 50 and 200 persons died when the volcano erupted last September. The exact toll was never determined. Thousands were made homeless. The volcano on the island of Luzon south of Manila, had been dormant for 54 years.

TRADITIONAL WHITE FRUIT CAKE (repeated from Nov. 1960)

These amounts make about 5½ pounds and fill two standard loaf pans.

¾ pound butter
1 cup plus 6 level tablespoons fine granulated sugar
8 large eggs
½ cup orange juice (or sherry)
1½ cups stirred but unsifted pastry flour
1½ cups stirred all-purpose flour
1½teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon nutmeg, preferably freshly grated
½ teaspoon salt
½ pound halved red and green glaced cherries
½ pound cut-up candied pineapple
½ pound chopped citron peel
1 pound white raisins
¾ pound chopped blanched almonds.

Ingredients should be at room temerature. In a large mixing bowl cream butter until pale and fluffy. Gradually beat in sugar until it is light. Let stand 10 minutes to allow sugar to dissolve. Beat again. I used the electric beater and think I beat the butter and sugar combination about 20 minutes in all.

Large But Poor St. Croix Makes Big Tourist Plunge

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

ST. CROIX, U.S. Virgin Islands — There are more than 100 Virgin Islands. Ninety-nine out of 100 Canadians probably would be hard-pressed to name one of the more than 90 that aren't St. Thomas.

Of the more than 100, three are American and populated. St. Croix, 40 miles south of St. Thomas, is largest, most historic, most colorful, most tradition-minded, poorest, and the only one with a golf course. It is also the only one equipped to handle Pan America's four-engine jets that make it in three and one-half hours from New York, and there's something to be said for that.

The above-mentioned golf course, Fountain Valley by name, sits in a ring of island hills in the brushy west end of the island and was opened only last month. High above the fairways the stone cones of ruined sugar mills stand like the lofty towers of southern Spain. The grass appears to have been imported blade by blade from Kentucky, and the greens, true as Martha Washington brook no pretender. Fountain Valley deputedly described this 6,900 yard monster as his last and greatest achievement.

Fountain Valley, operated by Laurence Rockefeller interests, represents an island desperate plunge towards the tourist big-dime for St. Croix. Despite the fact that the island offers the same duty-free allowances and give-away liquor prices as St. Thomas it is still grand-tonic cools more than a short one because tonic is more expensive than gin), prospective has been a long time coming to St. Croix.

PIRATES, YET!

In the nearly 500 years since the island's discovery by Columbus, it has been fought over, colonized, bought, sold, ceded, governed, captured and recaptured by seven European powers, Indians, pirates (including Captain Kidd and Blackbeard), filibusters, squatters, pretend royalties, diplomats and commercial trading companies and the U.S. Navy. And there were a few times when it was owned by no one at all.

It has also been plagued mercilessly by hurricanes, tidal earthquakes, tidal waves, labor riots, and the Volstead Act, which brought U.S. prosperity and prohibition exactly at the time when the island's only remaining product was rum. Prosperity always has been just around the corner.

For more than a century-and-a-half, from 1755 to 1917, St. Croix flew the unlikely flag of Denmark, a country not well known for colonizing. But the Danes were great traders in those days, and for a brief period toward the end of the eighteenth century great sugar plantations flourished, overseen by British managers.

The island became the capital of the Danish Virgins, with imposing colonial government buildings in the towns of Christiansted and Frederiksted. And on the rich estates — quaintly named by the British overseers Envy and Jealousy, Slob and Whim, Solitude and Sweet Bottom, Parasol and Paradise — the Danes built great mansions where they lived the patriarchal life, entertained lavishly, and serving on Danish silver and china.

Natural disasters, the end of slavery, and uneconomic management finished it all. St. Croix became a backwater which, despite the tentative emergence of tourism, it remains essentially to this day.

FEW SHIPS

Sugar, once prime, is a pauper now; even the U.S. subsidy ends next year. Little Frederiksted, on the western tip of the 84-mile-long island, has the only semblance of a harbor, but only about 30 cruise ships a year (compared with more than 175 at St. Thomas) venture into it.

Still, Cruzans are making the best of things. The wild, lonely, isolated western end of the island is about as much like a forgotten tropical colony as you're likely to find in the West Indies, besides Cuba and the American flag. Here, estate houses like Sprat Hall and La Grange, still in family hands, have been converted into hotels where the guests dine off the patron's Danish silver and china, the stone statuary imported from France still stands in the moldering garden and the oaks are draped with moss.

This fin-de-siecle aura never is far removed in St. Croix. The abandoned sugar mill ruins stand ghostly on every hilt like fossilized telescopes or mythical Rhine castles.

The harbor area, the arcaded Danish buildings of Christiansted and their courtyard shops, are national monuments, under the protection of the United States Park Service.

Danish quaintness still are sprinkled liberally among the island's leading families, and Danish cuisine is more than a trace.

CLOSE ON SUNDAYS

Unlike St. Thomas, the shops close on Sunday. Night life is confined to the taverns where, rarely more than a couple of times a week, a scratch band — piano, clarinet, guitar, ukulele, flute, gourd, and a rubber hose played like a bassoon — orchestrates for merry dancing.

Pleasures take the form of sailing and snorkeling around the beautiful green waters of the island's surrounding reefs, some such set isolated beyond or drive around the strangely varied terrain that runs the gamut from rain forest jungle to the wild semi-arid hills of the east end, where cactus grow as surely as coconut palms do a few miles away.

Restaurants run to the offbeat. In Christiansted's Stoop Ballogo, patrons dwell over magazines or chess matches as in a Viennese coffee house. In the courtyard Penthesy Pub, they play the piano as the spirit moves them, and serve mighty sandwiches, Barbara McConnell's gourmet cuisine in Frederiksted almost chefs from all over the world for lunch, enchanted by Barbara's guitar playing and singing when she's in the mood.

Already enough 20th-Century estate houses have been scattered around the hillsides to encourage a widened wheeling courage a wild-eyed wheeling and dealing in real estate on St. Thomas and, of land, on St. Croix, 40 miles away, be far behind.

F/O ROBERT W. CLARKE AND MRS. CLARKE
Clarke – Beckett

Wellman's United Church was the setting on Saturday, April 9, 1966 for the marriage ceremony when Carol Lucille Beckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Beckett of Harold was united in marriage to F/O Robert Winston Clarke of Gimli, Manitoba, son of Mrs. Harry Clarke, Stirling and the late Mr. H. Clarke.

Rev. Wilbert Cox officiated at the ceremony and the organist, Mrs. Craig Watson played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Donald Armstrong in several selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length bridal gown of white peau de soie with Empire bodice featuring an overlay of lace and elbow-length sleeves. The back of the dress was highlighted with a full length train edged with scalloped lace. A double-length bouffant veil of tulle illusion flowed from a pearl crown headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations, stephanotis and ivy.

Attending the bride was Mrs. Glen Flood, as matron of honor, dressed in shell pink Empire styled floor-length gown of asta peau featuring a rounded Neckline and short sleeves. The waistline was accented with tiny matching pearls and velvet ribbon. Her headdress consisted of pink miniature carnations and stephanotis. She carried a cascade of tinted pink carnations interspersed with fern. Miss Annamae Clarke, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Dawn Beckett, sister of the bride as bridesmaids were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in aqua shade. Each carried a nosegay of aqua tinted carnations and fern. Miss Melanie Linn as flower girl was in shell pink dressed identical to the matron of honor and carried a tiny nosegay of white and pink tinted carnations. The ring-bearer was Master Danny Clarke, nephew of the bridegroom who carried his bear on a white satin pillow.

F/O Jim McKay of Portage La Prairie, Manitoba was groomsman, while Mr. Burnard Beckett, brother of the bride and Mr. Jack Donnon were the ushers.

At the wedding reception in the Mount Pleasant hall, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a beige dress of imported lace with pink and beige accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a two-piece pink Anitco ensemble with matching pink and beige accessories and a corsage of pink feathered carnations.

Leaving on a wedding trip to New York and on to Nassau in the Bahamas, the bride chose a beige wool suit with matching derby hat, beige and orange accessories and a corsage of orange Sweetheart roses mingled with hyacinth.

F/O and Mrs. Clarke will reside in Gimli, Manitoba.

Deaf Child Overcomes Effect of Deafness by Help of Home Life

MONTREAL (CP) — Dainty Bamberger is a shining example of how a youngster can overcome the effects of deafness with the help of a home life that puts the handicap in its proper perspective.

Deaf since birth, the blonde, blue-eyed teen-ager has been skiing since she was four and this winter took up racing in earnest, earning a class-C grading in the Laurentian Ski Zone.

The only concession made to her deafness in racing is that, since she cannot hear the starter, her coach gives her a visual signal by raising and lowering his arm at the starting gate.

"She certainly has no trouble keeping up with the rest of her class during training," one of her coaches says.

Daintry's mother says the child has been given an upbringing as "natural as possible."

"I brought her up without any favoritism. I have always tried to keep her with normal, healthy children."

Daintry attends a school with normal youngsters in suburban Lachine where she is in Grade 9, "she takes 10 subjects and is getting very good marks," Mrs. Bamberger says.

LEARNED LIP-READING

The girl's parents discovered she was deaf when she was a few months old.

Lip-reading starts from the infant stage and I used to talk to her all the time," her mother says.

When Daintry was two she was taken to the John Tracey Clinic for the Deaf in California where parents are given a four-week course in how to deal with deafness.

On returning home, Mrs. Bamberger continued the course through correspondence.

"With an amplifier we could get her to listen to sounds for an hour at a time."

Daintry's first word, after 18 months of effort, was "mama."

Today she is some terrific articulating.

She began taking lessons at 2½ at an oral school for the deaf and five years later went to her first school with normal children—a convent in Cumbermere, Ont.

The principal of the Lachine school was dubious about the wisdom of accepting Daintry and she was taken on trial until Christmas "but after that there was no question of her having to leave."

Hard benches with straight backs made the day seem long in the nineteenth century school. Slates at the desk and painted boards on the wall held the written lessons of the day.

School Is Different But Vacation Still Welcome

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

School is almost over when modern math and new reading methods can be put aside until fall. How different today's school is from those of early America.

The blackboard was a simple board painted with black paint. The children wrote their lessons on small slits, not on expensive, screw paper. The slate pencil was cut from slate left-overs or a special red sand. If slate was scarce, a thorn was used to scratch on birch bark—or a charred stick wrote on anything.

If paper was available it was marked with lead melted down from bullets. Pens were made from goose quills and they used pokeberry juice ink. The books were bombooks, flat, paddle-shaped books with a single page of writing protected by a thin layer of horn. In spite of newer equipment, simple exercise is just as welcome now as then.

Q. You once wrote about a coffin plate collector. Where were these markers first made in the United States or Canada?

A. It was customary in England after 1760 to put an engraved metal plate with the name of the deceased on the side of the coffin. The first record of these plates in this area shows they were made by the Taunton Britannia Manufacturing Company in 1830.

Coffin plates were more than 2 percent of the dollar business of some of the silver plate manufacturers by 1838. One writer said, "The business was profitable and the market was limited only by the extent and health of the population."

Q. "Calyx ware" is on my china dish. It is printed in blue. The words "Est bd 1657 Adams, England" and a picture of a door or window was also part of the mark.

A. William Adams and Sons Ltd. is a pottery that has been worked in Staffordshire, England since 1769. The factory has used many backstamps and variations of the name. The mark on your dish was used from 1896. Calyx ware is a trade name used during the twentieth century.

Q. We have an old foot pedal organ marked Estey and Hughes, Foxcroft, Maine."

A. Dyer and Hughes listed as a manufacturer of pianos and organs after 1866. The firm worked in Boston, Massachusetts. There was a piano manufacturing company named Hughes and Son working in Foxcroft, Maine in 1866.

Mother's Helper

By Betsy Pearson

THE EARLY YEARS are important in the care of your children's teeth. Consult your own dentist for advice, but here are some general rules:

By three years of age, a child should have a regular check-up. Try not to give your youngsters gooey treats between meals. Apples, raw carrots, and the like are more stimulating, likely to scrub between teeth. If unable to brush after snacks, have him rinse out his mouth briskly with water. A balanced diet is vital! Claim Public Should Be Informed

TORONTO (CP)—Two Kingston pediatricians have suggested that manufacturers should accept more responsibility for informing the public of the dangers involved in the use of their products.

Drs. D. W. Geiger and M. W. Partington say in a letter to the Canadian Medical Association Journal that they "strongly support any legislation which compels manufacturers to label potentially dangerous subjects for what they are."

In a three-month period we have seen three children suffering from hydrocarbon poisoning due to the ingestion or inhalation of a furniture polish known as "Hawes Lemon Oil." One of our cases had a relatively mild illness lasting seven days, but the other two children had prolonged high fever, extensive abnormal signs in the chest and a severe illness requiring three to four weeks' hospitalization."

MENTION CONTENTS

The doctors, members of Kingston General and Hotel Dieu hospitals, said that according to the manufacturers, the lemon oil contains a hydrocarbon together with a small amount of an aniline dye.

They said one of the mothers of the ill children wrote to the company and received a reply saying that their product could in no way be considered having a "toxic or poisonous nature."

The company said a child could suffer a slight stomach upset if the polish was taken internally, adding that if the fluid caused the infant to get "chemical pneumonia" may result if the oil entered the lungs.

Dr. Robert Murray, director of the poison control centre at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, said in an interview Friday that the manufacturer's assessment of the oil appeared correct.

However, Dr. Imrie added that the chances of a child undergoing after he gel lemon oil in his mouth are remote.

WOMEN WILL COUNT

CALGARY (CP) — Woman technicians will make just as substantial contributions to civilization of men in the future, says F. C. Jorgenson, principal of the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology. Now 38 per cent of the work-force in Canada, women hold almost as wide a variety of jobs as men.

Club Activities

GEM AND MINERAL CLUB

Members and visitors of the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club continued to learn more of their hobby during the Wednesday evening meeting. They also learned that a busy summer season is ahead of them if they plan to attend all of the field trips, gatherings, and conventions which are scheduled for the coming months.

Gordon Alpen reported on the excellent response by the public to the club exhibit at the recent Hobby Show. He also reported on the recent meeting in Toronto of Field Trip Committees of the 19 Mineral Clubs in Ontario and adjacent Quebec. The local club's participation in the planned events will be announced later.

Tumbles polishing of rocks and gems-stones was the main topic of discussion, and this method of making finished gems-stones is a fascinating part of their hobby for many gem and mineral club members in all parts of the world.

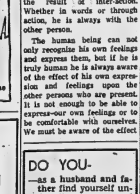
TUMBLERS SMOOTH STONES

A tumbler is simply a suitable container which can be partially filled with rough stones, abrasive and water, and which can be rotated at a suitable speed for as long as is necessary to smooth the rough spots from the stones. Successively finer abrasive eventually polishes the stones to a superb finish.

Tumblers have been made in almost every conceivable size and shape, varying from small fruit jars and tins to huge affairs made from 45 gallon drums, and even old tires. In this case they are hooked up driven by a small electric motor.

Because of this tremendous variation in sizes and styles of tumblers, both commercial and home-made, it is difficult to devise rules and instructions which will give uniformly good results in all cases. However club member Murray Maw presented a basic set of rules which seemed to indicate that the beginner in the art of tumbling will not make too many mistakes during his first effort. Tumbler speed is allimportant as is cleanliness when changing from one size abrasive to the next. Other factors however are likely to be encountered as the sizes, quantity and type of stones, the type and amount of abrasive, and the amount of water.

PEBBLES FOR FIRST TRY



It is recommended that the beginner use pebbles or gravel pit pebbles for the first experiments until he recognizes his mistakes.

GEM AND MINERAL CLUB

Some very fine stones have been tumbled which had their origin in a nearby gravel pit beach.

Patience is also a virtue in the art of tumble polishing, since very rough and hard stones may require up to a month for the first rough grinding operation. Fine grinding and polishing may require several more weeks. In all operations, the beginner is likely to find some trial and error to be necessary.

A panel discussion headed by Mr. E. Cornell brought out additional points, plus some do's and don'ts in the art of tumble polishing.

Lines on Life

Experience Yourself

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

What's human about a human being?

Four things, at least: he accepts himself, expresses himself, accepts others and lets them express themselves.

A human being can and must look at himself. He can and must experience himself — and must try to understand what he experiences. He can and must have regard for himself, without fear. If he is not afraid to love himself, he will not be afraid to love another or be loved by another. Only the human being who has a healthy concern in and a decent regard for himself can be truly related to others, interested in them when they are interested in themselves and tolerant of them when their concern for themselves.

A human being refuses to think of other human beings as "its" — he does not categorize people by making them into things. This regard for others is a human regard for a human being, as an individual and not as a "type," a "class," or a "group."... This allows him to enter into conversation with others in human terms, to meet them as he would not meet a thing, and to talk with another human — to talk with, not at, or to above, or beyond — but with. When he talks he seeks to communicate and he allows himself to be reached. He recognizes the coexistence of all others, and listens. His attention is not a monologue but based upon dialogue, not only action, but interaction, inter-action. Whether in words or through action, he is always with the other person.

The human being can not only recognize his own feelings and express them, but if he is truly human he is always aware of the effect of his own expression and feelings upon the other persons who are present. It is not enough to be able to express-our own feelings or to be comfortable with ourselves. We must be aware of the effect we have on other people when we reveal ourselves to them.

This means that one must think of himself not as a creature but only as a co-creature — not as an island but as part of the mainland. We must be able to see things from our own eyes and from those of others clearly and sharply, but at the same time to see with the eyes of those who see us and to hear with the ears of those who hear us.

God's Plus Sign, the Cross Is Both Mystery and Hope

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

A young artist who specialized in full-length portraits of people explained why she always portrayed her subjects standing in long grass or in a pool of water: "You see it's like this. I've never learned how to paint feet very well."

One reason more is not said about the Cross of Christ from pulpits and in religious literature is that we have never mastered the mystery of it. We cannot capture the essence of it in words, nor can we comprehend its full meaning. So, we often omit the subject.

Yet, two thousand years after the Crucifixion, Christ's Cross stands in our memory, "towering over the wrecks of time." We can hardly ignore it. We must have some impressions of it. What are they?

Perhaps a child can help us find some meaning we might have missed in the Cross. A little girl had arrived at a point in her schooling where she was admitted to the mysteries of mathematics. She was shown division signs, multiplication signs, minus signs and plus signs, and these symbols deeply impressed her.

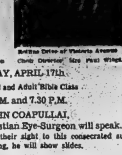
On the Sunday after she had learned about plus signs, the child accompanied her father to church. There she saw the golden cross on the altar, as she had seen it many times before. But this time, the appearance of the cross startled her and she whispered to her father, "Daddy! What is that plus sign doing on the altar?"

PERCEPTIVE QUESTION

The girl's question was a natural one and more perceptive than she knew. In a profound sense the Christian God's plus sign. What is it doing in our churches and in our lives?

The Cross signifies we are not alone in our sinning. Many of our actions, whether deliberate or unwitting, grow out of weaknesses, hatred and prejudices that are opposed to God's love and will for all of His children. The Cross is God's way of saying to man, "I hate what you are doing, but you are my child. I love you, and I am with you."

Not only when we are at our best is God with us, but when we are at our worst. He is always there :—suffering to redeem us. Man plus sin plus God's mercy in Christ equals redemption.



The cross, then, means hope. It says, "You need not stay the way you are." You (just as you are), plus God's redeeming process equals the person you were meant to be. The Crucifixion is history's incomparable blood transfusion that pours Christ's life and perfect goodness into man's poor, sin-infected condition, hurling our weary pallor into the glow of life, quickening the soul's failing pulse and awakening the comatose consciousness that had become unaware of God's mercy. We are never so spiritually alive and healthy as when we are connected to that Man of the Cross.

How else does the Christ on the Cross affect us? He is the "plus" in our lives that gives us a new beginning. A great gain was made recently in the conservation of our forests when a process was discovered whereby old newspapers could be reclaimed. For many years conservationists had been worried about the rate manufacturers of newsprint were using woodpulp for newspapers. Forests could be spared to some extent if only there were some way of reusing old newsprint. But how could the old printer's ink be removed? Then chemists devised a way of grinding up old newsprint, reducing it to pulp, adding a chemical that dissolved the printer's ink and starting all over again with clean paper.

The Life imprints upon us all, some things that should not be there, some of it false, some of it profane, some trivial, some bitter or sour. We need to be cleaned up so that we can begin all over again. Christ's life pours into ours does thi for us. The old life fades out, and we have a new and different story to tell the world.

Investors Turn Attention To Base Metals, West Oils

By LARRY DWORKEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Investors turned their attention to base metals and western oils on Canada's stock markets this week as both groups enjoyed increased prices.

The base metal group received a shot in the arm Thursday when Chilean copper producers announced a 20-cent increase in the export price of copper to 62 cents a pound.

A number of Canadian producers termed the increase exorbitant and unrealistic, and are not expected to follow.

At Toronto, Kilembe Copper, which is controlled by Falconbridge, jumped 8½ to 23. Campbell Chibougamau gained 1¼ to 12¾, Inco 1¼ to 105¾ and Noranda ¾ to 53.

Uranium stocks also fared well. Denison climbed 3¼ to 48¾, Rio Algom 2¼ to 22¼ and Preston 1¼ to 12¾. A number of Bay Street analysts attribute the rise to expectations of heavy demand for uranium in the next few years.

PINE POINT FELL

In other base metal activity, Pine Point fell 2 to 60 and Pyramid 1 to 13.

Volumes at Toronto totalled 25,772,843 shares compared with 27,143,921 last week.

Western oils scored the largest group gain, as the oil index moved up 4.25 to 133.25.

Scurry Rainbow paced the group, jumping 4¾ to 30¾. Pacific Petroleum added 2¾ at 14¾, Dodgen's Bay Oil and Canadian Industrial Gas and Calgary and Edmonton 1¼ each to 20 and 13¾. Banff Oil dropped 1¼ to 17¾.

In industrials, Americas Ledue slid 11¼ to 25 cents, Mill City 21 cents to 2.21 while Spooner moved up 11 cents to 1.42.

Industrials were mainly lacklustre, although oil refineries and a few selected issues were stronger.

Significantly the gas and oil industry predicted propane gas will be in short supply as a result of scarcity in the industrial market for materials and equipment to build new gas processing plants and additions to plants.

PROPANE SUPPLIERS UP

Among the major suppliers of propane, B-A Oil and Imperial Oil moved up 1¼ to 38¼ and 55, Texaco 1 to 58 and Shell ¾ to 22.

Clairtone was the most active industrial as it advanced 3¼ to 12¾ on 100,049 shares. Clairtone warrants shot up 2.75 to 8.00. The company is reported to be well under way in its program to produce color television sets.

Other industrials that did well were Bathurst Paper up 1¼ to 26, Westcoast Transmission 1¼ to 28¼, Interprovincial Pipe Line and Royal Bank 1¼ to 84 and 77¼.

Chrysler lost 2¾ to 43¾, MacMillan Bloedel 1¼ to 26¾, and Massey-Ferguson 1 to 32¾.

Golds were the only major group to decline. Giant Yellowknife slid 1¼ to 10¼. Dome Mines 1¼ to 40¾ and Cochenour Willans 25 cents to 8.35. Kerr-Addison was up ¼ to 12¼.

Speculative mines were narrowly mixed. New Senator-Rouyn, which climbed 29 to 58 cents on more than 6,000,000 shares last week, slipped 4 to 54 cents. Cam Mines was off 8 to 37 cents and D'Eldona 7 to 61 cents.

On index, industrials were up .25 to 170.85, base metals 4.00 to 96.08 and TSE .72 to 162.11. Golds were down .87 to 169.74.

At Montreal, industrials were up 1.51 to 169.61, utilities .74 to 145.85 and banks .56 to 124.48. Papers were down 2.22 to 139.46.

Volume was 6,087,113 shares compared with 4,019,342 last week.

Plan Work On Deseronto Park and Beach

DESERONTO — Plans for work on the park which is Deseronto's centennial project took a long step forward at a meeting of the committee early this week.

A long stretch of land on the Bay of Quinte west of the main part of the town but within the corporation, was purchased last year. The present plan for this summer is to hire a man with a power saw to cut down undesirable growth and to trim the trees. A second motion authorized the purchase of sufficient pipe to carry water from the roadside ditch to the bay to permit grading the entire area.

As there is no place for swimming in the town, although it is on the bay, it was decided to create an artificial beach by drawing in sand. This will be done in time for young folk to enjoy swimming there this summer.

Before July 1967 rolls around, everything will be ready, with wash rooms, picnic tables and benches, and barbeques ready for public use. The Lions Club has voted $1,000 to purchase playground equipment.

The committee regretfully accepted the resignation of its chairman, Jim Colley; who has been one of the prime movers of the project. Mr. Colley has accepted a position out of town. Town Councillor John Marks was appointed chairman to replace him. Mr. Marks has also begun one of the first to propose the park as Deseronto's centennial project.

$1,750 is being spent annually for three years to bring the park into being. The federal and provincial governments and the town contribute equally.

The park is on the road leading from the new bridge into town, and it is hoped that it will be used by tourists as well as by the townspeople.

Many Attend Second VON Benefit Ball

NAPANEE—The second VON Benefit Ball, held on Friday evening in Napanee District Secondary School auditorium proved to be a gala occasion.

The decorations for the event created the mood for an evening "Down Mexico Way", the theme for the ball. Wilson with the decoration preparations.

Twelve pupils of the school under the direction of Mrs. Wilan Elliot performed the Mexican hat dance adn were their costumes throughout the evening while assisting in the check rooms and serving refreshments. These students included: Mary Allee Paul, Bettijane Mills, Janice Dickson, Susan Davis, Janet Pools, Sherry Baker, Christopher Moore, Bill Woolsey, David Smith, Erik Anderson, Richard Bedard and David Taylor.

Refreshments were planned by Mrs. Wartman, Mrs. Pat Callahan and Mrs. Grant Prouse. Financer were in charge of Mrs. G. Smith and Mrs. C. Proud with Mrs. D. Hogarth in charge of publicity. Mrs. Murray Wilson was responsible for the lovely crown roast which punch was served.

Mrs. E. R. Ellicott, Mrs. Wartman and Mrs. Hogarth were among those who entertained during the ball. Guests were present from London, Burlington, Toronto, Agincourt, Trenton, Kingston and Ottawa.

Proceeds of the event will maintain the services of the local VON in both Napanee and Deseronto.

Flood

Red dropped two inches Friday, 2½ feet below the top of an earth and sandbag dike protecting the built-up business district.

Emerson town council met Friday and recommended that re-entry not be permitted until the river drops a further three feet.

Winnipeg remains dry behind 30-foot primary dikes that sentinel estimates had 111 houses and one apartment block in fringe areas already some deep area of flooding.

Registered evacuees totalled 5,185—most from Emerson, St. Jean and Morris. The majority were not actually flooded out but moved as a precautionary measure from the diked towns and the Elm Park district of Greater Winnipeg.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

3RD NAPANEE

NAPANEE — The 3rd Napanee Cub Pack, 36 strong and in full uniform, had two exciting experiences Thursday. In the morning they visited the headquarters of the Ontario Provincial Police in Belleville, and in the afternoon, the Royal Canadian Air Force Base in Trenton, concentrating their attention on the weather station. In both cases "the red carpet was rolled out for them," their leader, Mrs. Eleanor Tack says with pride.

In Belleville they were welcomed by Superintendent A. McDougall, and then in groups were put in charge of other officers and were shown the processes by which crimes are investigated and evidence obtained.

They were particularly intrigued by the finger-printing and were shown articles which had served as evidence in a coming trial.

Telex, the radio system, and the teletype machine, which were all exhibited and explained to the wide-eyed boys, who like wise were given a new respect for the protection given them by the O.P.P. While some of the equipment is in the office of the Napanee detachment, they were told, evidence in complicated cases is investigated in Belleville, where a series and very valuable laboratory has been especially trained in identification.

The afternoon in Trenton was equally enlightening. Planes were going out and coming in all the time, and one bound for Marville, France, was of special interest, not only because of its size and destination, but also because they saw practical use being made of the information gathered at the weather station. Because of a combination of low cloud ceiling over France, the plane was directed to follow a course other than the normal one.

At the weather station the cubs were shown the method used to measure the cloud ceiling, such as wind direction and velocity, temperature and humidity. The way in which it is transmitted, and the way in which weather reports from all over the world are received.

Mrs. Tack and her assistant, Mrs. Fred Dibb, say they were pleased with the good behavior of their boys, who are aged from eight to 11.

Wallace Moorland, T. W. Cox, Harold Wayte, Fred Holmes, and John Dibb were the drivers of the five cars which transported the boys.

Margarine production in March was 1,811,000 pounds, up 3.3 per cent from a year earlier. April 1 stocks held by manufacturers, wholesalers and other warehouses totalled 11,-253,000 pounds, compared with 12,527,000 a year ago.

Employment News

By R. B. STAVELY
EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS OFFICER

The National Employment Service recognizes and supports the principle that the economic future of Canada depends to a large degree upon its present students being schooled and trained to their maximum potential.

During the next few weeks, many of the Community's University Undergraduates will be returning to their homes in this area to seek employment for the next four or five months. In practically every case, all of these young men and women require a paying job, in order to continue their education. In past years, these young workers have proven that they were more than earn their wages for their employers. Frequently, these undergraduates accept employment with the same company after graduation. This is becoming, in recent years, this trend has been encouraged and stressed by Canadian industry. Business organizations as an important factor in successfully meeting their junior executive requirements.

If you, as an employer, have a temporary labor requirement calling for qualifications possessed by these undergraduates, please contact your National Employment Service Office, at 324 Church Street, Belleville, or telephone 962-8581.

The local employment picture during the last week presented a stronger labor demand especially in the building trades and services field. The local construction labor demand continued to be stable. However, in view of the known planned projects, the weeks ahead will see a sharp increase in the labor demand from the construction field.

With the advent of real spring weather, residents of our Community are thinking of the spring chores to be done - - - house and window cleaning, preparation and care of flower beds, lawns and gardens. If you have such a casual labor requirement, your local NES, will be pleased to refer you a suitable worker to you for this type of work.

JOBS OPEN

The following job opportunities represent only a few of the jobs now available at the local NES. Office:

In the female division locally, a well groomed, pleasant woman is required to take full charge of a lunch coubter. This is an attractive position for the right person and carries with it above average wages with good hours of work.

Somewhat similar is a position for a restaurant waitress who has an interest in dealing for personable, well groomed women between the ages of 21 to 35 years. Part-time employment is available for experienced cashiers, sales clerks and confectionary operators. Regular employment is being offered to experienced bank tellers. A mature woman is required for a receptionist position. Here some evening hours will be involved since this is a hairdressing business. It is preferred that the successful applicant be between the age of 26 to 35 years.

For out-of-town employment, there are openings for stenographers, typists, plant production workers, a commercial artist and in the drafting field.

In the male division locally, there are an unusual number of openings in personal service occupations accumulated in our files during the course of recent weeks. Bell boys, dishwashers, short order cooks are in demand and experienced will be almost immediately arranged for any interested and qualified applicants.

A large manufacturer has an opening for immediate employment in his sewing department for a young man with some formal training or experience in sewing and excellent opportunity presents itself here for entry to a career job in industry.

Recommended for consideration are the several worthwhile applicants who had exist to enter the retail merchandising field.

NAMED FARM HELP

A number of farmers are asking for suitable agricultural workers. Quite attractive working conditions and wages are being offered this season.

A fourth class stationary engineer is needed by a local industry.

Auto body mechanics are of particular concern to one of our largest garages. Fully qualified men may earn top income.

Positions for experienced machinists are available at numerous rates that will stand comparison to those offered elsewhere.

There are several structure carpenter positions open in the consumer credit field. This type of employment offers excellent opportunities for advancement with other fringe benefits. Some of the requirements are high school graduation or better education between the ages of 21 to 28 years and an aptitude for this type of work as determined by screening and testing.

If you are interested in any of these positions, seeking employment or thinking of reentering the labor market, please contact your local National Employment Service Office at 324 Church Street, Belleville or telephone 962-8581.

Young

Montreal as Young Liberal vice president, was chairman of the commission on political morality.

He favored government-subsidized election campaigning and publication of all contributions to campaign funds. At present, he said, campaign expenses for a single candidate can run as high as $100,000, but only a fraction of this amount is reported.

It was relatively easy to get funds at campaign time, but between elections the national headquarters staff of 21 sometimes had to delay expenditures for a few hundred dollars for lack of funds.

The party's senior policy committee last year operated on $250, which explained why a lot of its policy formulations were "tripe."

Mr. Smith said most federal candidates get about $3,000 apiece from the national headquarters for their campaigns, but one Liberal in the Manitimes drew $35,000 last Nov. 8 for a successful battle.

Mr. Smith's opponent for the leadership is Frank Shunock, a Sault Ste. Marie lawyer.

Orr Runs Wild

Generals Thump Trappers

OSHAWA (CP) — North Bay Trappers held their own against the highly-favored Oshawa Generals in the first period Friday night but were no match for them after and shortened an 11-4 drubbing in the opening game of the Ontario Junior A hockey finals.

Second game in the best-of-seven series is in Oshawa tonight with the third and fourth games in North Bay next Monday and Wednesday.

The Trappers, showing good speed and refusing to back up from the rough going, took the 2-1 lead in the first period but fell behind 7-3 in the second.

The Generals, fourth-place finishers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A schedule who swept through three playoff series, were paced by their slick - skating defence star Bobby Orr.

Orr, moving through North Bay defenders almost at will scored three goals and set up four more. Bill White added two goals for the winners and Nick Beverley, Wayne Cashman, Danny O'Shea, Bob Black, Bill Litzle and George Babcock one each.

REYNOLDS GOT TWO

Marty Reynolds, showing superb speed, was the pick of the Trappers. He scored two goals while Randy Prior and Roger Wilson got the others.

The Trappers, bolstered by six players from another Ontario Hockey Association clubs, drew plaudits from a standing-room crowd of 3,200 for a game but outclassed performance, particularly in the third period.

Among the most courageous performers were North Bay goalies Andre Lalande and Matt Thorpe, neither of whom wore masks.

The Generals rifled 51 shots on the Trapper nets and Lalande, displaying amazing efficiency even though he was frequently flat on the ice, injured his leg late in the second period. Thorpe replaced him and allowed the last four Oshawa goals.

Cassius To Meet Cooper

LONDON (Reuters) — Jim Wicks, manager of British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper, said today he expected to sign contracts today or Sunday for a world title fight between Cooper and the champion Cassius Clay.

The fight will be held at the Arsenal soccer team's stadium at Highbury here May 21 or 28.

Clay all said he would never get the champion to come over to England and meet Cooper, but we have done it," Wicks said. "The next 24 hours should see everything signed, sealed and delivered."

No final decision has yet been made on the exact date, he said, but he expects it to be May 21.

Wings Ride Herd On Hawks - - So Far

CHICAGO (CP)—A number of hockey fans are expressing amazement that the elderly Detroit Red Wings have pounded the tougher and younger Chicago Black Hawks into the ice during the first four games of their Stanley Cup semi-final.

But this impression is only partly true.

The Red Wing roster does include senior citizens Gordie Howe and Bill Gadsby, both 38, and Andy Bathgate, 33. But younger players have carried a big share of the load.

The Wings and Hawks are tied 2-2 in the best-of-seven series but nothing else has been equal since the set opened here last Thursday. Detroit has outshot the Hawks in every game, outscored them 20-9 and looked at least five Chicago players along the way.

Howe has turned in his usual masterful performance, scoring two goals and assisting on three. Bathgate, no longer the dominant figure he was with New York Rangers in past years, has nonetheless contributed three goals.

Meanwhile Gadsby has been scoring like a 25-year-old. The veteran defenceman has been handing out teeth-rattling body-checks and breaking up plays after play.

YOUNGSTERS KEEP PACE

Keeping pace with these three, along with captain Alex Delvecchio and Norm Ullman, are three of the team's youngsters, Bryan Watson, 23, Paul Henderson, 23, and Roger Crozier, 24.

Watson, a Montreal Canadiens castoff, has scored two goals. But, more important, he is personally responsible for holding the illustrious Bobby Hull to one.

Actually, Watson isn't even accountable for the one tally managed by the Golden Jet in the series opener. It was in the next game that Coach Billy Reay assigned the aggressive right winger to the job of shadowing Hull and the National Hockey League scoring champion has managed only one assist since. Henderson, a third-year Red Wing, was one of Detroit's most consistent players even before he fired the first two goals in Thursday night's 5-1 victory.

Crozier, however, is the key to Detroit's success just as he has been for the last two seasons. The diminutive netminder has limited the Hawks to an average 1.25 goals in the four games and has come up with one key save after another.

SHARES THE CREDIT

Watson, who was getting much of the credit for containing Hull after Thursday night's game, said:

"Whenever Hull did get away from me, Roger was there."

Then, the Red Wings have been getting top mileage out of Dean Prentice, whom they got from Boston Bruins during the season. Prentice has scored two goals and assisted on another. Prentice, 33, has put the goals to score more points than any other player in either semi-final series. Ullman, normally a higher scorer himself, has been used defensively against the Hawks' Scooter Limp, chasing rival centre Stan Mikita onto a new assignment with Hull in an effort to break clear.

Ullman has no goals to Mikita's one and has outscored him by five points to three.

Two goals by Floyd Smith and one by Bert Marshall complete Detroit's scoring.

TAKES THE CREAM

Chicago coach Billy Reay says he has skimmed the cream of his farm system in finding seven players — the four Detroit players — left - winger Doug Mohns, right-winger Chico Maki and defencemen Elmer Vasko. Only Mohns is considered a regular starter for Sunday's game.

The reinforcements are not the only changes in the Chicago lineup. John Mlsnuk and Jack Stanfield, all of whom joined the Hawks from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League as insurance but didn't use them Thursday until the dying minutes of the third period.

Still, the 24 - year - old lefthander was looking over his shoulder at Robinson's and the fans' welfare.

Peterson revealed his concern for them after the game in discussing a home run Robinson didn't get in the fourth inning.

Irate Women Fans Threaten Force

By DOUG MARTIN
VANCOUVER (CP)—Women have been called "fickle" and "ridiculous;" and one irate matron threatens to use force if necessary to get a deck of card here at which women have been banned.

But Windsor L. Olson of Seattle, the president of the promoting group, Thunderbird Corp., says the for-men-only edict will stand when professional boxing returns to Vancouver after a three-year absence.

Thunderbill, in its first venture into pro boxing, has matches ranking light heavyweight Eddie Cotton against unranked heavyweight Emil Umek this Wednesday. The Seattle syndicate previously promoted car racing in Vancouver.

Olson says women will be barred at the door on fight night because too many other sports have been "corrupted by the female influence."

"Boxing is the last retreat of the male animal," he says.

"I've got other fight cards planned after these and the same rule goes for all of them."

WOMEN REACT

The decision to bar the women — advertisements read "men only for a man's sport"— brought a near-violent reaction from Cotton's manager George Clemeres of Seattle and from matchmaker Dave Brown of Vancouver.

"My telephone hasn't stopped ringing since the announcement," Brown says.

"I went along with it at first because I thought it was a gimmick. But this guy Olson is serious about it, he won't call it off. He really believes a boxing match is no place for a woman.

"And I'm coming out of this thing as the culprit. I made the announcement for him (Olson) and now all the women are mad at me. . . ."

Brown said Olson checked the no-women verdict with the Vancouver Athletic Commission and there is no rule forbidding it.

Honor Minor Champions

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Nine teams of proud champions were honored, along with various individuals, at the Belleville Minor Hockey Association wound up the 1965-66 season with the 10's annual "Awards Night" last evening.

One of the highlights of the affair was the naming of Merril Dales as "Mr. Minor Hockey" for the season.

Dales is the convener of the novice section as well as an ardent worker in other phases of the minor hockey program.

He was presented with a beautiful trophy, by BMHA president Ed Adamson, who called Dales "the man who has contributed the most to minor hockey and who stressed sportsmanship above all".

Another individual receiving a special award was pretty Miss Pam Dalnard. She was the official scorekeeper of the peewee division all year.

The nine house league championship teams lined up in novice to receive their championship crests. The tyke title was won by the Rangers, coached by C. Powell, with Verla Dales presenting the crests.

E. Rivers' Hawks took the novice "A" crown with Merril Dales presenting the crests. Rangers captured the novice "B" honors, coached by E. Watkins, and Vic Allen made the presentation.

In peewee, Bruins, coached by H. Jackson, won the championship and received crests from Fred Roberts. Leafs, coached by T. Neill, won the "B" with George Dalnard doing the presentation honors.

The bantam "A" crown was won by E. Morton's Barons and Dales made the presentations. The Wings won the "B" title and received crests from Fred Young. Maurice Rollins was the team coach.

Doug Moreau's Canadiens won the midget championship and Drury Denyes presented the crests. The Canadiens also received a trophy donated by the Elks Lodge No. 325, Belleville, presented by Don Franklin.

Jets won the juvenile championship, coached by Stu Muir. Stu Mulrhead presented the crests.

Peter Molaski (Leafs) received his from Darrell Gibbs. Tibby, Terry Coveney (Bruins) from coach Bud Cowan, Robert Rice from coach Jim Hanna, Earl Rivers, John Loder (Canadiens) from coach Jim Hamilton, Stephen Gray (Wings) from coach Charlie Powell, Jeffrey Soule (Maroons) from coach Ron Guest, Kerry Reid (Trespees) from coach Ed Delaney, Anthony Wall (Barons) from coach Vince Muldoon, John Ashley (Generals), from coach Mac Graham and Gregory Scott (Rangers) from coach Eric Watkins.

The BMHA hopes to make the annual presentation of the Tommy McNevin Memorial Award at a later date.

In exhibition games between "A" and "B" champions, Hawks blanked the Rangers 6-0 in novice, Bruins topped the Leafs 3-1 in peewee and Wings brought the "B" champs their only win in bantam, nipping the Barons 6-5.

Terry Say scored two and Steven Tracy had a goal and two assists to pace the novice Hawks. Bob Moore got a goal and assist, K. McKeown and Dean McCormack a goal each and Jeff Hamilton an assist.

M. Sullivan had a goal and assist for the Bruins' peewees with David England and Chet Evans also scoring and Ken Baker blanking no cote. David Horwood from L. Morris was the Leaf scoring play.

Habs Get Daily Drills

MONTREAL (CP)—It may be almost a week before Montreal Canadiens learn who their opponents will be in the Stanley Cup final series, but coach Toe Blake isn't giving his players a chance to sit around and contemplate the subject.

Blake, whose team has a nine-game winning streak, gave the club a day off on its arrival Friday from Toronto, but scheduled a regular practice for today.

The Canadiens won their last five regular season games to secure the league championship, before knocking off Toronto Maple Leafs in four straight games in the semi-final round of their Stanley Cup semi-final series.

The Saturday workout will mark the start of a daily series that will continue until a decision is reached between Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks, tied at two games apiece in their semi-final.

Henri Richard, the classy Montreal centre, is the only serious casualty on the club.

Richard missed the last two games of the Toronto series after being sidelined in the second game with a knee injury.

The layoff is expected to give Richard time to skate himself back into form for the final run for the cup.

A spokesman for the club said Friday, that apart from Richard, the players had emerged from Thursday's 4-1 win with a few bumps and bruises," but otherwise in top shape.

Undefeated Riteways Oust Oak Ridges

Belleville Riteways gained a berth in the Brampton Novice Hockey Tournament "B" semi-finals yesterday and kept their undefeated record intact.

Riteways ousted Oak Ridges in the two-game, total goals series with victories of 4-3 and 3-1.

The Belleville club has played six games, winning five and playing a scoreless tie in the other.

Riteways were scheduled to meet Barrie at 9:45 this morning in the tournament's semi-finals.

No other details of yesterday's games were available here at the time of writing.

Former Dodger Batboy Top Slugger

Saves Drysdale

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Drysdale went twice as far as Sandy Koufax, but neither has gone as far as Jim Lefebvre.

A batboy for Los Angeles Dodgers seven years ago, their second baseman and the Rookie of the Year in the National League last year, Lefebvre has gone right to the top this year —as the leading slugger in the majors.

The 25-year-old switch-hitter pulled Drysdale off the hook Friday night by slamming his fourth homer in three games, a three-run shot in the eighth inning that carried the world champions to a 4-2 victory over Chicago Cubs.

Lefebvre, who hit two homers Thursday night, now leads the majors in that department as well as runs batted in with eight, and has compiled a .467 batting average by connecting for seven hits in 15 at-bats.

Drysdale made his first start of the season after his 32-day holdout and proved more effective than Koufax. Where Koufax surrendered five runs in three innings Wednesday in his first start, Drysdale lasted six innings while giving up eight hits — all singles — and only two runs.

HOLDOUT DOWNS HOUSTON

Another holdout, San Francisco's Gaylord Perry, went 1-3 innings in his debut but beat Drysdale and Koufax to the victory circle, getting credit for the triumph as the Giants whipped Houston Astros 6-2.

Roger Craig became the majors' biggest winner by posting his second victory as Philadelphia Phillies edged Cincinnati Reds 4-3. St. Louis Cardinals continued their mastery over Milwaukee Braves at Busch Field by subduing the Pirates 9-2, and Atlanta Braves added to the Mets' misery by edging the New Yorkers 3-2.

Drysdale was touched for two runs in the second inning on three hits, a balk, a hit batter and two sacrifice flies.

The Dodgers, meanwhile, were unable to do anything with Frank Ellsworth until the seventh when Ron Fairly singled and moved around on an error and Nate Oliver's grounder.

Then in the eighth Wes Parker doubled off reliever Ted Abernathy, Fairly drew a walk and Lefebvre followed with his homer.

LINDY RELIEVES SHAW

Shaw, who signed three days after Drysdale and Koufax, gave up six hits and two runs before needing relief help from Frank Linzy in the sixth inning.

The game, however, was never in doubt once Tom Haller hit a three-run homer in the third inning for a 4-1 lead. Willie Mays went 2-for-4 for the Giants and scored runs No. 1,500 and 1,501 of his career.

Craig, working in relief of Jim Bunning, got the victory for the Phillies when they broke a tie in the ninth inning.

The Cardinals tied a major league record by beating the Pirates for the 18th straight time on Pittsburgh's home grounds.

Bob Gibson pitched a six-hit ter while the Cardinals supported him with a 13-hit attack that included two-run homers by Alex Johnson and Lou Brock.

The Mets lost their home opener for the fifth straight year as the Braves struck in the ninth against Jack Fisher, scoring two runs on a double by Joe Torre, Lee Thomas' single, a throwing error and Denis Menke's squeeze bunt.

Trenton Midget Tournament

Marlboros Grand Champions

TRENTON (STAFF) — Exscoring in every department, Toronto Marlboros powered their way to the grand championship of the Lions All-Star Midget Tournament here last night, whipping Oshawa, 15-3. Leading 7-3 after two periods of play, the Marlboros continued to apply the pressure in the third and hit for eight more goals without a reply.

Oshawa won the B Group title with a 9-3 win over Ottawa Nationals in a wide open afternoon game and appeared to come out of gas in the final with Marlboros. The Toronto squad captured the A Group honors with a 5-3 win over Kingston, yesterday morning.

Kingston's Terry Gilmour was judged the tournament's outstanding player. He had two of his team's goals in the loss to Marlboros. Dave received a wrist watch, compliments of Ostenders Jewellers in Trenton.

The Kingston team and Ottawa Nationals each received group runner - up trophies. Marlboros took the trophies, Oshawa trophy and Oshawa, the finalist trophy, Trenton Lions Club president Spencie Curns made the presentation to Marlboros, T. E. Bedford, tournament chairman presented the other trophies.

Three goal efforts by Brent Swaine and Bill Hanson led Marlies in last night's win. Harry Sems and Lorne Miller each scored twice with singles for Carlo Ugolini, Keith Carrigan, Steve Cuddie, Ray Rantz and Ron Mastrangelo. Ugolini also picked up three assists.

Oshawa marksmen were Bill Prentice, Tom Dart and John Nestic.

In the A Group final, Kingston had Marlboros on the run in the late going, coming from behind a 4-1 deficit to put a pair of goals in 42 seconds with about five minutes to play. At that point, Marlboros were in trouble but they got off the hook when Kingston committed two minor penalties less than a minute apart. Those penalties gave Marlboros the legged they were looking for and at 19.10, the Toronto squad wrapped it up with their fifth goal.

It was a 1-1 score after one period of play. George Shields scored the first goal at 1.53 but Kingston got that one back less than a minute later when Dave Gilmour found the mark.

In the second period, Harry Sems regained the lead for Marlboros at 7.32 and just 18 seconds later, Bill Hanson made it 3-1. Just pass the halfway mark in the game, Carlo Ugolini upped his team's total to three goals and that 4-1 score stood up until late in the contest.

Kingston shaved the deficit at 14.55 in the third with Gilmour potting his second of the game. Keith Harvey kept the comeback drive going, firing Kingston's third goal at 15.37. Then came the twin penalties and Marlies' Mike Murphy connected for the insurance goal at 19.10.

For Marlies, it was sweet revenge. In the 1965 tourney, a Kingston team defeated the Toronto squad in the grand championship final.

The prolific scoring of Brent Rivington was not enough to keep Oshawa Nationals a B Group title yesterday afternoon. Rivington was a one-man gang in the 9-3 loss in overtime to Ottawa. He scored six of his team's goals, clicking once in the first, period, twice in each of the second and third periods and once again in the overtime.

Jerry Welsh was Oshawa's hero in this one. He goaled at 17:40 in the third period created a 7-7 tie and forced the 10-minute overtime session. But with the extra period less than two minutes old, he shot his team in front, 8-7. Wayne Sargent scored what proved to be the winner at 9:18. Rivington was the marksman on Ottawa's final goal. He made it close again with 27 seconds to play.

Oshawa managed to fritter away a 5-1 lead and was fortunate to pull out the win. Nationals wouldn't quit and went on a spree that saw them whip in six consecutive goals to take a 7-6 lead in the second period.

Adding single goals to the six scored by Ottawa's Rivington were Ken Quaile and Lloyd Wallace.

During the five day tournament at the Community Gardens here, 28 teams saw action with 41 games played.

Belleville Rollins bowed out of the North Bay "Little NHL" peewee section tournament yesterday afternoon by dropping a 2-1 decision to St. Catharines.

The loss was Belleville's second, both by one-goal margins.

Robbie Foster triggered Rollins' lone tally against St. Catharines, on a solo effort.

The losers appeared to have tied the score with just three minutes left in the game but the goal was disallowed because a Belleville player was in the goal crease at the time.

Hundreds of Actors Out Of Work, Series Cancelled

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Oh, the waste of it all! No fewer than 46 television series are shuffling off the U.S. networks this season—a record.

This throws hundreds of actors out of work and corporations into panic — three big studios suffered a total loss of 47 series. Millions of dollars are lost, since many series fail to show a profit on the first run. They need a few years of production and re-runs to break even.

Is there a solution to this waste? There is, and it is offered by that astute observer of the television scene, Caroline Thomas.

Miss Thomas is seven, and she was upset to learn that two of her favorite shows, Gidget and The Patty Duke Show are going off the air.

"Why can't Gidget -move in with Patty Duke?" she suggested.

A brilliant suggestion. Shows could be spared the axe by combining with others.

Ben Casey and Dr. Kildare could go into practice together. The Addams Family could take up residence with The Munsters, or vice-versa, and scare the dickens out of each other.

POWERFUL PASSE

A consolation of The Loser, Jesse James, The Man from Shenandoah and the chaps from Branded and Rawhide could wipe the Ponderosa off the map.

There isn't a case that couldn't be solved by a detective agency staffed by Honey West, Henry Fonda, Secret Agent and Blue Light. Hazel could get a job with Ozzie and Harriet. Mister Roberts and Mr. Hale's Navy could climb aboard the Warkiest Ship in the Army.

The law firm of Mason and O'Brien could rescue Raymond Burr and Peter Falk from sy-dication.

Another variety show called The Losers could be built around the talents of Jimmy Dean, Slye Lawrence, Sammy Davis, The Smothers Brothers and The King Family, joined by the frugers from Shindig and Hullabaloo.

Caroline and I have not yet figured out what to do with My Mother the Car, Mona McKinsey, O.K. Crackerby, John Forsythe and Hank. But then the networks couldn't, either.

AT THE ELLE — Nort — Clair Moon, who co-stars with Richard Burton and Oskar Werner, portrays a Canadian working girl involved in a deadly espionage plot in Ottawa, in "The Spy With My Face". The film, "The Quiller Memorandum", is at the Nile Theatre in Belleville.

Gardens To Refund $100,000

TORONTO (CP)—The bottom hat fallen out of the hockey ticket market here now that Toronto Maple Leafs are through for the season.

And Monday morning there'll be a run on the wickets at Maple Leafs Gardens when fans line up to give back more than $100,000 worth of unused Stanley Cup playoff tickets.

That's quite a switch for Toronto, where the waiting list for season tickets to Leaf home games is reported to contain 10,000 names.

Before the playoffs began, season ticket subscribers bought tickets for four games, three in the semi-finals against Montreal Canadiens and one for the first game in the finals.

But somebody forgot to tell the Canadiens, who polished off the Leafs in four games, two of them in Toronto, and now the Gardens must make refunds for the other two contests.

Dundas, Kingston In Final

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP)—Dundas Merchants defeated Fort Erie Frontiers 5-2 Friday night to gain a berth in the final for the Ontario Hockey Association's Intermediate A series.

Dundas meets Kingston Gananoque Merchants here Saturday night with the second game in the best-of-seven series Sunday in Kingston.

Honor Blackman and Michael Craig appear in the Royal Films International release, a Romulus production, as their respective lovers. Donald Wolfit also is starred. "Life at the Top" is based on the novel by John Braine, author of the equally sensational "Room at the Top," in which Harvey first won film stardom. DIAL-A-DOG

DETROIT (AP)—If you lose your dog in Detroit, just stick your finger in a telephone dial and dial C-A-S-O-N-G. If you find a dog, do the same thing. The letters translate to 227-6664, and that's the number the Michigan Humane Society's new lost and found information centre.

AT THE PARK — Laurence Harvey and Honor Blackman are starred, with Jean Simmons, in Romulus' production of Donald Wolfit, in "Life at the Top", new romantic drama based on the John Braine novel. Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

The smelt fishing will be starting this weekend.

Monday night around o'clock I took my dip net and went over to the mouth of the Moira River to try my luck and after a couple of hours of steady dipping managed to take home a basket of these tasty little fish. This was very slow fishing as far as I was concerned and it appears that the run is just starting.
